PREFACE

I am a highly motivated Kashmiri Pandit. I am neither a priest nor a preacher and hence, the contents of this work may not satisfy either. We have unique traditions based on our religious philosophy (Shaivism), long history spanning over 5000 years, geographical location, climate and presence of of our noble saints who keep on guiding us in our lives.

The driving forces pushing me ahead in the pursuit of this publication are:

i) Our younger generation of 21st Century does not blindly accept the things my generation did, secular or sacred. They are more scientific in their approach to life. They do not want to accept things without knowing their sanctity .

ii) We, the Kashmiri Pandits are deeply attached to our socio- cultural and religious traditions. In the changed situations post - migration from Kashmir, large parts of our diaspora is left without the traditional services of priests, who over the years have shrunk in numbers.

iii) Despite, the fact that Kashmiri Pandits are known for their scholarship and have written profusely on topics secular and scientific, yet very little has been written about our sacred traditions. No doubt volumes have been written about Shaivism, which generally have dealt with the philosophical aspects and as such have remained confined mostly to scholars . General masses are ignorant about it and confuse it with Vaishnavism. A few booklets written by priests and learned ones describing the performance of rituals are too sketchy , without background information. They do not fully meet the needs of seekers.

iv) All traditions that we follow have religious and social components. The religious part is highly Sanskritised which is not understood even by priests who perform rituals. Hence, we are left with the social component playing a dominant role. Thus, the sacred spirit behind the observance of these rituals is being lost.

v) Karmkanda, which provides guidance for the performance of karmic rituals is regional in character. Shiva worship is very extensive in Kashmir compared to the Hindus of plains where Vishnu worship is predominant. The Karmkandas of various regions have been upgraded from time to time according to the needs of the people in that region. This does not apply to Karmkanda followed by Kashmiri Pandits. We have Karmkanda written a few centuries back, copies of which are not easily available. Some priests have preserved parts of this book which are now used in the performance of various samskaras. The performance of our samskaras, as they are being observed now, is not in conformity with times, nor do they satisfy the sacred needs of the rituals.

The learned ones of the community need to look into these aspects of our socio cultural and religious life.

I was initiated into religious practices at a tender age and down the years I have been debating about the wisdom behind these practices. The answers given did not satisfy my curiosity as they involved gods and demons which were beyond my comprehension. I am trained as a scientist and hence the urge to find acceptable answers in the scientific spirit has always been there. To a true seeker the divine spirit does provide guidance. In Bhagwad Gita Lord Krishna declares:

Tad Viddhi Pranipatena Paripreshnena Sevya
Upadekshyanti Te Jnanan Jnaninas Tattva Darshina

BG - 4/34.

(Seek enlightment by prostrating, by questioning and by service; the wise, the seers, after many attempts into the Truth, will instruct you in that knowledge).

Yes, after many attempts I found my guru in Karunamai Maa (see Chapter 12). Years of study of sacred literature coupled with her divine grace gave me the courage to attempt this work.

Sanatana Dharma (better known as Hinduism), the religion of Kashmiri Pandits, is not a religion in the sense it is understood generally. Religions are generally dogmatic. A set of rules are laid out for the faithful to be observed as divine order, without questioning. They are considered dictates (farmans) of god. Even a small doubt calls for punishment by the upholders of the faith. Sanatana Dharma, on the other hand, encourages search for the Ultimate Truth behind any manifestation. It is called 'the path of Eternal Righteousness'. There are no commandments. One has to find the truth oneself. Only a few guide lines have been prescribed.

We are blessed to be the progeny of learned seers (Rishis) who at the very beginning of civilization about 5000 years back, focused their attention to issued such as:

i) The Ultimate Power or Spirit behind all manifestation.
ii) The nature of creation.
iii) What is the relationship of man with the Supreme Power?
iv) What should be goals of the life?

These are question to which every individual is seeking answers whether he is a devout or not . Through their deep contemplation and keen sense of observation over long periods of time, the seers got answers to these questions which they conveyed to their people in simple aphorisms to remember. Man had not yet perfected the art of writing and hence these 'aphorism' served as brief revelations of truth, which were passed through the word of mouth. Down the centuries, as the art of writing was more or less perfected, these aphorisms were collected by the noble saint - scholar Vyasa who compiled them into four volumes called Vedas, on the basis of their contents. At a still later date, when Sanskrit grammar was also perfected, these Vedas were studied for their contents by the learned seers.

The literature that came out from their writing, known as Sutras, Upanishads, Epics, Granths is the greatest inheritance not only of Hindus, but also of the whole mankind. For the last two thousand years these books have attracted many scholars in India and abroad.

Many schools of thoughts evolved, expresing their views in different ways. Despite, differences of opinion about the Ultimate Truth and manifestation of the universe , all seer-scholars agreed to the centrality of thought that The Ultimate Truth is one.

"Ekam Sat Vipraha Bahuda Vadanti"

Rig Veda

{The Ultimate Truth is one, but those who know it (Vipraha) talk about it differently.}

That Ultimate Truth is called Brahman by one school (Vaishnavism) and Parmshiv by another (Shaivism). Both agree that the Ultimate Truth also known as Supreme Spirit is transcendental, beyond any comprehension. The human mind is very limited in its intellect and can comprehend only that about which it has experience, the rest being only speculation .Therefore, we can describe it by negative references only, neti, neti (It is not like this. It is not like that).

To explain the creation, it was argued that the Supreme Spirit which in essence is transcendental, has an immanent aspect as well through which It manifests. This immanent aspect has been given the name of Ishvara, Hirangarbha, Shiv-Shakti (or simply god). Here again, various view points are given to explain how manifestation could have proceeded. Some suggest all manifestation is in atomic form-atoms uniting to give form to things and disintegrating to remove that form; others suggesting the forms originate from primordial matter (Prakriti) through the intervention of Ishvara (Purusha) and yet others attribute forms to the divine will (Icha) of Cosmic Self (Parmshiva).

Regarding our relationship with god all agree that we are part of that Divine Spirit, held in bondage due to our ignorance about our true nature of relationship with Him. The goal of life set for individuals (Jivas) is to get liberated from the bondage (moksha). Humans are born again and again and suffer because of their ignorance about the true nature of the Divine Spirit. When this ignorance is removed, they are liberated from the cycle of life and death (Samsara) and obtain moksha. For some moksha is not the ultimate goal. They want to become jivanmukai, liberated in this very life, through the divine grace of Lord.

As to how one can attain moksha or become jivanmukai, three paths have been prescribed:

i) Karmyoga (Path of actions-karmas). Karmyoga in essence recomonds performance of actions (karmas) without the desire for the fruits of the actions. It also means giving away in sacrifice what one value's most, in the spirit of renunciation. It is the attitude that transforms the soul-entangling action (karma) into the soul-emancipating yagnya. At the ritual level yagnya is performed by offering various materials which are useful to us in the fire (Agnikund) as an oblation to the divine spirits.That is how Vedic people proptiated Devas and the tradition is surviving even now. Over the years mankind has lost the concept of

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

symbolism of yagnya and it has now remained as a mere ritual .

ii) Bhakti Yoga (Path of self surrender). This involves complete surrender to god, "Who is the knower of all and takes care of all." God in form is worshipped as the Supreme Being and He is offered the best one can. It is similar to the path of karma but instead of yagnya one performs Pujas. It is the most accepted path by individuals.

iii) Jnan Yoga (Path of knowledge). It involves seeking knowledge of the Supreme Spirit. At the mundane level it means an intellectual pursuit of working out methodology for the upliftment of individual soul of jiva to the Universal Soul. A number of yogic exercises both physical and mental have been prescribed. This path is for the intellectuals.

Our seers recognized very early that all humans are not equal in their mental capabilities. Hence they classified society into four divisions (varunas) and prescribed these paths for people with different mental capabilities. However, these paths are not exclusive. The criteria is the mental attitude of the individual.

Hinduism, as it is understood now, is defined as a way of life. Its accumulated traditions have reached to such a stage that Hinduism tends to be defined and understood in terms of these traditions only. Encyclopedia Britannica defines Hinduism "Religion for Hindus is mainly traditions and a heritage,a way of life and mode of thought".

Thus, Hunduism being many things to many people, my endeavor has been to derive from the essentials of the vast ocean of knowledge the background for our unique religious and socio- cultural trditions. In order to present this knowledge in a proper way, I have divided this work in two sections : Section I describs Vedic concepts of gods (Called Devas) and nature of humans,post Vedic religious philosophies - especially Vedanta and Shaivism which are essential to understand the spirit behind the ritual practices and various recitations (stuties) in the Karmkanda followed by Kashmiri Pandits which forms section II. Section I also describes social customs, festivals, saints, temples, pilgrimages and panchang (calendar). Section II describes in detail karmic rituals and various recitations (stuties) of gods in Sanskrit, Hindi and Kashmiri. All karmic actions (kriyas) and hymns have been written in Roman and Devnagri script, along with translations in English. Detailed instructions have been given for performance of the rituals. Shortcuts and suggestions, whereever possible have been given. Some of the traditions followed by Hindus outside Kashmir, which are now followed by Kashmiri Pandit diaspora, have also been given along with original traditions.

The book has been formatted in such a way that even a cursery navigation through various chapters will benefit the reader. I hope it will open a window for the seekers to the great traditions of Kashmiri Pandits and the rationale behind them. To those who want to benefit from this work for performance of rituals, I would suggest that they learn recitations properly and if possible prepare their own Puja book, so that they don't have to scramble through the pages of this book while performing a ritual. It will be my endeavor to provide audio and video cassettes of these rituals so that seekers can benefit from it. I would also like to get this book translated in Hindi for the vast majority of seeker, who know Hindi better than English.

In the end, I would like to state that I do not boast of any originality of my endevour nor do I claim this to be last word on the subject. It is only the beginning of an effort to bring awareness of our glories tradition to our younger generation.

Acknowledgments

Writing a book of this magnitude would not have been possible without the help , guidance and blessing of the following two luminaries:

1) The divine grace of my guru Karunamai Maa, who initially encouraged me to write up small booklets for her Ashram. This opertunity opened the gates of vast literature which I studied to understand the philosophical concepts of Hinduism.
2) Mr. G. K. Kannan whose book "Understanding Veda Karmkanda", published by Bhartia Vidya Bhavan, provided methodology and guidance for writing Chapter 16 (frequently used angas in Puja) and Chapter 17 (frequently used angas in homa). Without his personal encouragement it would not have been possible to undertake writing of Karmkanda portion. (Section II).

The other persons whose help I would like to acknowledge are:

i) Dr. K. L. Chowdhury of Jammu for his help in the search of religious manuscripts (which priest find hard to share), getting some Sanskrit passages translated by learned scholars, providing information about Gangbal Lake Yatra (see Chapter 14) and finally in the editing of parts of this work.
ii) Mr. Sandeep Kundan of Delhi for his help in typing, typesetting, designing the manuscript and upgrading it several times.
iii) My son Dijjotam Raina for his help in formatting the book 'designing cover' and providing some useful tips.
iv) My wife Krishna for her help in writing chapters: social customs (Chapter 9) and festivals (Chapter 10).
v) My daughters Dr Vijay and Dr Jyoti who kept me encouraging in this endeavor and providing necessary inputs.
vi) Various authors from whose works I have frequently quoted. These have been given at the end of relevant Chapters.
vii) Dr. Mrs Aruna Sharma of Jummu for translations of some Sanskrit passages.
viii) Mr Yogesh Razdan of USA for his permission to publish some of his photographs of Sharda Mata (now in POK).

A Word from the Publisher

Mr. Raina has made an excellent reference book on Kashmiri Pandit Religious and Cultural traditions. He has worked on this book for the past seven years and worked meticulously in translating and researching lost wisdom of Kashmiri Pandits. He has presented it in English and in a format that makes it easy for young minds to understand. It is his desire to get this book and years of hard work in all Kashmiri Pandit homes.

Mr. Raina is the founding member of Samarpan Charitable Trust in India which aims at preserving Hindu culture. He is currently engaged in translation of various Sanskrit recitations used in the performance of samskaras. His mission is to train individuals and priests to meet the future needs of priests for the Kashmiri Pandit community.

NeeRoh, Inc. appreciates the efforts of Anupam Wali, Neelam Wali, Kapil Raina, and Gulshan Kaul in taking pain taking effort to get this book printed and for their valuable suggestions.

We do believe this book will open new thought process and impetus for preservation of Kashmiri Pandit culture and religious traditions.

INTRODUCTION

"Religious traditions include all the customs and beliefs that are received from generation to generation through literature, or by word of mouth. Some of these tradition shape their origin in the philosophical thought that has been the endeavor of several generations and yet some may have their roots in the event in the hoary past which has no bearing now. No one, however brilliant, or well informed, can come to such fullness of understanding as to safely judge and dismiss the customs or intuitions of his society, for these are the wisdom of generations after centuries of experiment in the laboratory of history. The sanity of the group lies in the continuity of its traditions. To break sharply with the past is to court madness that may follow the shock of sudden blows or mutation."

Will and Ariel Durant
Lessons of History

Hindus of Kashmir, most of whom are Brahmin are known as Kashmiri Pandits. Like other Indians, they follow the traditions of Sanatana Dharma, also known as Hinduism. Sanatana Dharma is described as 'the path of righteousness'. The traditions of Hinduism are varied. They represent the accumulated knowledge of more than 5000 years. Thousands of years ago, Vedic thinkers (rishis), meditating on the banks of the most sacred Saraswat River (which dried later on) made first revelations about cosmic forces that govern mankind. Later on, compositions on Vedic philosophy were made, which occupy thinkers of modern times.

Who are Kashmiri Pandits ?

The Brahmins of Kashmir are known as Pandits (the learned ones). It is not very clear as to how they earned this title, whereas their counterparts in mainland India are till date addressed as Brahmins[1] (by their Varuna). Kashmiri Brahmins who migrated to various parts of India during the last three centuries are all identified as Pandits e.g. Pandit Nehru. However in Kashmir Valley, Kashmiri Pandits are simply referred to as "Bhatta"[2] to differentiate them from other communities.

Kashmir is a land that has a mythological origin in Indian scriptures. It is believed to have been created deep in Himalayan Mountains by an act of Lord Shiva Himself, upon meditation on Him by a learned sage (rishi) Kashyp on the banks of Lake Satisar which occupied the place now known as Kashmir. The word Kashmir[3], some believe, is etymologically linked with the Sanskrit word 'Kashyp-mur' - meaning the abode of Kashyap rishi.

It is now believed that "Nagas were the aborigenes of Kashmir before the advent of Vedic Aryans. Pisachas and Yakshas were the other tribes living in Kashmir.

Coming of *Saraswats

While Nagas, Pisachas, Yakshas and other tribes were gradually coming in the fold of modern civilization under the leadership of their King Nila (of Naga Tribe), the developments in the plains of India were growing at a rapid pace. River Saraswat (a remnant of which is the present day River Ghagger in Punjab), which flowed from North to West starting from Shiwalik mountains near Ambala (Haryana) through Thanesar (now in Pakistan) and then towards Bikaner (Rajasthan) and finally ending in Rann of Kutch (Gujrat), started changing its course. This was the largest river in India during the Vedic times and has been described as the mother of all rivers in Rig Veda. Great seers (rishis) sitting on the banks of this river composed Vedas, which are the most ancient records of living civilization in the world (see Map).

Due to tectonic changes in the Indian Peninsula, river Sutluj (known as river Shutudri during Vedic times) which formed the initial stage of river Saraswat, changed its course westwards and merged with river Beas, which then merged with river Indus. River Saraswat gradually disappeared as a result of this change. The people who depended on this river for survival started migrating to other fertile lands. The people living in the southern part of this river migrated westwards to Coromondal Coast (Goa, Gujrat, Maharashtra, and Karnataka) and those living on northern part of the river migrated to North India including Kashmir.

It seems Saraswats at first entered Kashmir during summer months and withdrew during winter months to avoid cold season ,when life became hard. Gradually, people got adjusted to cold conditions and they sought the permission the local King -Nila of Nagas to stay permanently as his subjects. The request was granted on the condition that the local social customs and rituals would also be observed by the migrants. The entry of Saraswats into Kashmir is stated to be c. 3000BC by Kalhan in Rajtarangini. Other historians dispute this date and place their entry date into Kashmir c. 1000 BC.

The Saraswat Brahmins all over India were learned masters of Vedas and other religious texts and maintained interaction with Saraswat diaspore. The Swarsats gained dominant position in Kashmir and elsewhere in India because of their mastery over aesthetics, astrology, mathematics, poetry, philosophy etc. These people were also the models of simplicity, purity, truthfulness, asceticism and compassion- the qualities that raised their status akin to rishis. They performed austere penances and were accepted as priests ,preceptors and preachers . In due course of time, Saraswat Brahmins of Kashmir gained reputation for their scholarship and received visitors from all parts of India and abroad. Gradually, Kashmir became a seat of learning and came to be known as Shardadesh/Shardepeeth, the seat of goddess of learning, Sharda Devi.

Emperor Ashoka brought Buddhism to Kashmir c.300 BC. The Brahmins of Kashmir mastered this faith in a short time and became Buddhist preachers in far off lands such as Tibet, China etc.

Hinduism -a way of life

Life has been a great mystery to man. Its origin, growth, decadence and final disappearance have always exercised human thoughts and emotions. Since long ago, Indian seers used their talent and resources to transform crude animalism into refined humanity. Man had not yet learned how to read and write, but through their verbal outpourings these seers conveyed their intuitive experiences to the masses. These experiences were of the nature of revelations of natural laws, like the scientific law of gravitation. These revelations were carried from generation to generation in the form of aphorisms (mantras). Much later, when man learned the art of writing, these mantras were consolidated into a volume by a learned seer named Vyasa. The first volume to appear was given the name of Rig Veda (Rik =chants, vid=knowledge). Subsequently, he composed three more Vedas over a period of time, which were given the names of Yujur Veda, Sam Veda and Ather Veda. The four Vedas constitute the sacred texts of Hinduism.

Since Vedas are in the nature of collection of aphorisms, like the Lalleshwary Vaks of the present day, they needed commentaries to explain their hidden meanings. This had become all the more important as the language used in these mantras, was no longer the spoken language. It had undergone many structural changes. Some learned scholars later wrote commentaries on the Vedas that were further commented upon from time to time. These commentators focused their attention on the causes of manifestation, rather on mere worship of deities, and this constitutes the basic concepts of Vedic philosophy.

The period during which Vedic scriptures were compiled is known as Vedic Period and the period when these Vedas were commented upon is known as Post-Vedic Period. The approximate time when the first commentary, Brahmasutra, appeared, is stated to be c.500 BC. All the Vedic texts of Vedic Period are called Shruties and those that appeared in Post-Vedic Period are known as Smrities.

The Vedic way of life and thought became a subject matter of controversy in the Post-Vedic Period. Two main groups emerged. Those who accepted Vedic thought of worship, called Orthodox (Astics), includes all Hindus and those who did not accept it, came to be called Heterodox (Nastics) which includes Buddhists, Jains, Sikhs etc.

Vedic Traditions

Vedic people worshipped gods called devas, who represented natural forces and elements. Indrdeva received worship for providing timely rainfall; Rudrdeva for maintaining cosmic order (rta) under which Sun, Moon and other cosmic bodies function; Agnideva for providing heat for ripening crops; Varundeva for upholding water bodies; Vayudeva for driving winds, and so on. There was no desire to know how these forces worked. All that mattered was to propitiate them to receive their favours.

Vedic Beliefs

i) To propitiate devas with worship and sacrifice (ygnya) in order to receive their favours in the form of providing material benefits such as timely rains.

ii) To observe triad of obligations (rin-traya). Humans are born with three obligations towards devas, rishis and ancestors. Obligation towards devas for their help in the maintenance of cosmic order (rta); towards rishis for the heritage they left behind and towards ancestors for their having been the progenitors of our clan.

iii) To follow a moral code of conduct by

Legal Definition of Hinduism?

"When we think of Hindu religion we find it difficult, if not impossible, to define Hindu religion or even adequately describe it. Unlike other religions in the world, the Hindu religion does not claim any one prophet; it does not worship any one god; it does not subscribe to any one dogma; it does not believe in any one philosophical concept; it does not follow any one set of religious rites or performances; in fact, it does not appear to satisfy the narrow traditional features of any one religion or creed. It may broadly be described as a way of life and nothing more".

Sacred Scriptures

a) Shruties (which were heard) four Vedas:

1. Rig Veda (hymns of praise)
2. Yajur Veda (hymns of worship)
3. Sama Veda (hymns of melody)
4. Athar Veda (hymns of warding off calamities and destruction)

The vedas have four parts each:

1. Samhita
2. Brahmana
3. Aranyaka
4. Upanishad

Part 1 and 2 describe rituals and are known as Karmkanda

Part 3 and 4 describe relationship between god, nature and man and is known asJnan Kanda

b) Smrities (which were remembered). These are:

1. Vedangas (language and rituals)
2. Nimbanda Grantha (code of conduct)
3. Darshanas (Philosophy)
4. Dharm Shastras (law)
5. Puranas (mythological stories)
6. Ithasas (Ramayana and Mahabharat)
7. Agamas (Shaivism and Vaishnavism) being virtuous, by following truthfulness, observing self-restraint, being kind to fellow beings, and sharing wealth with indigent and need:

Kevalâgho Bhavanti Kevalaadi
RV 10-117-6

(He who eats by himself will keep his sins to himself).

iv) To be pious. Impious are believed to be born in nether world. The reward for piety is life and enjoyment in heaven, which is all brightness in the company of gods. The punishment for sin and vice is eternal damnation in hell, a place of eternal darkness.

v) To believe in the transmigration of soul and its immortality. Death does not mean end of life, but only continuation of existence elsewhere, in heaven or hell.

Post-Vedic Traditions

The Post-Vedic Period was an endeavor to unravel the knowledge of the cause behind the cosmic forces. Two groups emerged to explain the philosophy. These are:

1) Vaishnavism
2) Shaivism

1) Vaishnavism

One group, called Vedantins, projected Brahman as the sole cause behind all the cosmic forces, Who is unmanifest, beyond any comprehension of human mind. All manifestation is explained as a projection of Brahman through His immanent aspect called Ishvara. The three aspects of Ishvara are: projection, maintenance of what has been projected, and reabsorption of what has been projected at the end of a time period (Kalpa). These three aspects of Isvara,

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

known as trinity of gods (Trimurti) are Brahma (not to be confused with Brahman), Vishnu and Shiva .

The manifestation is not as humans visualise it. It is an illusion caused by divine power called Mayashakti. This illusion can be compared to a rope that looks like a snake in dim light. In the bright light, the real rope becomes manifest. The dim light has been compared to the ignorance of human mind. This ignorance is the cause of human bondage in endless cycles of life and death (Samsara). With proper understanding of the true nature of Brahman, Who is Truth, Supreme Consciousness and Bliss (Sat-Chit-Anand), ignorance is removed and one gets to know the true nature of Brahman. Vedanta Philosophy includes the combined thoughts of six systems of Vedanta interpretations, called Darshanas.

Whenever civilisations are sinking under the burden of sin, whenever there is disorder and choas, threatening an end to the world, Lord Vishnu takes a new incarnation to help mankind. So far, He has taken nine incarnations. Lord Ram was His seventh incarnation, Lord Krishna His eighth and Lord Buddha His ninth incarnation. Lord Vishnu and His human incarnations have their spouses who are also divine-like. Among other things, worship of gods is stressed upon as a means of liberation from the bondage (samsara).

2) *Shaivism

Shivaites associate ParmShiva with all manifestation. Projection of cosmic world takes place through His dynamic energy called Shakti. ParmShiva has five energies (two more than that of Ishvara of Vedanta), He does not associate Himself directly with any manifestation activity. He is Supreme Self and is witness to all that takes place through His Shakti.All manifestation is real as ignorance among humans is due to divine act of concealment of Parmshiva's true nature by His innate Mayashakti, which can be overcome by His grace alone. Humans are required to undertake yogic Saddhna through mental exercises to awaken their sleeping energy, called Kundalini Shakti, lying dormant in the bodies of all humans. Shakti is the feminine form of Parmshiva's energy, Who is worshipped as Durga and in Her various forms such as Kali, Ragnya, Sharika, Jwala etc. With the grace of Parmshiva and through Saddhna, humans can reach a stage which is nearest to Parmshiva Himself. At that stage they are called Bhairwas, who have three powers like Ishvara of Vedanta.

Like Vedanta, there are six schools of philosophy in Shaivic philosophy as well. Kashmir Shaivism has been recognized as one of the prominent schools of Shaivic philosophy.

While Vaishnavism prescribes liberation of humans from the bondage of cycles of life and death (moksha) as the goal of human life, Shaivism encourages one to improve his mental capabilities to become Shiva like. Liberation (moksha) can be achieved by following any of the three paths:

1) Karm Yoga (path of action)
2) Bhakti Yoga (path of devotion)
3) Jnan Yoga (path of knowledge)

The three paths are not exclusive. An individual may follow any one of above paths or a combination of them depending upon his nature (guna).

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

In India, Shaivism is practiced in Kashmir, West Bengal, Assam, Kerala, Tamil Nadu and parts of Andhra Pradesh state. In the remaining parts of India, Vaishnavism is practiced.

Shaktaism (or mother worship) represents an advancement in the Shaivism. It accepts Shakti as Mother, Who is the Absolute Power behind every act of manifestation. She is worshipped as mother.

The division of Hindu society into Vaishnavites and Shivaites is not a sharp one. Centuries of interaction have evolved into a mixed culture of traditions. The differences lie in the degree of involvement only. All Hindus worship Shiva, Durga, Vishnu, Ram, Krishna etc. with equal reverence. Karmic rituals are also observed by all. Some other developments of Post-Vedic period are:

Iconography

Gods came to be represented in the form of idols which took the form of humans, animals, trees, rocks, and other natural phenomenon like stalagmite ice formation of icy Shivaling of Amarnath.

Shaivism and Vedanta Comparison

| Shaivism | Vedanta |
|---|---|
| 1. The Supreme Transcendental Self is called Parmshiv. | 1. The Supreme transcendental Self is called Brahman. |
| 2. Manifestation of cosmic world takes place through His will (Ischa). This takes place through His dynamic energy Shakti. | 2. Manifestation of cosmic world is His play (Leela). This takes place through His immanent aspect called Ishvara. |
| 3. Human being (Jeevatman) comes into being through 36 steps (tattvas) of manifestation. | 3. Human being (Jeevatman) comes into being through 24 steps (tattvas) of manifestation. |
| 4. Manifested world is real. Maya is ignorance which is caused by divine act of Parmshiva. | 4. Manifested world is an illusion caused by divine power of Maya. |
| 5. Divine grace (Anagreha) is needed for liberation (moksha). Jeevatman must work to awaken his dormant energy (Kundalini Shakti) through mental yoga (saddhana). | 5. Liberation (moksha) can be achieved through the paths of Karma, Bhakti or Jnana. |
| 6. Bhairwa is like a divine being who has risen through Yogic meditation (Saddhna) and divine grace. | 6. Bhairwa is part of Shiv's army (ganas). If ignored in worship it can cause problems. |

Idol Worship

Human mind is limited. It cannot visualise things about which it has no experience. Hence some sort of objectivity is necessary to worship gods. Idols represent an aspect of god but not god Himself.

Idol worship is common among Hindus. Vedic period people were neither idol worshippers nor did they have temples built for gods. It is a Post-Vedic development influenced by Greek invasion of India. Greeks were idol worshippers.

Symbolism

The idols began to be decorated with various objects to symbolise the personality of the deity. Thus, number of arms and heads came to symbolize the powers of the deities. Objects like conch (sound), lotus (purity), chakra (safety), trishul (power) etc. are some of the other symbols introduced to symbolize various aspects of the deities. Animals and birds were also introduced as mounts .

Temples

Temples were built for worship of idols. There were no temples during Vedic Period.

Mythological Allegories

Principles of dharma, virtue, truth and other philosophical concepts were conveyed to masses through mythological tales. Puranas and Epics were written to fortify the concept of right and wrong. Some of the characters in these tales were so strong that they became god like and began to be worshipped.

Hinduism is mainly Traditions

"Hinduism incorporates all forms beliefs and worship without necessitating the selection or elimination of any. It is axiomatic that no religious idea in India ever dies or is super-seeded – it is merely combined with the new ideas that arise in response to it. Hindus are inclined to revere the divine in any manifestations whatever it may be".

"Religion for Hindus is mainly traditions, and a heritage, a way of life and mode of thought. In practice it is the application of methods for securing both welfare in this life and a good condition in the hereafter."

Religious Traditions of *Kashmiri Pandits

Religious traditions of a group of people, besides the philosophy of their religion, is influenced by the local conditions, determined by the history of the people, geographic conditions of the region, its climate, social interaction among the people, and luminaries including saints, savants, warriors, and artists. The religious text describing the performance of religious ceremonies is known as

Karmkand. These Karmkand's are regional in nature.

The religious traditions of Kashmiri Pandits can be classed under two categories:

1) Karmic Traditions
2) Socio-religious Traditions

1) Karmic Traditions

These include performance of various Karmic rituals which are of two types:

1.1) Those which are performed daily such as morning puja. These are known as Nitya Karmas.

1.2) Those which are performed on special occasions during the lifespan of an individual by him or by his parents (when he was a child) or after his death (by his children). These are called Samskars. Kashmiri Karmkand prescribes 24 Samskars.

Most of these Samskars are no longer being performed. A few surviving Samskars are Kahnether, Mekhl, Vivah, and Anteshti. Karmkanda also provides instructions for the performance of ceremonies such as havan and pujas on special occasions such as Shivratri, birthdays, laying foundation of a new house, house warming ceremonies etc.

Kashmiri Karmkanda was written in 18th century by a learned Brahman named Lagushri. This book is out of print now. However, relevant portions of this book are available, which are used by modern day priests in the performance of karmic rituals.

2) Socio-Religious Traditions

Social traditions are an important aspect of human life. For Hindus in general and Kashmiri Pandits in particular most of the social traditions are linked with their religious traditions. Some of the socio-religious traditions of Kashmiri Pandits are:

2.1) Festivals: Almost all festivals are linked with the worship of Lord Shiva and His consort Parvati, who is widely worshipped as Durga. A special feature of Durga worship is that She is recognized as the Isht Devi in Her three forms of Ragnya, Sharika and Jwala. They all have their shrines dedicated to them at Tulamulla, Srinagar and Khrew respectively in Kashmir.

On Shivratri, Navratras and on the days connected with their revelation these deities are extensively worshipped. The first day of of Chet Navratras is celebrated as New Year day (Navreh). Bhairwas also receive special worship. There are eight Bhairwas in Kashmir who receive worship and have their own temples dedicated to them. All the three *Isht Devi*es are linked with their religious traditions of Kashmiri

Bhairwa in Shaivism

The goal of a human being in Shaivism is to become Shiva like. At the highest stage of his Sadhna he is known as Bhairwa .At this stage he is only next to Shiva and has lot of energy. As against this Vedantic Bhairav is a malicious being who is part of Rudra-gana, always ready to punish those who try to destroy cosmic order (rta).

In Kashmir there are eight Bhairwas who are worshipped in their temples at various places in Kashmir. Bhairwas receive worship along with Isht Devis (Ragnya at Tulamula, Sharika at Hari Parbhat. And Jwala at Khrew) Bhairwa is worshipped on Shivratri as well.

Isht Devta/Devi

Isht Devta / Devi is a chosen family deity whose worship encompasses the worship of all the gods. Kashmiri Pandits have no Isht Devtas. They have instead Isht Devis. The three Isht Devis who represent various forms of Durga are:

- Ragnya Bhagwati (Tulamulla)
- Sharika Bhagwati (Srinagar)
- Jwala Bhagwati (Khrew)

Pandits have an accompanying Bhairwa in their shrines, who are worshiped along with them. Bhairwa's also receives extensive worship on Shivaratri along with Lord Shiva and Parvati.

2.2) Naga Traditions: As already stated Kashmiri Pandit ancestors migrated to Kashmir about 5000 years back. They were asked to observe certain religious traditions of the local inhabitants (who were called Nagas) as a condition for them to stay in Kashmir. Only a few of the original 65 traditions survive now such as observance of Khichdi-amavasi, Kawpunim etc.

2.3) Spiritual Luminaries: Kashmiri Pandits have a rich heritage of traditions linked to saints and savants. Their birthdays and shraddhas (death anniversary) are observed as days of spiritual enlightenment and worship.

2.4) Pilgrimages: Every mountain peak and water body in Kashmir is associated with the legend of Lord Shiva or His Shakti. These are places of pilgrimage - Amarnath, Gangbal Lake, Sharda Devi, Harishvr Cave are few examples.

Kashmir Shaivism does not recommend Karmic Rituals

Kashmir Shaivism is a philosophy which developed in its present form during 9th to 11th century AD through the efforts of Vasgupta, Somananda and Abhinavgupta. It is the only monotheistic philosophy, which takes on the Advaita Philosophy of Vedanta propagated by Shankaracharya in 9th century AD.

All Shaivic philosophies including Kashmir Shaivism focus on the development of human personality through saddhana rather than performance of Karmic rituals. It can be compared with the Jnan yoga concept of Vedanta philosophy.

The Propagation of Karmic rituals, as prescribed in Karmkanda, in Kashmiri Pandit culture can be attributed to continuation of our Vedic traditions, which have been kept alive by our priests.

2.5) Gotra Rishis: Vedic Rishis receive worship as the revealers of Vedic knowledge and as progenitors. They are recognised as the head of their clan (Gotra) Kashmiri Pandits have set of Gotra rishis who receive worship in Karmkanda rituals. In Kashmiri tradition, the daughters of these rishis also have been recognized as heads of the clan. Kashmiri Pandits have 190 Gotra Rishis.

Spring (Nag) Worship

In Hindu tradition, snake (nag) worship is common. Snakes are worshipped on Nag Panchami. Nags also adore the body of Lord Shiv.

In Kashmir, springs are worshipped as Nags. This is a tradition of Naga tribe who believed that the springs were 'home' to snakes and so called them Nags.

2.6) Role of Ladies: Over the years, Kashmiri Pandit ladies have added their own traditions and rituals in the observance of these religious functions to make the celebrations lively. The display of art, music, singing, dancing that goes with the festivals adds life to these traditions.

Explanations

1) Henry Sendur in her book "The Kashmiri Pandits" Oxford Press, writes that this epithet was granted by Emperor Mohammad Shah (1719-1749) on the request of his courtier Jai Ram Bhan who hailed from Kashmir to distinguish Hindus from other courtiers who were till then all addressed as "Khuwaja".
2) Jai Dev Singh, an Indologist and Sanskrit Scholar, writes in his book "Prityabjnahrdyn" (p.125) that word 'Bhatta' stands for "venerable Lord" a title for Lord Shiva. Professor TN Madan is reported (in his book "Family and Kinship") to agree with this origin of word as applied to the Kashmiri Brahmins.
3) Bamzai-PNK in his book "Cultural and Political History of Kashmir", Vol-1 (1994) states the various names by which Kashmir is known in various parts of world. Some of these are 1) Kashir (Kashmiri), 2) Khachel (Tibetans), 3) Kashrat (Dardi), 4) Kashpeiria (Greece), 5) Kai-Shi-Milo (Huan Tsang - a Chinese traveler who visited Kashmir in 631 AD.).
4) Aryan and Vedic Civilizations – "Myths and Reality" David Frawley, a leading US Indologist has reported the findings of a team, which was constituted by Government of India in 1985, headed by Dr. V. S. Watankar, which included geologists, historians, geographers and other experts. It undertook the survey of 150 sites over a stretch of 3500 km. in the course of the mythological river Saraswati. They used latest techniques such as Multi-Spectral Scanner (MSS) and land sat imagery. They established the course of this river and stated that the reason for its disappearance was due to tectonic movements,which caused change in the course of river Satluj. The team came to conclusion that disappearance of river Saraswat was gradual from 1800 BC to 800 BC. The latest finds of this team and the stuties carried out in various universities have discredited the theory about Aryan Invasion of India, postulated by British historian in the 19th Century. They debunked the theory that Harappa and Mohanjodara excavations represent the origin of Indus Valley Civilization. The discovery of dried up channel of Saraswat River east of River Indus, coupled with the fact that about 260 sites have been excavated, which show civilization similar to Harappa and Mohanjodara, in parts of India, indicates this area as the cradle of early Aryans Civilization in India and the source of Vedic culture. There is a suggestion that Indus Valley Civilization should be renamed as Saraswati Civilization.

CHAPTER ONE

VEDIC PERIOD TRADITIONS

"The ancients were more aware of the subtle and astral relation than we are. They communicated with beings of those worlds some of which were very spiritual and benefic; others, who were quite malicious. They mention them as gods, titans and demons."

David Frawley

The main focus during this period was on the performance of rituals which centre around offering oblations to devas (god like beings unseen, without any form), which are described in details in Samhita and Brahmana parts of the Rig Veda, and Yajurveda. These rituals have survived to this date though in modified form and constitute Karmkanda (the path of rituals). The mantras are broadly liturgical in character. They are mainly religious songs in praise of one or more deities and were intended generally to be sung at the time of offering worship to them.

Theology

"Vedic theology is pure and simple. Supreme Reality in the cosmos is realised by looking at the purposeful dynamism in the Lord's creation. Hence, Vedic hymns invoke Lord by evoking nature's bounties known as deities or devas. They do not bring any human personality between man and god. The verses refer to the glory of god and his creation and try to establish a personal link with his creation. Man and his surrounding environment appear to be very homogeneous."[1]

Vedic theology is based on following principles:

1) Behind the powerful forces of nature amidst which the humans live, are actually sentient beings but without a body, hence unseen, called devas.

2) Devas are custodians of the cosmic order (rta), which is indicated by the regular alteration of day and night, the waning and waxing of Moon, the flow of river water from upper slopes to down below (this is how the ancients interpreted the modern laws of gravity).

3) Devas are upholders of moral law. They are friendly to the good and inimical to the evil minded, so that if a man is not to incur their displeasure, he should strive to be righteous.

4) Devas are bhogis (enjoyers of pleasure) and as such are pleased with the oblations (ahutis) offered in sacrifice (yagnya) by human beings. They also keep an eye on asurs (evil forces).

5) If happy, devas provide material benefits like timely rains for crops and if angry they cause hardships such as floods, thunderstorms,

Sacrifice (Yagnya)

Sacrifice in all forms is the essence of Hinduism. It is an act of cleaning one's mind of all impurities caused by various types of attachments. By offering one's possessions in sacrifice one gets mentally liberated. This very act has been given the name of yagnya in which one offers his material possession as oblations in fire to Agnideva with an attitude of total surrender. These very oblations converted into smoke are carried by Agnidev to respective devas who grant the desired wish of the performer.

A puranic story explains the spirit of yagnya.

King Yudhisthira performed a great Rajsurya Yagnya when he ascended the throne after Mahabharata war was over. All learned and wise acclaimed that yagnya as un-paralled till a mongoose with one side of body in golden colour turned up and rolled over the floor, hoping that this yagnya would turn him completely golden. It did not happen and he pronounced all performers of yagnya as liars. Then mongoose described the reason for his judgment. He said years back a terrible famine caused large-scale deaths in a village. A poor Brahmin, hungry for days got some flour from a noble man to feed himself and his family. They were preparing bread from the flour when I entered to ask for some food. The Brahmin offered all that they had to me. Next day I went again there and found the whole family had died because of hunger. I rolled over the floor where a few remnants of flour on ground turned one side of my body golden and since then I have been looking for such a yagnya, which could turn my other side golden.

droughts etc.

6) Devas have an administrative system similar to humans on earth. The king has council of ministers, executive (of tutelary devas) and judiciary.

7) The abodes of devas are the three regions generally mentioned as Lokas:

a) Dyava loka (sky)
b) Prithvi Loka (earth) and
c) Anteriksha (space between earth and sky).

They also live in allotted quarters in the sky and do not transgress beyond their allotted regions.

There are 33 devas:

8 Vasus, 11 Rudras, 12 Adityas, Indra and Prajapati.

Environment in Hinduism

Protection of environment is very much in focus currently. Vedic people recognized this importance and named various natural forces and elements as devas. Thus Rudradeva was ready with his bow and arrow to punish those beings that tried to intervene in the proper functioning of these cosmic forces (rta).

People worshiped these devas by offering them part of their agricultural and animal products through Yagnya - a tradition, which continues even today in Hinduism.

"This earth is my mother and I am son of this earth".

Athar Veda 12-1-12

Devas

1. *Prajapati (The Creator)
He is a much respected god who is credited with creation of universe and existed even before Vedas were revealed. He lives in Golden Embryo (Hiranyagarbha) in the ball of fire (Brahmanda) from which the universe developed. All created beings are his progeny. His other epithets are:

i) Pitmaha – the patriarch.
ii) Vidhi – Source of ordination.
iii) Svayambhu – the self-born first person.
iv) Loksha – the master of the worlds.
v) Vishvakarman – the architect of the world.

2. *Indra (Conquerer, Subduer)
Indra is the king of devas. About a quarter of the Rig Veda verses are devoted to his glory as a warrior king. He lives in heaven (Dyava Loka).

His weapon is thunderbolt (Vajrayudha). He draws his strength by drinking soma (a drink made from a mystical plant grown in mountains).

He rides a chariot whose speed exceeds that of the human mind. His exploits are many. He killed demon Vrtra-the serpent dragon who lived at the foot of mountains and held captive the waters of rivers. And thus, He was instrumental in releasing the waters of seven rivers, which now flow in Bharat Varsha and are helpful to its inhabitants for their survival. The death of Vrtra also allowed Sun to rise in the sky, which he (Vrtra) was hiding under clouds. He also killed many Dasyus (evil ones).

His epithets are:

1) Vrtra-han – conquerer of Vrtra.
2) Apsu-jit – conquering the demon in water.
3) Trasa-dasyu – makes dasyus tremble.
4) Vajrin, Vajra-Bahu, Vajra Pani – In connection with weapon Vajra.

3. *Rudra (Roarer, Howler, Dreadful)
"Rudra is comparatively a minor, though physically attractive atmospheric god in Rig Veda with only three hymns to him.[2]

He is described as "fierce and destructive like a terrible wild beast, swift, the red boar in sky, the lord of animal sacrifice, the father of Maruts and one who bears swift arrows and strong bow. Although no distinct cosmic function is ascribed to him, he is described in a vague and uncertain anthropomorphic form, of the dreadful and destructive powers of nature - storm, lightening, and forest fires".[3] He is more feared than loved. Rudra has a pleasant side also. He is fair and intelligent, shining like Sun, the most liberated and most powerful. He loves music and is a healer by medicinal herbs. He sits on a chariot and is the 'unconquered conqueror and universal ruler'.

He is prayed and implored to "slacken his bow" ("Dhanwani Tanmasi" see Rudra Mantra in Chapter 23) and not to do any harm in anger to his worshippers. In his absolute form Rudra is spoken as one in Vedas, though in his immanent form he is 'eleven', (different attributes) which are grouped as Rudra-Gana.

4. *Adityas

The Adityas represent a group of deities usually 12 in number. They are the gods of light, by whom all forms of luminous light are manifested and sustained in this universe. The twelve Adityas are:

i) Mitra (the friend)
ii) Varuna (one who encompasses and binds)
iii) Aryaman (the destroyer of foes)
iv) Daksha (the skullful)
v) Bhaga (the giver)
vi) Amsha (the liberal)
vii) Tvashtr (the shaper) viii) Savitr (the instigator) ix) Pushan (the nourisher)
x) Sakra (the mighty)
xi) Vivasvat (the resplendent)
xii) Vishnu (the pervader)

These 12 Adityas also represent 12 aspects of Sun or 12 months of a year. The important Adityas are:

a) Mitra and Varuna: They are always invoked in pairs. They ensure rtam (fixed or settled order) e.g. rise of Sun and Moon regularly, sprouting of trees from seeds, running of water downwards and flames upwards. They are thus responsible for upkeep of definite order in cosmos both in physical and moral plane. Their control extends over other devas also. Mitra is the master of the day and Varuna that of night. They dispel darkness. Varuna is also the master of all water bodies and is thus invoked for bringing rains. Varuna has thousand eyes with which he keeps an eye over whole world. He rides a crocodile and lives in the western quarters.

b) Savitr (Instigator, Stimulator): The aspect of Sun before sunrise is recognized as the god Savitr. He is all over golden and guides people in the right path. Savitr is instigator or stimulator for an action, be it a prayer or Jâp. The famous Gayatri mantra is dedicated to him. He drives away evil forces and observes fixed laws.

c) Pushan: He is the Lord of paths and leads his devotes to correct paths. He nourishes and supports life. He guides even the dead ones. He has no teeth and hence offerings are made in soft form.

d) Vishnu: He is all-pervasive and protector. He is dwarf, (Vamana) and covered the entire world with three strides (this may represent crossing of Sun three times a day across sky : at dawn, day and dusk). He protects Agni (havih) and is very close to Indra. He is the personification of time. He is an eternal youth and extremely handsome. Sun is his discuss. He is easily pleased by offerings made in sacrifice.

e) Tvashtr: He is the master craftsman who gives shapes (rupa) to all animate and inanimate things. He fashioned Indra's Vajra. He is father of Indra and his brother Agni.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

f) Surya (Sun): He is not an independent god but is identified with Aditya, Savitr and Pushan. He is extremely brilliant and rides a one wheel chariot drawn by seven horses. He is described as a jewel in the sky. He gives light, produces day and night, and gives power and strength to the living beings. He is described as a later day addition to Vedic gods.

5. *Vasus

Vasus are eight in number and are known chiefly as attendants of Indra. They represent all spheres and extension of space and height. They are worn as Pavitri in the worship and also as Vasudhara (Streams of ghee) in rituals. They are invoked during Navgreh homa. The eight Vasus are:

i) Dhara (the earth)
ii) Anala (the fire)
iii) Apa (the waters)
iv) Anila or Vayu (the wind)
v) Dhruva (the polestar)
vi) Soma (the Moon, plants)
vii) Prabhâsa (the dawn) and viii) Pratyûsha (the light)

Vayu (Anila) is an important Vasu. He is the deity who personifies wind, air or life breath (Prana); as the Lord of the sky (Antariksha) he shares his power with Indra. He rides a chariot drawn by two, ninety-nine, hundred or thousand horses. His chariot announces his arrival with terrific roar. However, he himself is invisible.

He is also fond of Soma juice. He is also a physician. In human bodies he works as five vital airs Pnchprana. He lives in north- western quarters. He is described as blue in colour and holding a fan and flag in two hands.

6. *Agni (Fire)

He is also an important god and is described as brother or deputy of Indra. He is an agent (carrier) through whom humans send their oblations in sacrifices (Yagnya) to all gods for their well-being. He lives simultaneously in all the three regions (Lokas): Dyava (as Sun), Prithvi (as fire) and Anteriksh (as lightning). He has many attributes some of which are as follows:

i) Grha Patyi – Lord of Yagnya Homa, through his attributes of light and heat.
ii) Havya Vahana – Carrier of oblations to devas.
iii) Kavya-Vahana – Carrier of oblations to Pitrs (dead ancestors).
iv) Jata-Veda – Known to all created beings.
v) Dûta – messenger.
vi) Dvi-janman – twice born as Agni in earth and as Sun in the heaven (sky).
vii) Pavaka – Purifier, as he burns all sins.
viii) Vipra – wise.
ix) Rtvij – Priest.
x) Dhume-Ketu – Smoke bannered - arrival of fire is indicated by smoke.

His wife is 'Svaha' – the mystical call that accompany fire oblations. Agni is the Deva of Earth (Bhuloka) hence he is offered oblations accompanied with the mystical call 'Bhuh-Svaha'.

7. *Soma (Plants, Moon)

He is also called Indu. He is an important god in Rig Veda. He is the presiding deity of soma creeper whose juice is often used in sacrifices as offering and also as a drink. Soma also cures mortals of their diseases. It was because of him that Indra enjoyed so much power in fighting demons like Vrtra. He rules over mind, and activates speech. Hence he is also called Vâcaspati. (Lord of Speech). He can make ordinary mortals wise (like rishies). He rules over mountains and rivers.

Tutelary Devas

1. *Ashvins (Horsemen)
They are inseparable twin gods and are hence worshiped together. What they represent is not exactly known but they are supposed to represent night and day or Sun and Moon and sky and earth. They pervade the world with moisture and light and hence they can be sought in semidarkness before dawn. They are described eternally young and handsome. Their chief characteristic is that they are always ready to do good to others. They are expert physicians and surgeons and know even plastic surgery. They are always invoked in sacrifices (Yagnya) for these qualities.

2. *Marutas (Flashing/Shining ones)
They are the sons of Rudra and Prshni (cow). They form a group of 33 called Marut-Ganas. They are represented by thunderstorms. They stood by Indra in his fight with Vrtra.

3. *Yama
He is the first human to die and found out the path to Pitr-Loka (the world of dead ancestors) and hence he is the king of that Loka. His parents are Vivasvant and Saranyû. His messengers are dogs (sarama), owl (ûluka) and pigeons (kapota). He ensnares his victim with his noose (pasha). He is not only god of death but also a judge (Dharmaraja), meting out rewards and punishments to the souls of dead brought to him. He is assisted by Chitragupta who keeps records. He is the ruler of Southern quarters, and rides a he-buffalo.

4. *Brahaspati (Lord of Prayers)
He is close to Agni. He is the father of gods and all prayers emanated from him. He is the first priest (guru) of devas and is therefore called Puro-hita.

5. *Vishvedavas (All Gods)
This encompasses the entire gamete of gods, major or minor, so that none is inadvertently left out. They also represent a group of seven devas:

1) Vasu (dwelling places), 2) Satya (truth), 3) Kratu (will), 4) Daksha (skill), 5) Kuru (the ancestors of Kurus), 6) Purûravas (a being dwelling in atmosphere), 7) Mâdravas (cry of joy). These deities are protectors of rta, the moral law. They are ever young and handsome. They are easily pleased by devoted obeisance. These deities are said to be fond of funeral offerings.

Goddesses

"Although many goddesses are mentioned in the Rigveda, none is as central to the Rig Veda vision of reality as Agni, Soma or Indra and only Ushas among the goddesses could be considered on a par with the male deities of the second rank. Although there are many female deities they do not, either individually or collectively represent the 'center' of Rigvedic religion".[4] The goddesses that are mentioned are described as mothers, daughters or wives.

a) Major Goddesses

1) Ushas*: Ushas is consistently associated with and often identified with the dawn. She reveals herself in the daily coming of the light at dawn. She is young maiden and is followed by Surya (Sun) who urges her onwards. She drives away the darkness. She is associated with or moves with rta (the established order). Ushas is described as mother of Ashvins.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

2) Prithvi: Prithvi is associated with earth where human beings live. She is always addressed along with her counterpart Dyava (Sky) as "dyavaprithivi" (sky earth). Together they are said to be the universal parents who created the world. Dyava is often referred as father while Prithivi as mother. Prithvi is also referred to as 'dhrta' - the firm, the one who upholds and supports all things (Prithvi Tva Dhrta).

3) Aditi: She is portrayed as mother of the Adityas, Indra and Vivasvan. As mother she is prayed upon to nourish and is represented by cow. She removes fetters and is asked to remove them. Aditi does not have a male consort.

4) Saraswati: She is the goddess of river Saraswat, which was the main river on the banks of which Rigvedic knowledge was revealed to rishis. This river dried up around 1000 BC due to tectonic movements in Northern India. Saraswati is described as mighty and powerful and heaven sent. She is invoked with goddess Idâ and Bhârati.

5) Vak: She is the goddess of speech. She is the mysterious presence that enables one to hear, see, grasp and then express in 'words the true nature of things'. She is said to have been created by Prajapati for the role she played in the revelation of Vedas.

6) Nirrti: She is the goddess of death, ill luck and destruction. The Vedic hymns seek to keep her away "let Nirrti depart to distant places". She, manifest herself in decay, need, anger, cowardice, old age and death. She lives in South, which is the region of Yama.

7) Ratri: She is goddess of night and is hence prayed upon to provide comfort and security in the dark hours of night. Ushas is her sister who appears at dawn. Both the sisters are depicted as maidens, twins and also as mothers.

b) Minor Goddesses

1) Puramdhi
2) Parendi
3) Râka
4) Dishana

5) Kuhi: They are associated with bounty and richness.

6) Sinivali: She is associated with fertility and hence prayed for well being of progeny.

7) Lla (also called Ida): She is invariably grouped with Saraswati and is always requested to be present during a sacrifice. She is also represented by cow for abundance of nourishment.

8) Suryâ: She is daughter of Sun god - Surya (sometime Savitr) and is married to twin Ashvins. She is likened to sacrifice and pervades cosmos. She is married to Soma. The format of this marriage is used in present day Hindu marriages.

9) Dânu: She represents waters of heaven and is mother of demon Vrtra. These waters were released when Indra killed Vrtra.

10) Saranyû: She is the daughter of Tvastr and sister of Vishvarupa. She is married to god Vivasvat and is mother of twins Yama and Yami (the progenitors of human race). She is impulsive.

11) Saramâ: She is quick in her actions and works as messenger of Indra to seek out thieving Panis – who stole cows (cow symbolizes nourishment) sometime she is described as heavenly bitch which accompanies Yama.

12) Aranyani: Goddess of forests.
13) Indrani: She is wife of god Indra.
14) Rudrani: Wife of Rudra.
15) Varunani: Wife of Varuna.

Demi Gods

1) Ghandharvas*: They are generally fun loving and are master artists of music, dance and other entertainment activities. Pushpdant who composed Mahimnastotr (Recited frequently) was a Ghanderva.

2) Yakshas are supernatural beings who in general frequent forests and uncivilised areas. Kubera, their Lord is the possessor and distributor of wealth. He is the possessor and guardian of earth's resources in the form of gems.

Evil Forces

Asuras, Rakshasas, Pishachas, Yatu, Serpents are evil forces, who are depicted as multi-headed animals or mutilated plants. They always go in groups and roam in darkness. Asuras, who are cousins of devas, are always engaged in fighting against them and generally are losers but sometimes when they succeed, Indra intervenes to restore status of devas. Rakshasas are enemies of humans and fight against them. Pishachas fight against manas (dead ancestors).

Regional Abodes (Quarters)

Vedic gods are conceived as presiding over certain quarters or regions of the universe and are responsible for important cosmic or social activities of the region allotted to them. The regions of these gods are as under:

1) Eastern Region: Vasus
2) Southern Region: Rudra and Yama
3) Western Region: Adityâ
4) Northern Region: All other gods
5) Middle Region: Sadhyas, Apteyas etc
6) Upper Region: Maruts

Nature of Human Beings

Humans (Jivas) come into existence through divine act. (see Chapter 2 and 4) The true nature of man is the same as that of Brahman, the supreme god. This Jiva, the Atman in bondage, has five koshas or sheaths (Panchkosha), three bodies (Trividhashariras). It performs actions motivated by desires (Icha), experiences pain due to karma and undergoes transmigration until liberation (moksha). When this jiva is shorn of its limiting adjuncts (upâdis) like body and mind, it is identical with Brahman, since its essential nature also is truth, consciousness and bliss (sat-chit-ananda).

The Five Sheaths (Panchakoshas)
Human being is a combination of gross and subtle elements that act as a sort of sheath (Kosha), like the one that covers a sword. Panchakashas five sheaths in human personality are:

1) Food Sheath (Annamayakosha)
2) Vital-air Sheath (Pranmayakosha)
3) Mind Sheath (Manomayakosha)
4) Intellect Sheath (Vijnâanamayakosh)
5) Bliss Sheath (Anandmayakosh)

1) Food Sheath (Annamayakosha)
It represents the physical body nourished by food. It is the seat of five organs of perception (jnan indryas) and five organs of action (karma indryas).

2) Vital-air Sheath (Prânamayakosha)
The five-fold functions (panch-pranas) which correspond to the five physiological conditions in a human body, comprise this sheath. The vital-air functions are manifest as long as the person is breathing air. They are therefore, called as the vital air sheath. This sheath determines the health conditions of an individual. With the advance in age, this becomes weaker. These five vital-airs (Panchaprânas) are:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

2.1) Prâna (faculty of perception) It is centered in nose and is responsible for respirations by inhaling air It controls the five fold perceptions of seeing (by eyes), hearing (by ears), smelling (by nose), tasting (by tongue) and touching (by skin).

2.2) Apana (Faculty of excretion). It is responsible for throwing out breath in the respiratory process. It also controls throwing out or rejecting by the body of excreta such as feces, urine, sperm, sputum and perspiration.

2.3) Samana (Faculty of digestion) It is situated in the central region of the body and is responsible for digestion and assimilation of food.

2.4) Vyana (Faculty of circulation) It pervades the whole body and supplies the necessary energy to all parts of body. The timely digestion and assimilation of food is attributed to it.

2.5) Udana (breathing upwards) It is situated in throat with its movement poised upwards. It is this vital air, which helps the soul to leave the body at the time of death.

3) Mind Sheath (Manomayakosha)
This sheath, which controls the functions of mind (manas) along with panchajnanendriyas (five organs of knowledge) form's the mental sheath. Like a sheath, it covers and hides the real nature of Atman or Self.

4) Intellect Sheath (Vijnânamayakosha)
Five jnanendriyas or organs of knowledge form this sheath. It covers are hides the knowledge of Atman.

5) Bliss Sheath (Anandmayakosha)
It is the innermost sheath of five sheaths and is very subtle. It is seat of thoughts before they manifest into actions. One experiences it when he is in a state of deep sleep (sushapta). It is called bliss because in this state there is no agitations of mind, which are experienced in waking and dreaming state. It is a chamber of dreamless state, whether one is rich or poor, healthy or sick, young or old, the experience in this state is that of undisturbed peace. However, this state is not the same as the state of total bliss (turya) state of consciousness of Brahman.

Death is not the End of Jiva

Soul (Atman) resides in the body of individual and leaves it when it becomes weak due to old age or other karmic reasons. It seeks new body, which takes about 10 months as per human calendar (or 10 days as per deva calendar which has one day equal to one month of human calendar). The new body that a soul takes up depends on his karmic credit of good and bad deeds. It is only the gross body (sthula-sharira) which gets destroyed at the time of death. Jiva continues to live through his subtle body (suksham- shrira) till he is freed from this bondage in the world (samsara) and achieves liberation (moksha).

These sheaths have to be understood in the sense of one residing 'within' the other. The subtler sheath controls and feeds the grosser sheath. Thus, Anandmayakosha (bliss sheath), which is the most subtle sheath, controls and feeds the vijnaanmayakosha (intellect sheath) and so on, the vital air sheath controls and feeds the most gross sheath the body. However, Soul (Atman) that is the subtlest of all is the controller and nourishes of all the five sheaths.

The Three Kinds of Bodies (Trividha-sharira)
The three kinds of bodies of jiva are:

1) Gross body (Sthulashrir)
It is the gross body or physical body that comes into being at birth, is nourished by anna (food) – hence called annamayakosha and is destroyed at death.

2) Subtle body (Sûksmashrire)
It is not destroyed at the time of death. It is this body of jiva that is primarily responsible for its transmigration to other body after death. It has three koshas (sheaths): pranmaya, manomaya and vijnanamaya. They contain respectively, the five karmendiyas (organs of action), the five pranas (vital airs), the five jnanendriyas (organs of knowledge), manas (mind) and Buddhi (intellect).

3) Causal Body (Karansharira)
It is the seat of bliss sheath. In this state one is neither aware of higher Reality Brahman nor of the plurality of lives in which beings exist, hence it is a state of utter ignorance and thus the root cause of embodiment of soul in body.

Goals of Human Life (Pursharth)

At the physical level all humans aspire to be immortal, have access to knowledge, be free from pain and suffering, remain independent at personal level and enjoy suzerainty over others. At the spiritual level human goal remains to achieve moksha (freedom from repeated cycles of life and death). While moksha remains the ultimate objective, one has to live a life of right path, and enjoy life as it presents itself. The four-fold path for jiva as per Sanatana Dharma tradition is as follows:

1) Dharma (following right path of living)
2) Artha (create wealth)
3) Kama (enjoy all desires)
4) Moksha (work for liberation)

1) *Dharma (Ethics/Righteousness)
It ensures individual happiness and as well as social satiability. Dharma provides basic guidelines for an accepted conduct so that there is little scope for conflicts within self, family, community, nation, humanity or environment at large.

Menusmriti identifies 10 ethical rules or universal values for the observance of dharma:

Dhrtih Kshama Damoasteyam
Shauchmin-driyanigrahah
Dheervidya Satyamakrodho
Dashakam Dharmolakshnam

धृति क्षमा 'दमोऽस्तेयाम शौचमिन्द्रयनिग्रहः ।
धीर्विद्या सत्यमक्रोधो दक्शम धर्मोलक्षणम ।।

(Manusmriti 11-6)

(Fortitude, forgiveness, self control, non-covetousness, purity, control of sense, discrimination, absence of anger, these are the marks of dharma.)

1.1) Dhrtih (Endurance, fortitude, and steadfastness) Dhrtih means perseverance, tenacity, determination or fairness of resolve: A commitment of doing ones duties in every situation on the basis of dharma (righteousness towards oneself, one's family and society).

1.2) Kshema (Forgiveness) Kshame is the capacity to accommodate another's fault or mistake or different point of view.

1.3) Damo (Self restraint, self control). Damo stands for mature and a well integrated personality, having developed the capacity to (Winter will pass on, snows will melt away and spring will bring its glory once again) An excellent example of Dhrtih in nature is about the naked tree that stands erect and firm in spite of losing all its leaves by the end of the autumn, with a resolve to welcome the spring and blossom once again.

have control over the faculties of mind, does not disintegrate or dissipate his energy. He canalizes all potentialities for the chosen higher goals.

1.4) Asteyam (non-covetousness, non stealing). For gaining wealth, one should not use unfair means.

1.5) Shaucham (Purity, Cleanliness). Not only external cleanness, but also one should have inner cleanliness as well by getting over mental impurities like kama (lust, endless desire) kroda (anger) lobha (greed) moha (delusion due to attachment) ahankare (false ego) and irshya (jealousy).

1.6) Indriya Nigraha (control over senses). It is essential to have control over senses, which under the influence of three 'gunas' are always looking for happiness elsewhere than in the self itself.

1.7) Dhi – wisdom, determination, inborn instinctive intellect
1.8) Vidya – knowledge
1.9) Satyam – truthfulness
1.10) Akrodha - absence of anger

2) *Artha (Wealth)
Possessing and acquiring wealth is not an end in itself, but is basic necessity for carrying on day-to-day activities by an individual for himself and family and society at large. One has to work for earning wealth but what is more important is the objective for which it is earned. Accumulated wealth will not lead to permanent happiness.

3) *Kama (Desire/Lust)
Kama denotes the wants and cravings of an individual in the form of desires, passions, emotions etc. Genuine desires are those, which help an individual to uplift him morally. Desires, which lead to greed, envy, passions and such other evils, are bad. One should therefore, overcome

"The hand that beat me

(an act of forgiveness)

A saint while passing through a deserted area was caught by robbers. His meager belongings were looted and he was beat. After some time a noble person passed that way, he took him to nearby hospital where his wounds were bandaged. When police enquired from the saint about the identity of the persons who beat him the saint replied," The hand that beat me is curing me now." Despite repeated requests, the saint did not reveal the identity of robbers as an act of forgiveness.

such desires. Desire for sex is not antireligious. It is essential for procreation, which is one of the debts (rins) that man owes to his ancestors. Passions for sex have to be channelized in the right directions. Religion recognizes, right to entertainment in the form of art, dance, music, sports, conjugal love, good food, drinks, fine clothing, jewelry etc.

4) *Moksha

Moksha or realized liberation from the phenomenal world is the "summum bonum" and the highest ideal of Hindu life. It is salvation from samsara, the repeated rounds of births and deaths. It is liberation, immortality, supreme infinite bliss and eternal peace. It is freedom from limitation. It is a state of perfection and utmost fulfillment, a state of transcendence.

It is not dissolution or destruction of the individual self. It is not death. Essentially, it is a state of bliss, a sensation of peace. It is freedom from domination of the senses and mind. It is like the merging of a drop of water with the rivers, with the rivers into sea. In other word, it is losing names and forms (rupa and nama), into the nameless and formless, to become one.

Moksha is certainly not a post mortem ideal to be obtained after death. The human body provides the most efficient laboratory for the realisation of moksha. Therefore, it has to be realized while person is still alive and healthy, while he is still in control of his senses and other faculties. There is no room for despair and hopelessness in this search. One has to become spiritual and psychic warrior. It may take many life times. Time spent in one lifetime is not wasted. In the subsequent births, the soul is drawn to resume this search.

(As rivers flowing down, become indistinguishable on reaching the sea by giving up their names and forms, so also the illumined soul, having become freed from name and form, reaches the self effulgent Purusha, that is higher than the highest.)

One has to have knowledge of the law of karma and transmigration of soul to reach the highest goal of moksha. Under the influence of maya, jiva gets entangled into the endless cycle of cause and effect known as 'karma'. The desire for objects, which are not real or everlasting, leads to more greed for its achievement, resulting in more involvement in the cycle of life and death. The process of cycles of birth and rebirths is called Samsara, which has no beginning and no end.

The Law of Karma and Transmigration of Soul

It is a fixed moral law like any other scientific law of cause and effect. It may be described as every (moral) action has its reaction, or there is nothing such as action without reaction. Good (moral) actions will lead to good results and consequently bad (amoral) actions will lead to bad results. In simple words, one may state, 'As You sow, so shall you reap'. Thus to get out of the cycle of life and birth, soul has to work out its way. Parmatma (Ultimate Reality) is an excellent accountant. He maintains an accurate record of one's good and bad actions and according to its moral laws the next body that is given to the wandering soul depends upon one's karmic records. If jiva has a plus record of good moral actions (punyas) he may be given another human body to complete his ideal journey of reuniting with Parmatma, but if his record is not good of moral actions, (papas) he is given a body of lower incarnation such as animals, birds, insects, etc. In other words, soul is bound in this cycle of karma and one has to work hard to get liberated, that is, to achieve 'moksha'.

The other postulates of law of karma are:

i) There is interlinking at every level in time and space.
ii) The past is linked to the present the present to the future.
iii) Thoughts are linked to actions and actions to reactions.
iv) Living spirits are linked to the departed ones.

Three Types of Karmas

1) *Prarabda Karma

(also called Sanchita Karma). It is an account of ones past actions good or bad, which have bearing in the present life and is called as destiny. It has a fixed and a variable component. The fixed component of Karma is beyond one's control as decisions about an individual's future existence have already been taken. In the variable component, karma remains latent in the child in the form of Samskaras (natural habits and tendencies).

2) *Kriyaman Karma

Present karmas, which are accumulated on day-to-day basis and work out in the life of an individual.

3) *Agami Karmas

Present karmas that will have bearing in future lives of an individual.

From the above it can be said that karma operates in two ways:

i) Dynamic Karma: It is a situation where the die has already been cast and karma has begun to produce fruits and nothing much can be done about it. It is also called destiny.
ii) Static Karma: It is stored up karma (in the form of Samskaras) in a child, which is inactive now but can be activated by free will to produce results in this life and in future lives as well.

Thus according to Karmic laws, there is possibility and opportunity to mould, modify and even extinguish one's karma. It is neither a master nor a slave. Effort can change or deflect the results of karma. An individual is always in a state of becoming better, or worse depending upon his actions.

This attainment of the desired relationship with the Ultimate Reality is not easily obtained. It requires long, arduous, intense training and practice. It requires a great deal of disciplined study, the cultivation of not only sensual objectives facilities but also the discriminate use of the subjective qualities and abilities of man – culturing and awakening of the pure reflection, contemplative and meditative faculties which can lead to realization, preferably under the guidance of an advanced guru.

Three Ways of Salvation (Moksha)

Three ways (margas) towards salvations, which are not exclusive, are:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

One Can Change His Destiny

One can change his destiny. The success of an action depends on two factors:

i. Human effort or Free will.
ii. Destiny (Sanchita Karma)

Freewill and destiny go hand in hand to achieve the desired goal. Mathematically we may put it as follows:

$$S = D \times E$$

Where S stands for success of human goal, D stands for destiny and E stands for effort. If D = O, no success is possible, and for complete success it should be 1 or near 1.

Destiny to be positive (1 or near 1) depends on good moral conditions. Thus while law of karma binds an individual to the cycle of life and death but freedom from it can be achieved, at least partially, by doing karma without any reward for it, which is called Nishkama Karma.

1) Karma Yoga
2) Bhakti Yoga
3) Jnan Yoga

1) *Karma Yoga (Path of Action)
"Karma yoga is the path to which one is guided in doing the various things enjoined in the scriptures, with regard to the ritual, ceremonial secular and religious matters. The scriptures that prescribe the recitation and methodology of these karmic rituals is known as Karmḳanda. (see Section II). Karma yoga is not rituals and ceremonies alone. It is also an action or work undertaken with the best intention in mind for the upliftment of individual or society as a whole.

2) *Bhakti Yoga (Devotion Path)
Bhakti yoga is the path of complete surrender to god. "God is the knower of the feelings, the sentiments and desires." One should consider these factors. It is suitable for most individuals and as such is the most accepted and followed path for liberation. The relationship between an individual and Lord should be one like that which obtained between Arjun and Shri Krishna in Bhagwad Gita.

(Fix your mind on Me, be devoted to Me; sacrifice to Me, prostrate before Me, so shall you come to Me. This is My pledge to you, for you are dear to Me).

Various ways suggested for the devout are:

2.1) Kirtan Singing bhajans in the name of god and his glory in the presence of his Isht dev or devi which may or may not be accompanied with other forms of worship.

2.2) Mantra Recitation Recitation of mantras accompanied by Japa (meditation) or without japa.

Mantra is the sound body of the deity one worships. Chanting of mantras is called Mantra yoga. Mantra has been defined as a "sacred verbal formulation, repeated in prayer, meditation or incantation, such as invocation of a god, a magic spell or a syllable or portion of scripture containing mystical potentialities". These mantras were transmitted from generation to generation from seers to disciple and in this process the power of mantras has greatly increased. Every mantra used in Vedic sense of worship has six aspects:

1) Rishi (seer)
2) Raga (melody)
3) Devata (presiding deity)
4) Bija (seed sound)
5) Shakti (power) and
6) Kkilaka (pillar)

2.2.1) The 'Rishis' through their intuitive perception opened themselves to the revelations of the mantra and were able to recognize their effectiveness as channels for flow of grace, knowledge and power from the divine.

2.2.2) Raga means melody – a sound or sequence or sequences of single sounds, without harmony. The raga is described by its chanda (see Box). When chanting a mantra, it is very important not to change the raga, because the rate of vibration on which the sound is based is an integral part of the mantra. The relationship between raga and mantra is explained in the Shabda-bramn theory of Patanjali (see Chapter 2) As per this theory, every sound (Vak

Mumukshutva Desire for Liberation

"Moksha, desire for liberation is not an idle enthusiasm to gain an unknown goal, through some mysterious intervention of god or teacher. The seeker must be clear about the goal and the various techniques and paths by which he can attain it."

Swami Chinmayananda
In Self enfoldment
Chimaya publication USA.

A seeker once asked his guru about the meaning of mumukshutva. Without a word, the master took the student by the hand and led him to the nearby river. There, he grabbed the student by the neck and pushed his head into water, holding it immersed for many long seconds. When he finally released his hold and the student grabbed fanatically for some breath, the teacher said," When you want to realise god as much as just yearned to get a breath of air, you will have a burning desire for liberation".

The Chanda (metre) of a Mantra

Chanda defines 'pada' (feet) of a stanza; Usually a Rk (short for Rkās) consists of four padas (quarter verse). Each pada may have eight (8) letter or syllables (akshara). Such a pada is called Anushtup. A pada of nine syllables is known as Brhati, that of 10 syllables - Pankti and so on.

For example in the Shaloka :

Prasanna Vadnam Dhyayet – 3rd Pada.
Sarva Vignopashantaya – 4th Pada."

There are 4 padas (as shown above) and each pada has eight aksharas (syllables).

Shu, Klam Ba,Ra,Dha Ram,Vish,Num (1st Pada).
Sha, Shi, Var, Nam, Ca, Tur, Bhu, Jam (2nd Pada).
Pra, Sa, Na, Vad, Nam, Dh, Ya, Yet (3rd Pada).
Sar, Va, Vig, No Pa, Shan, Ta, Ya (4th Pada).

This is Anushtubh Chanda metre.

or Shabd), has two aspects - the audible sound and the subtle sound (essence which carries the meaning and which arises from the conscious self). When the spoken word (vak) is perfectly sounded, within and without contact is made with Supreme Self (chit-shakti).

Before recitation of a mantra, it is customary practice to name the above six aspects of a mantra e.g. in the recitation of Indrakshi, one begins with:

2.2.3) Devata (Devta) is the presiding deity of the mantra, the informing power, a very personal aspect of god. It is the wisdom that comes from the higher sources and has been described as 'like a single beam of sunlight' emanating from the presiding devta of the mantra.

As per scriptures there are 330 million devtas, who have their own spheres 'lokas' and a mantra for which, he is the presiding deity.

2.2.4) Bija. Each mantra has a bija or seed. This is the essence of the mantra and it gives the mantra its special power – its self-generating power. Just as within a seed is hidden a tree, so the energy in the mantra, is the seed from which will grow the beautiful spiritual being (for bija mantras of important deities see Chapter 6).

2.2.5) Shakti is the divine mother, the goddess

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

of the correctly spoken or recited word. While Shiva represent the static aspect of energy, Shakti represents the dynamic aspect of energy.

2.2.6) Kilaka The kilaka or pillar is the first driving force, the persistence and will power that the seeker (saddak) needs to pursue the mantra. When the power of mantra begins to take on, a self generating 'flywheel motion'- the kilaka becomes a fine thread joining the saddhak to the mantra.

Before recitation of a mantra it is customary practice to name the above six aspects of a mantra e.g. in the recitation of Indrakshi, one begins with:

Om Asy Shri Indrakshîstotrmantrsy
Purndr Rshih, Anushtup Chhndh,
Sri Indrakshi Bgvate Devta,
Hrîm Bijm, Shrîm Shkti, Klîm Kîlkm,
Gayatri, Savitri, Srsvati Kvchm.

ॐ अस्य श्री इन्द्राक्षीस्तोत्रामन्त्रास्य

श्री इन्द्राक्षी भगवती देवता, ।
ह्रीम बीजम, श्री शक्तिः, क्लीं किलकम,
गायत्री, सावित्रीए सरस्वतीए कवचम ।।

(Purandara is Rishi who gave this Indraksistotra-mantra in anustup chanda (meter), Shri Idrakshi Bhagwati is the presiding deity; hrim is the seed mantra. Bhuvaneshvari is the power (shakti), Mahashvari is the pivot (kilkum).

2.3) Nada. It involves use of sound in the recitation of mantra or playing music with utmost devotion to god. It is also called laya.

There are many other forms of Bhakti yoga, which prescribe strict rules for observance.

3) *Jnana Yoga (The Path of Knowledge)
It is the path of knowledge, which involves the use of meditative concentration, preceded by a long and systematic ethical and contemplative practice of yoga to gain a supra-intellectual insight into one's identity with Brahman. Things of outside world should not disturb practitioner's balance. One should be able to control mind and heart in such a manner that whatever may happen, one remains unaffected, unperturbed. 'For such a person who has attained that stage, there is nothing further left for him to do'. Raj Yoga[3] (also known as Ashtange Yoga – the yoga of eight limbs or steps) describes various yogic practices for those who seek this path of liberation. This form of yoga is described in detail in Yoga sutras written by Patanjali. Eight steps or limbs of this yoga are:

3.1) Yama (restraint) – It includes five ethical and moral disciplines:

i) Ahimsa (restraint from violence)
ii) Satya (restraint from false hood)
iii) Asteya (restraint from stealing)
iv) Brahmacharya (restraint from sex)
v) Aparigraha (restraint from greed of wealth)

3.2) Niyama (observances/ discipline) – The five niyamas (disciplines) are:

i) Shaucha (cleanliness of body and purity of mind)
ii) Sntosha (contentment)
iii) Tapasya (austerity)
iv) Svadhyaya (Scriptural study)
v) Ishvara-prani-dhana (surrender to god).

3.3) Asana (posture or seat) – A suitable body posture is to be maintained e.g. Padmasana, Svastikasana etc.

3.4) Pranayama (breath control) – It involves series of breathing exercises to ensure smooth breathing during meditation.

CC-OAgamniga[illegible] Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3.5) Pratyakara (sense withdrawal) – It involves practice by which mind is withdrawn from sense perceptions to get focused on one thought alone.

3.6) Dharana (concentration) – Focusing of mind on one thought through a picture of deity, a mantra etc.

3.7) Dhyana (meditation) – It is a state of mind when thoughtlessness prevails spontaneously without making much effort. There are three methods by which it can be achieved:

i) Direct method when thoughts are directed towards an object such as a symbol of deity, a picture or just a mantra.
ii) Indirect method by observing one's own breathing or going through ones own thoughts without getting involved in them.
iii) Inquiry method by making the body and mind still, motionless and thoughtless. Whenever a thought occurs in such state, one has to direct it towards "who am I".

3.8) Samadhi (absorption in god) – This is the ultimate goal of person who indulges in Raja yoga. In this state the practitioner is in a super conscious state of mind and is one with god.

There are two forms of samadhi:

i) Conscious Samadhi – Practitioner achieves certain super natural powers (siddhis) in the form of clairvoyance, mind reading, thought transmission etc.
ii) Super conscious samadhi – It is a super conscious state of mind in which a direct relationship with god is achieved. In this state one can maintain either subject-object relationship with god (sarvikalpa samadhi) or end subject-object relation with god (nirvikalpa samadhi) and become one with him.

Hatha Yoga is a branch of Raj Yoga, which includes first four steps only. It is very popular yoga for control of breath.

Four Stages of Life (Ashrams)

Ashram literally means a "religious place to rest". Indian seers have prescribed four stages of the life of a male individual with the intention of preparing him for well disciplined life on earth and final liberation (moksha) at the end of his life. The period of each stage is 25 years. These four stages are:

1) Brahmacharya Ashram (period of student ship)
2) GrahasthaAshram (householder stage)
3) Vanaprastha Ashram (ascetic or hermit stage)
4) Sannyasa Ashram (life of renunciation)

1) Brahmacharya Ashram (period of student ship) – During the first 25 years of life one has to go for student ship. The three main goals of this period of life are to acquire knowledge, build ones character and learn to shoulder responsibilities. During this period, one has to abstain from carnel desires. Knowledge to be acquired is both for earning subsequent living and for performing religious duties.

2) Grahastha Ashram (25-50 years) – In this period he marries and becomes a progenitor. He has also the responsibility for maintaining family (Grahstha), work for social cause and discharge religious duties such as performance of yagnyas (Panchmahayjnas) in his daily life and recitations of Vedas and other scriptures.

3) Vanprastha Ashram (51-75 years) – This is the stage of life when an individual should gradually pass on responsibility of Grahestha (household) to his progeny and devout time for careful study of religious scriptures and performance of religious duties including deep meditation for liberation.

4) Sannyasa Ashram (75-100 years) This is final stage for achieving liberation (moksha). An individual at this stage has to cut off all ties with worldly affairs and spends most of time in meditation and god realization. The transition from one ashram to another has to be gradual depending upon the circumstances in which one is held in bondage. Whatever be circumstances, one has not to ignore the ultimate goal of liberation.

Chapter Two

Vedanta Philosophy

Vedanta describes Brahman as the sole God, Who is Transcendental (Para Brahman). All manifestation takes place through His immanent aspect (Apara Brahman), which is His sport (Leela). Thus, He is the cause of the manifestation that is visible. He is responsible for the maintenance of what He manifests and at the end of Kalpa (certain number of years) He dissolves all that He created and yet after some break He re-manifests and again withdraws manifestation. It goes on like this for ever. Humans are all divine in nature, but due to the ignorance (maya effect) they lose sight of their divinity and get entangled in the endless cycles of life and death (Samsara). Human goal is to get liberated (moksha) from this samsara, through karmic rituals, meditation (bhakti) or true knowledge (Jnan) about the real nature of god.

"Religion without philosophy is sentiment or sometimes fanaticism, while philosophy without religion is mental speculation."

Hiriyana, M
Outlines of Indian History

"Whatever else a religion may or may not be, it is essentially a reaching forward to an ideal, without resting in mere belief or outward observances. Its distinctive mark is that it serves to further right living; and it is only in this sense that we can speak of religion as one with philosophy in India"[1]

In the Post Vedic Period the focus of Indian seers shifted to exploring the primary causes or the first cause of all manifestation, which had already made its headway in the later part of Vedic Period. Sources for the knowledge were traced to various Vedic Upanishads that form the concluding part of the Vedas, known as Vedanta (the end of the Veda). "Etymologically the word 'Upanishad' is derived from the words sad (sitting), upa (near by), ni (devotedly) and in course of time it came to signify the secret instructions imparted at such private sittings "To judge from the way in which these texts have grown, they contain not the thoughts of a single teacher, but of a series of teachers and this represents a growth in which new ideas have mingled with the old".[2]

The Upanishads, which are in the form of dialogues, generally in poetic tone, are said to be 108, but only 12 are considered original ones and have been the subject matter of various commentaries (bhâsyas) by learned rishis. These are:

1) Aitareya Upanishad
2) Kaushitaki Upanishad
3) Katha Upanishad
4) Taittiriya Upanishad
5) Âranyaka Upanishad
6) Ishâ Upanishad
7) Brhadaranyak Upanishad
8) Chandogya Upanishad
9) Kena Upanishad
10) Prashna Upanishad
11) Mundaka Upanishad
12) Mandûkya Upanishad

Philosophy

Two streams of thought, known as systems, developed in the Post Vedic Period:

1) Those that reflected Vedic thought as revealed in Upanishads and later commentaries (bhashas). These were classified as orthodox (Âstic) system. This represents the basic philosophy of Hinduism.

2) Those that did not accept totality of Vedic knowledge as the basis of their thought but accepted it partially. They did not agree with the practice of ritualistic worship and customs associated with it, essential as the means for liberation. They came to be known as heterodox system (Nastik). Buddhism, Jainism and Sikhism fall under this category.

Orthodox System (Hinduism)

The Indian philosophical systems have developed not only as result of intellectual speculation but also of mystical intuitions hence the name 'darshana' (seeing) usually applied to them. Human psychology is one of the important characteristics of the darshans and each darshana has different opinions about it. The topics most commonly dealt are:

a) Nature of the physical world, its origin and evolution.
b) Nature of man and other living beings.
c) The goal of human life and ways of attaining it.
d) Existence of god, his nature and attributes (theology) which itself is of considerable interest and has been dealt with separately (see Chapter 3).

Thus, the scope of discussion here will be confined to first three aspects only.

The Upanishads are the basic literature from which Vedic thoughts have emerged, but these Upanishads present heterogeneous views, which are of mystic nature, concerned more about the rituals. Various sages dived deep into these Upanishads and picked up a few hymns from each of these sources of knowledge. These hymns called 'Sutras', were meant for teaching to their students in their camps (ashrams). The thoughts in these Sutras were written in aphorisms for putting to memory, as that was the traditions of teaching at that time (printing press was no where yet).

Later commentators used these Sutras for their commentary (bhâsya). Since the language was mystic and in aphorisms, often tense and ambiguous; various interpretations of these thoughts were presented, which resulted in many schools of thoughts. However, only six of these schools (darshans) have been recognized:

1) Nyaya
2) Vaiseshika
3) Samkhya

CC-OAgamniga... Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

4) Yoga
5) Vedanta
6) Mimamsa

Six Darshanas of Vedanta

1) Vaiseshika Darshan by Kanada. It describes world as made of atoms (paramanus). The doctrine is also known as atomic pluralism.
2) Nyaya Darshan by Gautama (not Bhuddha). It describes world of matter as made up of five basic elements (panch mahabhut), namely earth, fire, water, air, and sky or ether. ?
3) Sankhya Darshana by Kapila. It describes evolution of world through the inter action of cosmic soul Purusha and primordial matter Prakriti. The process is complete through 25 steps.
4) Yoga Darshana by Patenjali. It describes in detail various ways through which humans can uplift themselves to the status of super-being.
5) Mimamsa Darshan by Jaimini. It describes performance of various Vedic rituals as means for liberation from Samsara.
6) Vedanta or Uttar Mimamsa by Sage Vyasa. It describes Brahman as the eternal principle behind all cosmic activity. Manifestation of cosmos takes place through His immanent aspect.

Even among these schools there is pairing together where generally first element of each pair presents the metaphysical aspect, while the second element of the pair describes the practice and methodology. Thus, the three pairs are:

1) Vedanta – Mimamsa system.
2) Samkhya – Yoga systems
3) Nyayâ – Vaishiska systems

The authors of these individual systems in a pair were not same, nor is there any evidence that they lived at the same time. It is later day development.

These systems do not represent a well defined division of thoughts. They show frequent borrowings of ideas from each other. The centrality of expressions in these systems is expressed by the Rigvedic hymn:

Ekam Sat, Viprâh, bahudâ Vadanti.

एकम सत विपरहा बहुदा वदन्ति

{The truth is one but the learned one's (Bahuda) call it by many names}.

Since Vedanta-Mimamsa system represents the latest one and as such it represents the consolidated views of all the systems. Hence, it has been presented here with full details. A brief description of other systems will follow.

I) Vedanta-Mimamsa Darshana

While Vedanta Darshana deals with the philosophical details, the Mimamsa Darashana describes the application side which includes performance of rituals as a means of liberation (moksha) from bondage in samsara. Vedanta is

Story of Six Blind Men and Elephant

Once, six blind men came across an elephant. They had no idea what an elephant looked like, so they started to explore. The first blind man moved his hand along the elephant's side and exclaimed, "The elephant is like a big wall." The second, who was holding one of the legs, disagreed, "No, it is like a thick pillar". The third interrupted, "I think it is like big flag." He was near the elephant's big flapping ears. The fourth one, who had the elephants tail in his hand, insisted that it was like a rope. The fifth felt the tusk and announced that it was like a pestle. Finally, the sixth could not remain silent and yelled, "You are all wrong. The elephant is really a hose-pipe." He had felt the animal's trunk. They all started to argue about the shape and size of the elephant, until a sighted person came along to show them around it. Then they realised the truth. This is how principles of Vedic thought that truth is one, but wise express it differently, was conveyed to ordinary masses through Puranas.

also known as Uttra Memama Darshana and Mimamsa as Purva Memamsa Darshana.

The sources of literature for Vedanta Darshana are the three great literary works called Prasthantraya (the three great books):

1) The Upanishads
2) The Brahmasûtras
3) Bhagwad Gita

However, it is Brahamasûtra (also known as Vedanta Sûtra or Shariraka Sûtra) written by Bâdarâyana Vyasa that occupies the key position.

Vedanta system has three sub-groups:

A) Advaita
B) Dvaita
C) Vishistadvaita

This division into sub groups is due to the difference of opinions among later day seers who wrote down commentaries on Vedanta. All the groups agree about the existence of three realities of: 1) Brahman, 2) the world (Jagat) and 3) individuals (Jivas). The differences of opinions lie only with regard to the relationship that exists between them.

A) Advaita Vedanta (Monism)

The concepts of this system of philosophy have been discussed under the following headings:

I) Brahmn, the Supreme God
II) Manifestation Process

I) Brahmn the Supreme God

The first author of this Darshana is described as Gaudapada (7th - 8th century AD) who wrote his famous commentaries (kârikâs) on the Mandûkyopanisad. He was followed by Shankrachariya (788- 820), who wrote commentaries on Prasthantriya (the three literary works as stated above). Advaita means non-dual, one without a second. It recognises Brahman as the sole Reality (Brahman Satyam) and hence, this darshan is called monoism as well.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

It does not recognise the permanent existence of the world as also of the individual souls.

The Upanishads describe this reality as:

"Sadeva somya idamagra asit,
ekamevâd-vitiyam."

सादेवा सोमया इदामग्रा असित एकामवद वितीयाम

Chandogya up 6.2.1

(In the beginning "before creation", Reality ('Brahman') alone existed. )

Brahman is Transcendent (Para Brahman). He is beyond the reach of human mind, which is limited. He is the First and Ultimate cause of all manifestation. He is Omniscient (sarvajna) Omnipotent (Sarvashakti) and Omnipresent (Sarvavyapak). He is sole creator (Srshta) sustainer (Sthita) and cause of dissolution (Pralaya). Logic and reasoning, which can always be unsettled by superior ones, can never be relied upon in determining the transcendental truth such as the ultimate cause of this world.

Brahma is Sat-Chit-Anand (Truth, Consciousness and Bliss). He cannot be defined as an object.

1) Principle of *Maya

Maya is an inexplicable power inherent in Brahman, just as heat is inherent in fire and is inseparable from it.

Manifestation of names and forms (namâ and rupa) is not real. It is only apparent.

This illusion is caused due to the theory of erroneous recognition of truth (anirvachaniyakhyâti) also known as maya, which is stated to be due to erroneous perception brought about by the false knowledge (mithyâjnana) of the truth. To illustrate the point an examples of perceiving a snake for a rope in insufficient light may be cited. This super imposition of snake for a rope (adhyaropa) is due to false knowledge about object in dim light.

Brahma Satyam Jagan Mithyaa

(Brahman alone is real; this world is only an illusory appearance).

The snake perceived is neither real (sat) nor unreal (asat). It is not asat or unreal like the 'son of a barren women', since it is actually perceived. Neither is it 'sat' or true, since it disappears as soon as the substratum (rope) is perceived as it is. The basic cause of this erroneous perception (maya) is termed as ignorance (ajnana or avidya) which is said to be existent (bhavârupa) and has two powers (Shaktis):

i) Veiling power (âvaranshakti). It veils the true nature of object e.g. veiling rope in above example.

ii) Transforming power (Viksepashakti). It transforms the object into something else e.g. rope is transformed into snake in the above example. Such an apparently transformed object is called a 'vivarta' of the original (original rope into snake) and the theory that propounds it is known as 'vivart vada'. Again since the 'avidya' does not make the rope completely disappear from view, but only makes it appear as something else,' it is described as 'bhavarupa' or existent. The world of duality is due to maya, which causes the Ultimate Reality; appear as many individuals (jivas) and this world of objects.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

2) Three aspects of *Brahman

Brahman as it is, can be comprehended only through its integral or essential characteristics (Svarûpalaksana) which is Truth, Consciousness and Bliss (Sat-Chit-Aananda).

a) Sat (eternal reality)
b) Chit (pure consciousness)
c) Aananda (unalloyed bliss)

These are not really its characteristics but its very essence.

a) *Sat (Truth i.e. Eternal Reality)

That which is not affected by time, space and causation is Sat or Reality. Sat is stated to be of three types:

i) Prâtibhâsika Satya: Apparent truth as is illustrated by wrong perception of snake for a rope in the example given above.

ii) Vyâvaharika Satya: It is the truth as is experienced in the day-to-day life. It is a truth of a higher degree than the one stated above and lasts until one gets true knowledge (âtmajnana).

Mayayi Brmrovns

Mayayi bromrovns is a common Kashmiri phrase to express the helplessness of a person drawn into the illusory web of temptations.

The following Puranic Story illustrates the conception of maya:

Narada (a devotee) asked Lord Krishna "What is meant by maya ?"
Lord Krishna was visiting some devotee in a far off desert and asked Narada to accompany Him. Krishna felt thirsty while passing through desert and asked Narada to get some water from the nearby village.

Narada went to a house in the village and knocked at the door. A beautiful girl answered the call. At the very sight of the girl, Narada forgot the purpose of visit and instead started wooing her. He kept on repeating this until he ultimately got married to the girl. He started living in the village and after some time he begot children and lived happily until 12 years passed, when a flood devastated the village. He ran from the flood along with his wife and children but could not save any of them. He was weeping and lamenting when he heard a gentle voice "My child where is the water, you went to fetch some water, and I am waiting for you, you have been gone for quite half an hour".
"Half an hour!" exclaimed Narada. Twelve whole years had passed through his mind and all those scenes had happened in half an hour!
This is maya. Situations that seem to us to be true, are actually illusory maya, a statement of facts which may or may not be true.

CC-OAgamniga Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

iii) Pârmârthika Satya: It is the highest truth of the knowledge of Brahman (or Atman or Chit), that is the only One that exists and is without attributes, (nirguna) and without form (nirâkâra) hence, described by negative terms (neti, neti-not this, not this) only.

b) *Chit (Consciousness) Consciousness is described as of four types:

i) Jagrat: Waking state consciousness . In this state of consciousness mind (manas) receives impressions (vasnas) from outside which it builds into ideas.

ii) Sapan: (Dreaming state of consciousness). It is a physical condition in which organs of senses (indriyas): five jnanendriyas (organs of hearing, feeling, seeing, tasting, smelling) and five karmendriyas 9 organs of speech, handling, moving on feet, discharging and sex) become wholly quiescent and senses unite with mind (manas) to review the material it has received in waking state (jagrat) (visual and auditory) for forming ideas, which are perceptions without sensation.

iii) Sushupti: (Dreamless state of consciousness). In this condition mind (manas) as well as senses (indriyas) are quiescent and there is cessation of normal or empirical consciousness. It is not a state of blankness of mind or that of absolute unconsciousness either. This state has been described as 'one of unalloyed ness'. In this state jiva can attain temporary union with god.

iv) Turya: (Supreme state of consciousness). It is that state of consciousness which is beyond the experience of an ordinary man. It has been described as a "mystic state to be testified by the person who is gifted with yogic power, but the truth he vouches for is not wholly beyond us". The attainment of this state of consciousness is regarded as culmination of spiritual training.

c) *Ananda (Bliss)
Brahman is bliss that is beyond human conception.

II) Manifestation Process
Since manifestation is only an illusion (vivarta) so there is no need to explain manifestation process and yet Shankerayachariya did present manifestation through a series of steps which he described as respecting Shruties (revealed texts) as they have done so. He characterizes such description as giving accidental or casual characteristics of Brahman (tatasthalaksna) to help humans to understand Him better "even as the branch of a tree helps us to locate the crescent moon in the sky".

Manifestation has been described at two levels:

1) Cosmic
2) Gross

1) Cosmic Level
Pure Consciousness (Chitatman) in association with maya is called Apara Brahman or Ishvara (also Saguna Brahman, Avyakta, Antaryâmin and jagat karna). It is a state of Brahman before creation. Ishvara is all knowing (Sarvajna), all powerful (Sarveshvara) and controller of all that happens Sarvaniyantr. He is the staring point of creation.

Maya is said to be trigunatmak i.e. it manifests itself in three forms (gunas): sattva, rajas and tamas. Sattva represents a condition, which is soothing and peaceful. Tamas is a condition where under everything is dull and static, and rajas is a condition where under everything is active and vibrant. All the three gunas are held in balance in the body of Ishvara. No movement takes place in this state.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

At this stage, Ishvara holds every thing that He is going to manifest in His body. He is associated with the totality of subtle bodies in creation permeating them like the thread through the beads. (Hence the name Sutratman). The unmanifested, seed state of creation has been compared to a golden egg which holds all the seeds of manifestation in its womb. Ishvara at this stage is called 'Hiranyagarbha (holding everything in the golden womb)'. He is endowed with three powers of will (Iccha), knowledge (jnana) and action (kriya) known as icchashakti, jnanashakti and kriyashakti respectively.

2) Gross Level

Hiranyagarbha holds everything in His womb in a balanced state along with three gunas. It is His desire (Iccha) to manifest that disturbs the balance in the state of three gunas, which brings a chain reaction through various steps and a gross world of shapes and forms (nama rupa) appears, including human beings (jiva). In this process, Pure Consciousness (chaitnya) gets associated with the totality of gross bodies in creation (samastisthula-shrira) and in this last stage of manifestation Brahman is recognized in gross form only known as Virat (also vaishvanara).

Manifestation down from Hiranyagarbha proceeds as follows:

2.1) Panchtanmatras also known as Sukshmbhutas (subtle elements – five primordial element). The primordial elements or senses (Indriyas) that are present in Hiranyagarbha (unmanifest) are five. Each one of these represents one quality and that alone, hence the name tanmatra (tanmatra-that alone).

Shankiracharya describes them as five principles of maya.

Hiranyagarbha is Singularity of Modern Cosmologists

Modern theory about manifestation states that it started from a single dense substance held in a consolidated state called Singularity (bindu), which exploded suddenly within a fraction of a second (known as Big Bang theory). One may compare this with the following famous Vedic hymn:

ॐ हिरण्यगर्भ समवरताग्रे
भूतस्य जातः पतिरेक आसीत ।
सदाधार पृथिवीं धामुतेमां
कस्मै देवाय हविष विधेम ।।

Om Hiranyagarbh Samvarttagre
Bhutasy Jatah Patirek Aasit !
Sadadhara Prathvim Dyamutemam
Kasmai Devai Havisha Vidhem !!

In the beginning, there was neither naught nor aught.
Then there was neither sky nor atmosphere above.
What then enshrouded this entire universe?
In the receptacle of what, was it contained?
Then was there neither death nor immortality.
Then was neither day, nor night, nor light, nor darkness.
Only the Existent One breathed calmly, self-contained.

These are:

1) Shabda tanmatra (sense of sound or vibration).
2) Sparsha tanmatra (sense of feel or touch).
3) Rupa tanmatra (sense of colour)

CC-OAgamnigam Cultural Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

4) Rasa tantmatra (sense of flavour)
5) Ghandha tanmatra (sense of odour).

2.2) Panchmahabutas (five gross elements). The five gross elements ether (akasha), air (vayu), fire (agni), water (apa), and earth (prithvi) are formed out of five tanmatras by a process of quintuplication (panchikarnas) and they are named after the distinguishing features of the five elements in the following manner:

1) Akasha (ether) emerges from the shaba-tanmatra with sound as its manifest quality.
2) Vayu (air) emerges from shabda tanmatra and spasha tanmatra with sound and touch as manifest qualities.
3) Agni (fire) from shabda, spasha and rupa tanmatras with sound, touch (or feel) and colour as its manifest quality.
4) Apa (water) from above three tanmatras of agni and rasa tanmatra, with sound, touch, colour and taste as its manifest qualities.
5) Prithvi (earth) from all the five tanmatras and is manifest with all the five qualities of senses: sound, touch, colour, taste and odour.

The order in which these panch-mahabhutas appear is the same as shown above and the element above it is the cause of its appearance. Thus water is the cause of appearance of earth, as fire that of water, air that of fire and ether that of air. Their existence thus depends on the elements from which they manifest. That is why absence of air kills fire. In addition, the order of the appearance of these gross elements shows their concretization from akasha down wards to prithvi.

2.3) Jiv-bhuta (human level) the manifestation so far deals with inorganic elements only. Organic beings called jivas are part of manifestation. The human body has five organs of perception (jnanendriyas), five organs of action (karmendriyas) and a mental set up (antahkaran).

2.3.1) Five Jnanendriyas (five exterior organs of perception).

i) Shraven endriya – organs of hearing of sound (ear).
ii) Supershan endriyas – organs for feeling by touch (skin).
iii) Darshanendriyas – organs for seeing (eyes).
iv) Rasenendriyas – organs for tasting (tongue).
v) Ghandaendriyas – organs for smelling (nose).

Four Types of Jivas

Jiva is derived from the root word Jiv (to continue breathing) and includes four types of living organism:

1) Andeja (born out of egg) e.g. birds
2) Jiveja (born out of germ) e.g. humans
3) Udbija (bursting though the soil) e.g. worms,
4) Shvedaja (born from sweat) e.g. lice.

But in the technical sense jiva stands for a man, made up of three entities: body, mind and spirit. God (Devine Consciousness) is also known as Spirit.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

2.3.2) Five Karmendriyas (five exterior organs of action).

i) Vak or Vagendriyas – speech expression.
ii) Hastenendriyas– handling by hands.
iii) Padendryas– locomotion by feet.
iv) Payvendriya – rejecting, discharging by anus and other organs.
v) Upasthendriyas – procreation by sex organ.

2.3.3) Antahkaran The three set ups of antahkarn are:

i) Buddhi (intelligence) which represents complete knowledge or understanding in a judgment or perception of which one has no doubt.
ii) Manas (loosely translated as mind but not whole mind with which one is familiar. It represents in a limited sense to mean the state of indecision or half knowledge, as when one does not see or understand a thing clearly e.g. in dim light objects are not clearly visible. Manas, is the home of chit (consciousness) as well. Since it does not get involved in the mental activity in anyway, hence manas is generally understood as mind only.
iii) Ahamkar (ego) It is not below the other two aspects of mind as stated above but a distinct function. It is the sense of "I-ness" in all humans. It has been spoken of as part of mind because its 'predicates' are all derived from mind. The mind reflects some conditions and 'I' identifies with that condition e.g. I am running, or I am working, I am happy. These are all conditions of mind, which ego associates with I-ness.

Mai Aisa Kuin Hoon
(Why I am the way I am)

Vasnas are un-manifest tendencies in an individual. Once manifest they determine personality of an individual, which drive his activities in the world. When these vasnas manifest at the thought level, they are expressed as desires. Desires manifest as actions. An act by itself does not create fresh vasnas but when accompanied by ego, they flow in a given direction towards the given object or being, in a continuous stream, which results in an attachment (sanga). These attachments if thwarted, turn into anger (krodha). Anger expresses in delusion (moha). Under the spell of delusion, one does not see things as they are. Upon realization of the true nature of things one realizes his misconceptions and laments: "Mai Aisa kuin Hoon ?", but it may be too late by then.

Is human being divine manifestation or a product of evolution ?

Darwin, an atheist and a scientist of great repute, who is famous for postulating evolution of living organisms, described evolution through the growth of the mental capacity of the organisms that helped them to face challenges for survival. He measured brain cavities of living species and compared them with the brain capacity of the fossils of dead animals. Thus, he concluded that the immediate ancestors of humans are apes. To explain about the huge gap in the mental capacity of an ape (around 300 cc) and human being around 1200 cc) he postulated a sudden jump in the evolutionary process (read divine act) or the possibility of other beings in the evolutionary process whose fossils may be found in the future. While scientists are trying to find out the missing links in the evolution of a human being, all sacred books of religions have settled this issue as an act of god .

There is a sect in USA and Europe who call themselves as Raelians and who believe that they are children of cosmic beings who landed on earth about twenty five thousand years back and their alien clans come to earth to visit them in Flying Saucers ,which are observed now and then.

has also presented a theory about manifestation which is known as Shabda Brahmna or Vyakarna.

According to this system manifestation is explained in four stages:

i) 'Shabda'(word) Shabda is a sort of consciousness where thought and word are same (not distinguished) and Brahman is the eternal word from which emanates everything which is yet unmannifest. It is like just a stir in the mind of an artist to do something.

ii) 'Pashyanit' At this stage of word the divine view of universe lies in its undifferentiated form, far behind human experience. It represents a stage in the mind of an artist to paint a picture which he has not conceptualized yet.

iii) Madyamâ At this stages the word is in a subtle form in the mind or antahkarna and represents the middle stage between Pashyani stage (2) and last stage (4) Vaikhri. It represents the stage when the concept of painting a picture is clear in the mind of the artist.

iv) Vaikhari This is the stage where the differentiated particulars of empirical thought and speech, in the 'word' appears separate from 'throught' and 'object'. At this stage the Shabda has the highest power of manifestation. This is the stage when finally the picture has been painted.

The divine words or letters are of two types:

1) Mayiya (pertaining to maya).
2) Amayiya (out of the scope of maya). Mayiya words are those on which the meaning is imposed by convention e.g. a Jar. They are 'vikalpas' or fancied constructions.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

A*amayiya*' words are those which are 'nirvi kalpa' whose meaning are just the real, which do not depend on imposition, supposition or convention e.g. a mantra.

According to this concept the manifestation of the whole cosmic world has come out of the word AUM. which is Aamayiya.

Relation between god and man

The relationship between god (Atman) and man (Jiva) is best expressed by four great sentences (chatur-mahavakyas) of Upanishads as follows:

i) Tat Tvam Asi (you are that)

Chandogga upa.

ii) Aham Brahmâsmi (I am Brahman)

Brhadaranyaka upa.

iii) Prajnnanam Brahma (consciousness is Brahman)

Aitareya Up.

iv) Ayamâtma Brahma (This Atman is Brahman).

Mâandukya Upa.

Dvaitavedanta (Dualism)

Dvaitavedanta Philosophy was advocated by Madvacharya (1199-1278AD). It states that the world (Jagat) and individuals (Jivas) are two independent identities, who are controlled by Brahman. Jivas get entangled in jagat because of their ignorance about the true Reality of Brahman. Through devotion to god and though His mercy Jives can achieve liberation (muksha) and live in heaven as individual souls in the presence of Lord.

Vaikhri the Word Power

All the spoken words have certain amount of power. The degree of power lies in its strength. All the words spoken by an individual convey some message which indicates its power. For example when the word jar is spoken it immediately creates an image of a jar in the mind of listener without actually seeing or handling a jar. In other words it represents the power of that word (jar in this case). Similarly all the mantras represent a degree of power. Gayatri mantra is a powerful mantra, the recitation of which has been recommended for achieving desired results. The word AUM is the most powerful mantra as it is the word of god with which he manifested the whole cosmic world. The power of word is recognized by many faiths. The famous quote from Bible:

"In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God, and the Word was God"

Bible John1: 1-4, 14

Sikhs also worship sacred book (Granth Sahab) as word of God.

Visishtadvaita (Qualified Non-dualism)

It was advocated by Ramanujacharya (1055-1137 AD). It states Brahman only exists. World (Jagat) is His body in which individuals (Jivas) exist as innumerable life cells. As the rays of Sun are inseparable from it, the individual souls (jiva) cannot be separated from god. Upon the realization, that Brahman is the whole and Jiva is an infinitesimal part of it, one gets liberated. Complete self-surrender is the means for attainment of moksha. In the liberated state, Jiva is ever aware that he is a limb of god and has no separate identity.

CC-OAgamnigam Digitized by Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Samkhya-Yoga system

Samkhya darshan was propounded by the Sage Kapila. In this philosophy two eternal and independent realities Purusha and Prakriti have been recognized. Purusha is the passive Cosmic Spirit, called Self, Pure Consciousness (god like non matter) and Prakriti is the perennial energy, -the ultimate primordial matter which is ever active, but without any consciousness. The world of beings comes into existence by the interplay of these two Cosmic Realities. Prakriti is the source of 23 elements as stated earlier in Advaita Vedanta. :

1) Antahkarna, with three elements of buddhi, manas and ahamkar (ego).
2) Jnanendryas five
3) Karmendryas five
4) Panchmehabutas five
5) Tanmatras five

Yoga darshan is the philosophy propounded by Patanjali (around 200 BC) in Yoga Sutras. He describes yoga as:

"Yogash Chitta Vritti nirodah"

(Yoga means the control of the fluctuations of the mind).

This system advocates a system of mental and physical exercises as spiritual discipline. Four main division of yoga, have been identified, which are not exclusive or graded into superior or inferior. The suitability of a particular form of yoga for an individual depends upon his development of mental, intellectual and emotional aspects. The four yogas are:

1) Karma Yoga (yoga of action)
2) Jnana Yoga (yoga of knowledge)
3) Bhakti Yoga
4) Raj Yoga (yoga of meditation)

These have already been discussed in details earlier.

Nyaaya - Vaishishika System

The world Nyâya means 'argumentation'. Thus, it refers to a system, which is predominantly intellectualistic and analytical. The word Vaishishika means 'difference' and the system is so designated because according to it, diversity not unity is at the root of the universe. "Thus the compound designate 'Nyâya - Vaishishika' refers to the method to be followed in the system as also to the result finally reached through logic.

The Vaishishika sutra of Kanâda and Nyâya sûtra of Gautama and commentaries (bhâsya) written on these books are the basis of these Darshnas.

An important postulate of Nyaya Darsan states, that "all knowledge by its very nature points to an object beyond it and independent of it". These objects, it is stated, are independent not only of knowledge, but also of one another, whence this doctrine is called' pluralistic realism'. It describes manifestation through nine-substances (dravyas), which are:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

1) Earth (prithvi), 2) Water (ap), 3) Fire (tejas), 4) Air (vayu), 5) Ether (akasha), 6) Time (kalpa), 7) Space (dik), 8) The Self (atman) and 9) Mind (manas).

These dravyas are not all material in nature and are either infinite or infinitesimal. A brief description follows:

Earth, water, fire and air are described as made of atoms (paramânus), which are part less, and eternal. Objects like jar are made of these dravyas. Akasha along with above four dravyas are called elements (bhûtas), but while the latter four are found in two forms-primary and secondary (like jar) akasha appears only in one form. It is part less and infinite and does not produce anything as the atoms of other four elements do.

Time and space are conceived as objective realities like akasha. Time cannot be measured, except indirectly e.g. movement of Sun or Moon. Similarly space cannot be defined except by reference to a determinate object say the Pole-star. The primary dravyas are not in time and space. While, secondary (like jar) are in them. Space is not akasha, the latter stands for what fills the space.

Self, it is many, each being regarded as omnipresent and eternal. Self differs from matter only in that it may become conscious and not in that it is itself mental in nature.

Manas – This is atomic and eternal but unlike first four dravyas does not give rise to any product. Each self has his own manas, which is merely an instrument of knowing and is therefore as inert as any other sense. Manas, is not mind, It cooperate in knowing. The dravyas do not by themselves explain the whole universe. They serve merely as a frame-work.

Vaishshhika-Darshan describe seven categories as 1) Guna, 2) Karma, 3) Samânya, 4) Vishesha, 5) Samavâya, 6) Abhâva and 7) Dravyas of Nyaya Darshan.

The Vaishshhika views the world from the ontological stand-point (i.e. nature of beings) while Nyâya does so from the epistemological view (nature of knowledge).

Thus, according to Nyaya doctrine "what is, is knowable" – Accordingly even knowledge can be known which is not only about objects, but about Self as well, but it is primarily directed to the object which is therefore, known before either the Self (subject) or along with it.

Nyaya accepts two proofs (pramanas) i.e. verbal testimony (Shabda) and comparison (upamâna) for coming to conclusion about knowledge (jnana). Vaishshhika also accepts above two pramanas, but in addition to it recommends two more pramanas :perception (pratyaksha) and inference (anumana) for gaining true knowledge.

Chapter Three

Vedanta Theology

Vedanta Theology at a Glance

In the Post Vedic Period (500 BC onwards) Vedic theology changed. The role of devas was considerably reduced. A few who were retained were confined to Vedic rituals only. Brahman came to be recognized as the only God, Who is Transcendent but manifests through His immanent aspect called Ishvara. The three roles of Ishvara are manifestation of cosmos, its maintenance and dissolution at the end of a Kalpa (a certain period of time). In these three roles, Ishvara came be recognized as Brahma, Vishnu and Mahesh (or Shiva) - Called Trinity of Gods. These Gods have their consorts as well. Thus, Saraswati and Gayatri are consorts of Brahma; Lakshimi is consort of Lord Vishnu and Parvati is the wife of Lord Shiva. Shiva has two sons: Lord Ganesh and Lord Kartekeya, who are also Gods in their own right. All these Gods live in Svarga loka (heaven) in the sky, but Lord Shiva occasionally lives on mount Kailash on Earth (now in Tibet). Lord Vishnu takes care of manifested world through His avatar (beings with body) that come to live on Earth from time to time to mitigate the sufferings of living beings on Earth. Lord Rama, Lord Krishna and Buddha are such three avatars out of nine, which have taken birth so far. Hanuman a monkey like God and a devout of Lord Ram was raised to the status of God for his extreme devotion to Lord Ram.

Trinity of Gods

Prajapati, the Vedic God, Who was described as sole cause behind all manifestation in Vedic Period was designated as Brahman in the Post Vedic Period. He was described as the sole Supreme God with two aspects: Para Brahman (Transcendental aspect) and Apara Brahman or Isvara (immanent aspect). It is through His immanent aspect that creation takes place. A Trinity of Gods Brahma, Vishnu and Mahesh came to represent the three aspects of the manifested world. Thus, Brahma was associated with projection of universe, Vishnu with its maintenance aspect and Mahesh (also called Shiva) for its withdrawal at the end of a Kalpa (a life cycle). Vishnu who was a subordinate deva under Indra in the Vedic Period was elevated to Indra's position as god responsible for maintenance and preservation of what was created by Brahma. Rudra, Who was head of the group responsible for upkeep of laws governing cosmic order (rta), was renamed as Rudra-Shiva (or later on as Shiva only) who brought dissolution of creation at the end of each cycle of creation and maintained it until next creation cycle. Thus, Brahma-Vishnu-Mahesh represents the Trinity of Gods in Post Vedic Period, Who are all equal in status.

While devas had no definite forms and had no temples of worship, the post Vedic gods have definite anthropomorphic forms. Representation of gods in this form may have its origin in the Greek invasion of India around 326 BC. Nehru writes "It is interesting thought that image worship came to India from Greece. The Vedic religion was opposed to all forms of idol and image worship. There were not even temples for gods".[1]

The goddesses in the Vedic Period had no significant roles, but in the Post Vedic Period they came to be recognized as life partners of the Trinity of Gods, which in principle represent an aspect of deity's energy. Thus, Brahma has two wives Saraswati (Learning aspect) and Gayatri (Knowledge aspect); Vishnu's consort is Lakshmi ( Prosperity aspect); Lord Shiva's wife is Parvati (Source of energy behind all manifestations). They have two sons: Ganesh (Who removes all obstacles in the performance of an action) and Kartekeya (also known as Kumar or Sukand, who is the power behind success in any endeavour).

Vedic devas, who still command a respectable status in Vedic rituals are: Indra, Varuna, Mitra, Vayu, and Surya.

All the gods of Hindu pantheon are supposed to live up above in the heaven Swargloka and deliver justice to human, who lives on earth (Mrtyoloka) from their abodes. Lord Shiva chose to live on Earth as well, at Mount Kailash, (in Tibet) with His family, but Brahma and Vishnu continued to live in heaven only. While Brahma has no role to play after He created Universe with all its varied forms, till next creation takes places; but Vishnu's role as preserver of what has been created by Brahma and its orderly functioning needs His presence on earth as well. This necessitated His coming to earth in the form of His incarnation (avatars) from time to time to guide people on the path of dharma (righteousness).

All the three Gods of Trinity have many attributes by which they are identified and worshiped e.g. Vishnu is worshiped as Narayan, (one who resides on water), similarly Shiva as Shanker or Shambu.

Iconography and Symbolism

Anthropomorphism among gods encouraged worshipers to represent certain attributes of gods by various representations of symbols, just as in geometry triangles, squares, circle etc. are used to represent the shape of things. These symbols express the inner meaning of the acts of grace by gods. A few examples are:

Lotus

1) Lotus (Kamal) – A Lotus represents purity, detachment and happiness.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Lotus grows in muddy waters and yet when it blossoms, it has no trace of mud. Surrounded by water it does not hold water. In mythological terms a lotus comes out of Vishnu's naval from which Brahma appeared to create universe.

2) Conch (Shankh) – It is a product of water, where from all universe (Sreshti) has come out. It also symbolises sound of sacred word "AUM" which represents the original divine sound by which creation came into being.

3) Trident (Trishul) – Trident in Shiva's hands symbolises His early association with Rudra, Who holds cosmic order (rta) with His fire power.

Trident
Trishul

4) Crescent Moon has been an excellent guide for measurement of time. Hence, it symbolises time past and present. Crescent Moon is also an object of decoration.

5) Book in hand Book Symbolizes knowledge.

6) Third eye (Trinyan) Third eye is the eye of wisdom and state of Turya consciousness with which one can see intuitively.

7) Sling or Noose (Pasha) It is a symbol representing the divine power to trap any prey who try to break the divine order (rta).

Bead Necklace
(Rudrakshamala)

8) Rosary (Akshmala) It represents endless cycles of time Kalpa through which the universe has passed, to which god is witness. It also represents knowledge of yoga

Axe (parsu)

9) Axe (Parasu) It is the oldest weapon to punish the wicked.

10) Number of arms. They represent number of energies of the deity.

11) Four heads. It indicates control over four directions. Thus, they represent omnipresence of god.

12) Showing palm of hand (Abhay mudra). It indicates divine grace, which the deity bestows on his worshippers.

This symbolism was later on extended to ritualistic worship of deities. Thus, a burning lamp or camphor symbolizes presence of fire (Agni Devta) who is carrier of oblations in sacrifice (yag*nya*).

A brief description of Post Vedic Period gods follows:

1) Lord Brahma

According to accepted beliefs Lord Brahma is the self-created creator (Svayambhu), the self-born first person Who came from the golden egg (Hiranyagarbha). He is one of the three Gods of Trinity and is credited with all manifestation of universe in all its forms including seers (rishis), the chief among whom were Daksha, Atri, Narad, Brigu, Pulstya etc. He has two wives Saraswati (or Savitri) and Gayatri. He was the chief priest who performed the marriage of Shiva with Parvati. Brahma represents knowledge and hence, He is the author of all four Vedas. He is wise. The life span of Brahma is 100 God years and His one-day is equal to 4320 million years of human calendar. The Universe (Shrishti) is presently going though the 51 year of His creation of the first Kalpa (see Chapter 11).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Symbolism

1) Four faces – represent sacred knowledge of four Vedas, which came out of His mouth.

2) Four arms – Indicates His energies (see above).

3) Rosary – (Akshmala in one hand (see above).

4) Book in hand – It represents knowledge, which is important for creation.

5) Water pot (Kamandal) – It represents cosmic energy by which He creates Universe. Water is also important for life.

6) Hand in Abhay Mudra – See above.

7) Ladle (Sruk), Spoon (Sruva) and sacred grass (Kusha). These are sacrificial implements and materials used in ritualistic worship (see Chapter 15).

8) White Beard – It indicates wisdom.

9) Crown on Head – This indicates His status as creator.

10) Lotus (sitting or standing). See above.

11) Riding a Swan or Goose – These birds are sacred as they can live on land, water and sky. Thus, they are excellent vehicles of gods. These birds are also symbols of knowledge as they have the knowledge to sort out milk from water and grain from chef.

Epithets (Other Names)

1) Atmabhoo – He is the Self Existent One.

2) Lokesh – He is the God of world.

3) Hiranyagarbha – He, whose origin is from the golden egg (see also Chapter 2).

4) Vidhata – He is the destiny maker.

5) Savitripati – He is the husband of

Brahma was born out of Lotus

In a mythological account in Vishnu Puran, Narayana (Epithet of Vishnu) floated on the snake Ananta (endless) on the primeval waters for a long time. From His naval grew a lotus in which God Brahma was born reciting four Vedas with His four mouths and creating 'Brahmanda' (egg of Brahma) which contained the entire world.

Brahma a Frustrated Progenitor

Creation of Universe was no challenge for Lord Brahma, but continuing the line of progeny of humans was a big challenge. He created four mind born sons namely Sanak, Sanatan, Sanandan and Sanat Kumar for extending the line of progeny, but they preferred to remain in their childhood form, as five year old boys, to worship their father rather than get involved in the affairs of the world. Next, He created one thousand mind born sons including Narad for this job but they all became a great devout of Lord Vishnu at the instigation of Narada and spent their life in His devotion. Having failed in many similar efforts, Lord Brahma ultimately sought help from Kaamdev (God of lust) to create Maithunic Srishti (creation growing through copulation). Kamdev produced a female from Lord Brahma's left portion and man from His right portion. Owing to the erotic feelings generated by Kamdev they started Maithunic Srishti. These two persons were called as Manu and Shatroopaa and are the ultimate parents of mankind. It is for this reason that all humans are called Manvas. It also explains why after marriage Hindu woman sits on the left side of her husband while offering prayers.

Source Brahma Purana

Savitri ( also known as Saraswati).

6) VishVâkarma – He is the architect of the world.

Worship

Surprisingly, Lord Brahma does not have any ritualistic worship. There is only one temple in India dedicated to Him at Pushkar Lake (Rajasthan). However, He is cited in all worships as the creator from whose birth the date is measured with the words "Om Tat Sat Brahma Adyo Tvt Tithou" (From the beginning of that Brahma who ……..).

2) Saraswati (or Savitri)

She is the Shakti (energy) behind Brahma and is described as His consort. Literally Saraswati means "the flowing one". In the Rigveda She represents River Saraswat and the deity presiding over it. Thus, She receives a number of hymns as a deity who bestows bounty, fertility and riches. Her waters enrich the land so that it can produce more. She also represents purity as Her running water purifies the land.

In the Brahmanas (which constitute part of Veda) She is identified as Vagdevi (or Vagishvri), the goddess of speech, learning, culture and wisdom. Thus, in this way, the Vedic deity Vâk has been merged with Saraswati in the later period and it is in this aspect She is worshiped now.

CC-OAgamnigam D[illegible]eservation Foundation , C[illegible]igarh

Speech (Vâk) holds a very important position in Hindu religion as it is held to be the first sign of manifestation through the sacred word "AUM," proceeding from Shabda-Brahman (Ultimate Reality in the form of sound see Chapter 2).

Saraswati is identified with thought and intellect as well. She is one who makes speech possible through the process of thought, intellect and memory. Thus, She is called 'Buddhishaktirupini' (whose form is the power of knowledge), Smritishakti (the power of memory), Pratibha (who is intelligence). Sharada (giver of essence) Mahavidya (knowledge supreme).

Iconography

She is depicted as a beautiful lady clad in spotless white apparel, seated on a lotus (or white swan). She has four hands She holds a vina (lute) by two hands, Akshmala (rosary) and a book (or a water pot) by other two hands.

Symbolism

1) White Colour – It is the symbol of Her purity with which She associates Herself with Lord Brahma for creation of universe. She is the power and intelligence behind all creation.

2) Four arms – see above.

3) Lute (Vina) – It represents Her association with fine arts. She is the guiding spirit in all forms of art

4) Akshmala (rosary) – see above.
5) Book – see above.
6) Swan as a ride – see above.
7) Sitting on a Lotus – see above.
8) Peacock sitting by side – Peacock's mood changes with weather, he represents unpredictable behaviour, hence Saraswati does not use it as Her vehicle, in preference to swan.

Epithets (Other Forms)

1) Vagishvri (or Vagdevi) – She is the Goddess of speech and learning.

2) Manas Kanya – She emerged from Brahma's head and is considered to be His psychic daughter.

3) Vani – She is the Goddess of speech and arts.

4) Veena-Vadini – She is the Goddess of music and hence fine arts.

5) Brahmani or Brahmi – She is wife of Brahma.

6) Sharada – Sharada is giver of essence. The Goddess of autumn when after rains, mother earth becomes fertile.

Worship

She is worshipped daily at home and in temples before starting any recitation or speech. She is invited to sit on the tip of the tongue so that the words that come out are sweet, sensible, right and meaningful.

Saraswati Mha Bhage Vidya Kamal Lochni
Vishvrupe Vishâlâkshi Vidyam Dehi Srsvati.

(I pray to lusted eyed mother Saraswati, who manifests in all forms (rupas), who is source of knowledge (vidya) and alphabets (akshers), may She guide me with true knowledge).

Saraswati is worshipped specially on Vasant Panchmi, which is celebrated as the first day of Spring season in the plains of India (corresponding to fifth day of the bright fortnight of the lunar month Magha (Jan-Feb).

Savitris Curse Upon Lord Brahma

Lord Brahma wanted to establish places of His worship, just like other gods, on earth. He arranged performance of yagnya at the banks Pushker Lake in Rajasthan. Time and date for this was fixed by Brahaspati who was the chief priest. Savitri got busy with some thing and as such could not come to yagnya mandap in time to sit by the side of Lord Brahma for performance of Yagnya. Brahaspati insisted that he could not proceed with the performance of yagnya without the presence of Brahma's consort as that would not have the desired result. As auspicious time for performance of yagnya was running out, a virgin girl, Gayatri was made to sit by the side of Brahma to perform yagnya.

When Savitri ultimately came and found some other woman sitting by the side of Brahma. She got annoyed and uttered a curse upon Lord Brahma that henceforth He would not receive worship, except at Pushkar. She uttered curses to others as well who were present in the ceremony

3) Gayatri

Gayatri represents the collective knowledge of all the Vedas. She is closely associated with the Vedic hymn, Gayatri mantra consisting of twenty four syllables which is addressed to God Savitr (one of the three gods represented by Surya in the Vedic Period. In the Post Vedic Period She was given the form of a female deity. She is depicted as a young girl with five heads, three eyes in each face, with jeweled diadems (crown) on each head set with crescent Moon, ten arms and hands holding various objects such as rosary, Kamandal (a bowl), conch, discuss,

Goru-Try in Kashmir

In Kashmir Saraswati is worshipped primarily as Goddess of learning. She receives special pooja on the third day (Try) of the bright fortnight of the lunar month of Magha (Jan-Feb) when kul-guru (the family priest) comes to the home of his yajman (house holder) with a picture drawn on paper with Shalokas (prayers) for Saraswati. This day is hence called Gor-Try in Kashmir. Children are initiated into learning of alphabets on this day.

The Trick That Didn't Work

Gayatri represents the collective knowledge of all the Vedas. That is why She is called Vedmata. This has been expressed in the Puranic literature through the following story:

All the three Gods of Trinity: Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva once decided to test the waters of Gayatri. They went to Her residence as Saddhus and asked for some food. Gayatri welcomed them into Her house and put some food before them to eat. All the three saddhus didn't touch it. When Gayatri wanted to know the reason for not eating the food, the saddus replied that they have been told by their guru to accept food only in case it is given to them by a naked woman. This put Gayatri into a dilemma, but She immediately recognised the real identity of these saddhus. Thus, without wasting time She sprinkled some water over them along with recitation of gayatri mantra, which converted all the three saddhus into three little sucking babies. She then fed them naked, from Her breasts and afterwards put them to sleep in the cradle by the recitation of Vedic mantras. They slept in the cradle for centuries. Their delay in retuning back to their homes put their wives to worry and they came out for a search for their missing husbands. Ultimately they landed at Gayatri's residence. Upon enquiry Gayatri accepted that their missing husbands were in Her custody and told them to take them back to their homes. When they saw their husbands as little babies they could not initially believe Gayatri's statement. However, when they heard the truth, they were now in a dilemma about the identity of their husbands in baby form. They requested Gayatri to kindly bring their husbands to their original state, which She did. All the three Gods along with their wives bowed to Gayatri and accepted Her as their mother hence forth.

lotus, mace, axe, whip, thread and offering booms with one hand. She is seated on a lotus or a swan.

She represents knowledge and hence, is referred as second consort of Brahma, Who is the source of all knowledge.

Symbolism

1) Five faces – (with five different hues of pearl, coral, gold, blue and white) – These represents four Vedas and one face of Gaytri.
2) Three eyes – See above.
3) Ten hands with various objects – She is mother of all gods, and hence She displays their attributes as well.
4) Lotus – See above.
5) Riding a Swan – See above.

Epithets (Other Names)

She is known as Ved-mata as She is embodiment of Vedas.

Worship

She receives Her worship in Japa Yoga and in Sandhya Vandana through recitation of Gayatri mantra:

Om Bhur Buvah Sah, Tat Savitur Varenum, Bhargo Devasya Dhimahi, Dhiyo Yo Nah Prachodyat.

She is always worn on body in the form of Yagnopavit by three Varuna:, Brahmins, Kshetryas and Vaishya.

4) Lord Vishnu (all pervading)

The Vedic deva, Vishnu Who was a subordinate deity of Indra in the Vedic Period , received a major boost in the Post Vedic Period. He was elevated to the rank of Trinity of Gods along with Brahma and Mahesh, Who are the other two Gods of Trinity. Worship of Indradeva along with other Vedic deities remained confined to karmkand rituals only.

In its new role, Lord Vishnu is endowed with that aspect of universe, which is responsible for its orderly functioning and preservation after Lord Brahma has created it. Etymologically 'Vishnu' means 'one who pervades', 'one who has entered everything' and thus, He is the inner cause and power by which everything exists.

Laxmi (or Lakshmi) is His consort, Who helps Him in the proper functioning of all activities in the world. His abode is Vaikunth in heaven.

Iconography

In iconography His two popular forms are either sleeping on the coil of serpent (Sheshanag also called anantnag) which is floating on the waters of the ocean Kshrasmudra (ocean of milk), one of the legs is resting on the lap of His consort Laxmi, Who is gently pressing it. In His, other form He is shown standing on a blossomed lotus on the waves of ocean with four hands holding conch (Shankh), discuss (chakra), mace (Gada) and Lotus (Padma). He wears a neck-lace with the famous gem Kaustubha dangling from it. In the ears He wears crocodile shaped ear rings. His vehicle is the mythological bird Garuda. His body colour is a hue of dark blue, like that of rain cloud.

Symbolism

1) Kshirasamudra (ocean of milk) – ocean represents causal waters from which all life springs, milk stands for purity. Hence it stands for purest form of prakriti (nature in its undifferentiated form).
2) Sheshnag / Anantnag (1000 headed serpent) – It represents Cosmic time which is endless. Created worlds come into being in time and are sustained in it, which He controls. It also signifies immense desires of individual, which He controls.

3) Dark Blue Colour – It represents the colour of infinite empty space in the cosmos.
4) Four arms – See above.
5) Discus (Sudarshan Chakra in upper right hand) – Lord protects His devotes from all evil forces. It also represents Cosmic mind.
6) Conch (in upper left hand) – See above.
7) Mace (in lower left hand) – It represents the energy with which He sustains the created beings.
8) Lotus – See above.
9) Garland of Flowers – It represents devotes adoration for Lord.
10) Crown – It represents Lords supreme status of God.
11) Ear rings (like crocodile in shape called Makarakrati Kundal) – Two methods of gaining knowledge.

i) Samkhya (intellectual)
ii) Yoga (Intuitive)

12) Garuda (as vehicle) – It symbolizes knowledge of Vedas. Garuda represents speed and hence it represents the wings of speech with which Vedas serve as vehicle of knowledge.

Incarnations (Avtars)

Vishnu's role as preserver of what has been created by Brahma and its orderly functioning needs His presence on earth as well. This necessitated His coming to earth in the form of His incarnation (avataras) from time to time to set people on the path of dharma (righteousness) Lord Vishnu's has two types of incarnations:

Pûranâvatar – Full manifestation like Shri Krishna, Lord Ram etc.
Amstavatars – Partial manifestation like Dattatreya etc.

Pûranâvatars

Lord Vishnu has had nine incarnations (avataras) from time to time. Avatara literally means "descent" in Sanskrit. The belief is rooted in the fact that god exists above and whenever He chooses

Credentials of an Avatara

Scriptures mention that an Avatars has 16 kalas (powers), 5 of these are present in all beings (i.e. 5 senses of perception- sight, hearing, smell, taste and touch). Another 4 are present in humans only viz.-mind, heart, intelligence and Tureevastha (the intuitive experience). The remaining 7 kalas are confined to avatars only. These are:

1) Power to reward for the effort, that fails to be rewarded, though it has come from the deserving one.
2) "Anugraha" – or the special grace, whether the recipient merits it or not.
3) Power to create a new order of life in a society.
4) Power to support any system that is good.
5) Power to destroy evil.
6) Power of assumption of any form avatara in which he is mentally imagined or seen in a photograph by a devotee.
7) Power of Bhagwan, which is divine spirit himself to convey his message.

he comes down as a living being on the earth.

The term Bhagwan is used for incarnations of Vishnu only.

Shreemad Bhagwad Puran mentions 22 Avatars of Lord Vishnu, but only 10 are held to be real Avatars :

1) Matsya (fish)
2) Koorma (tortoise)
3) Varaha (boar)
4) Narsimha (Man-lion)
5) Vaman (Dwarf human)
6) Parashuram (Rama with axe)
7) Lord Ram
8) Lord Krishna
9) Lord Buddha
10) Kalki (yet to come)

1) Matsya (Fish)–After the great deluge in earlier times there was flooding every where on earth. The lives of Sage Manu and other seven seers (rishis), who were the first progenitors, were in great danger. Taking advantage of the situation, the demons (asuras) stole Vedas when they fell accidentally from Lord Brahma's mouth during His sleep. Lord Vishnu assumed the form of a huge fish and pulled the boat carrying these great souls to their safety across the ocean. He also recovered stolen Vedas and handed them back to rishis.

Matsya

Mythologically it represents the first phase of manifestation after end of previous Kalpa

2) The Koorma (Tortoise) – Devas requested Vishnu to make them immortal so that they are safe from the frequent onslaughts of demons (asuras). Lord Vishnu suggested to them to carry out churning of the mighty ocean Khersmudra to obtain nectar (amrit) for drinking, which would make them immortal. For Himself, He offered to act as an anchor for the churning rod by taking the form of a tortoise. The Great Mount Mandar agreed to act as the churning rod. The act of churning was carried out and the nectar obtained from the ocean was taken by devas, who became immortal. (see under goddess Laxmi for more details of ocean churning).

Koorma

3) The Varâh (Boar) – Hiranyakshap, a demon (asur) had received a boon from Lord Brahma that he cannot be harmed by any living being that he named at the time of receiving boon. He forgot to mention Varah. Due to cruel deeds of demon, earth went to the bottom of ocean to hide in the form of a cow. Vishnu assumed the form of a Varah and killed the demon and restored earth back to its position.

Varaha

4) Narasimha (Man-lion combination – Hirrankashyapa, who was brother of Hiranyaksha had a son named Prahlad, who although an asur was a great devout of Vishnu which was resented by his father.

Narsimha

Hirrankashyapa had received a boon from Lord Brahma that he cannot be killed at the hands of either man, god, demon or animal. He decided to kill his own son Prahlad for going against the traditions of his father. Lord Vishnu appeared as Nara-Simha and killed the demon and thus saved Prahlad from death.

5) The Vaman (Dwarf) – Prahlad's grandson Bali defeated all devas and laid claims to their abode heaven (dyuoloka). Devas prayed to Lord Vishnu for help. Bali was a benevolent ruler and had vowed that no beggar could go empty handed from his gate. When Bali was making a great sacrifice (yagna), Vishnu appeared as Vaman (Vaman means 52 in Sanskrit – i.e. he was 52 anguls in height, angul is one thickness of finger), a dwarf and asked for a gift of land, which He could measure with three strides, to which Bali agreed. Lord Vishnu thereupon assumed the form of a huge being with huge leg span and measured heaven (dyuolok) with one stride, all earth (prithvilok) with second and out of pity stopped stepping on nether world (Patal) which He left for Bali for his kindness.

Vaman

6) Parashurâm (Râm with an axe) – Kshtriya kings crossed all limits of tyranny. Goddess of Earth, Bhoodevi, appealed to Vishnu, who appeared as Parashuram, son of Brahman, Jamdagni and his wife Renuka. Lord Shiva Himself instructed Him in the use of weapons and gave Him the axe which Parushuram kept always with Him. He fought against Kshtriya kings and vanquished them.

Parshuram

7) Lord Ram – Lord Vishnu's incarnation as Lord Ram is well known. He was the eldest son of the mighty king Dashrath of Kausal whose capital was Ayudya (UP). Lord Ram is called "Maryada Purushottam" because He established the image of an ideal man on the loftiest pedestal of human existence. Lord Ram showed by His conduct the best example of an ideal son, ideal brother, ideal husband and an ideal king. He left home for 14 years along with His wife to keep up the promise His father had given to His stepmother Kaiki. He was kind to His brother Laxman, Bharat and Shatrugum; He loved His wife Seeta and rescued Her by fighting battle with Ravana king of Lanka who had abducted Her. His reign as a king is known as 'Ram Raja', which was based on the principle of justice for all. Ramayana which records His life and teaching, is considered very sacred Epic by Hindus.

Lord Ram

8) Lord Krishna – This is Lord Vishnu's most popular and well known incarnation. Right from childhood to the end of His life, He demonstrated the path of righteousness for the benefit of mankind, which forms the background of the dialogue between Him and His chief disciple

During Mahabharata war, He remained on the side of Pandavas to help them to regain their rightful kingdom usurped by their wicked cousins Korvas.

His message to mankind in Bhagwad Gita, the highest ideal for Hindus is "do your duties to your best effort, but leave result to god".

Raukmani is His consort while Radha is His spiritual sole mate.

9) Buddha (600 BC) – Buddha, though not prayed by Hindus, and is yet considered as an incarnation of Lord Vishnu due to His teaching of Karuna (compassion for all animate beings). Though born as a prince, He lived life of a hermit to find solutions for suffering humanity and advocated the philosophy of Middle Path based on eight principles: 1) right view 2) right intention 3) right speech 4) right action 5) right livelihood 6) right effort 7) right mindfulness 8) right concentration.

Avtars Explain Darwin's Evolution of Species

A comparison of the first seven Avatars with the evolution of species as explained by Darwin makes an interesting study:

Stage of evolution

1) Matsya - Life starts in water (fish) (600 million - 400 million years ago).
2) Kurma - The first amphibian emerge (Tortoise) (100 million years ago).
3) Varaha - The first mammals evolve (Boar) (60 million years ago).
4) Narasimha - The earliest ancestors of human appear (half man-lion) (30 million years).
5) Vamana - Homo Erectus. Upright, yet short (short man) (5 million - 2 million years ago).
6) Parashuram - Bonze Age; Homo Sapiens (350,000 - 100, 000 years ago).
7) Ram - Modern Man.

attributes of Trinity of Gods and is hence represented by three heads and six arms. The central head is that of Lord Vishnu, right one is that of Lord Shiva and the one on left is that of Lord Brahma. In Maharashtra His birthday (10th day of bright fortnight of Magh Month) is celebrated with great enthusiasm. In Kashmir Dattaterey is head of an important gotra among (Kauls) and is held in high esteem.

2) Dhanvantari – Dhanvantari came out of Cosmic Ocean at the time of Amrit-manthan holding Amrit Kalasha (pot of ambrosia) in His hand. He is considered originator of medical sciences.

3) Hayagriva (or Hayashirsha) – It is a deity, with a horses head. Two demons Madhu and Kaitabh stole Vedas and hid them under water. Lord Vishnu took the form of Hayagriva, dived to the bottom of ocean and rescued Vedas after killing both the demons. He is shown in a human form with horse's head possessing 4 or 8 arms carrying various weapons of Vishnu.

4) Kapila – He is the author of Sankya philosophy and taught it to his mother Devahuti.

Kapila icons have the hair, dressed up as a crown (jata-mukata), a beard, four arms holding pitcher, shankha and chakra.

5) Mohini – To help devas in having all the ambrosia (and deprive demons) Lord Vishnu appeared as a fair lady to distract the attention of demons towards Her at the time of sharing of amrit after Amrit-manthan. Mohini is shown as beautiful young lady wearing colourful garments

Kapil Destroyed Sixty thousand Sons of Sagara just by a glance

Kapil's power of tapas can be gauged from the Puranic story where-under it is stated that he destroyed sixty thousand sons of Sage Sagara just by a glance. Later on Sage Bhagiratha brought down Gangs (Jehnavi of heaven) to Earth to wash off bones and ashes of these sons of Sagara (see Section of Shiv also).

and decorated with jewels.

6) Nara-Narayan – After the purpose of Narasimha avatar was accomplished, Narasimha split himself into two, the lion part becoming sage Narayana and human part became Nara. Nara and Narayana afterwards retired to forest for performing austerities. These Sages were later reborn as Srikrishna and Arjun.

Nara-Narayana is represented as a single person or as two persons. In the former case, the icon has two or four arms carrying rosary and other emblems of Vishnu. In the later case, He is shown as having two heads and two arms and wearing a deer skin. Narayana is depicted with usual four arms carrying the emblems of Chakra, Padma, Shankha and Japmala.

7) Vyasa – Vyasa is a cosmic entity born in every age to propagate the scriptures.

The Sage Krishna-Dvaipâyana, the son of Parâshara, is the well-known Vyasa of this age. He is credited with the collection of all Vedic hymns and then divided (Vyas=to divide) them into 4 Vedas.

He is credited as the author of Mahabharata, as also 18 Puranas and Brahmsutras.

In iconography he is shown as, of slender build, dark in complexion with the hair dressed as crown. His disciples sit by his side.

Epithets of Lord *Vishnu (Other Names)

Vishnu Shastranama records the thousand names of Lord Vishnu, a few prominent and often recited are as follows:-

1) Keshavah – Having Shining hair
2) Vasudeva – Son of Vasudeva (Krishna)
3) Purushah – The primal soul
4) Ishwar – The Lord of all creations
5) Aditya – Son of mother Aditi
6) Acchyuta – Infallible
7) Chaturbhuj – Four armed
8) Madhava – The lord of all knowledge.
9) Prajapati – The lord of all creations.
10) Narayana – One who reposes in water or whose abode is water.
11) Damodar – He whose stomach was tied with a rope (By Yashoda in His Krishna incarnation.
12) Hiranyagarbha – Holding (in His belly) the golden ovum (for creation)
13) Shatrughna – The slayer of enemies.
14) Govindah – He, who is capable of reclaiming the sunken earth (in Varaha incarnation).

His Family

His consort is Laxmi (Goddess of wealth).

Worship

Lord Vishnu receives maximum worship as He is the preserver of all creations. He is worshipped as Vishnu in His two usual postures as well as in his various incarnations, particularly as Ram and Krishna.

Recitation of Bhagwad Gita and Ramayana is also widely practiced as a means of worship.

In homa (yagna) He receives thousand oblations of ghee along with recitations of His 1000 names (Chapter 21, refer Vishnu Sahastranamavali).

Vishnu is also worshipped in the form of Saligram at home and in temples. Saligram is a black coloured fossil of ammonite (mollusc) with a hole in the middle and coils around it.

Once it is kept at home, its worship become obligatory.

5) Lakshmi (or Laxmi)

Lakshmi came to be associated with Lord Vishnu as His consort in the Puranic writings. Earlier She was known as Shri and was widely worshiped as a Goddess of beauty, luster, glory. As Vishnu's consort She plays the role of a house-wife obediently serving Her husband. She is associated with prosperity, well being, bestowing royal authority and fertility. She is custodian of dharma and remains associated with Her husband Vishnu in all His creations as avatara to help Him in maintaining cosmic order. Thus, She appeared as Padma (or Kamla in His Vamana incarnation, Sita in His Ram incarnation and Rukhmani in His Krishna incarnation.

Mythologically Her birth is associated with the churning of ocean of milk (Smudmnthan).

She appeared as an object from the ocean along with 13 other objects and was taken by Vishnu Who was attracted by Her beauty. As per another Puranic legend She was born as the daughter of Sage Bhrgu and his wife Khyati.

The abode of Lakshmi is said to be the ocean, where She stays on the serpent Shesh's coil (Sheshnag) along with Her husband Vishnu.

Iconography

As consort of Vishnu and His avataras, Lakshmi has been the delight of iconographers. Eight forms of Lakshmi (Asht mahalakshmi) are generally recognized. Out of these the more common are:-

1) Samanya Lakshmi – She is depicted as a beautiful girl standing on a Lotus with two hands holding lotus. In this form she is always accompanied by Lord.
2) Vara Lakshmi – She is depicted as above but alone with four hands. Two additional hands display Abhay and Varada mudras.
3) Gaja Lakshmi – She is seated on an eight petalled louts, with four hands carrying a lotus, a pot of nectar (Amrit Kalsha), a bilva fruit and a conch. Behind her two elephants are shown pouring water over Her from pots held in their trunks.
4) Maha Lakshmi – She is shown standing on louts with eight hands, holding bow, arrow, mace and discuss in additional four hands.

The other four forms are not so common.

Symbolism

1) Lotus – Symbol of purity.
2) Pink Complexion – She is active and compassionate mother who pleads with Her husband on behalf of humans.
3) 4 Hands – Her power to grant 4 purusharthas (goals of human life) Dharma, Artha, Kama,

CC-OAgamnig[illegible]l Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

Moksha.

4) Objects in hands (same as that of Vishnu) –It represents Her supportive role as Vishnu's consort.
5) Fruit / Amrit Kalsha She is controller of human destiny.
6) Elephants Spraying Water It indicates name and fame.

Epithets (Other Names)

1) The eight Shakties (energies) of Vishnu represented by Lakshmi in various aspects are:

Lakshmi: The Churned Out Gem Of Ocean

Demons (asuras) were always trouble for devas. They prayed to Lord Vishnu for help to make them become immortal so that these asuras do not dislodge them from heaven (Sualoka). Lord Vishnu suggested to them to churn the Ksheer sagar oceans and obtain precious gems along with ambrosia (Amrit) from it, by drinking which they will become immortal. Lord Vishnu offered Himself as the base upon which the churning road would be kept and so converted Himself into a tortoise. Mount Manrachal became the churning rod and serpent Vasuki became the churning rope. The churning rope was held by devas on one side and demons (asurs) on the other side. Fourteen objects came out from the ocean. The first to come out from churning was Surabi (Kamdenu -the mythological cow of abundance) and the last one was Lakshmi the most beautiful and charming lady which was taken by Lord Vishnu Himself as His consort. Devas took the ambrosia and they became immortal. Some of the other objects that came out in the churning process are: 1) Varun (Goddess of wine); 2*) Parijaata-tree* (Kalpvrksha-a mythological tree which provides everything that one asks for); 3) Rambha, the dancing girl Apsara; 4) Chandra (the crescent Moon) Kausturba (a Gem); 6) Airavat (the winged elephant); 7) Uchchishrava Dhnvataria (The divine physician holding nectar in a pitcher); 8) Kaal koot (the deadly poison ; 9) Alakshmi. (Symbol of Poverty)

Crescent Moon was taken by Lord Shiva which He used as a diadem. He also consumed all the poison ( kaal koot) to save the world. There are different versions about the objects and the order in which they came from churning.

i) Sridevi – Her aspect of wealth and fortune.
ii) Bhudevi – Her aspect of earth and its fertility.
iii) Saraswati – Her aspect of learning.
iv) Priti – Her aspect of love.
v) Kirti – Her aspect of fame.
vi) Shanti – Her aspect of peace.
vii) Tushti – Her aspect of pleasure.
viii) Pushti – Her aspect of strength.

2) Kamla/Padma – She is Kamal Vahini Seated on lotus. She is Vishnu's wife in his Vamana Avatara.
3) Lokmata – She is mother of three worlds.
4) Jaladhija –She was raised from ocean (Kishta samudhum).
5) Sita – Wife of Ram (Vishnu avatar).
6) Rukhmani – Wife of Krishna (Vishnu avatar).
7) Hari Priya – She is beloved of Lord.
8) Chanchalla – Wealth which she personifies does not stay with one. Hence she is fickle minded (Chanchal).

Worship

She receives worship on Diwali (Kartic Amavasi) She is favorite deity of business class who cherish Her as Goddess of wealth and is worshipped daily by that class at home and at their business premises.

6) Alakshimi

Alakshimi is the opposite of Lakshimi. She is misfortune personified. At the time of churning of milk ocean, She came out of ocean earlier than Her sister Lakshimi and hence is elder to Her. She is also known as Jyeshtha (the elder one) She was married to Sage Dussah (the unbearable). Their son is Adharma (Opposite of dharma).

In iconography she is depicted as an ugly old woman riding an ass with a broom in her hand.

Since fortune and misfortune are two sides of the same coin, as both are cyclic, She is propitiated to be away in far off lands. As Jyishtadevi, sometimes She is considered to be Lakshmi in angry mood.

7) Lord Shiva

Literally Shiva is one in whom the universe 'sleeps' after destruction and before the next cycle of creation. As per natural law all that is born, must die, all that is produced, must disintegrate and be destroyed. Shiva represents this principle. Thus, Shiva is broadly identified with dissolution aspect of the world and the beings in it, but is equally responsible for new creation

Shumbu bestower of peace and happiness

A lady used to work floor in a temple where there was a Shivlinga. One day she saw a spider on this linga and finding no water nearby she cleaned it by spitting on it and then rubbing it. The priest of temple objected to this action by her and wanted to punish her. Lord appeared Himself to save her and declared "I care for feelings rather than ritual". Realising this she was not only excused for so called sacrilege but was worshiped as mother. Since then Lord Shiv came to known as Shumbu or Shanker (the bestower of peace and happiness.

when Lord Brahma prepares for this act. It is in this capacity that Shiva has been equaled with Trinity aspect of three Gods: Brahma-Vishnu and Shiva (or Mahesh).

Shiva also represents Vedic Rudra and thus He is 'Terrible one' but can be easily won by 'Tapas' (deep meditation). His abode is icy mount Kailash in Himalayas (Tibet). He has a family. His wife Parvati always lives with Him. His two sons are Ganesh and Kartekeya (also known as Kumar, Skund or Subramanyam). He is fond of roaming earth, especially burial grounds and cremation sites, which fits in with his description as Lord of destruction and dissolution.

Iconography

He is depicted as very handsome youth, white as camphor. His body is besmeared with ashes. He has three eyes; third eye is on forehead between the eyebrows.

He has a crown of long matted hair from which flow river Gangs. He wears crescent Moon as diadem. A tiger skin or elephant skin adores His body as His garment. He has serpents forming His necklace and even a yagnopavit (sacred thread). There is a garland of skulls round His blue neck. His vehicle is a bull called Nandi. He has a large retinue of ghosts, goblins and imps called Ganas lead by His son Ganesh, also called Ganapati. "These ganas are called Parishads (associates of Rudra Shiva). They are dwarfish, pot bellied, cock faced, long necked, big eared with deformed organs of sex, fiercely energetic, gigantic in size and out landishly dressed".[2]

He is shown with two, three, four, eight, ten or even thirty two hands, with objects like Trishul, Parasha, Danush, Akshmala, Pasha, Khatvanga (magic Wand), Khadga (sword) darpane.

Symbolism

1) White complexion – White colour is opposite of dark. Hence, He dispels darkness, which stands for ignorance.
2) Three eyes – They represent Sun, Moon and Fire-the three sources of light, life and heat. Third eye also indicates knowledge and wisdom.
3) Matted Hairs (Yyomokasha) – It symbolises sky with the winds blowing in it. Thus He is the Lord of universe.

4) Tiger Skin – He has complete mastery over desire. He has control over all aspects of nature including its terrible one as indicated by tiger.
5) Flow of Gangs over his head – His compassion and care for human beings. He held it in His head to save earth from its impact when it came down from heaven. It also indicates purity and prosperity.
6) Crescent Moon – The waning and waxing of moon represent time. Hence, He is Lord of time.
7) Snakes and blue throat – They symbolize his power over death. He is controller of death (Mrtenjaya).
8) Trident (Trishul) and axe in hand – He is ruler and worrier.
9) Damru (Small drum in hand) – The sound of damru represents the original sound 'AUM' with which world was created by Brahman.
10) Garland of skulls (Mundmala) and ash besmeared over His body. Skull represents successive appearances and disappearances of human races. Ash represents what remains after death. Hence He is Lord of destruction.
11) Deep meditation – He is lord of Yoga.
12) White bull as Vehicle – He is controller of all impulses- Bull is symbol of arrogance.
13) Number of hands – Control over directions and His power.
14) Objects in hands:

Skull (Khatvanga)

i) Akshmala (rosary) shows He is master of spiritual science of yoga.
ii) Khatvanga (magic wand with a skull fixed at one hand). He is adept in occult sciences.
iii) Darpane (mirror) Entire creation is His reflection..
iv) Kapala (skull cup). He drinks

Eight Shakties of Lord Shiv

Lord Shiv is called Astmurthi and Ashtatunu as He is lord of eight elements and eight powers (Shakties). These are:

i) Bhava Deva – Lord of Water, Lord of Existences.
ii) Sharva Deva – Lord of Earth, Lord of Dissolution.
iii) Rudra Deva – Lord of Sun, Lord the terrible one.
iv) Pashupata Deva – Lord of Fire, Lord of Preservation.
v) Mahadeva – Lord of Moon, The great Lord.
vi) Bhima Deva – Lord of Space, The powerful Lord.
vii) Uugra Deva – Lord of Sacrifice (Yagnya), Remover of Ignorance. viii) Ishana Deva – Lord of Wind, The great ruler.

blood with this and hence points to His power of destruction.

v) Other objects such as axe, noose, etc. (already explained elsewhere).

Epithets (Other Forms)

Shivasahastranamavali describes one thousand names and epithets by which Shiva is worshiped. A few ones commonly used are :

1) Rudra – This is the early Vedic form of Shiva which represents His terrible aspect of nature which brought death and destruction to those who try to violate cosmic order( rta).
2) Pashupati – He is lord of animals which includes humans also who are ignorant beings (like animals).
3) Natraj – King of dance. It symbolises dance of destruction to dissolve prakarti (Universe) into Himself at the end of Brahma's one day. Mythologically it is stated that Shiva became very sad at the death of His first wife Uma and performed celestial dance called 'Tandava' to express His anger. Later on when He married Parvati (Who is incarnation of Uma) He danced with Her. This dance is dance of joy and is called "Lasya".
4) Yogiraj – In this form He is great yogi. He sits naked, motionless, with ash-besmeared body, matted hair and beggars bowl under a banyan tree. He loves meditation and yoga. He has conquered His mind.
5) Mahakala – He is master of time past, present and future and thus He rules destiny. He is called Mahamritunjaya (victor of death). He represent the time between dissolution and new creation.
6) Shambu or Shanker – These are most popular names of Shiva. In these forms, He bestows peace and happiness. He is very benign deity Who is moved easily by sincere and genuine feelings.
7) Mahesh or Mahadeva – In this form He is lord of knowledge. He is supreme Lord, Lord of Lords. He is Parmgyani (The Supreme Knower). He is master of (a) Yoga, (b) Vedanta (c) Steady of languages (d) Ideas and forms.
8) Bhooteshwar – Bhoot means ghost : those spirits which do not have physical form. This is a form commonly worshiped by Vammargi tantriks, who used these spirits for achieving various hidden power. Mythologically it is stated Lord Himself created Veerbhadra to devastate the sacrifice of Daksha.
9) Lingaraj – In this form He is worshiped as Linga stone (see under Shivalinga).
10) Digambare – Who is clothed with space.
11) Ard-Nareshwar – He adopted this form to bring about union between man and women for procreation.
12) Hare – He is remover of obstacles.
13) Vishwanatha – He is the lord of Universe.
14) Umapati – Husband of Uma (also known as Sati).
15) Ashtosh – He is very generous and easily pleased. He bestows boons to His devotees.
16) Vrsh Vâhana – His mount is a bull (Vrshba).
17) Dhakshanmurti – He is great master of Yoga. He was facing south (Dakshin) when He taught yoga to His disciples at a secluded spot in Himalayas.

Minor Deities associated with *Shiva

1) Nandi or Nandikeshvara – It represents bull (Nandi) mount of Shiva who gained the status of human being by his devotion to Shiva and became His Dvarpal (gate keeper).
2) Bhringi – He was sage who was a great devout of Lord Shiva and was elevated to the retinue of Shiva's abode.
3) Virabhadra – He is personification of Shiva's anger manifested during Daksh's sacrifice (Ygnya) because of contemptuous treatment. He destroyed Daksh's sacrifice to average the humiliation of His Lord. His wife Bhadrakali was created by Parvati.
4) Chandeshvara – He is a messenger of Lord Shiva who acts as a mediator interceding with His Lord on behalf of devotees.
5) Shiva Ganas – Also called as Pramathe Ganes or Bhutaganas (demigods or malignant Spirits). If they are not propitiated, they can do harm.

Shivalinga

Worship of Shiva as Shivalinga has been the subject matter for study by various scholars. Different interpretations have emerged.

One of the traditional interpretations is that "Linga and Yoni" (male and female) thought pervaded through ancient world. Like Shiva in India there is Khem and Osiris in Egypt, Pan and Dianyscious in Greece, Fricco in Scandinavia, Hortanes in Spain, Adonis in Phoencia and Attis in Phrygia".[3]

Thus "the worship of Linga (Phallus of Shiva) originated from the concept of god as great father or procreator and this father god and mother goddess (as yoni) were worshipped in both anthropomorphic and symbolic forms by pre Vedic people".[4]

"Rudra personifies the reproductive power of nature in the Vedic literature. The placing of Gangs on His head in the Post Vedic Period was to emphasize His fertilizing power".[5]

Pouring of water over Shivalinga in worship may thus, be acknowledgment of His fertilizing power. Yet there is another tradition, which prescribes worship of Shivalinga form, is His worship in Nirgunna (Transcendental) aspect and worship as an idol is Saguna (immanent) aspect.

Shiva* Worship

Worship of Shiva in linga form is rule rather than exception. Shivalinga is worshiped in Upachara tradition (see Chapter 15) as is the case with other deities. His invocation involves His avahana (welcome), to washing feet face and giving a bath with water, milk, curd, ghee, honey etc.

Shiva* Temples of Kashmir

Kashmir is the land of Shiva and Parvati. Harmukh Peak (5200 meters) literally meaning face of Shiva stands on its east, Mahadev Peak protects valley from south. Rajterarragni describes "Kashmir is Parvati, know that its king is a portion of Shiva" – Amarnath cave located deep in the mountain is a famous pilgrim-

How Lord Shiva manifested as linga

It is stated in linga purana that lord Brahma and lord Vishnu got involved in an argument about their higher status when lord Shiv manifested Himself as an effulgent pillar. Both of them were stunned by the appearance of this effulgence and decided to resolve the issue of their status by finding the cause of the appearance of this pillar. Both of them decided to go round this pillar and one who returns back first to the point of start will be acknowledged as a Superior God. Lord Brahma rode a white swan and flew towards the upper side of the linga. Lord Vishnu rode a bore and moved in the lower direction. Both traveled for hundreds of years but could not find the bottom or top end of this effulgent pillar. Both retuned back to their original positions. Then lord Shiva appeared before them and revealed His identity and allotted respective duties to both the quarrelling Gods. Brahma was allotted the role of manifestation of Universe (Shrishti). Lord Vishnu was given the role of maintenance of the Universe. For Himself Shiva allotted the role of clearing all the debris at the end of a kalpa (a time period). Three of them agreed with the respective duties. Thus, Shivlinga has no sexual connotation and represents absolute purity and effulgence of lord. The twelve famous jyotilingas or pillars of light that are worshipped in Maharashtra are part of this tradition.

age center for Hindus all over India, during July August especially, on Asuj Puranmashi when they have 'darshan; of Icy Shivalinga. Temple on Shakeracharya hill in Srinagar is not only place of worship, but also a tourist attraction. Albourini author of Aine Akbari writes "Hindus consider all Kashmir as Holy land, 45 places are dedicated to Mahadev (Shiva) every town and village has several temples dedicated to Shiva."

8) Parvati

Parvati is the consort of Shiva. She was daughter of Himavat a king in the Himalayan Kingdom and Mena. Right from Her early age She performed long tapas (ascetic austerities) to become Lord Shiva's wife and to live forever with Him. Her wish was ultimately granted and

Kashmir as peetha of Uma worship

As per Shiv Puran, Parvati was married to Shiva in Her earlier incarnation when She was born as one of the daughters of Daksha Prajapati and Parasuti. In that birth, also She had performed tapas to become Shiv's consort and was then known as Uma. She committed suicide by burning Herself through the fire of ygnya to average the insult Her father had inflicted on Her, by not inviting Her and Her husband Lord Shiva. Thus, She came to be known as Sati (the chaste one). Upon Her death, Shiva became very sad and roamed in around with Her dead body for a long time. Other Gods could not see this pathetic site and requested Shiva to give up the Uma's body for a formal cremation, but Shiva refused and there upon Brahma was requested by Vishnu to disintegrated Uma's body by hitting it with His arrows. The parts of Her body fell on earth and these places came to be called as Peethas – sacred lands where Goddesses by various names became objects of worship. It is said Shiva Himself later on came to Earth in search of Uma's body parts and carried meditations at these places. Kashmir is one of the Peethas .There is a temple dedicated to Uma worship at Umanagri in Annantnag.

She was married in a traditional way to Lord Shiva on thirteenth day of the dark fortnight of the lunar month of Phalgun. Lord Brahma Himself acted as priest. This day is celebrated with great religious ferver among all Hindus as the union of Purusha (the cosmic soul) and Prakriti the primordial matter which resulted in the manifestation of Universe.

Parvati's role as Shiva's wife is two fold. In Her benign role She lives a happy married family life, which is harmonious, blissful and calm along with Her children Ganesh and Kartekaya. In this role She helps Her husband in the discharge of His duties when ever called upon to do so. e.g. when She is asked to mislead demons Madhu and Kaitabha by Her maya so that they could be killed by Vishnu (see under Durga) In Her terrible form She is Durga the mother with all the powers of divinity in Her to remove and destroy all wickedness and recreate new order Herself without the aid of Her husband, Who is just a passive witness to Her embodiment as Shakti. (see Chapter 5 for more details).

Iconography

She is shown in 2 aspects, the mild one and terrible one.

As Parvati or Uma She represents mild aspect and is shown sitting by the side of Shiva with or without Her children. In this pose She has only two hands right one holding a blue louts and the left one, hanging loosely by the side. The image is richly decorated. In Her other form She is shown independently with four hands, two hands holding red and blue lotuses and the other two exhibiting the Varada and Abhaya mudras.

Epithets (Other Names)

She is queen among goddesses and has many attributes. A few are:

1) Durga – dealt separately (for details see Chapter 5).
2) Annapurna – the possessor and giver of food. She got this epithet for serving food to Shiva when He was roaming around as mendicant. Her worship ensures supply of food in a household. Her temple at Kashi is famous temple.
3) Aparajita – The invincible one. It is an epithet of Durga. A stotra in Saptashudi is known by her this epithet as Aparajitastotra.
4) Bala – The child – She is considered to be always 9 years old daughter of Lalita (see next Dection).
5) Bhadrakali – She was created by Uma to fight against Daksha Her father and to destroy his sacrifice (Ygnya).
6) Bhutmata – The mother of goblins She lives under the pipal (Ashvatta) tree and has host of demons, goblins and demigods as Her retinue.
7) Indrakshi – "One whose eyes are similar to Indra's." She is worshipped by Indra and Apsaras. She is richly decorated and holds Vajrayudha. She gets pleased by recitation of Her hymns and can cure incurable diseases.
8) Jagad-Dhatri – One who sustains the world.
9) Kameshvari – 'The mistress of desire'. This is one of the names of Lalita (see under Lalita).
10) Katyayani – Parvati was once born as daughter of a Sage Kata, hence She is known as Katyayani. This is another form of Durga with all the powers of Trinity.
11) Manmohini – One who lifts the mind unto the highest state of Yoga. She is Shakti established in the psychic center in top of the head. She is pictured as black or blue in complexion and carries a Skulcap and a sword. When She is pleased She grants wealth and terrifies enemies.
12) Rajarajeshvri – 'One who rules over the king of kings'. She is an aspect of Lalita, who rules over all gods.
13) Shivaadhuti – In Her battle against Shumba and Nishumbha demons (see under Durga) She once sent Her spouse Shiva as a messenger (Duta) to them, hence She came to be known as Shivaadhuti (one who has Shiva as a messenger). She is an incarnation of Kali and Durga.
14) Gayatri, Savitri, Saraswati – These three goddesses are presiding deities of the Gayatri mantra.

Worship

As consort of Shiva, Parvati receives extensive worship daily as well as on special occasions. She is extensively worshipped as Durga and in Her other aspects.

She is specially worshipped on Shivaratri by all Hindus. Among Kashmiri Pandits Her worship is extensive in daily poojas as well as during Shivaratri.

Temples

In Her aspect as Durga She is worshiped at several temples all over Kashmir. The famous temples are:

1) Khir Bhawani – Here She is worshiped as Ragnya Bhagwati

Why Ganesh has Elephant Head

Purans have produced many tales to subscribe to the form in which Lord Ganesh is worshipped with the elephant head. Simplest and commonest one is that Parvati (Shiv's wife) prepared the image of a child out of the scurf from Her body, endowed Him with life and ordered Him to stand guard before Her house. When Shiva wanted to enter His house after His return from a visit, He was rudely prevented from entering by this new gatekeeper. Lord Shiva assumed the form of Rudra and got Him beheaded. Upon realizing the true nature of things, He managed to graft the head of elephant over His body.

That may be the Puranic way of saying things. This explanation is rather hard to digest as one does not easily agree with such repulsive origin of a god in a grotesque form. One has to look for answers from somewhere else. "The real explanation may be in the fact that the Rig Vedic deity Ganapati-Bramanespati also called as Brahaspati and Vacaspati, who manifests Himself through vast mass of light, golden red in colour, holds battle weapon axe, without whose grace religious rites can not succeed and who is always in the company of a group of singers and dancers, who vanquished the enemies of gods, protects the devoted votaries and shows them the right path; may have got metamorphosed with present day Ganesha-Vigneshvara".[6]

(Tulamula).

2) Chakreshwar – Here She is worshiped as Sharika (Srinagar, Hari Parbat).
3) Jawala Ji – Here She is worshiped as Jawala at Khrew Village.
4) Bala Temple – Here She is worshiped as Bala (Girl) at (Balhoma near Wuyan).

8) Lord Ganesh

Compared to the Trinity of Gods, the role of Ganesh is minor, but His worship is most extensive. No undertaking, whether sacred or secular, can get started without first honouring Him. He is called Vigneshvara or Vignahara, i.e. Lord of Obstacles.

In Rigveda Ganesh is recognized as Lord of Gana (Ganesha), Lord of obstacles (Vigneshvara) but no form was associated with Him.

Ganesh's two wives (Shakties) are Riddhi (or Buddhi) and Siddhi.

Iconography

The most commonly accepted form of Ganapati depicts Him in red colour, in a human body with elephants head. Out of two tusks one is broken. He has four arms. Two arms hold the Pasha (noose) and Ankusha (Goad) the other two are held in Abhaya and Varada Mudras.

He has a huge belly, a snake acts as a belt. He wears a yagnopavit. He puts on a crown and is beautifully dressed. The trunk may be turned to the left or right. He likes eating ladoos (Modka). A small mouse is seen near Him, which may be his ride. The number of heads sometimes may be four or five but generally one. The arms may vary from 2 to 10 generally 4.

Symbolism

1) Elephant Head – It represents wisdom (Jnan) which is one of the three essential for undertaking any venture. The other two are desire (Iccha) and action (Kriya).
2) Askew Trunk (Vukr-Turd) – Elephants uses trunk for all jobs. Hence it represents remover of obstacles. Askew trunk represents activity.
3) One Tusk (Ekdent) – One tooth. He is focused in His mission.
4) Big Billy – It represents His assimilating capacity. Thus, it knows all that is happening in the Universe.
5) Large Ears – Radar like ears are quick to receive prayers of His subjects.
6) Four Arms – Represents four directions.
7) Four Hands – Two hands holding a snare and an axe (or goad) indicate controlling ego. Third hand in abhay mudra indicates His blessings. Fourth hand with book indicates knowledge. (Sometimes it has ladoo instead of book, which indicates bhog (enjoyment).
8) Mouse as Vehicle – Mouse represents perversity of human mind, the weight of Lord keeps it suppressed.
9) Small Eyes – He has minutest observing power.
10) Crescent Moon – Moon represents His grace.

Epithets (Other Names)

Various names by which He is known are as follows:

1) Ganapati/Ganadhipati – Lord or master of group. He is Lord of various Ganas (armies) of Lord Shiva.
2) Umaputra – Son of Uma (Parvati).
3) Heramba – He is mother's pet.
4) Vinayak – Leader of special qualities.
5) Gajanana – Elephant faced.
6) Sarva-Siddhanta – Provider of every success to His worshipper.
7) Ekdanta – One tusked.
8) Lamboodara – One with a long or huge belly.
9) Mushakvahan – One who uses mouse as vehicle.
10) Vâkratunda – One who has askew trunk.
11) Vigneshwar – The lord of all obstacles.
12) Krishnapingle or Dumernater – One whose eyes are black and yellow brown.
13) Vignbakhay – Remover of all obstacles.
14) Vallabasahitay – Dear helper.

Worship

Lord Ganesh is propitiated in all prayers and yajnyas at the beginning, which may be brief for daily rituals to full fledged homa-yagnya in His honour. The chief oblation for Lord Ganesh is

Tarakasuras Miscalculation

Tarakasura was a powerful asura who had performed hard meditation (tapasya) for hundreds of years and had received boon from Lord Brahma that no one could kill him except the son of Lord Shiva. Lord Shiva at that time had taken up long meditation after He had lost His wife Uma and Tarakasura thought that there is no chance for Shiva's son to be born who could kill him.

Tarakasura had amassed huge wealth and along with his three sons was ruling all the three lokas of the world. Devas prayed to lord Brahma for help them, as it was He, Who had granted Tarakasura the boon of invincibility. Lord Brahma suggested devas to make Lord Shiva agree to marry again so that a son could be born from His wife who could then vanquish Tarakasura. No body dared to disturb Lord Shiva's meditation knowing very well His Rudra aspect if He got angry. Devas persuaded Kandarpa (Kamdev) to try to invoke kama (esoteric desires) in the body of Lord Shiva. After many assurances he did try his best, but in the process he himself got reduced to ashes with the wrath of Lord Shiva's third eye when He (Shiva) got disturbed in meditation.
Parvati was also in deep meditation in the nearby region. He was attracted by Her scents and Her charm. He fell for Her charm and decided to marry Her. Lord Karttikeya was born from their marriage, Who ultimately destroyed Tarakasura in the battle and thus, restored Deva's their lost positions.

ladoo (small round ball made from wheat flour, sugar and ghee).

Temples in Kashmir

The chief temples dedicated to Lord Ganesh in Kashmir are:

1) Ganeshbal – at the base of Hari Parbat in Srinagar. It is His suyambu form (self revealed).
2) Ganpatyar – Temple at Srinagar, on the right banks of river Jehleum between (1st bridge and 2nd bridge).

There are Ganesh Murtis in Temples all over Kashmir.

9) Karttikeya

Karttikaya is son of Lord Shiva and Parvati. He is ever young and hence known as Kumara. He is a forceful attacker, worrier who killed the great demon Târakâura and hence He is known as Skunda, and is recognized as commander-in-chief (Senapati) of the army of all gods. His weapon is

Kartiikaya is worshipped as Subramanyam in South India

As per Puranic story Lord Shiva and Parvati wanted to marry their sons but were not sure who should be the first one to get married. They decided to test the wisdom of their sons to resolve this issue. Both were asked to find out the most precious object. Kartiikeya rode His vehicle peacock and started His journey southwards but Ganesha did not move at all. He got up and made circumambulation around His parents. When asked by His parents the cause of His act He replied that there is no object more precious than His parents. This pleased them and they decided to give Him precedence in marriage over Their other son. When Kartiikeya returned after a long wait and found that His brother Ganesha has received precedence over Him in marriage, He got angry and made South India as His abode. He married two ladies Valli (daughter of local Chieftan) and Davasena (daughter of Indra). He occasionally visited His parents.

a lance which shines brilliantly like fire. He is a very chaste god and therefore, likes holy people (such as Brahmans). Hence He is also called Subrahmanya.

In icons he is shown as a boy either with one head and two arms or with six heads and twelve arms. His lance and His vehicle peacock always accompany Him. A fowl adorns His banner.

He is supposed to have been reared by six divine mothers of the constellation Karttikaya (Pleiades) and hence Karttikaya or Shanmukha (six faced). He assumed this form to suckle milk from all the six mothers. He lives on mountain tops.

Karttikayà is not widely worshipped in north India. He just receives a mention as Kumara/Skunda who is Senapati of gods. However, in south India He is widely worshipped as Subrahmanya, god who lends to the spiritual growth of the aspirants, who have reached the summit of spiritual perfection in this life and are perfect to receive His grace.

10) Hanuman

Hanuman is the only deity worshipped by Hindus who is totally animal in outlook and yet has so many deeds to His credit. He is also the only one who though a Bhakta (Servant of Lord Ram) attained the status of a deity. He is also a uniting force of Shiva worshipers (He is described as Shiva's son) and Vaishnevites (Lord

Asht Siddhis

Hanuman is prayed for having eight powers called "Asht Siddi" which He received from mother Janaki (Sita) for his devotion.

These are:-

Anima - This quality makes one invisible.
Mahima - This makes one to enhance his body to any size.
Garima - This makes one to grow as heavy as he wants.
Laghima - This makes one to grow as light as one wants.
Prapti - This makes one to get any thing one wants.
Prakamya - This makes one to go inside earth or fly in sky.
Ishitva - This makes one to rule over anything one wants.
Vashitva - This makes one to control anything he wants.

Ram's worshipper) and is hence worshiped by both the groups.

He comes from 'Vanar' race (Jati). Vanar race is described as a race nearest to humans living in South India. "Hanuman appears to have achieved importance only from medieval period. Sanskrit works do not regard Him with any divinity but treat Him only as an intelligent being of the such-human race."[7] It is only with the advent of Tulsidas's Ramayana in Hindi that Hanuman got identified as a deity. This also explains absence of orisons in Sanskrit about Hanuman.

The popularity of Hanuman is ascribed to His being:

1) Nemesis for evil spirits.
2) Harbinger of good news.
3) His physical strength, speed, agility.
4) His selflessness.
5) His knowledge of Vedas.
6) His boon from mother Janaki (Sita), which makes Him capable of granting anything in any great quality to His devotes.

Hanuman is the son of Wind God Vayu Dev and his mother is Anjani who is from Vanar (monkey) race. It is in this way that the Vedic Gods Marutas have been presented in Puranas and is also known by the name of Marut. He is a great devote of Lord Ram and fought along with Lord Ram to rescues Sita, Lord Ram's wife from the cliches of Ravana who had abducted Her and taken to Lanka-his kingdom. He is a guardian deity and is considered the embodiment of visible strength, the conqueror of evil spirits.

He is depicted as flying with a mace in right hand and carrying a mountain on the left hand. His body is covered with red vermilion like paste.

He remained a bachelor and has no family.

Symbolism

1) Mace in his right hand – Depicts his power.
2) Flying – He is quick in reaching anywhere Omnipresence.
3) Mountain on his left hand – He can do anything for his Lord.
4) Red Vermillion paste on body – Devotion, Sita used vermillion on Her forehead as a symbol of marriage with Lord Ram. He covered his whole body with vermillion as a devotion to Lord Ram.

Epithets (Other Names)

1) Pawan Putr – Son of Wind God Pawn.
2) Anjani Putr – Whose mother is Anjani.
3) Kesari Nandan – Son of Monkey chieftain Kesari.
4) Shannker Suva – Son of Shankar (Lord Shiva).
5) Sunder – This has reference to Sunderkanda of Ramayana.
6) Bajrang Bali – It is corrupted version of Vajrang i.e. whose limbs are as strong as the thunderbolt (A weapon of Lord Vishnu).
7) Sankat Mochan – Remover of distress.

Worship

Although from a subhuman race, yet Hanuman depicts the ultimate specimen of selfless service and an ideal for a human being. He was a great Sanskrit Scholar who mastered Vedas at an early age. He represents extreme humanity, humbleness, nobility, understanding, mastery over ego.

Hanuman is thus worshipped widely for receiving His protection in distress and boons.

CHAPTER FOUR

SHAIVISM PHILOSOPHY

A Brief History of Shaivism

Shaivism philosophy represents a higher stage of human effort in understanding the true nature of god and his relationship with humans. It developed into its present form from tantra. Tantra refers to the worship of Shakti which is also identified as mother worship. Parvati, Lord Shiva's consort is recognized as Universal Mother.Although there are references to mother worship in Vedic Period, but it developed in its character in Post Vedic Period.

The word Tantra is derived from the Sanskrit word 'Tantri' meaning original or knowledge. This knowledge is of spiritual but of a technical nature. J.G. Woodraffe (Pen name Author Arlon) who was a pioneer researcher in the tantric traditions in India, describes "it is in the broadest sense generic term for the writing and various traditions, which express the whole culture of a certain epoch in Indian history. The contents are, therefore, of an encyclopedic nature-religion, rituals, domestic rites, law, medicine, magic and so forth". Over a period of time thousands of tantric traditions developed in India and abroad especially under Buddhism which were later on classified under three major categories:-

1) Shiva Shakti Tantrism (or Shaivism)
2) Buddist Tantrism
3) Vaishnava Tantrism

Shiva-Shakti Tantrism or (Shaivism)

Shiva is derived from the word 'Shi' (to-tie) and 'Shvi' (to cut asunder):

Shyati pâpam iti Shivaah

Pratyabijna hrdayarm

( He is also the one Who cuts asunder all sins)

Shaivism recognizes Lord Shiva as the Supreme and Absolute Consciousness with Shakti (Parvati) as His dynamic energy through Whom, He controls all creation and its management. Shiva is master of five acts (Panch kriya):

1) Srshti – Letting go, casting out of one self. The process of creation is emanation from His body. 2) Sthite – It involves maintenance of what has been 'let go' from His body. 3) Samhra (or Somhrti) -it is an act of reabsorption of what has been 'let go' or emanated. It does not mean destruction.4) Vilaya (or pidhana) - it is the process of concealment (oblivion) of His real nature. 5) Anugraha – (Divine grace) This is an act of grace by which Lord Shiva brings out liberation of man out of His love.

The Panckriya implies that Lord Shiva lets go the universe out of Himself, imparts existence to it and finally withdraws it in Himself, only to let it appear again and again till the end of a Kalpa, a certain number of years (see Chapter 11). There is no end to this world process. The Kalpa represents just a day of Brahman's life of 100 years when Mahapralaya happens and then again starts next Kalpa and so on and so forth goes on this process till eternity.

Origin of Tantra

Puranic literature states that Tantric traditions came into vogue soon after Mahabharata war. It is stated that Janmejaya organised a yagnya for avenging the killing of his father Parikshit-the grandson of Arjun by Takshnag- the head of snakes. When yagnya started, snakes (nags) came running from all directions and started falling into the burning fire pit of yagnya kund. At that time a rishi appeared on the scene and stopped yajnya to save nags from total destruction.

This interruption infuriated Agni Deva and thus pronounced a curse to the Brahmans who were performing yajnya saying that henceforth the Vedic mantras would be ineffective and would be like poison of a snake. Thus began the age of tantric traditions, which do not recommend performance of yagnya.
The Panch Devas, namely Ganesh, Vishnu, Surya, Shiva and Devi have separate sets of tantric literature for each one of them. There are Ganapaty, Vaishnava, Saura, Shiva and Shakti agamas.

Shaivism developed in India in three widely apart regions :-

1) Kashmir in North
2) Keral and Tamil Nadu in South
3) Gauda (Bengal) in East

The traditions in these regions which were numerous, came to be classified under six traditions :-

1) Kashmir Shaivism
2) Pashupati Shaivism
3) Shaiva Sidanta
4) Vira Shaivism
5) Shiva Advanta
6) Siddha Sidhanta

In their philosophy and practice thereof, these traditions differ widely. In Bengal Shaivism, shakti is worshipped as Goddess Kali , while in South India Goddess Lakshmi is worshipped and in Kashmir Goddess Durga is worshipped.

In their philosophical content it is only the Kashmir Shaivism, which is based on monotheistic philosophy. Bengal Shaivism is based on dualistic philosophy.

Kashmir Shaivism (or Trika System)

Introduction
It developed into its present form after Vedantic concepts matured into monotheism (advaiata) as propounded by Shakeracharya (788-820 AD).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

It was Abhinavgupta (975-1025AD) of Kashmir who consolidated all the monotheistic concepts in Shaivism and presented them in the form of a treatise with his commentary, which laid foundation of monotheism in Shaivism.

Kashmir Shaivism is a monotheistic philosophy which identifies Lord Shiva as the Absolute, Infinite and Pure Consciousness, lying beyond the reach of speech, mind and intellect of humans. It is both transcendental and immanent and can be realized through yoga. It advocates how a human being engrossed in the inferior objective world of Lord Shiva can be taken upward i.e. towards the Supreme Energy of Lord Shiva through His dynamic energy (Shakti).

While Vedantins describes Supreme God as Brahman and He is directly responsible for the manifestation of universe, which takes place through His immanent aspect called Ishvara; Shivaites recognize God as Parmshiva, Who is not directly involved in the manifestation process but takes place through His dynamic aspect of energy to which He is just a witness, behind the scene. Thus, herein lays the understanding between the two aspects of energy: static and dynamic. As is understood now that it is the dynamic energy which is responsible for all activities (kriyas) where as static energy is just a stored up energy, which cannot and does not produce any activity, least of all manifestation of universe. The static aspect of Parmshiva's energy has been described as Shiva and His dynamic energy as Shakti, which is represented by His female form. Thus, the focus of attention in this system is for performance of actions (kriyas) which are intelligible to human mind. While Vedanta recommends performance sacrificial rituals (Yagnya) which are generally unintelligible to a common man for achieving the goals of life, Shaivism prescribes yogic practices of psychophysical nature, which are 'Kriyatmic' (action oriented), short and brief as compared to Vedic rites. These are highly potent, which show results quickly for achieving success. The Vedic rituals are considered helpful but not essential. It is also called "an intuitional science aimed at the realisation of the Infinite Consciousness".

Kashmir Shaivism goes deep in analysing as to how did life emerge? "Where as scientists say life is a special quality and function of certain material substances and is brought about by specific changes in the material condition and circumstances Kashmir Shaivism state that the

Shiva Shastra was revealed by Lord Shiva in Kashmir

Abhinav Gupta in Tantrashastra, traces the history of development of Shiva Shastra to Lord Shiva Himself. It states Lord Shiva appeared on Mount Kailash as Srikanthanatha and set forth 64 systems of Saddhnas known as Bhairwa Tantra, but over a period of time they were lost. Lord Shiva then appeared second time after some time and commanded Sage Durvasas to revive this knowledge, who produced one mind born son – Trymbak who taught this philosophy, but again it was lost. Lord Shiva appeared 3rd time and disclosed the location of writing of 77 Shiva Sutras on stones at the base of Mahadev peak near Srinagar to Vasgupta who wrote down Shiva Sutras (800-850 AD).

reverse is true, matter evolves out of Consciousness. This is one of the basic principles and metaphysical truths of this school of philosophy."[1]

The main focal point of this philosophy is to identify the causes of human misery and work out the possible alternatives for uplifting him. As in Vedanta, human misery is identified due to ignorance of human being (called Jiva or Nara) about his true relationship with Ultimate Reality (Parmshiva). The medium through which he can gain knowledge about this Reality is through Shakti (His aspect of dynamic energy).

It lays stress on the development of human personality rather than expect happening of miracles by performance of rituals. Logic and deep analysis of human mind have been recommended. The role of a teacher (guru) is emphasized but not absolutely essential.

Almost all religious philosophies have a history of development over certain stages. The thoughts which have emerged from time to time and are inter related, when presented in a uniform thought process, represent the philosophy of that religion. Kashmir Shaivism is also a collection of various thoughts called darshnas, shastra or system. These are:

a) Trika darshana (system of triad) – As stated earlier, the relationships between god, nature and man is explained through Shiva (the Lord), Shakti (his dynamic energy) and Nara (Jiva, the bound soul) and saddhna (meditation) is recommended to get out of bondage.

b) Spanda Shastra (6 to 11 Century AD) It is based on the doctrine of pulsation (Spanda) which states that all manifestation is due to a state of vibration in the cosmic body, Parmshiva. Thus all material bodies including humans are just vibrations with different intensities, not intelligible to human mind.

c) Pratyabhijna Shastra

Pratyabijna means 'recognising ones self once again' – This represents an act by which one realizes and reunites with the original state (Universal Self). "The individual self (Jiva) is divine or Shiva, but he has forgotten his real nature and is identified with his psychophysical mechanism. The teaching is meant to enable him to recognize his real nature, to bring to him the truth that his real self is none other than Shiva and to suggest to him the spiritual discipline by which he can attain at one-ment with him."[2]

d) Shiva Darshan (or Bhairwa Darshan).

Pratyabhijna means understanding true relationship with God

In a simple way Pratybhijina can be explained by the example of a girl who has been engaged to a boy for marriage and about whom she has heard many-many times but without knowing who he is? She does not recognize him unless he is shown to her and told that he is the man for whom she has been looking. Same is the case with an individual who has heard and read about his being nothing but part of Shiva, the Universal Being, but when he is guided by a teacher (guru) to recognize himself as one with the Lord, he realizes the truth.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

It states that Lord Shiva also known as Bhairwa is the real force behind every thing.

e) Krama System – It was introduced by Erakanath in 7th Century AD. It advocates a system by which one can transcend space, time and form through various steps. It emphasizes that it is in the end, not in its process, that one is beyond time and space. Abinavgupta explains Krama system by saying that in this system there is no space. He says when one deals with forms, the space appears, but when one is established in form-less state of being, for him there is no space. In the same way when there is something to be done, then only the existence of time appears and when there is nothing to do, then time has no existence.

f) Kula System – It advocates the science of totality. In each and every part of the universe, totality shines throughout. For example take a small part of any object, in that part you will see the universal energy existing. It was introduced by Shriman-chandanetha in the beginning of 5th Century AD and later on by Sumitanatha in 11th Century AD. In essence it explains how a man can live in totality and can rise to highest level of Shiva-hood through 36 tattvas from lowest tattva Prithvi to Shiva tattva):

Ekaik Trâpi Ttve'pi Shttvisht Ttvrupita

एकैकत्रापि तत्वेऽपि षटत्रिषत ततवरूपिता

(In every element you will find all the thirty-six elements)

The chief doctrine explains the Universal Being (Parmshiva) is the creator of all and everything merges back into it.

Literature

Kashmir Shaivism literature has been classified into 3 broad divisions:-

a) Agama Shastras
b) Spanda Shastra
c) Pratyabijna Shastra

a) *Agama Shastra (1st – 6th Century AD) These were written as a part of Shiva philosophy between 1st Century and 6th Century AD. These are Shastras, mostly dealing with Vedic type of rituals and mystic yoga practices. These represent oral tradition from teacher to students. In a mythological story it is stated that they were first of all revealed to Parvati by Shiva Himself, when She asked Him how manvas (human beings) can achieve liberation after the influence of Vedas had suffered at the end of Mahabharta war, which is the beginning of Kalyuga Era (see Chapter 11) Most of the Shiva Philosophy concepts are found rooted in these Agamas, which are written in the form of a dialogue between Shiva and Parvati. These have been broadly classified into 2 types :-

Agama) – where Parvati raises questions and Lord Shiva replies.
Nigama – where Lord Shiva raises question and Parvati replies.

Most of the Agamas, also called Tantras, are lost but there are 18 which are available in original form or through cross reference. These have been classified into 3 broad categories.

1) Monistic Tantras (also called Bhairwa Tantras).
2) Mono-Dualistic Tantras (also called Rudra Tantras).
3) Dualistic Tantras (also called Shiva Tantras).

Some of the important Agamas are: Malinivijya, Svacchanda, Vijayettara, Netra, Naishvasa, Svambhuva, Vijnanbhairwa Mrgendra, Rudrayamala, Shiva strotas (although they belong to post Agama Shastra period – (Vasgupta 800-850 AD,) they are also considered as Agama).

Malinivijiya, Vijnanbhairwa tantra and Shiva Sutras are considered important Agamas (these have been translated into English ( see Appendix A1).

b) *Spanda Shastra (6 to 11 Century AD)
It was developed by Vasugupta (800-850 AD) and it was his able disciple Kallata who explained it in detail. He states each and every movement; even a vibration of a blade of grass carries consciousness of god. Vijnanbhairava (or Divine Consciousness) translated by Jai Dev Singh into English, mentions 112 dharanâs or types of yoga.

Some important works are:

1) Spandakarika and its Vritte (gloss) by Kallata.
2) Vivriti by Ramakantha
3) Spande Samdoha by Kshemraja
4) Pradipika by Utpala Vaishneva
5) Spande Nirnaya by Kshemraja
6) Spande Karikas (the divine creative pulsation) commentary on Spande Karika written in English by Jaidev Singh.

c) *Pratyabhijna Shastra
The philosophy of pratyabijna as developed by Kashmir Shivaites has raised the status of Kashmir Shaivism to the heights above to that of Advaita Vedanta. It is monistic and perhaps the only truly monistic philosophy which has been recognized by all people.

This philosophy is credited to Somananda (850-900 AD) who developed the concept in his book Shiva Drishti Shastra, but it was his able disciple Utpaldeva (900-950 AD) who expounded the philosophy in detail in his book 'Ishvara Pratyabijna' Sutras. A digest of Utpaladeva's works was prepared by Kshemaraja (1025-1075 ?).

Philosophy

Shaivism describes all humans are like Shiva

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

(Shivaoham Shivaoham -I am Shiva. I am Shiva).

The thoughts collectively known as Kashmir Shaivism were first of all consolidated by Laxman Acharya in his book 'Sharada Tilaka' and later on by his able disciple Abhinavgupta (1050-1050 AD?) in his monumental book 'Tantraloka' and his other commentaries. Abhinavgupta has been raised to the same status in Kashmir Shaivism as that held by Shankaracharya in Advaita Vedanta.

These philosophies have been given the name Trika Shastra because they all deal with the triple principles, variously described as:

1) Shiva (Lord) Shakti (energy) and Anu (man).
2) Pati (Lord) Pasha (bondage) and Pashu (man).
3) Shiva (Lord) Shakti (energy) and Nara (man).
4) Para (Transcendent) Parapara (cognitive energy) and Apara (objective or material).
5) Three systems: Bheda (dualism), Abhada (non dualism) and Bhedabheda (qualified monism).

The philosophy of Shaivism will be studied under the following headings:

a) Principles of Philosophy
b) Theology
c) Manifestation of Universe
d) Goals of human life

a) Principles of Philosophy: The main principles of the philosophy can be summarised as:

a) Ultimate Reality: Ultimate Reality in its transcendental aspect is Pure and Absolute Consciousness (Chit, or Parasamvit). All humans have three states of consciousness:-

a) Waking (Jagrat)
b) Dreaming (svapna) and
c) Deep sleep (susupti)

The consciousness of Ultimate Reality is even above Turiya (or fourth state of consciousness).

In Shiva philosophy this Ultimate Reality is known as Parmshiva. In the words of Pratyabhijna Shâstra, "Shiva is full of illumination (prakasha), just as light makes every thing visible even so, Shiva makes every thing visible. But Shiva is not only 'prakasha', it is 'vimarsha as well. Vimarsha has been described as a sort of 'Sciring' (Surveying itself). If Ultimate Reality were merely prakasha and not also vimarsha, it would be powerless and inert. It would be inert like a diamond which is 'prakasha', but has no vimarsha. This vimarsha has been named differently as parashakti, paravâk, svatantrya, aishvarya, kartrtva, sphuratta, Sâra, hrdya, spanda."[3]

Thus Ultimate Reality as per Shiva philosophy is not only Universal Consciousness but also Universal Psychic Energy or Power.

It is both transcendental (vishvottirna) and Immanent (vishvmaya).

b) Theology: In this tradition ParmShiva is the Supreme God (Transcendental) who acts through His immanent aspect known as Shiva-Shakti where Shiva is passive but Shakti (Parvati or Durga) is active principle in manifestation. Bhairwa is a higher form of Shiva (see Chapter 5 for detailed discussion).

c) Manifestation: The focus of all different systems of religious philosophies is to explain

or resolve the dichotomy between the subject and the object. The subject being looked upon as Pure Consciousness without any trace of objectivity which raises the curiosity of knowing where from has come this world of so much multicipility?

The universe is simply an opening out (Unmesha) or expansion (prasara) of the Supreme as Shakti.

Vedanta Says "Brahma Satyâm Jagat mithya". (Brahman is real but world of creation is mithya). Mithya is that which has no independent eternal existence of its own, but at the same time is matter within our experienced knowledge. This objectivity is a creation of illusion (maya) like a rope mistaken for a snake due to ignorance. It is neither real (Sat) nor unreal (asat). Kashmir Shaivism on the other hand states that all the manifestation is real. A world of such a multiplicity could not be accepted as unreal. It states that 'it is the nature (Svabhava) of Ultimate Reality to manifest. If it did not manifest, it would no longer be Conscious Self, but something like an object or nonself.

As already stated Parmshiva, is both Prakasha and Vimarsha. Prakasha is 'I' aspect and Vimarsha is 'this' aspect. This vimarsha also represent absolute will (Svatantrya) or Shakti which is not separate from Parmshiva. 'It is not content-less but it contains all that is to be'.

Trika philosophy explains the creation of universe by the interplay of above 5 energies of Lord Paramshiva through 36 principles or elements called tattvas. Twenty three tattvas represent the same concepts as explained in Vedanta philosophy. Out of the remaining 13 tattvas 2 are modifications of Vedantic terms and the remaining 11 additional tattvas focus on fundamentals of creative forces rather than on the created elements.

Manifestation is Spontaneous

Why creation takes place cannot in an ultimate sense be explained. It is the play leela of Mother.

Adrsta Shrishty doctrine advocated by Laxman Acharya (Guru of Abinav Gupta) in his book Sharada Tilak states that impulse to creation is prominently caused by the adrshta or karma, which is eternal. Karma comes from Samskara and Samskara again comes from Karma. The process of creation, maintenance and dissolution according to this view unceasingly recurs as an eternal rhythm of cosmic life and death, which is like a play (leela). The existence of Karma, implies the will to cosmic life. Parmashiv produces cosmic life as a result of such will and when produced it becomes itself the cause of it. There are certain Karmas, which ripen early and some, which ripen later. The ripe Karma's produce a desire (Iccha) called 'Ikshana' in Parmashiv for creation and the fruitation of Karma. The ripening of Karma is due to the interplay of 'Gunas' (sattva, rajas and tamas). This awareness of Iccha for manifestation is called 'I' aspect of Shiv. The creation is really spontaneous, but our mind by its constitution is however, lead to think of creation as gradual process.

Five energies of Lord Shiva

Paramshiva has infinite energy (Shakti), but the following five may be considered the main ones:-

1. Chit (consciousness) - the power of self revelation, the changeless principle of all changes.
2. Ananda (or absolute bliss) - This is also called "Svātantrya", in thus aspect, the Supreme is known as Shakti. Chit and Ananda are the very Svarupa or nature of Parmshiva. The rest may be considered to be His Shaktis.
3. Iccha - the will to do this or that, to create (will).
4. Jnana - the power of knowing (knowledge).
5. Kriya - the power of assuming any and every form (action).

In iconography these five energies are represented by five faces of Lord Shiva known as Ishana (cit Shakti), Tatpurusha (Anand Shakti), Sadyojata (Iccha Shakti) Vamadeva (Jnan Shakti) and Aghora (Kriya Shakti).

Shiva in His transcendental aspect is known as Sat-Chit Anand or Nishkula. In His immanent aspect He is known as Sakula. The manifestation process through 36 elements (tattvas) has been explained as under:

a) Shudh (Pure) Tattvas

(The tattvas of the Universal experience.). These are five in number and sometime sixth i.e. Mayatattva is also included among shudh (pure) tattvas. These are called pure because they have been created by Parmshiva Himself as against others which have been created by intermediary and lower beings as per the wishes of Lord Himself. First two tattvas that is Shiva and Shakt tattvas are not part of manifestation process.

1) Shiva Tattva (Chit aspect): This represents the first vibration (spanda) in the body of Sakula Shiva. There is no movement at this stage. Only a reflection (vimarsha) has taken place in the luminous whole (Prakasha). This represents the 'I-ness' aspect of Universal Consciousness.

2) Shakti Tattva (Anand aspect): The reflection (vimarsha) 'I-ness' in Shiva tattva produces a resolution of 'like to like' in the body of Parmshiva.While in Shiva tattva this resolution is in a state of static energy, but here it is in a state of dynamic energy. It is the power of Parmshiva necessary for creation and as such exists in the body of Parmshiva itself and does not exist outside.

Thus Shiva-Shakti tattvas are two sides of the same coin and one cannot exist without the other. In this condition aham (I consciousness) and idam ('this'-the other side of consciousness) lie side by side.

"These two tattvas represent only a linguistic convention and are not part of creation. They are in reality one with Parmshiva. It only reflects a natural tendency (subhava) of Absolute and Pure Consciousness (Shiva) towards outward manifestation through its dynamic energy (Shakti)." Shiva tattva represents male aspect whereas Shakti tattva represents female aspect.

3) Sadashiva Tattva or Sadakhya Tattva (also known as Iccha Tattva): The desire (Iccha) for creation takes place very faintly in the body of Shakti. Idam (this-ness) is manifested here as 'I am this' 'Aham' (I-ness) still predominate. At this stage the 'This' side of the experience is hazy like a picture of an artist which is about to be portrayed and is still at an idea stage. This experience is called as nimesha).

The experient beings at this stage are known as Mantra Maheswars (mantra not to be confused with verbal recitation). The presiding deity is known as Sadashiva Bhattaraka.[4] (hence known as Sadashiva tattva) who is actually Parmashiva Himself who has descended to this level as the master of creation.

4) Ishvara Tattva (also known as Jnana Tattva): The awareness (Jnana) of 'I-ness' (aham) is not lost but the awareness of 'this-ness' (Idam) begins to appear and becomes a little more defined. The experience at this stage is'this am I'.

It is called 'unmesha' or 'distinct blossoming of the universe'. At this stage Jnana or knowledge is predominant. There is a clear idea of what is to be created. The ideation of artist which was hazy is Sadashiva tattva becomes clearer. The experient being at this stage of manifestation are known as Mantrashvaras' and the presiding deity is Ishwara Bhattaraka.

Kashmir Shaivism is also known as Isvaradvaya-darshan because it does not believe in any other principle (advaya) other than Ishvar the-Lord Shiva.

5) Sadvidya Tattva (also known as Shudvidya or Kriya Tattva): At this state of creation Aham (I-ness) and Idam (this-ness) are balanced like two pans of an evenly held balance. Kriya Shakti predominates here. The experience at this stage may be called diversity-in-unity i.e. while the 'this' is clearly distinguished from 'I', it is still felt to be part of the 'I' or self. Here both 'I' and 'This' refer to the same thing (i.e. they have samanadhikaranya).

Stages in the Manifestation Process of Cosmos

It is called Sadvidya or Shuddhavidya because at this stage the true relationship of things is experienced.

The experient beings in this stage are called 'Mantra's and the presiding deity is Anantnatha. He is actually Ishwara Battaraka who has descended to this level as the divine administrator for further creation.

The first five stage of manifestation are called pure order' (Shuddhadhvan) i.e. a manifestation in which the 'svarûpa' or real nature of' the divine is not yet veiled.

b) (Maya and the five kunchukas) 6-11

6) Maya Tattva: Whereas Vedanta (Samkhya system), descries maya "as the beginning less cause that brings about the delusion of the world like 'Ghandharva Nagara' or Magicians play", tantra describes it "as the principle of veiling Infinite and projecting the finite".

This is the final tattva created by the Lord Himself that is considered to be "impure" i.e. filled with limitations. It has two main effects:

1) It hides the pure and divine nature of created beings residing in its plane and consequently they forget their purity and infiniteness of their I-consciousness as well as their infinite potency. Hence they are given the name anu (atoms) i.e. finite beings or pashu (animal-like) or simply man (Nara).

2) They see every other activity as different from what they are.

Maya is thus, the plane of absolute self-oblivion and diversity. This is the abode of the finite beings. Under its influence, being loose its state of oneness with the Absolute and also their divine potency. Maya causes feeling of imperfection and emptiness within the beings which they try to fill up with outer objects which leads to development of desire and passions for objects of enjoyment.

MAYA TATVA
(as per Kashmir Shaivism)

7-11) Kunchukas (five layers of limitations).

The deity Anantnatha who presides over maya and is the master of mahamaya, shakes up maya, so to say, causing it to expand into the next five tattvas – collectively called kunchukas or cloaks which covers the real nature of the knowing objects. Sometimes maya tattva is itself included as the sixth kunchuka.

7) Kala Tattva (limitation of activity). It limits humans to fulfill all their desires but at the same time allows them to fulfill some desires. Thus, maya allows a little power of action to the individuals to achieve a little amount of success.

8) Avidya (ashudh) Tattva (limitation of knowledge). For doing something one needs to have full knowledge, but maya restricts the flow of knowledge to individuals.

9) Raga Tattva (limitation of interest). To further the limit the scope of doing and knowing, maya appears manifest as raga which limits the interest of an individual in the execution of work.

10) Niyati Tattva (restriction). Niyati is the law of nature that establishes the order of succession in all phenomenons's e.g. the way in which seed develops into a tree. This law of nature appears as the law of restriction and causation.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

11) Akala (or Kaala) Tattva (time sequence limitation). The above four limitations, limit men in their capacity of knowing and doing but this tattva limits their very being as well. The real human being is in fact infinite and is in no way conditioned by concept of time imposed on him by maya, in the way that they feel "we were", "we are", and "we shall be". Thus, in this way human mind is conditioned into thinking of time sequences.

c) Purusha and Prakrati

12) Purusha: Shiva thus, subjecting Himself to Maya and putting on the five kunchukas or cloaks which limit His Universal Knowledge and Power becomes Purusha or the individual subject. Purusha does not mean human beings alone, but every living being. The limited Purusha is also called anu, (being reduced to a point) Nara, Jiva, Pashu (animal like). (c.f. with Vedantic Purusha who is god like).

13) Prakriti: Prakriti is the un-diversified source of all the remaining 23 tattvas as established by Vedanta System. This represents the complete "this-ness" of the objective manifestation. In this condition Prakriti exists in a state of equilibrium of her 'gunas'.

The three gunas of Prakriti: Sattva, Rajas and Tamas are the gross forms of Shiva-Shakti of Jnan, Iccha and Kriya respectively.

While Purusha is the experient (bhokta) Prakrti is the experienced (bhogya).

There is a major difference between the Vedantic and Shaivic conception of Prakriti. Vedanta believes that Prakriti is one and universal for all the Purushas. Shaivism believes that each Purusha has a different Prakriti. Prakriti is the root or matrix of objectivity.

Further down the manifestation takes place through 23 elements (tattvas) on the same pattern as has been explained in the Vedanta (see Chapter 2):

d) Ahankarna-three tattvas: Bhuddhi, Manas and Ahankara.
e) Indriyas: Five Jnanendriyas and five Karmendriyas.
f) Five tanmatras
g) Five Bhutas

Shadadhva (six paths) or Parashakti theory of manifestation

This theory is based on the principle that there is an unbounded potency or basic continuum of power which is known as 'Nada', which condenses itself, into dynamic point or a centre called 'Bindu'. This condensation process is like the condensation of milk into cream or curd. This Bindu is also known as Ghanibhuta Shakti – the creative force compounded into a point. It is not bound by time and space. From linguistic point of view Bindu is indicated by anusvara (the nasal sound marked by a dot on a letter). Thus when placed over letter अ (a) - the first letter of Sanskrit language and ह (the last letter) it becomes अहं (Aham) which shows that all manifestation, though appearing different, is actually residing in Lord Shiva (Aham). This Bindu is the source of all manifestation in six steps or adhvas (hence names Shadadhva (six steps)).

In the highest stages of manifestation there is Vachâchka and Vâchya (The indicator and indicated, the word and object) which is one, undifferentiated. Then there are six adhvas, paths or steps of creative descent, which are in pairs as indicates and indicated or word and object:

Manifestation through 36 tattvas is only a guide in understanding manifestation

Kashmir Shaivism does not consider the process of manifestation through 36 tattvas as final. It is only a tool for contemplative meditation. Through further analysis, the number of elements (tattvas) can be increased to any level and similarly through synthesis they can be decreased to only one tattva. For example, the practitioners of Trika system use only three tattvas in the process of their yoga meditations:- Shiv (Absolute Consciousness) Shakti (link between Unity and duality) and Nara (extreme duality.

1) The first step is polarity of 'Varna' and 'Kala'. 'Varna' has been defined as a sort of 'function form' of the object projected from Bindu. Kala is predicable. (In the sentence 'Shiva created world'- creation is function form and hence Varna, and world is predicable and hence Kala).
2) The next step is the polarity of 'mantra' and 'tattva' in the subtle plane. Mantra is the appropriate function form or 'basic formula' of the next creative step ( tattva) which is the inherent principle or source and origin of subtle structural forms.
3) The third and final polarity is that of 'Pada' and 'Bhuvana'. Bhuvana is the Universe, as it appears to apprehending centers like humans. 'Pada' is the actual formulation of that Universe by mental reaction and speech.

Thus Shadadhva may be briefly indicated in the following table :-

Step of Polarity:

| (Vachaka) (Indicates/word) | (Vachya) (Indicated/Object) |
|---|---|
| 1) Varna | Kala |
| 2) Mantra | Tattva |
| 3) Pada | Bhuvana |

There are further sub-divisions of above. According to Trika Shastra there are 198 (or 118) Bhuvanas. (for more details refer to Vignanbhairava) (English translation by Jaidev Singh).

d ) Goals of life

Man (Jiva) is held in bondage due to ignorance and his goal is to get liberated.

1) Nature of a Jiva: The individual self (Jiva) in his physical aspect is a product of five gross elements known as Pancmahabutas 1) Ether (âkash), 2) Air (vayu), 3) Fire (Agni), 4) Water (Apas) and 5) Earth (Prithvi). This is known as his Sthula sharera (gross body).

He has also the psychic apparatus known as 'Antahkarna' (the inner instruments) consisting of Budhi, Ahamkara and Manas. Antahkarna along with five tanmatras 1) Sound (Shabda), 2) Touch (sparsha), 3) Colour (Rupa), 4) Flavour (Rasa) and 5) Odour (Ghandha) constitutes Sûksmasharira in which the soul leaves the body at the time of death.

It is through Prana Shakti that every thing is sustained. It is divine energy working both in the universe and in the individual (jiva)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

'Kundalini' is a form of Shakti (energy) lying dormant in normal human beings.

Chaitanya or Shiva is the center of his being – that is his very self. Though inherently the self of man (jiva) is Shiva, but He (Shiva) becomes anu or limited individual because of anavamala (bondage).

2) Bondage (3 malas): The bondage of individual is due to innate ignorance (mala). Mala translated into English means, dust, dirt, impurity, taint, dross etc. It is something which conceals the real thing. In Kashmir Shaivism mala stands for those cosmic and individualistic limiting conditions which hamper the free expression of Spirit.

Bondage is of three forms: -

1) Annava mala
2) Mayiya mala
3) Karma mala

Annava mala: It is also known as mûlamala the primal limiting condition which reduces the Universal Consciousness to 'anu' – a small, limited entity, over which jiva has no control. It is due to this condition that jiva consider himself 'apurna' (imperfect), a separate entity, cut off from the Universal Consciousness. The individual forgets his real self. It comes about by the limitation of the Icca shakti of the Supreme.

Mayiya mala: It is the limiting condition brought about by 'maya' that gives the soul its sthulashrarire (gross body) and Sûksmasharira (Subtle body). Like annavamala it is also cosmic and beyond human control. It is 'bhinn-vedya-pratha'-that which brings about the consciousness difference owing to the differing limiting adjuncts of the body etc. This comes about by the limitation of the Jnana Shakti of the Supreme.

Karma mala: It is the vâsânâs (impressions) of actions done by the Jnanendriyas and Karmendiyas under the influence of antahkarna. It is the force of these vâsanas that carries the jiva from one life to another.

It is by these malas that the individual is in bandage whirled about from one form of existence to another.

3) Liberation (moksha): Liberation means recognition (Pratyabhijna) of one's true nature. Moksha (liberation) as per Kashmir Shaivism is nothing else but the awareness of one's true nature. According to the system the highest force of bliss (ananda) is 'Jagadananda' – the bliss of the world in which the whole world appears to the liberated soul as Chit (consciousness) or Shiva.

This liberation does not come by intellectual understanding alone which makes one to understand his true awareness. There has to be divine grace, called Anugraha or Shakti pata by which individual soul (jiva) gets liberated. To earn this divine grace one has to undergo a thorough spiritual discipline known as Upaya or Yoga. This is not to be confused with yoga of Veda type. Tantric yoga involves mental cum spiritual exercises by which senses are controlled, it does not mean denial of desire (Iccha) but: either its fulfillment or detachment.

4) Jivan-Mukti (Ascent): World process starts from the pure I-consciousness of Shiva. At the level of individual that I-consciousness gets identified with its physical and psychic coverings and Jiva views world as something different than what it is. The objective of Jiva is to recapture that pure I-consciousness in which it and the universe are one. This is Jivan mukti (Ascent).

"The normal jiva called 'Sakala' is bound by three malas-karma, mayayi and anova. After many rebirths during which he is playing nature, he is seized with the psychic fervour and tries to know the whence and whither of this life. This is the first expression of the anugraha of Shiva."[5]

At a lower stage of yogic practices an individual gets rid of karmamala and is known as pratayakala At a still higher stage he get rid of mayiya mala and is called Vijnanakala. At this stage he has jnan (knowledge) iccha (will) but no kriya (action). Above this stage the experients in successive ascent are known as Mantra, Mantrashvara, Mantra-maheshvare and Shiva-pramata. These are free from all malas, but they have varying experiences of unity consciousness. It is only to the Shiva-pramata that everything appears as Shiva.

"Involution starts from the pure I-consciousness of Shiva. Evolution gets back to the same pure consciousness, but the pilgrim goes back to his home, enriched with the experience of the splendour of Shiva he has had on the way. Veil after veil lifts and he is now poised in the heart of Reality."[6]

The entire world gleams as the wondrous delight of pure I-consciousness. Indeed I know not what the sound 'world' is supposed to refer to".)

Other Forms of Shaivism

a) Pashupati Cult

It is mainly practiced in Tamil Nadu. Its main literature is Shaivagamas which developed from 1st–14th Century AD. The five basic topics of this philosophy (known as Pâncharthas) are: a) Karana, b) Karya, c) Yoga, d) Vidhi and e) Duhkânta.

1) Karana – the primeval cause, is Shiva, called 'Pati' (Lord). Some of His other names are Rudra, Shankara, Kala, Aghora, Sarva, Sharva, Tatpurusha, Ishana, Ishvara and even Brahma. He is anadi (without beginning) avyaya (indestructible) and the cause of creation, sustenance and dissolution of world. 'Om' is His symbol.

Unlike Vedantic system Shiva is only the nimittakarâna (efficient cause) of creation and not the upâdâna kârana (material cause). Though the Jivas (individual souls) and the world have a separate existence, they are completely under His control. It is due to Him that the world and the Jivas undergo changes. Liberation takes place through His grace only by meditating on Him.

2) Karya – While karana is svatantra (independent) karya is dependent on karana only. The Jivas and the universe which are dependent on Shiva form the karya of karana. Thus manifestation is the result of karya - karana which proceeds through 25 elements as explained in Sankhya philosophy of Vedanta.

Among the karyas, the jivatman is the most important karya. He has been called "pashu" (animal like) since he is subject to

Kashmir Shaivism versus Sankaras Advaita Vedanta

Kashmir Shaivism and Advaita Vedanta philosophy as propounded by Sankaracharaya are both monotheistic as they both state that there is one God who manifests everything and everything at the end of cycle merges back into Him. Shankara's Advaite Vadanta (AV) philosophy is also known as Kevalādvaita or sometimes as Maya-Vedanta – Vāda. The Shiva Philosophy of Kashmir (KS) is known as Ishvarādvayavada or Pratyabhijna or Trika philosophy. Shiva philosophers call Sankara's philosophy as Shantabrahma-vada or the philosophy of inactive Brahma. The main points of difference between the two philosophies are:

1) Chit or Brahman as per AV is only prakasha (illumination) or Jnana (knowledge) wheras as per KS Parmashiv is both prakasha and vimersha (awareness). Without awareness of His personality Chit would look like inert matter like diamond, which has brightness but no awareness.
2) As per AV activity belongs only to maya (illusion) or avidya (ignorance). Ishvara assumes activity (Kriya) only when He is affeced by avidya or maya. KS states Shiva has free will (Svatantrya) to do anything. Therefore maya is His own Shakti by which He brings about multiciplicity and sense of difference.
3) According to AV manifestation (vishva) is unreal (mithya)–KS believes manifestation is real. It is simply display of Shiva's power. How could a world of such splendour be unreal?
4) According to AV, mukti (liberation) occur when avidya (ignorance is removed by Vidya (knowledge) KS believes that there are two kinds of ajnana (ignorance): (a) paurusa ajnana which is inherent in jiva and (b) bauddha ajnana, which is intellectual. By vidya (knowledge) only bauddha ajnanas (intellectual ignorance) can be removed but paurusa agnana will remain, which can be removed by Shaktipata (divine grace) which comes about by diksha (initiation by a learned teacher-guru) or by direct divine grace.
5) KS explains manifestation through 36 steps (Tattvas) whereas AV explains it through 25 steps only.

'pasha' (bondage) and sees (pashyati) himself as the body-mind complex forgetting that he is the spirit, whereas Shiva has been declared as Pashupati (Lord of pashus).

3) Yoga – Yoga has been defined as Samyoga (union) of Aatman (pashu) and Ishvara (Pashupati), brought about by total surrender to Shiva.

4) Vidhi – It represents activities like bhasmasnâna (pouring holy ash on one's body) uphara (living away from people) Japa of mantra and pradakshinâ (going round

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Shivalinga).

5) Duhkhânta – It represents withdrawing senses and mind from all object and directing it towards Lord Pashupati.

b) *Shaivisiddanta

It is also commonly practiced in Tamil Nadu. It is more a religion of devotional mysticism than a systematic and speculative philosophy based on the compositions of the Nayanmârs or Nayanârs who were 63 in number and lived during the period 7th Century AD.

The philosophy of this system is similar to Pashuypati cult, the only difference being that they accept 36 tattvas of Kashmir Shaivism whereas Pashupati cult accepts 25 only.

c) *Vîrashaivism

It is also known as Lingâyata Religion or Sect. It is practiced mostly in Karnataka. A special feature of this sect is the supreme importance, reverence and worship given to the Shivalinga as the sole emblem of God Shiva. After receiving linga from a qualified guru, in diksha (initiation), it is worn on the body always.

The chief tenets of this faith are: Shiva is the Supreme God, the linga is His chief symbol or emblem; the panchakshari mantra "Om Namah Shaivaya" is the main redeeming spiritual mantra; panchacharas ( Five principles of Shiva worship): earning money by fair means, treating all as equal, humility towards Shiva and His devotees, guarding ones religious belief and ashtavaranas (eight principles of code of conduct).The manifestation is believed to have taken places through 36 tattvas as explained to Kasmiri Shaivism.

Chapter Five

Shaivism Theology

Shaivism Theology at a Glance

As per Shaivism tradition, Shiva is called Panchnama (five faced). These five faces represent His five acts (Panch Kriyas), five energies (Panch Shakti) and five divine tattvas (Shudh Tattvas).

Bhairwas' are beings, who have attained Shiva-hood through divine grace of Lord Shiva. They are called Trishiromate, which represents the three aspects of Lord Shiva manifestation (Srshti) maintenance (Stehti) and withdrawal (Samhara). There are eight Bhairawas in Kashmir who have attained Shiva-hood (with temples dedicated to them individually). They are always present by the side of divine Shaktis -"Isht Devis" of Kashmiri Pandits. The eight Bhairawas created further 7 Bhairawas each, who are possessors of various energies (Shaktis) and as such are invoked for success in that aspect which they represent.

Durga is the chief source of energy (dynamic aspect) Who is invoked in Her ten aspects which includes Kali, Saptmatrikas etc. which are invoked invariably in the pujas during various Samskaras (see Chapter 21). The Isht Devis of Kashmiri Pandits : Ragnya, Sharika, Jwala and Bala Tripursundri are also manifestation of Durga.

Shiva and Parvati in their various forms are the main gods and goddesses of Shaivism. They are worshiped together.

A) Shiva

In this tradition Shiva is called Panchnama (five faced). These five faces represent His five acts - 'Panchkriya', five energies -'Panchshakti' and five divine tattvas- Shudh tattvas of creation. (see Chapter 5).

a) The five acts (Panchkriya) are:

1) Srshti (creation)
2) Stheti (maintaining of creation)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3) Samhara (destruction of creation).
4) Vilaya (concealment or oblivion of His real nature).
5) Anugraha (divine grace for liberation of Jiva.

b) The five energies (Shakties) are:

i) Chit (consciousness) i.e., the power of self-revelation
ii) Anand (Bliss) i.e. the absolute will by which Shiva is able to do anything.
iii) Iccha (will) i.e. the will to do this or that, to create.
iv) Jnana (knowledge) i.e. the power of knowing.
v) Kriya (action) i.e. the power of assuming any and every form.

c) Five pure elements of manifestation Shuddh Tattvas are: (see Chapter 4).

i) Shiva Tattva (first reflection of Vimarsha).
ii) Shakti Tattva (Vimarsha associated with 'I' ness).
iii) SadaShivaa Tattva (first act of pulsation with Aham and Idam.
iv) Ishvara Tattva (Idam appears as a unit).
v) Sadvidya Tattva (Aham and Idam are in balance).

In the similar sense the five faces of Shiva represent five tattvas of sense experience (Jnanendriyas), five senses of action (Karmemdryas), five tanmantras and five mahabhutas.

B) Bhairwas

Bhairwa means the terrible one. In Vedantic tradition Bhairwas are part of the Shivaaganas (also called Bhutaganas), who are demigods or malignant spirits and who can create obstructions in sacrifice (yagnya) if they are not propitiated along with other gods. However, in Shaivic traditions Bhairawas have been elevated to the status of Shiva Himself, Who destroys the weaknesses of the lower self (jiva). Etymologically word Bhairawa represents combination of three aspects of Lord Shiva: Bha (from 'Bharena') maintenance of the universe; ra (from revana) – i.e., withdrawal of universe and va (from Vatmana) ejecting or letting go of universe i.e., manifestation of universe. Thus, Bhairawa represents the three aspects of the Shiva : 'Srshti' (manifestation) 'Stehti' (maintenance) and 'Samhara' (withdrawal). In iconography Bhairwas are represented by three heads and they are called 'Trishiromate' (three headed), which is a symbolic representation of the three energy- 'Saktis: 'Para' 'Parapara' and 'Apara'. The Para is the supreme state in which there is no distinction or difference, whatever, between Shiva and Shakti; 'Parapara' is that state of manifestation which is defined as identity-in-distinction i.e. there is difference within the body of Shiva but it has not reached the state of independent existence; 'Apara' is that state in which there is complete difference. These three heads also indicate a symbolic representation of Nara (Jiva), Shakti and Shiva.

There are eight Bhairawas in Kashmir with temples dedicated to each of them, who had attained spiritual emancipation and had become Shiva like in character. They authored eight Yamalas (literary works). Each one of these Bhairwas are credited with creation of further seven Bhairwas, thus, making a total of 64 Bhairwas. All these 64 Bhairwas posses energies which are specific to that Bhairwa only. They receive worship collectively as well as individuals for achieving desired results.

C) Durga

Durga represents Shakti in Shaivism as well as in Vaishnavism.

Literally 'Durga' means one who is difficult to know. She is personification of all the powers of Trinity of Gods Brahma-Vishnu and Shiva.

Durga Saptashati which forms a part of Markendeya Purana describes in detail the various aspects of Her personality. She is a force behind every activity that goes on in the universe. She is a personification of Her Shakti (energy) aspect, Maya (illusion) aspect and Prakrti (physical) aspect. Shakti is understood as divine power that permits and provokes activity. While Shiva represents energy in static form, Durga represent energy (Shakti) in dynamic form. The various aspects of Her Shakti are best portrayed through various Puranic allegories describing Her as Mahishasurmardini and Kaushiki Durga (see Boxes).

Durga as a personification of Prakriti is depicted by Her association with physical world. She supports, protects and mother's all beings of the earth. She provides food to all beings from

Her own body and is thus known by the epithets Shakanbhari.

In Her immanent aspect She is equated with earth and in Her transcendental aspect She lives in heaven but visits earth from time to time to rid her of the demons who threaten devas and thus try to cause imbalances in the cosmic order. In this way She looks as if She is the female aspect of Lord Vishnu, who is also engaged in maintaining cosmic order in balance.

Through Her manifestation as Mahakali, Mahalakshmi and Mahasaraswati, She personifies three aspects of gunas (Tamas, Rajas and Satva).

As Mahakali She has ten faces and ten feet and ten hands in which She wields ten weapons: sword, discus, mace, arrow, bow, iron club, lance, sling, human head and conch which represent Her Tamas aspect.

As Mahalakshmi, she is depicted in red colour like coral. She has 18 hands in which she holds rosary, pot, cudgel (a short heavy club)

Mahishasurmardini

Slayer of Mahishaasur
(a devil named Mahesh).

Shakti aspect of Durga is best depicted in the Durga Saptshudi( Markanda Purana) through a mythological story. Mahisha (Mahishasur), a he buffalo, who after performing heroic austerities had earned the boon from gods that he would be invincible to all opponents except a woman. He defeated all gods in battles and usurped their positions. The gods then pooled their resources and emitted their fiery energies which congealed into the body of beautiful women, whose splendour spread through the universe. Parts of Her body were formed from the male gods. Her head was formed from the body of Shiv and arms from Vishnu. All other male deities gave Her their weapons to fight. She had a loin as Her mount. She invited Maheshasur for fight and defeated him. Thus, status of gods was restored and their cosmic activity went on. She then came to be known by the Epithet 'Mahishasur-Mardini' the slayer of Maheshasur . A popular iconographic representation of Her, shows Her killing Mahishasur. It is in this aspect that Durga epitomizes power, action and strength.

Kausiki Durga as Kali

In another episode of Her Shakti, Durga manifests Herself as Kaushiki Durga, emanating from the body of Parvati. She became Kali, the dark one, after this manifestation. The story describes Durga as the most beautiful women who became point of attraction of Shumba an asur (demon) who sends Her proposal for marriage through a serf. To get better of him and get him involved in a fight with Her, She pretends that She had vowed to marry a person who could vanquish Her in a battle. This challenge was accepted by the demon. In the ensuing battle Shumba and his brother Nishumba, who comes to his rescue, find it hard to vanquish Her. So they call for support from other assistants such as Dhumralocana, Chanda, Munda and Raktabija. She was successful in killing Chanda and Munda by beheading them and earned the epithet Chamunda.

Battle with Raktabija was a long drawn as he had the mysterious power to multiply himself through the drops of blood spilled in the battle. Durga created seven female deities out of Her body (known as Saptamatikas) for help but even then, the battle was nowhere near any end. At last Kali hit upon an idea, She extended her tongue long enough to drink every drop of blood from Raktabija before it fell on the ground and thus came the end of all the demons.

only the power but also the will to fight the evil forces. The episode of Mahishasura the - he buffalo represents ego, which is Rajas guna, and She can control it.

Mahasaraswati represents Sattvic aspect. She is bright like the autumn Moon and has eight hands in which She holds the bell, trident, ploughshare, conch, pestle, discuss, bow and arrow. It is She, Who manifests out of the physical sheath of Parvati and is hence known as Kaushiki Durga. She represents organized cosmic order.

In may be stated here that these three aspects of Durga's personification are not to be confused with the Vedic female deities of Parvati, Laxmi and Saraswati.

Iconography

Images of Durga can have 4, 8, 10 or 18 or even 20 hands. The eyes are usually three. The hair is dressed up as crown. She is gorgeously dressed with red cloth and several ornaments. The more common objects in Her hands are conch, discuss, trident, bow, arrow, sword, dagger, shield, rosary, wine cup and bell. She may be shown as standing on a lotus or a buffalo head or as riding a lion.

Symbolism

1) Riding a Lion or Tiger – She is all-powerful and hence capable of protecting Her devotes.
2) Number of Arms – see Chapter 3.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3) Red Coloured Garments – She is always ready to destroy evil forces.
4) Weapons in Hand – She possesses all power of destruction of wicked forces. It also symbolizes personal evils of individuals such as hatred, jealousy, ego, etc. which need different weapons to control or pacify.
5) Piercing Trident into a buffalo – Buffalo represents ignorance which mother removes with Her weapons.

Ten Forms of *Durga

Ten forms of Durga as mentioned in Markendeya Purana in their chronological orders are as follows:

1) Durga – The Goddess who appeared as beautiful to entice demons.
2) Dashbuja (10 armed) – In this form She destroyed part of the army of demons.
3) Simha Vahinee (seated on Lion) – In this form She fought with demon Rakta-beeja and vanquished him.
4) Mahishasuramardini – (slayer of Mahishasur – he buffalo). In this form She slayer Mahishasur (demon in the form of the he-buffalo).
5) Jagat-Dhatree – in this form She over come the army of demons.
6) Kali – in this form She drunk off all the blood of Rakta-beeja as it was falling and thus causing his death.
7) Muktakeshe – (flowing hair) in this form She killed other army of demons.
8) Tara – In this form She killed Shumbha.
9) Chinnamatika – In this form She killed Nishumbha.
10) Jagadguru – In this form She was worshipped by all gods.

Befooling Asurs Madhu and Kaitabha

Durga is the personification of Maya, the mysterious power that deludes individuals into thinking themselves to be the center of worlds. It is the power, which prevents individuals from seeing things as they are. This aspect of Her personality is told in the episode in which the two demons (asurs) Madhu and Kaitabha, who are born from Lord Vishnu's ear wax, are deluded into believing that through the act of Vishnu slaying their bodies, they will get a boon later on. Thus both got annihilated.

a) *Kali

This is the ferocious aspect of Durga perfectly personified. Her personification has already been described in Her role in the fight against demons Shumbha and Nishumbha. After Her victory against these demons She was over joyed and started dance of death and causing destruction even when all gods prayed Her to resume Her normal form as Parvati. At last Shiva threw Himself among the dead bodies and when She realized that it was on the body of Her husband that She was dancing She protruded Her tongue from Her mouth as an act of surprise and thus stopped Her dance of death.

The philosophical explanation behind Kali's personification is that She represents Kala (time). She is power of time. Time is, as is known, all devouring and all destroying. In Bhagwad Gita Lord Krishna associates Himself with Kala (11.32). She is consort of Mahakala the eternal time. She represents the Shakti the Primordial Energy, the cause of creation, preservation and destruction of all objects of universe, animate or inanimate.

CC-OAgamniga... Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

In iconography she is shown with a back-ground of cremation ground with dead bodies all around. She is standing, in a challenging posture, on a body presumed dead but which is actually Shiva Her husband. While Shiva is white, She 'Herself' is black with still darkness all around Her. She is completely naked, a pair of human hands act as Her apron to cover Her private parts. She is wearing a garland of fifty human skulls. Her hair is disheveled. She has three eyes and four hands. In Her upper hand She is holding a freshly severed and bleeding human head as also a chopper used in the carnage. The two lower hands are in the abhay and varada mudras. Her face is red and tongue protruding from mouth.

Symbolism

In Taittriyopanishad (2.6) god is said to have created universe and then entered into it. There is no need for covering your body in unmanifest state, but when manifested the universe became a veil, a cloak for divinity. Thus, Her nakedness repressed Her state before manifestation and when manifest, She covers Her body with space and hence, She is called Digambara (clad in space).

She is an embodiment of Tamas, the aspect of energy responsible for dispersion, producing a void where everything is black. Thus She represents a state where time, space and causation do not exist, as all colours disappear in darkness.

She also represents unlimited freedom that is why She keeps Her hair disheveled. Wearing fifty human skulls as Her garland represents fifty alphabets used in writing Sanskrit and manifest state of sound (Shabda) from which entire creation has proceeded. Wearing the skulls as a garland indicates state of destruction and withdrawal of creation also.

Kali does not represent destructive aspect only. She is Mother also and protects Her devotes. The abhaya mudra indicates this aspect.

Worship

Her worship is characterised by fervent self surrender to the Mother in all respect, through mind, body and intellect. She is worshipped as Dakshinakali (south facing black Kali). She is extensively worshipped in Bengal and by Tantrics.

Temples

There is one place dedicated to Her worship or the right bank of river Jehlum in Srinagar where there stands a mosque of Shahi Humdan now. People observe Her birthday on Posh Krishna Paksha Ashtami in Kashmir.

b) *Lalita-Tripursundri

(Or Bala Tripursundri) Lalita represents a benign aspect Durga The name of Tripura refers to the Primal Energy (Parâshakti) transcending the three divine deities- Parvati, Lakshmi and Saraswati, Who represent the three gunas and the three fold manifestation. "Parashakti-Tripura is the Supreme Consciousness that illumines the three states of waking (Jagran), dreaming (Sapan) and deep-sleep (Sushupti) in the microcosm and Bhuh, Bhuvah, Svah (or Parâ, Paraparâ and Aparâ) in the macrocosm, correlated to the seed-letter formulae Aum, Klîm and Sauh."(see Chapter 6 for seed letter mantras).

It is the power (Shakti) of Durga called Kundalini Shakti represented by three and a half coils, each one standing for a different kind of Shakti. Thus, Jyestha Shakti (Anuthara) represents Supreme Awareness; Randri-Shakti represents Supreme Power and Ambika Shakti represent Supreme knowledge. These Shakties (powers) are further represented by the letter a (अ) for Jyestha Shakti; letter I (इ) for Raudri Shakti and letter u (ओ) for Ambika Shakti. From the sounds of these three letters a, i, u arise eight types of sounds (some say nine) of speech alphabets which number fifty. (see Box Para Shaktias as Vak Shakti).

She is depicted as beautiful lady. According to Brahmanda Purana She manifested Herself in the midst of disk of extreme brilliance from the sacrificial pit when Indra was performing sacrifice (Yagna) in Her honour. She chose to marry Kameshvara (Lord Shiva). She destroyed demon Bhamdasure and destroyed his city Shonitapura. She lives eternally at Sripura on Mount Meru with Her husband Shiva Kameshvara.

Iconography and Symbolism

In Iconography She is depicted in light red colour with beautiful face. In Her four hands She holds a bow of sugarcane arrow, the goad (ankusha) and the noose (pasha). Her left foot is resting on diamond pedestal. Symbolically the sugarcane bow represents mind as all joys/sorrows come through mind. The bow is the instrument for discharging arrows. Hence mind is the instrument by which sense organs are 'shot' towards sense objects. Five arrows represent five senses. Thus, She represents the power that energises and controls the mind and sense objects. The pasha is symbol of attachment (raga) which binds and goad (ankush) represents anger which hurts. Her foot on diamond indicates Her indifference to material possessions. By taking refuge under Her, one gets rid of attachments and anger and thereby can free himself from the bondage of samsara.

Worship

Lalita is worshipped in South India in the same tradition as Durga or Her various forms are worshipped in North. Recitation of Her 1000 names and forms as given in the Lalitasahasnâma and three hundred names given in Trishati constitute Her main worship.

She is also worshiped in Tantra tradition in the form of Srichakra-Yantra (see Chapter 6).

Sometimes letter Ksh (क्ष) is counted as separate Varga called Ksha (क्ष) Varga, which makes total varges as 9. The seventh group Ya-Varga is also known as Antrsth (अन्तस्थ) as these letters sound like vowels, hence classified as semivowels.

Similarly, Eighth group letter Sha-Varge, are called Ūshma (ऊ षम), which means "heat" as they produce greater force of sound. These eight-groups (Vargas) of letters represent Para-Shakti as Vāk Shakti

c) *Sapta-matrikas

As stated earlier mother Durga in Her aspect as Kaushila Durga, created seven manifestations out of Her own body to help Her while She was engaged in battle with the demon Raktabija. These seven manifestations came to be known as 'seven little mother's (Sapta-matrikas).

These are: 1) Brahmi (or Brahmâni), 2) Maheshvari, 3) Kaumari, 4) Vaishnavi, 5) Varahi, 6) Narasimhe, 7) Aindri or (Indrani). These seven mothers represent the shakties of their corresponding spouses :-

1) Brahmi (Brahmani) – Brahma
2) Maheshvari – Shiva (Ishvar)
3) Kaumari – Kumar (also known as Krittikaya/Skanda)
4) Vaishnavi – Vishnu
5) Varahi – Varaha (2nd Incarnation of Vishnu)
6) Narasimhi – Narasimha (4th Incarnation of Vishnu)
7) Indrani (or Aindri) – Indra (Vedic God)

They have the same forms, weapons and vehicles as their Lords.

Sometimes Narasimi is replaced by Chamunda (or Chamundi). According to Tantric Tradition of Tantrashastra these sevens matrikas represents following shakties:

1) Brahmi – She represents primordial Nada, the energy in which even the first throb has not yet appeared. This is unmanifest sound 'AUM' is the origin of all creations.
2) Vaishnavi –She represents the power which gives shape to the created objects.
3) Maheshvari –She represents the power that gives individuality to the created beings in the form of their antah-karnas.
4) Kaumari – She represents the aspiration and intelligence of the being.
5) Varahi – She represents power of assimilation. The food that individual take is assimilated by Her power. She also represents the power of physical enjoyment.
6) Indrani – She represents the power that destroys all that opposes the cosmic law.
7) Chamunda – She represents the power of spiritual awakening in an individual which uplifts mind to the highest level.

In its allegorical aspect Raktabijasura represents the turbulent mind of an individual and Chamunda represents awakening of spiritual consciousness which leads to control of mind.

Sometimes these mothers (Devees) are associated with trees e.g.

1. Kaumari with Udumbara tree.
2. Vashnavi with Ashvattha (peepal tree).
3. Varahi with Karanja (Indian birch).

Worship

They are worshipped collectively along with Lord Ganesha and Virabhdra flanking on either side. The order of seating varies according to the effect desired by the worshipper. If it is safety that is desired, Brahmani is placed in the middle. For the welfare of children Chamunda occupies central place. Sapta matrikas are invoked in the worship on all important occasions.

d) Durga as *Kuldevi

(see Chapter 13 for more details). Kashmiri Pandits worship Shakti in Her various forms which are worshipped as Kuldevies. For Hindus it is a tradition to worship their Kuldevta (family deity) in all prayers. Kashmiri Pandits have Kuldevies instead of Kuldevtas.

Four main Kuldevies are :

1. Ragnya
2. Sharike
3. Jwala
4. Maha Tripurasundari

1) Ragnya

Ragnya is described as fair complexioned seated on a throne and wrapped by serpents. A black stone statue with an accompanying linga (Bhuteshwar Bhairwa) seated in a marble temple located in a fresh water spring at Tullamulla is Her abode.It is also known as Khir Bhawani Sthapan (for more details see Chapter 13).

2) Sharika

Prdyumnshishvrasînam Mâtr Ch Krop Shobitam
Podhshvrî Shilarupam Sharikam Prumabhyh

प्रद्युम्नशिष्वरासीनां मातृच क्रोपशोभितामः ।

(May Bhagwati Shri Sharika who is all effulgence by seven Bijakshras, who is having brilliance of the Sun, whose pair of lotus feet are the objects of obeisance of seven sages; who is remover of all ills of seven lokas and whose dwelling is Pradyum Preetha (Hari Parbhat) in the middle of Srinagar city Kashmir founded by King Pravesh, protect us).

Sharika is represented by a stone about 15 feet by 10 feet which is always smeared with red oxide (sindur).

Sharika in meditation (dyana) is shown as having 18 arms which symbolize 10 arms of Kali, 4 arms of Laxmi and 4 arms of Saraswati seated on a lion in blood red garments with Her Bhairawa, Vamdava by Her side (for details see Chapter 15).

3) Jwala Ji

Jwala Ji is worshiped in the form of Durga with eight arms. She is located at Khrew-15 miles East of Srinagar in a temple on top of a hill. She is represented by a 'Shila' smeared with sindur which is supposed to have markings of Sri Chakra.

She is worshiped along with Mahadeva Bhairwa. Uncooked lungs and heart of lamb are offered to vultures after performing certain rituals in the temple (see also Chapter 15).

Khirbawani idol is Kali?

In an article written by Justice Katju (visit site www.koa.com) states that the black idol of Ragnya Bhagwati is a representation of Kali with Bhuteshwara Bhairava on Her side which has been confirmed by Swami Lakshman Joo to him in a personal conversation.

4) Maha Tripurasundari

Maha Tripurasundari is worshiped in the form of Durga at a place known as Balahoma, about 12 miles east of Srinagar (near Wuyan) and at Vacchi in Ananatnag District).

Durga is Worshiped as Tripurasundari

Durga as mother represents the female concepts of all the powers of Trinity of Gods. She is a capsule of power (Shakti) and hence, Her worship encompasses the worship of all deities. In Kashmir She is worshipped as Kuldevi in Her many forms as stated above .

Durga receives extensive worship of nine days at a time during Navratras in Her different aspects twice in a year:

1) During the lunar month of Chaitra (March-April) 1st to 9th of bright fort night. (Shukla Paksh).
2) During the lunar month of Ashwin (Sept – Oct.) from 1st to 9th of bright fortnight (Shukla Paksha).

The importance attached to Her worship in Kashmir can be gauged from the fact that She is not only Isht Devi, but 1st day of Her worship in Chaitra is celebrated as Navreh (New Year day) by Kashmiri Pandits.

In Kashmiri Tradition the focus of worship is three fold:

1) Shakambari - She is worshipped as the goddess of food and vegetables. Barley grains are sown in a pot on 1st day of Navratra after invocation to Genesh. Prayers are conducted on all the 9 days and progress of growth of barley plants is watched. Good growth of plants is an omen of prosperity.
2) Kumari - In this tradition She is worshiped as a virgin. Nine young girls below the age of 10 are worshipped, symbolysing Her nine forms.
3) Ygnya - In this tradition ygnyas (havan) are performed where ahuties (oblation) are offered with the recitation of Her 1000 names (as given in Bhavani-saheshranamavali). Towards the end prayers from Durga Septishude are recited. Durga worship during Ashwin (Sep-Oct) is a major event.

At Balhoma a group of images carved on stones kept under a large pine tree are worshiped as Tripurasundari. At Vacchi a carving of images on a stone slab lying at the end of an underground tunnel is worshiped.

Chapter Six

Yogic Saddhna in Shaivism

Saddhna at a Glance

Saddhna means practice or an effort to become complete. As per Shaivism, the journey of humans soul is a descent or a fall from the heavenly source Parmshiv to the level of individual I consciousness, where it gets identified with its physical and psychic coverings (called Jiva) and views world as something different than what it is .The goal of jiva is to reach back to the Pure I Consciousness of Parmshiv (called Assent). The yogic methodology recommended is of two types :

1) Fixation of mind on a particular spot (Pran Shakti)
2) Communion with divine through various esoteric yogic practices such as Mantra Japa (Repeated recitation of mantra), Yantra worship (worship of mystic diagrams).

Awakening of *Kundalini Shakti (*dormant energy in human body) is one of the highest methods for gaining entry into the gateway of divine knowledge. The guidance of teacher (Guru) in Saddhna is highly recommended.

Four Uppayas

There are 4 ways (uppayas) to get rid of ignorance (malas), so that one may become fit to receive divine grace (anugraha/shakti pata). Any one of these can liberate jiva. As against the Vedic practice, where one has to start from the bottom of ladder to reach top, in Shaivic (also called Tantric) tradition, one has to start from the top of ladder and go down to next upaya only if he is not comfortable there. One's own state of mind is the guiding principle for this. A brief description of these upayas follows:-

1) Anupaya: This depends entirely on anugrah or divine grace, which may come through the word of 'guru' or through spiritual light (e.g. Swami Vivekananda, when touched by his master Ramkrishna). Sometimes one receives anugraha by the sight of a person ,who has acquired self realization. It is, therefore, known as Anandopaya (effortless effort and method- less method). This upaya is not for ordinary jivas and hence is not classified as a true upaya, which involves effort on the part of a Saddhak.

2) *Shambhavopâya (also known as Divya-bhava): In this method of saddhna, the knowledge of Ultimate Reality (ParmaShiva) comes by "emptying one's mind" of all thoughts, which requires a strong will . Only those who are gifted with this type of will (e.g. Ghandhi) should practice it. It is also called Icchopaya or Iccha yoga hence, it is also for advanced aspirants, who by meditating on Shivatattva attain His consciousness. This is a path of constant awareness of Pancha-kriya, five acts brought about by Shiva (see Chapter 5). It also involves an esoteric saddhna (called Vikalpa-ksaya), in which one has to think that universe is only a reflection of chit, which leads one to pure I Consciousness of Shiva.

3) *Shaktopaya (also called Vira-bhava): It is next lower stage. If sadhak is not comfortable in above uppaya, then he can practice this uppaya. The sadhak, has to gain knowledge of the Self through the 'meditation and contemplation of idea, which transform the inner forces and bring about 'samvesha' or immersion of the individual consciousness into the divine. Through mantra japa one raises his individual consciousness till all duality of 'This' and 'That' is resolved. In this meditation one has to meditate on something like 'Shivaoham' (I am Shiva). "The whole universe is only an expansion of my true Self."

4) *Anavopaya (also called Pashu-bhava): 'Anu' means limited and hence, this is the upaya for beings, who do not manage their position through above upayas. It is practice, which is for lower beings, where the use of senses 'prana' and mind 'manas' is made. In Saktopaya it is the 'manas' (mind) only that functions actively. In this saddhna the focus is on particular objects, other than the Self. Self is to be experienced indirectly with the help of those particular objective entities. Mantra Jap and Pranayama form an important part of this upaya. It is also called Kriya yoga, Jnanopaya, because mental activity along with meditation dominates here, which brings about Self realisation.

Saddhna Practices

I) Pranayama (Prana-Shakti)

'Prana' or vital force, the biological energy is the link between body and mind. It is not to be confused with mind (manas) or breath. It has been described as subtle biological energy which catches the vibrations of mind and transmits them to the nerves and plexuses and also physical vibration to the mind. It is insentient, but it is not like gross physical energy.[1] By controlling the mind one can control the 'prana' and by controlling the 'prana' one can control the mind.

In the biological processes, breath (prana) is associated with inhalation and exhalation. In the exhalation process breath is called 'prana', while in inhalation process it is known as 'apana'.

The natural characteristic (uccâra) of prana is a subtle, inarticulate sound (nada). The sound associated with exhaling of breath (prana) is 'sa' and with inhaling (apana) is 'ha' Thus an individual always keeps on reciting 'hamsa' (It is believed an individual recites this 'hamsa' - mantra 21,600 times a day). It is also called Adi-prana i.e. initial prana or pran mantra which is described as the first evolutes or transformation of consciousness. Various yogic practices involving prana known as pranayam, have been prescribed. Patanjali in his book Yog Sutra describes pranayam as:

Brâhyabyntrstmburtih Deshkalsmkhyâbih
Paridrshhto Dîrgh Sûkshmh.

50 Patanjali-Yogsutra

बृह्याभ्यन्तरस्तम्भवृत्तिः देशकालसंख्याभिः।
परिदृष्टो दीर्घ सुक्ष्मः ।।

(The breath may be stopped externally or internally, or checked in mid-motion, and regulated accordingly to place, time and a fixed number of movements so that stoppage is either protracted or brief.)

The pranayama becomes more efficacious if one focus his/her mind on the Isht Devta or Isht Devi or any other chosen deity or just on any flower say lotus seated in the navel part of body. Pranayam is performed by sitting on floor or any flat surface covered with clean cloth ,cross legged in Kamal Aasan pose (see under Aasan later on in this Chapter).

It may be stated here that pranayam is not merely a process of breathing; it is actually a process of controlling the wave thoughts of mind, through regulation of prana. Breath is the carrier of prana (life force) and hence its association with breathing process.

Pranayama, carried out as a breathing exercise for good health is known as yogic pranayana, in which there is no involvement of mind.

Methodology for Pranayama

Different methods have been prescribed for various types of pranayamas depending upon the process of inhibiting, retention and exhaling of breath. The simplest and basic pranayam has three steps as follows:

1st Step called *Purvk
Close right nostril with right hand thumb and inhale through left nostril, calmly and slowly, preferably along with mental recitation of some mantra given by guru or any other mantra say Gayatri mantra or Om, Om etc. certain number of times.

2nd Step called *Kumbk
Close both the nostrils, using thumb and little-anamika finger together, and hold breath along with mental recitation of the same mantra for the same duration as in the 1st step.

3rd Step called *Rechk
Close left nostril only with little-anamika finger and exhale though right nostril, while mentally reciting the same mantra for the same period as in 1st step.

II) Mantra Jâp

a) Mantra: A mantra is a divine name, sacred, syllable, word or verse used for worship and prayer. Tantric mantras differ from Vedic mantras in that they are usually brief as against Vedic mantras, which are long. Tantric mantras are sometimes in such forms that they do not carry any meaning as per our understanding of language, but they represent the core (bija) of the object of worship and are called bijamantras ,which act as power houses of Shakti (energy). Every object, deity or element has its bijamantra, which acts as a key to open the door of that object. A few bija mantras are as follows:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

1) Aum (ओं/ॐ) – This is the most important mantra. All tantric mantras start with the word. The word Aum is called cosmic sound (parashabda). It is also called Vedic bījmantra.
2) Aim ( ऐं ) – It is the Sarasvata bījamantra and its presiding deity is Sarasvati, the Goddess of learning or speech (Vak). It represents three Vedas.
3) Klīm (क्लीं) (Pronounced as Kaleeng).

Three types of Pranva

There are three types of pranva:

a) Aum (ॐ) is called Vedic pranava.
b) 'Aham (अंह) is called tantric pranava (according to Shiv school).
c) Hrim (ह्रीं) is called Shakti pranva (according to Shakta School).

Aim (ऐं) Represents three Vedas

a (अ) – The first mantra of Rig Veda starts with a (अ).

ī (ई) – The first mantra of Yajur Veda starts with ī (ई). a (अ) – The first word of Sama Veda also starts with a (अ). Thus :–

(!) (अ) (a) + (ई) (ī) = (ए) ;
(!!) (ए) (e) + (अ) (a) = (ऐ)

The syllable (ऐ) therefore represents 3 Vedas which connotes existence-knowledge – bliss aspect of Brahman. A bindu (.) added to letter ऐ (ai) makes it ऐं (aim) which is the combination of vowels from a to am (अ-अं) which governs all the multifarious sounds. Therefore, the non-dual Shakti of Shiv in Her knowledge aspect is represented by Aim ऐं Mantra.

Klim (क्लीं) represents a mantra which stands for fulfillment of all desires. It is called Kamrāja mantra, which fulfills one's desires.

4) Hareem (ह्रीं) (Pronounced as Hareeng). This is called Bhuvneshvri mantra or Maya bījamantra. One becomes a leader of men and gets all needs fulfilled with its recitation.
5) Kreem (क्रीं) (Pronounced as Kreeng). This is a bījamantra of Kali, who destroys enemies and gives happiness.
6) Shreem (श्रीं) (Pronounced as Shareeng). This is Lakshimi mantra, which is efficacious for prosperity and contentment.
7) Kshasraum (क्षौं) (Pronounced as Kshasraung). This is called Narasimha bīja mantra, which removes fear and sorrow.
8) Dum (दुं) This is Durga bīja mantra, who is the highest deity and as such can give whatever one wants.
9) Gam or Glaum (गं / ग्लौं) This is bījas mantra of Lord Ganesh, who

Klim (क्लीं) represents manifestation

The vowel अ (a)to अं (am) denote inarticulate sound, which is indistinct called Anāhata. When consonants Ka (क) to La (ल) contrive with these vowels, distinct and articulate sound is produced. Thus, kla (कला) stands for creation. ई stands for clear conception (or power of perception). Bindu (.) indicates non-dual Para-Shakti is the Universal manifestation.

removes all obstacles and promoters success.

10) Lam (लं) It is called Prithvi bîjamantra, which helps in procuring good crops.
11) Yam (यं) This is Vayu bîjamantra which helps to secure rains.
12) Aam (आं) This is bîjamantra of Brahma.
13) Um (उं) This is bîjamantra of Vishnu.
14) Ram (राम) This is bîjamantra of Rudra.

b) Jaap: Japa in Agni Puran is described as combination of two syllables 'ja' and 'pa'. 'Ja' stands for destruction of cycles of life and death and 'pa' for destruction of all sins. Thus, all that which destroys all sins and liberates souls from bondage, is Japa. Mantra as stated above is a sacred verbal formulation. Repetition of mantra is called Japa.

Through constant repetition of mantra one becomes like a magnet attracting the spiritual power of the mantra to oneself and becoming aware of the Self. This repetition gradually awakens the higher faculties in a person and raises the consciousness. It has the power of uniting 'jiva' with Shiva.

Efficacy of Jaap

For the beginners oral japa is advised as mental japa is difficult but more effective. Japa done in front of a deity (Isht-dev) or Sun or a flame or guru is highly rewarding. Japa can be done on the fingers of hands (see Figure ) or by using a rosary (mala) of 108 beads. Various types of rosaries are used for Japa of different gods. Thus for japa of Vishnu a rosary of tulsi beads is effective and similarly for japa of Ganesh rosary mala of ivory is effective. For japa of Shiv-Shakti rosary of Rudrakasha or Sandalwood is effective.

Initiation into mantra through 'diksha' by a teacher (guru) binds both through a spiritual link and raises the power of mantra manifold.

There are two forms of Japa.

1) Vachika (oral recitations of mantra)
2) Mansika (Mental recitation of mantra)

1) Vachika – has further two sub-division:

1.1) Where the mantra is repeated with the movement of lips, but without making any sound.
1.2) Where the movement of lips is accompanied with sound.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

2) Mansika: It is a mental meditation on the spirit of the mantra and meaning of the sacred word, without movement of tongue or lips. This is considered highest type of Jaap. It has also two types:

2.1) Mental Repetition (Mental recitation).
2.2) Ajapa Jap – Meditation on breath. It is kind of Japa which comes automatically after long practice, spontaneously, with the exhaling and inhaling of breath.

Techniques for *Jaap

There are two methods for performance of Jaap:

1) Mala Jaap (Jaap with a rosary)
2) Jaap on finger tips

1) *Mala Jaap

The number of beads in a rosary is generally 108 (excluding Meru -a larger bead) but rosaries with less number of beads e.g. 27 or 54 are also used, depending upon the purpose of jaap.

Before use, the rosary should be washed with water preferably collected from some sacred place such as Gangs, Narmada, Vaishnav-devi and prayed upon with incense, dhoop, deep (jyoti) and smeared with tilak on Meru and made powerful by the recitation of bijmantra before actual use. Rosary should be hidden from public view by keeping it inside a specially designed jaap bag, which has opening on one side for putting in right hand and opening on other side for keeping 1st finger (tarjini) outside so that it does not touch rosary, which removes suspended from 2nd and 3rd finger (madhya and anamika finger) while performing jaap (see Box). One should take care not to let rosary fall from finger while jaap is in progress, as it is considered in-auspicious. The rosary should be held at chest level or at navel while performing jaap. After jaap is over rosary should be placed on head and then kept at pre selected place for use next time.

2) Jaap on Finger Tips

There are situations when due to paucity of time or other reasons one cannot perform rosary jaap. In such situations one can perform jaap on finger tips.(see Box).

Technique for Rosary Jaap

The technique for jaap on a rosary involves use of three fingers of right hand- thumb (Angusht), middle finger (Mdhya) and ring finger (Anamika). The rosary remains suspended from middle and ring finger and beads are pushed down by thumb one by one, till one reaches Meru (the big bead, which is distinct from other beads in rosary). (see Figure) This completes jaap of one mala. The next mala jap begins by reversing the mala over middle finger and continuing as above (as a rule Meru is not to be crossed over and hence, reversal of mala). Use of Index finger (Tarjani) is avoided in all worships as it represents individual ego as per shastras. The recitation of mantra and the movement of bead in mala should coincide.

CC-OAgamniga... Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

Technique for Jaap on finger tips

This is done by touching thumb to various notches on the fingers in the sequence given below:

1) Starting with Anamica (first finger) middle notches (see Figure) one proceeds counting through various finger notches as follows:
2) Finger notch of Anamika touching palm.
3) Finger notch of Kanishtha finger (little finger) touching palm.
4) Finger notch of Kanishtha finger (middle notch).
5) Finger notch of Kanishtha finger (near tip).
6) Finger notch of Anamika finger (3rd finger) top notch).
7) Finger notch of Madyma finger (2nd finger) top notch.
8) Finger notch of Madyma finger (middle notch).
9) Finger notch of Madyma finger (both them).
10) Finger notch of Tarjini finger (1st finger) notch touching palm.

Combination Mantras for *Jaap

There is a practice to recite a combination of several bijamantras in the jaap. Some of the mantra are:

a) Dev Mantras

1) Gayatri Mantra :-

Om Bhur Buvah-Sva, Tat Savitur Vareniyam,
Bhrgo Devasy Dee Mahey,
Diyo Yo Na Prachodayat.
ॐ भुर्भवः स्वः तत्सवितुर्वरंणयं ।
र्भगो देवस्य धीमही धियो
यो नः प्रचोदयात ।।

2) Panch Akshri Shiva Mantra :-
Om Namah Shivaaya
ॐ नमः शिवायः

3) Ganpati Mantra :-

Om Sharîm Hrîm Klim Glaum Gam
Ganapateya Namaha.
ॐ श्रीं ह्रीं कलीं गलां गं गणपतये नमः

Short Version :

Om Gam Ganpataye Nmh.
ॐ गं गणपतये नमः

4) Maha Mrutyunjaya Mantra :-

Om Trymbkm Yjamhe Sugndih Pusht Vrdhnm
Ur Varûkmev Bndhnaumrtyor Mukshîy Mâmrtat.
ॐ त्रयंबकम यजामहे सुगंधि पुष्ठ वर्धनाम
उर्वारुकमिव बधनान्मृत्योर्मक्षीय माःमृतातः

5) Hanuman Mantra :-

Om Hûm Hanumate Rûdratamakaya Hûm
Phut Svaha.
ॐ हुं हनुमते रुद्रात्मकाय हुं
फट स्वाहाः

6) Asht Akshri (Narayan Mantra) :-

Om Namaha Naraynay Nmaha

b) Devi Mantra's

1) Sarasvati Mantra (for learning):-

Om Aim Klîng Saum Saraswatiya Namaha.

ॐ ऐं क्लीं सौं सरस्वत्यै नमः

2) Kali Mantra (for liberation) :-

Om Klîm Kalikayai Namaha.

ॐ क्लीं कालिकायै नमः

3) Durga Mantra (for prosperity/moksha):-

Om Dum Durgaye Namaha.

ॐ दुंदुर्गायै नमः

4) Lakshmi Mantra (for wealth and happiness):-

Om Mahalakshmyai Namaha

ॐ महालक्ष्म्यै नमः

Om Kamal Vasniye Shriyai Svaha.

ॐ कमल वास्निये श्रीयायै स्वाहः

5) Tripura Bala Mantra (powerful mantra):-

Klîm Sauh

क्लीं सौः

c) Nav Grah Mantra's

1) Sun (सूर्य)

Om Hram Hrim Hraum Svaha Suryaye Namaha.

ॐ ह्रां ह्रीं ह्रौं स्वाहः सूर्याये नमः

2) Moon (चन्द्र):-

Om Srâm Srîm, Sraum Svaha
Chandrayae Namaha.

ॐ स्रां स्रीं स्रौं स्वाहः
चन्द्रायै नमः

3) Mars (भौं / मगंल):-

Om Krâm Krîm, Kraum Svaha
Mnglayae Namaha.

ॐ क्रां क्रीम क्रौं स्वाहः
मगंलायै नमः

4) Mercury (बुद्ध) :-

Om Bram Brim Braum Svaha
Buddhayae Namaha.

ॐ ब्रां ब्रीं ब्रौं स्वाहः
बुद्धायै नमः

5) Venus (शुक्र):-

Om Dram Drim Draum Svaha
Shukrayae Namaha

ॐ द्रां द्रीं द्रों स्वाहः
शुक्रायै नमः

6) Saturn (शनि):-

Om Pram Prim Praum Svaha
Snshcharayae Namaha

ॐ प्रां प्रीं प्रौं स्वाहः शनिष्चरायै नमः

7) Jupitor (ब्रहस्पति):-

Om Hram Hrim Hraum Svaha
Brhspatiya Namaha

ॐ ह्रां ह्रीं ह्रौं स्वाहः ब्रहस्पतिये नमः

d) Samput

Samput are the specific words used in a mantra to enhance its efficacy. These can be used at the start, middle or at the end of a mantra e.g. in gayatri mantra samput can be made as shown below:-

Om Bhur Buvah-Sva, Tat Savitur Vareniyam,
Bhrgo Devasy Dee Mahey Diyo Yo Na Prachodayat

CC-OAgamniga... Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

ॐ भुर्भवः स्वः तत्सवितुर्वरंण्यं ।
र्भगो देवस्य धीमही धियो यो नः प्रचोदयात ।।

After the words Bhur Bhvh Svh (भुर्भवः स्वः) following words mantras may be used as samput for the specific purpose as shown against each:-

1) Om Aim Klîm Sau (ॐ ऐं क्लीं सौ)
(Used for proficiency in words).
2) Om Shrîm Hrîm Shrim (ॐ श्रीं ह्रीं श्रीं)
(Used for wealth and comfort).
3) Om Aim Hrîm Klîm (ॐ ऐं ह्रीं क्लीं)
(Used for joy and happiness and getting free from troubles).
4) Om Shrîm Hrîm Klîm (ॐ श्रीं ह्रीं क्लीं)
(Used for getting good progeny).
5) Om Hrîm (ॐ ह्रीं)
(Used for recovering from diseases).
6) Om Aam Hrîm Klîm (ॐ आं ह्रीं क्लीं)
(Used for protection and blessing of Saddhika).

Five steps of *Japa

1) Vairkhari Japa (to memorise the mantra) – This involves uttering mantra loudly and clearly with the correct intonation, pronunciation and pauses.
2) Uamshu Japa – It involves recitation of mantra with low voice with movements of lips and tongue.One should pay attention to the meaning of mantra.
3) Madyama Japa – It involvs repeating mantra mentally. One should be absorbed in the central meaning (Vedic) of mantra. Try to hear mantra in heart.
4) Pashyanti Japa – One may get visions of mystical words, sounds or coloured blossomed petals of flowers though inner eye while carrying on jaap.
5) Para – Perfect silence is maintained while one dives deep in meditation of mantra.

III) *Yantra (Magic diagrams)
A man can express his thoughts through signs, speech or writing. Yantra is an expression through signs and writings. Mantras and tantras are interlinked since they are expressed through the medium of yantra. Different yantras are connected with different deities and are combined with different mantras.

Yantras are representation of mantras by various geometrical figures. Various types of yantras represent these thought forms of mantras. The geometrical figures that are used in these yantras and their indicated symbolism is as under: (see Box).

1) Point (Bindu) – It represents dimensionless character of manifestation.
2) Straight Line – Represents unlimited movement and the principle of growth.
3) Triangle (upward) (Fire element)– Represents Parmshiva (nishkala) without attributes in unmanifested state.
4) Triangle (downwards) (Water element) - Represents Paramshiva (Sukula) with Shakti (energy) in manifested state.
5) Circle – (Air- element). It indicates rhythms in energies. Inner circle represents energy leading to liberation.
6) Hexagon – It indicates inanimate nature of objects.
7) Square (Earth-element) – Indicates diamentionlessness.
8) Pentagon –Five Powers (shakties) of Lord Shiva.
9) Cross – It indicates sole existence of one power.
10) Swastika –Indicates Supreme Reality Shiva who is out of reach of Jivas.
10) Star Hexagon – Upward triangle represents Purusha, while downward triangle represents Prakriti.

Yantra is the medium though which tantra and mantra are used for different objectives. Almost all religions have developed their yantras. Buddhist yantras are also very common.

The objectivity at the root of yantra use, is that one can get desired results, which may vary from earthly desires, such as having success in business, good health, good children, removal of malefic effects of planets, to gaining ultimate objective of life to become a 'jivanmukta' or obtaining 'moksha-hood' after death.

There are different types of yantra for different purposes. Some are worn on the body of individual such as around neck (shaped as triangle or rectangle) or worn on the arm as an amulet. At some places these yantras are placed in the temples or shrines where they receive regular worship.

The materials used are derived from basic five elements of nature i.e. earth, water, fire, air and sky. Yantras may be drawn on metals, such as gold, silver, copper, brass etc. or on birch or plain paper etc. One of the most common materials used for writing is known as 'Asht Gandh', which is a dried mixture of eight items such as agar, tagar, goruchan, kesturi, white chandan, sandur, lal chandan and kesar (these are all local names), which are mixed with holy water for writing. For writing jasmine or pomegranate wood is used or else a quill (a bird feather).

The timing for drawing lines of yantras are prescribed to be on auspicious days only early in the morning for auspicious yantras and even lines have to be drawn from east to west (for auspicious) or west to east (for yantras to cause harm to others).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

All yantras have to be drawn by an expert tantric after purifying his body and carry out recitation of mantras before start. Some of the well known yantras are:

1) Shri Yantra (also known as Shri Chakra in South India)
2) Kali Yantra
3) Saraswati Yantra
4) Mrit Sanjivani Yantra
5) Shri Bhairwi Yantra
6) Nav Graha Yantra
7) Ganesh Yantra

1) Shri Yantra: Shri Chakra (King of Chakras) (see Figure). Sri Chakra is a symbol of universe (both microcosm and macrocosm) and its divine cause. There are in it two sets of triangles, one set of 4 triangles representing 4 male (Shiva) aspects and another set of 5 triangles representing five female (Shakti) aspects. In the center is a point (bindu) where Shiva-Shakti reside. Goddess Sharada who symbolises the highest 'knowledge of Self, is enthroned on this Chakra (Yantra) at all 4 mutths (monistic order matths established by Shankerecharya at :

Shree Yantra

1) Jyoter Mutth Almora (UP).
2) Govardhan Mutth at Puri (Orissa).
3) Sharda Mutth at Dwarka (Maharashtra) Srichakra, here is inscribed with the words 'Sarvedamtartha prakashini Brahmvidya-Sharada' (Sharda the highest knowledge who illumines all tirthas (mutths).
4) Shringeri Mutth at Kanchi (TN).
5) Kavela Mutth at Kanch. This was established as Central mutth for coordinating adherents of other 4 mutths.

Worship

This yantra is considered most efficacious and hence, receives wide worship amongst all Hindus. It is engraved on gold, silver or copper. Bijmantra for recitation in japa is

"Om Shrîng, Hrîng, Kalîng, Hrîng, Shri Mahalakshmaiya Namaha".

ॐ श्रीं ह्रीं कलीं ह्रीं श्रीं महा लक्ष्मैय नमः

(It is believed that this chakra (yantra) is inscribed on the rock at Chakareshawar temple in Srinagar, which is worshiped as Goddess Sharika.)

2) Kali Yantra (see Figure) (also known as Dakhina Kalika Maha Yantra).

This yantra is prescribed for those, who require to get rid of the malefic effects of Saturn, such as chronic diseases like blood pressure, paralysis and nervous disorders and also from evil forces such as Bhuta, Preta, Pisacha etc and also against all sorts of misfortunes such as accidents etc. It is written on bronze, embossed with gold silver or copper. The bijamantra for jaap is:

Kali Yantra

Om Karîng Kalikaya Nmaha,
Om Kapalinyae Namah.

ॐ क्रीं कालिकाये नमः ॐ कापालिन्यै नमः

3) Saraswati Yantra (see Figure) (also known as Tara Yantra).

The wearer or worshipper of this yantra is supposed to be bestowed with intellect and as such is popular among those who seek knowledge and success in studies: Virgin girls propitiate it for happy married life. The bijamantra for jaap is

Saraswati Yantra

Om Shri Vidya Dayeni Saraswatiya Namaha.

ॐ श्रीं विध्या ध्यानी सरस्वती नमः

4) Mrit Sanjivani Yantra (see Figure). This yantra offers protection from diseases and bestows its 'saddhka' with wealth, good fortune, fame and happiness.

Sanjivini Yantra

It is carved or embossed on copper or silver plate. It may also be written on bhoj patra. Bijamantra for jap is:

Om Joom Sah Ma Palay Palay

ॐ जूं सः मां पालय पालयः

5) Shri Bhairwi Yantra (see Figure). This is a powerful yantra for Vashikaran (i.e. gaining supremacy over opponents), for destroying a particular enemy, removal of poverty and for self protection. For worship of this yantra one has to observe certain rules such as jaap at night time and offerings of materials which vary every day. The bijmantra also depend on the purpose of worship.

IV) *Kundalini Yoga (Sleeping Serpent Power) Kundalini is a form of dormant energy lying in all human beings. "The word kunda" means a deeper place, a cavity, referring to the conclave pit in which the human energy nestles in the form of a coiled and sleeping serpent; hence the name Kundalini. In males it lies asleep in the perineum, between the excretory and urinary organs. In the females it lies at the root of the uterus, in the cervix. It is illustrated as a sleeping serpent coiled three and a half times and closing the opening of the 'sushmna' nerve in the center of the spine by its mouth".[2]

This dormant energy when properly awakened through the guidance of a guru (Teacher), leads jiva to the highest self-Parmashiva, through the fourth stage of consciousness known as turya. In theology this energy is represented

Location of Chakras

The centers (charkas) are located in the region of the spinal cord, from the lowest part in the perineum to the top of the head. They are connected and energised through a network of three psychic channels (Nadis)- Ida, Pingala and Sushumna. While Sushumna is the main channel, Ida and pingla twist and twine around it, crossing at 5 points which represent 5 chakras. Sushumna starts from brain and ends at the base of spine. Ida and pingla start from each of nostrils and end at the base of spine, which correspond on the grosser level with the nerves in the nervous system. Chakras are depicted symbolically as lotus flowers, each having a particular number of petals and a characteristic colour. The petals represent the different manifestations of psychic energy in the Chakras and psychic channels leading in and out of them. Each charka is the center of an element, having a form, a seed sound (bijamantra) and a presiding deity with its vehicle (Vahana) and certain qualities associated with it"[4] (see figure).

by Durga or its various forms such as Kali, Ragnya, Sharika, Jwala etc. "The three coils of serpent symbolize, three parts of Aum, A-U-M; three gunas: (virtues), sattva, rajas, tamas; the three states of consciousness: 1) wakening (Jagrat), 2) dreaming (Svapan), 3) deep sleep (Sushhpti); three types of experience: subjective, sensual and absence of an experience. The half coil represents the state of transcendent consciousness turya) which is beyond the three stages of consciousness of human beings. Thus the three and a half coils of Kundalini represent the complete set of experience of the universe followed by the experience of Transcendent Consciousness".[3]

Psychic *Charkas (Energy centers)

In the human body seven psychic centers (known as Chakras) have been identified which in the physical sense, are associated with the major nerve plexuses and endocranial glands in the body. These are the main relay and control centers of the human organism, which have extensive influence on the whole 'being' of the individual.

These seven charkas are as follows[5]:-

1) Mooladhara Chakra (root center) - It is situated at the pelvic floor and it corresponds to the coccygeal plexus of the nerves. In the males it lies between the urinary and excretory openings in the form of a small dormant gland termed the perineal body. In the females it is situated inside the posterior surface of the cervix. It is the first Chakra in the spiritual evolution of man. It is at this chakra that the consciousness rises above animal nature. It controls the excretory and sexual functions in the body.
2) Swadhishthan Chakra - It lies at the terminal point of the spinal column. It relates to the sacral plexus of nerves and takes care of the unconscious in the person.
3) Manipura Chakra - It lies in the spine just at the navel level. It is related to the solar plexus of nerves and takes care of digestive, assimilative and temperature controlling system of the body.
4) Anahata Chakra - It is situated in the vertebral column at the back of the heart near the base and it is at the level of the depression in the sternum. It is related to the cardiac plexus of nerves and takes care of the organs of the body in the region, such as heart, the lungs, the diaphragm etc.
5) Vishudhi Chakra - It is situated in the vertebral column at the level of the throat pit. It is related the cervical plexus of nerves and takes care of the thyroid complex, upper palate etc.
6) Ajna Chakra - It is related to the pineal gland and is situated above the spinal column in the midline of the brain. It is the center of the command and takes care of the all the functions of one's life. In particular, it controls the sexual activity in a person.
   Bindu (Point) - It is a point between above and next Chakra situated at the top back of the head, where there is tuft of hair (which Hindu brahmins call Choti). It takes care of the optic system and is the center wherefrom amrit (nectar) emanates on awakening.
7) Sakasvara Chakra - It lies at the top of the head and is related to the pituitary gland which is supposed to take care of all glands and systems of the body. It is the seat of cosmic awareness.

Kundaline Awakening

There are two ways in which pranic mantra can be utilized for the awakening or rise of the kundaline. One in which prana shakti is practiced, through prolonged mental awareness of 'hamsa' mantra as described earlier. Another way is conscious japa or recitation or repetition of the mantra so'ham or simply 'Aum'. Eleven successive movements through the concentrated recitation 'uccara' have been recommended for Kundalini awakening in Vijnanabhairava

Eleven steps of Kundalini Awakening

Vijnanabhairava describes recitation of AUM mantra which ultimately leads Saddhak to the awakening of Kundaline. These are:

1-3) Recitation of a-u-m , 'a' to be contemplated at navel; 'u' at heart; 'm' in the mouth. The time taken in the recitation of each of these letters is one matra or mora (which is the same as time taken in the recitation of a vowel).

4) Focus on bindu (nasal resonance of aum). It appears as the rise of pranic energy in a subtle form of vibration (spandana) which becomes subtler and subtler as it proceeds onwards. In terms of time it would be ½ of a matra.

5) At this stage subtle vibration of bindu is transformed into naada (subtle inarticulate sound). It assumes the form of a half Moon (ardhachandra) and appears on the forehead. The subtlety of its vibration consists in ¼ of a matra.

6) Pranic energy, in this movement assumes form of a straight line and appears in the upper part of forehead. The subtlety of its vibration consists of $^1/_8$ of a matra.

7) The naada (mystical resonance) extends from the summit of the head and expands through the sushimna nari (i.e central channel).It is spontaneous sound (anahata), not produced by percussion and is still inarticulate. It never sets. It always keeps on sounding. The subtlety of its vibration consists in $^1/_{16}$ of a matra .

8) Nadanta - This is an aspect of energy beyond naada. It is extremely subtle and resides a little above top of the head (brahmarandra).Its vibration consists of $^1/_{32}$ of a matra.

9) After experience of nadanta, as stated above, the sense of identification of the self with the body disappears. There is a feeling of bliss (ananda) at this stage which is energy (Shakti) in itself. Its matra is $^1/_{64}$. It resides in the skin.

10) At this stage, the experient enjoys the experience of all pervasiveness , like the sky. All the limbs of body are dropped. The experience is felt at the top of the head, near the base of the Shikha (the tuft of hair on the head of Brahmans). Its matra is $^1/_{128}$. This stage is called Vyapini or Vyapika. At this stage all objectivity disappears.

11) This is the final stage called Samanaa, which is energy of illumination (bodha). There is activity of thinking only without any object of thought. It resides in the top of the head in the Shikha. Its matra is $^1/_{256}$. The yogi who has reached this stage, directs his attention towards the Universe, he acquires supernatural powers of omnipresence, omniscience etc.

Helpful Body Postures

Certain body postures and movements are considered helpful in the yogic Saddhna.These are known as Nyasa, Mudras and Asanas:

a) Nyasa (see Chapter 16 for details): Nyasa is a pledge in which mantra is united with the body, limb by limb. It has two components:

1) Karnyasa,
2) Shadongnyasa

1) In Karnyasa (Kar=Hand) parts of the mantra are assigned to various fingers of both hands and front-back of the palms
2) Shadongnyasa (Shdong=Six) (see figure). Saddhak places fingers of both hands on six parts of the body i.e. heart, forehead, top of head, armour or shoulders, eyes and hair of head

b) Mudras: Mudra is a technical term meaning particular disposition and control of the organs of the body as a help in concentration. Tantric mudras are very complicated and can be learned from a tantric teacher only. Some of the mudras are:

1) Kanankini mudra (skeleton). In this the yogi views the world as mere kanakini (Skeliton).
2) Krodhana mudra – (anger) It is a tense, light posture like anger.
3) Bhairawi mudra – In this eyes are fixed externally without blunting but making the gaze turned towards inner Reality.
4) Lelihana mudra – In this the yogi tastes the entire universe in his nature of essential "In consciousness".
5) Khecari mudra – It involves turning the tongue backwards towards the plate inside the cranium. It has 4 types.

There are other types of 18 mudras used in Vedic type of yoga practice which are simple to perform. (see Figure).

c) Asanas : Sithrsukhmasnm

11.40. Patanjali Yogsutra

"Posture" (asana) is to be seated in a position which is firm but relaxed).

Asana means a posture in which a person sits, stands or lies. It has a particular purpose for the saddhna. The most common asana are :

1) Padmasan (Lotus Posture) (see Figure). In this posture one sits cross legged with the feet drawn into rest against the top of the thighs, with erect body. All that matters is that one has to stay still and erect, holding the chest, neck and head in a straight line but without strain, so that one can forget the body alto-gether. When the mind become deeply absorbed in meditation, a spiritual current is felt to rise through the spine and one has, therefore, remain erect to facilitate the upward movement of this current.

Padma Aasan (The lotus Pose)

2) Siddhasana (the accomplished posture - see Figure). This is a variant of Padmasna where the heels of the feet press directly against the pelvic bones directly above the genitals. For ladies Siddha Yoni Asana has been recom-mended instead of Siddhasana. The position is exactly the same as Siddhasana, except that after folding the right leg and placing the sole of its foot against the left thigh, the lower heel is placed just inside the entrance of the vagina. The left heel presses against the clitoris.

There are other asanas as well for specific purposes.

Chapter Seven

Cosmology and Beings

Cosmology is a term which is derived from two Greek words 'Kosmos' meaning 'order' 'harmony' and 'logos' signifying 'word' or discourse. Thus cosmology is, in effect, the study of universal order at large.

Cosmology as developed during Vedic Period was later on enlarged during Post Vedic Period.

a) Vedic Cosmology and Beings

The Vedic view of universe is of a vast cosmos with three different levels : Earth (Prithvi), Heaven (Dyaus) which are separated by atmo-

Gods and Their Abodes

Vedic cosmology is very simple. Universe is considered to be vast cosmos with three different levels called Lokas; Earth (Prithvi), Heaven (Dyaus) and atmosphere (Antariksha), which separate the two. While nothing is known about Dyaus and Antariksha, Prithvi is made of mountains, rivers etc. The Dyaus is the home of Brahma, Devas and Rishis. Manvas (human beings) live on Prithvi. Manu (mind born son of Brahma) was the first progenitor (hence the term Manva). Antariksha is inhabited by Asuras (demons).

Post Vedic (Puranic) cosmology describes 14 regions, known as lokas, which are surrounded by water. Around water is fire, which is surrounded by air (wind) and beyond wind is sky. This is known as Brahmanda (the egg of Brahman). Earth is classified as one of the seven lokas, which in ascending order are Bhu Loka (earth) Bhuval Loka, Svarloka, Duvaloka, Jana Loka, Tapo Loka, Satya Loka. The seven lokas below Bhu Loka (Earth) are known as Patalas. These are Atala, Vitala, Nitala, Gabhastimata, Mahatala, Sutala and Patala.

Brahma lives in Satya Loka. Sages lives in Bhuv Loka, while gods live in Svarloka.

As per Kashmir Shaivism there are 118 Bhuvans(levels) where beings of various types live.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

sphere (Antariksha).

Heaven and Earth are considered dual-twin worlds. Heaven is father and Earth – mother (dyausprithvi). Above Heaven is the luminous world of Sun (or Savitar) full of waters – (Apas), which is transcendent and beyond the reach of beings. It is the world of Prajapati."The main goal of the Vedic ritual (Yagnya) is to transcend Heaven and Earth and go beyond it.

"Slaying the obstructor they crossed over Heaven and Earth and made the vast for their dwelling".

R.V. (1.36.8)

This is the same thing as going beyond the duality of phenomenal existence as sought in later Hindu texts the duality of body and mind.

Earth (Prithvi)

1) Mountains, Rivers and Deserts

"Savitar (the Sun God) has illuminated the eight peaks of the earth, the three desert regions and the mountains are Himalyas (or Himavat) Vindyas etc. with their branches Seven rivers are those, which flow from Himalaya and reach their ultimate destination, sea. These have been seven rivers."

R.V. (1.35.8)

Identified by Frawlaey[1] from West to East as: (see also Map in Introduction).

1) Sindhu (Indus) with its three turbulence.
   a) Parushni (Ravi)
   b) Asikini (Chenab)
   c) Vitasta (Jehlum)
2) Saraswati (now extinct) with its three tributaries are:
   a) Shutudri (Sutlaj)
   b) Drishadvati
   c) Luni
3) Yumuna
4) Ganga (Jahnavi)
5) Saraya
6) Brahamputra
7) Marudvridha (not identified) but flowing between Chenab and Vitasta or Narmada river.

The three deserts have been identified as

a) Arabian Sea, Bay and Bengal, Thar Desert of Rajasthan.

2) Beings

After creation of universe, Prajapati thought of creating beings to facilitate their performance of karma for their moksha. Thus from His fingers was born Daksha Prajapati (the first progenitor). He also created seven mind born sons (Rshis) Vishvamitra, Jamadagni, Baradvaja,

Sacred River Ganga

River Ganga, originates from the feet of Vishnu. It flows around Moon and then falls on Mt. Meru and divides into four rivers: Sita, Alaknanda, Chakshu and Bhadra. Alaknanda flows Southwards into Bharat Varsha and divides into seven rivers.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Gotma, Atri, Vasistha, and Kashyapa. Daksha Prajapati fathered 13 daughters who were all married to Kashyapa Rishi. These 13 wives of Kashyapa are mothers of all the beings – devas (Immortals), asuras (demons) Ghandarvas (Celestial Musicians), Yakshas (Demy Gods), Rakshas (Evil Spirits) and Manvas (Human beings) along with creeping trees etc. (see Chapter 8) Aditi, Kashyap's wife is the mother of Twelve Adityas (Gods such as Indra, Vishnu, Vivasvat etc.) It was Vivasvat's son Manu who was the king and progenitor of human race in the seventh Manvantara (see Chapter 11). It is from Manu, that all humans are called 'Manuvas'.

Rshis and devas live in Heaven the upper most regions. They have access to all the three regions of universe. Asuras (who are cousins of devas) live in Antariksha and are always engaged in battle with devas for supremacy of heaven and earth.

Manuvas live on Prithvi. Ikshvaku, Manu's son founded Solar dynasty (Lord Ram was from this dynasty). (RV-X-60-4) Yayati (fifth generation of Manu through – Ikshvaku, Pururavas, Ayus, Nahusha, Yayati) had five sons namely Turvasha, Yadu, Puru, Druhya, and Anu[2] (Some believe these names refer to five dynasties rather than individual). Upon the death of Yayati, his five sons became kings of various regions and continued their lineage.

b) Post Vedic Cosmology and Beings

1) Cosmic regions (Bhuvans)

Puranic texts, especially Vishnu Puran, present an elaborate mythological account of cosmology. The older Vedic tripartite universe persists but it is modified into 3 broad regions:

1.1. Earth
1.2. Lokas
1.3. Patala

In all there are 14 regions one above the other known as Bhuvans, which are surrounded by water. Around water is fire, which is surrounded by air (wind) and beyond wind is sky. This is known as Brahmanda (the egg of Brahma).

1.1) Earth: Earth is classified as one of the 7 lokas. It is divided into seven circular dvipas (Islands, big enough to be called continents).

These are:

i) Jambu, ii) Shalmak, iii) Krouncha, iv) Plaksha, v) Shaka, vi) Pushkara, and vii) Kusha

These are surrounded by seven oceans:

i) Lavana, ii) Ikshu, iii) Sura, iv) Sarpi, v) Dadhi, vi) Dugdha, and vii) Jala

1.2) Lokas: There are seven Lokas. These in ascending order are:-

1) Bhur Loka: (Earth) where Manvas (humans) live.
2) Bhuva Loka: the region between Earth and Sun (Antariksha of Vedic classification) where sages live.
3) Svarloka: (or Svarga loka): the region between Sun and Polar Star – Dhruva – where Devas live.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Vedic concepts Represents Modern Geography

The Vedic concept of Earth as seven Islands surrounded by seven Oceans is nearest to the truth as is known now.

4) Dhruvaloka: (also known as Maha loka).
5) Janaloka: (where Brahmas sons live).
6) Tapoloka: (where Gods – Trinity lives).
7) Satyaloka: (where Brahman live).

The inhabitants of topmost 4 Lokas: Dhruvaloka, Janaloka, Tapoloka and Satyaloka are not destroyed at the end of each cycle of creation, but the inhabitants of other three lokas: Bhurloka, Bhuvrloka and Svarloka are destroyed. Manavs of good deeds in the spiritual field can rise above these three worlds.

Asia was known as Jambudvipa

Jambudvipa (where jamans - a kind of fruit grows) is right in the middle and in the middle of it is golden-hued Mount Meru. To the South of Mount Meru lies Bharat Varsha. The region around Mount Meru is regarded as heaven (Svarga) on earth. Here live gods, goddesses, Ghandhrvas, Yakshas, Rakshasas, Deityas and Danvas. Only righteous people go there, sinners cannot go there.

1.3) Patals: The seven patalas in descending order below Earth (Bhurloka) are:

1) Atala, 2) Vitala, 3) Nitala, 4) Gabhastimata, 5) Mahatala, 6) Sutala, and 7) Patala.

These seven patalas are called Narkas (hell) whose ruler is Yama and where Danvas, Daityas, Yakshas and Nagas live. Various sinners go to these patalas depending upon the type of sin. Narka is not a good place to live and after one has spent the time earmarked for an individual he may go to the world of Lokas if his deeds are good.

2) Beings on Earth

The five kings (son of Yayati) namely Turvasha, Druhyu, Yadu, Anu and Puree of Vedic period continue their reign in the regions as under:

1) Turvasha is the king in southeast (Bay of Bengal)
2) Druhyu is the king of west (Ghandhar in Afghanistan)
3) Yadu is the king of South (Arabian Sea)
4) Anu is the king of North (Punjab, Kashmir etc.)
5) Puru is the king of central region (Saraswat land)

The quarters of Vedic gods (see Chapter 1) may thus be identified as follows:-

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

1) Eastern quarter where king Turvasha rules - Vasus.
2) Southern quarter where Yadu rules to - Rudra.
3) Western quarters where Druhyus rules - Aditya.
4) Northern quarter where King Anu rules - Maruts.
5) Central quarter where King Puru regions - Sadhyas.

Out of these, the lineage of the Puru and Yadu continue. The other dynasties continued for some time but ultimately merged with one of the above two dynasties. Thus, the lineage of Turvasha dynasty (refer Vayu, Matsya, Agni and Brahma Puran) continued through Varutha and Andira, whose Sons are Pandya, Karnata, Cholaand Kerala. They form southern people of present day India.

The lineage of Druhyu was also short. Gandhara was his son after whom Ghandhar (modern day Kandhar) in Afghanistan is named. It ends with Prachetas who were rulers in Central Asia. The lineage of Anu included Shivai, Anga, Banga, Suhma, Kalmga and Pundra who became the peoples of Bengal, Bihar and the south east.

(Vishnu Puran – 4.18.1).

Solar and Lunar dynasties

There are two prominent dynasties of rulers in later day India. These are:

1) Lunar dynasty
2) Solar dynasty

Their descent is linked with King Yayati (father of five Vedic people or dynasties). Yayati had two wives – the first one was Devyani, who was daughter of Bhregu Rishi, from whom were born Turvasha and Yadu. The second wife of Yayati was Sharmishta, daughter of an asura king (Vrisha Parvan). From her he had Anu, Druhyu and Puru. This may represent the division down the line into Lunar and Solar dynasties. Lord Krishna (originally from Yadu) represents a higher side of lunar dynasty. Kuru – a branch of this dynasty were associated with Mahabharatha war and which brought their end and with it ended Vedic age.

Lord Ram represents a higher side of Solar dynasty.

_Bhuvans_ and beings as per Kashmir _Shaivism_ (see Figure )

According to Trika Shastra (Kashmir Shaivism) there are 118 abodes of beings called Bhuvanas, which are formed of 36 tattvas (elements).[3] The whole manifestations is divided into five parts (called kalâs), each having a fixed number of bhuwans as given below:

1) Nirvrtti Kalâ - Formed mainly of Prithvi tattva only which contains 16 (sixteen) Bhuvanas, the lowest of which is called Kâlagnirudra Bhuvna.
2) Pratishtha Kala - This contains 23 tattvas from Jala tattva to Prakriti Tattva and contains 56 Bhuvnas.
3) Vîdya Kalâ - This contains 7 tattvas from Purusha tattva to Maya tattva and has 28 Bhuvnas.
4) Shanti Kalâ -This contains three tattvas (Shudh Vidya, SadaShivaa and Ishver Tattva) and 18 bhuvans.
5) Shantatika Kalâ - It has only 2 tattvas (Shiva Shakti tattva) and has no Bhuvna.

Total Bhuvnas = 118.

Chapter Eight

Seven Rishis and Gotra

Rishis at a Glance

Rishis occupy an important position in Indian religious thought. They are progenitors of gods, men, demons, and all other orders of creation. These Rishis represent the ancestral lineage "gotra" of human beings in India. The Seven Rishis of Vedic Period, through whom the Vedas were revealed are Visvamitra, Jamadagni, Bhardvaja, Gotma, Atri, Vasistha and Kashyapa usually listed in the same order. During the Post Vedic Period a new set of Rishis came into existence. These are Marichi, Atri, Angiras, Pulstaya, Pulaka, Kratu, and Vasistha – in that order.

At the beginning of each Manvantara (see Chapter 11) a new set of Rishis is created by Brahma.

The current Manvantaras is 7th and is known as Vaivasvata Manvantara. The list of Rishis in this Manvantara is the same as in Vedic Period.

The rishis besides being progenitors are composers of hymns, guides for performance of sacrifices (yagnya), teachers, performers of tapas, advisors to kings, preservers of dharma and a divine link between men and gods.

There are various types of Rishis as stated in Puranas :

1) Brahma Rishis
2) Deva Rishis
3) Vipra Rishis
4) Parma Rishis
5) Maha Rishis
6) Raja Rishis
7) Shruta Rishis
8) Jnana Rishis
9) Tapa Rishis
10) Satya Rishis
11) Kanda Rishis

It is only the seven Brahm Rishis, who have been created by Brahma Himself as progenitors, and who are recognized as heads of various gotra (lineage) clans.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

The abode of these Rishis is earth (Prithvi Lok) as well as sky (Svarga Loka) where they are known as Sapt Rishis and can be always seen in the NE sky (Northern hemisphere).

These Rishis are held in high esteem by all Hindus. Kashmiri Pandit community follow Sapt (seven) Rishi calendar in their day-to-day religious activities. This is the oldest calendar in India and is only 26 years behind the start of Kalyuga Era (present Era).

Rishis of Earth

There are three sets of Brahm Rishis who lived on earth:

1) Vedic Rishis
2) Epic or Puranic Rishis
3) Manvantara Rishis

1) Vedic Rishis
The seven Rishis as per Vedic tradition are Visvamitra, Jamadagni, Bharadvaja, Gotma, Atri, Vasishtha and Kashyapa usually listed in the same order.

2) Epic or Puranic Rishis
The group of seven Rishis of Vedic Period is replaced by a new list, first in the Epics-Ramayana & Mahabharata and later on in the Puranas.

The new list includes:- Marichi, Atri, Angiras, Pulstaya, Pulaka, Kratu and Vasishtha – in that order.

It will be seen that Atri and Vasistha are the only two Rishis who are common to both the list.

3) Manvantara Rishis
Each Kalpa) of one thousand god years has 14 manvantaras and at the beginning of each manvantara a new set of Rishis is created by Brahma (see Chapter 11). The current manvantara is the 7th and is known as Vaivasvata manvantara. The list of rishis in this manvantara is the same as in Vedic list.

How Rishis were born

It is said that Brahma created offspring who did not increase because they preferred tapas rather than be progenitors. Brahma therefore abandoned or destroyed them. Then He created seven mind born sons (Rishis) resembling Himself (Sadrsh), equal to Himself (Svayamishvarah) for the express purpose of further creation ("prajâpatyena kalpitah")[1] The Rishis are said to be born not by sexual propagation but from the being and mind of Brahma:

Madbhava Mânasa Jatab,
Brahmanah Putrâ Manasâh

("The mânasa-creation of sons by Brahma represents His own Self transformation into thought-activity, by which He creates from Himself objects similar to and sharing the essential nature and character of Himself".)[2]

These sons are both manifestation and embodiment of His, own dynamic creative energy.

The task of these Rishis is therefore, not so much to create the material world – since this has been undertaken by Brahma Himself, before creating these sons – but rather to endow it with life and vitality.

Roles of Rishis

There are three sets of Brahm Rishis.

1) As Progenitors
The seven Rishis are primarily creators and re-creators. They were created by Brahma for the express purpose of continuing the work of creation. Thus, they by marriages, and ascetic powers created gods, men, demons, birds, beasts, fishes, trees and plants; indeed the whole animate creation. In this role they are called as "Prajapatis" or "bhûtakrts" (makers of man).

Reshis are creators of Gods

Lord Brahma produced Rishis as His mind born sons along with the Trinity of Gods Brahma-Vishnu and Mahesh. The rests of the gods of Hindu thought were created by Rishis. Thus the role of these Rishis is much higher than the gods created by them. Lord Krishna is also described as incarnation of Rishi.

2) As Composers of Hymns

These Rishis are stated to be the composers of Vedic hymns especially Rigveda hymns. These hymns were not composed in the sense of having been created by the Rishis as their own works, as rather to have been "seen by" and revealed to them in the sense of divine revelations. Thus the Rishis were essentially the vehicles or means whereby these "eternal revelations" of hymns were made known to mankind.

3) Performance of Sacrifice (Yagnya)

The Rishis established the sacrifice (Yagnya) as one of the most important means for fulfillment of desires, be it for gaining sons or cattle which was of prime importance at the time these Rishis lived on earth. Sacrifices were performed by Rishis in their role as purohitas or family priests. Thus, Vasishtha Rishi performed the sacrificial anointing of king Dashratha and also performed ashvamedha yajna for him along with other Rishis.

How Rishis Discovered Divine Secret ?

The Rishis performed sacrifices in order to attain heaven (Svargoloka). A passage in Taittiriya samhita states that when gods went to heaven by performing yagnya they hid the traces of (yagnya) sacrifice in the "yupa" or sacrificial post, fearing lest men should discover the sacrifice and follow them, but the Rishis discovered the "yupa" and its hidden secrets and thereby attained heaven.

4) As Teachers

The role of Rishis as teachers is mainly for passing and handing down the knowledge and revelation, which they have received. It is interesting to note that while their role as seers is seen especially in Vedic literature but their role as teacher is emphasized more in the Epics and Puranas.[3]

One of the important objectives of Rishis in each manvantara is to teach knowledge of the Vedas among men. Agastya is renowned as having taught Tamil Grammar to Nikkiran in Madurai. Vasishtha is said to have introduce Vamacara Tantrism into Assam.

5) Performance of Tapas

Tap means heat in Sanskrit, the performance of tapas consequently conveys the idea of inward heating of oneself, through the performance of various religious and ascetic practices. Performance of tapas may be done through all or any of the methods such as yagnya, recitation of sacred books, yoga, jap, meditation, worship of deities or any other ways but the emphasis is always on the inner state of practitioner, whereby he is constantly trying to increase his inner store of mystical heat.

It represents a dynamic state of movement and flux, whereby the gross and material condition gives way to spiritual and divine. The Rishis while performing tapas ,generally live in deep forest at isolated places, far from madding crowds, leading a life of sexual abstention .They also perform ritual bathing at tirthas (sacred rivers or ponds) after long and arduous pilgrimages.

6) Advisors to Kings

The role of rishis as purohita in some cases gave them a powerful role in running the kingdom through their advice or as 'gurus' (spiritual guide) to kings.

7) Dharma

The role of rishis is for preserving dharma – the path of righteousness. It is one of his prime duties along with the act of progenination. Thus ,when the limits of dharma are overstepped either by gods, demons or men, he himself redresses the balance with his fiery curses.

Ascetic Powers of Rishis

By long tapas these Rishis achieved ascetic powers such as controlling or replacing the Sun, or its power; pouring rain in areas where there is no rain; providing sons to needy ones; curing illness and even restoring dead to life; flying in air and assuming different bodily forms. Rishis by their tapas could also destroy demons and curse gods or humans for their failure and thus reduce them to the status of an outcast or a demon or even turning them into stones. Sometimes the Rishis could even destroy the enemies of king by tapas. Angiras rishi drank all the ocean water by His tapas.

Even Rishis can't escape Samsara

The Rishis after acting as progenitors, perform yagnya and tapas on earth, with the desire to go back to heaven, wherefrom they come, and stay with Brahma, till they are sent again on earth by Him as His sons. Purans describe seven lokas (worlds) as Bhu (earth), Bhvah (atmosphere) Svah or Svarga (Sky), Maha, Janah, Tapa, Satya or Brahma Lok. The Rishis come from Svarga loka but after tapas and yajna in each of their stays on earth (Bhu Loka), they go to higher lokas till ultimately they reach Brahma Loka, never to return on earth. Thus, even they are held in a bondage (Samsara) of a higher order.

8) Devine Link

By his tapas, Rishi is thus, one whose attention is towards both heaven and earth, gods and men. By his tapas he seeks both attainment of the divine and also, as a son of the creator, Brahma, fulfillment of his own nature as an integral and necessary actor in the creative process.

Rishis as Individuals

The individual details of rishis both Vedic and Puranic are as follows:

1) Vishvamitra

(Who established Vishvamitra/Kaushika Gotra). He is also called Gadhija (son of king Gadhi) or Kaushika (who had his ashram by the side of river Kaushaki).

Vishvamtira is reputed to be the composer of large number of Rigveda hymns, especially 3rd and 4th mandala. The sacred Gayatri mantra (Rigveda 3.62.10), which is repeated by

Vishwamitras tapas made Indra nervous

Vishvamitra performed tapas for long years and thus became a threat to Indra (God of Heavens) who sent a heavenly dancer girl (apsara) named Menaka to seduce him and this disturb his tapas. His trick worked. Vishvamitra fell to Menaka's charm. He had one daughter from her who became famous as Shakuntala.

Vishwamitra – a prince who became an ascetic

Gautam Buddha was not the only prince who renounced His kingdom to become an ascetic. Long long before Him, Vishvamitra a kshetri prince, who inherited kingdom of Kanauj from his father Gadhi renounced his kingdom to become a brahmin to conduct tapas.

As per Mahabharata story Vishvamitra, while on a hunting mission in a deep forest happened to visit a Reshi's ashram for some food for himself and his entourage. Reshi had a milch cow (Kamdenu) who could provide every thing that he wanted from it. He ordered food to be served to all the guests, which was done by it without loosing time. Vishvamitra was surprised to see this miracle cow and asked reshi for its gift to him in return for various material benefits. Rishi told him politely that for possessing this cow one needs to have spiritual power, which one gets after long meditation called tapas. Vishvamitra was much impressed with the power of tapas. He gave up his kingdom and decided to become a brahmin to receive guidance from the learned rishi. (The story is an illustration of he power of the Self over material objects, which attract a person.)

brahmins and others at prayers, is ascribed to him.

He was married to Dhrti – one of the 13 daughters of Daksha. He had 101 sons from her. He also married Madhavi and got one son, Astaka from her.

2) Jamadagni
(Assimilated in Bhargava Gotra as sub-gotra) He is often termed Rchikaputra (son of Rchika) or Bhargava (descendent of Bhrgu).

Jamadogni married Renuka and he got five sons, of whom Parashurama (Ram with axe- 6th incarnation of Vishnu) was the youngest. He performed yagnya at Palashaka near the Swarsati river and established tirtha at the place where of river Narmada discharges its water into Ocean. His compositions includes Vihavya hymns (Rigveda 10.128), api verses (Rigveda 10.110) and also virajmetre. In the post Vedic literature Jamadagniyas were assimilated in Bhergava Gotra.

3) Bhardvaja
(Assimilated in Angirase Gotra as a sub-gotra). Bherdvaja is sometimes termed as Angirasa (descendent of Angiras) and Vidhalin or Vithatha.

He dwelled at the source of Ganga River. He is referred as Purohita of king Devodasha of Kashi (Varanasi) to whom he taught Ayurveda . Bhardwajas are listed as people of northern India and dwelling near Dwaraka. He married Vira and got sons Drona (of Mahabharata fame) and Yuvakrita besides one daughter Shardvati (who became wife of Indra). His composition includes hymns in praises of Lord Indra in Rigveda (6.23.10, 6.25.9 etc) by which Devodasha gained victories over various kings.

4) Gautam or Gautama
(Sons and descendants of Gautam). (Assimilated in Angirase Gotra as a sub-gotra).

He is said to have lived at Girivraja, the capital of Magadha near Gaya. He married Ahalya and begot a son Satananda. His two other sons: Krpa and Ashvatthaman, were worries of great repute and took part in Mahabharata war. In the Puranic list he has been reduced in status as subordinate to Angiras. He along with his paravara, Gautama has written hymns in praise of Agni in Rigveda.

5) Atri
(Founder of Atreya Gotra). He had his Ashram among the snows by the source of river Airavati in Himalyas. He performed Sraddha rites of king Nimmi and performed tapas on the banks of river Narmada. Atreyas-his people live in northern India.

He married Anosuya, one of the 13 daughters of Daksha and begot three sons Soma, Datta (Dattatreya) and Durvasas. He composed hymns in praise of Agni and Indra in Rigveda. Atri and his descendents are reported to be the composers of fifth mandala of Rigveda.

6) Vasishtha
(Founder of Vasishta Gotra). He is also known as Apava or Kumbhaja (refers to his birth from a pot). He is associated with Mount Meru in Himalayas where he had his Ashram. He made Karukshatra sacred by performing tapas there. He was purohit of Bharatas (Raja Dashratha family) of Ayodhya. He is reputed to have brought Vamacare Tantrism in Assam (Kamerupa).

He married Urja one of the 13th daughters of Daksha and begot seven sons known as referred as Brahaspati.

Angires is said to have been born at the tirth of Dadhichi on the banks of river Saraswati. He is said to dwell at Prayag (Allahabad). Angirases (his tribe) live by Mount

Power of Angiras Tapas

Angiras by the power of his tapas drank all the water of oceans in one gulp.

Kashyp Rishi's link with Kashmir

Kashyap Rishi is one of the tallest Rishi among all the Rishi's. He is the progenitor of almost all Gods and living beings on earth including birds and even plants. He is said to have made tapas in Kashyapa-dvipa (Kashmir), one of the division of Jambudvipa .It is through His tapas that Satisar, a lake got drained off which created land for human settlement. This land came to be known as Kashmir (originally from Kashyp –mur the abode of Kashyp).

Mahendra (Orissa). He married Smriti, the daughter of Daksha and also Subha and begot 8 sons from her, the foremost of whom was Brahaspati and who became father of Gautama and Bhardwaj. He also composed hymns in being.

9) Agastaya
(He was son of Pulstya in previous birth). Praise of Indra (in Rigveda) (Founder of Agastaya Gotra). He is sometime referred as Kumbhaja along with Vasishtha.

He performed tapas and established his ashrams north of Vindyans at Heridwar, Prayag and has a tirtha at Himalayas, yet he is predominantly a South Vindyan rishi and established many ashrams in Dravida land. He married Lopamudra. He composed Tamil grammar and taught it to Nakkiran in Madurai and he is reputed to have established ashrams in Java also. He established Agastya Gotra.

10) Pulastya
Pulastya, Pulaha and Kratie are adopted sons of Agastya and hence they have been assimilated in Agastya Gotra.

He had his ashram on the banks of river Devika and river Godavari. He married Priti daughter of Daksha and begot son Dattoli (who is previous birth was Agastya). He also married Ila vila from whom he begot son Vishrava who married Idevida and got son Kubera (the god of wealth and father of Yakshas-rural demi gods).

11) Bhrgu

(Founder of Bhargava Gotra). Bhrgu is neither included in Vedic list nor in Puranic list of seven Rishis. He represents intermediate position after Shranta Sutra and before Puranas came into.

He had his ashram at Hardiwar and performed his tapas on Mount Puru in Himalayas. He has his tirtha by the Bhagiratha river. He had his ashram at Godevari river and a tirtha by Narmada river at Bhrugukacca (Broach).

Bhargavas-his descendents live in Orissa (Mount Mahendra) and Dvarika. He is reported to have visited Lord Krishna at Dvarika. He composed hymns in praise of Indra in Rigveda.

12) Marichi

(His son Kashyapa founded Kashyapa Gotra). He is sometime referred as Daksha.

Marichi married among others Kala who begot a son Kashyapa. He also married Uma who bore him, six sons who were later on cursed by Brahma for refusing to become progenitors.

13) Pulaha

Pulaha is adopted son of Agastya and hence he has been assimilated in Agastya Gotra.

He married Kshma daughter of Daksha. His progeny include Picachas, Ghosts, Snakes, Monkeys etc.

14) Kratu

Kratu is adopted sons of Agastya and hence he has been assimilated in Agastya Gotra.

He married Sannati daughter of Daksha and begot 60,000 Valakhilyas (attendants of the 'Sun's Chariot').

Himalayan *Rishis

1) Bhagirath (Gangotri)
2) Parashuram (Yamnotri)
3) Charak (Kedarnath)
4) Vyas (Badrinath)

Ravana was Pulastya's son

Pulastaya also married three wives Pushpotkata, Raka and Malini from whom were born Rakshasas (flesh eating demons), the foremost of whom was Ravana (from Pushpotkata). He gave lordship of Lanka to Kubera, which was subsequently seized by Ravana.

Sri (Lakshmi) was daughter of Bhrgu

Bhrgu Rishi married Khyati, daughter of Daksha and begot 2 sons (Dhatr and Vidhatra) and one daughter Sri (or Lakshimi) who became the wife of Vishnu.

Gotra

One of the main roles of the seven Rishis is, being the founders of the seven main 'gotra' – an ancestral lineage of the Hindu society. The gotra lineage, as presented in Shrauta Sutras, is based upon the principal of tracing patrilineal descant back to a common Rishis ancestor. Marriages are generally prohibited within the same gotra and this system is further consolidated through pravara, which includes remote ancestors of a family.

The replacement of some of the Rishis of the Vedic list of seven Rishis by new Rishis in the Puranic period is attributed to two factors by John E. Mitchiner[4]:

1) Gotra Factors
Gotra became a status symbol. Thus it became necessary to include new Rishis as progenitors or head of a gotra who had gained prominence among their followers or as purohits, which consequently lead to downgrading of other Rishis (Gotras) by declaring as sons of new Rishis or simply by excluding them from the new list.

2) Regional Factors
All Vedic Rishis are associated with northern region of India ,that is north of Narmada River or north of Vindyans. It is in this context that some of the Rishis of Puranic period ,who were from south of Narmada region and had established their gotra clan, were inducted in the new list. It is particularly note worthy in this connection that Agastaya Rishi is regarded as the author of Tamil grammar. In the period 100 BC to 200 AD, South India witnessed a golden age during the reign of Satavahana dynasty (50 BC to AD 240) who dominated in religious activities.

The seven gotras as depicted in various texts are as follows: (as per Shruata Sutra).

1) Bhargava founder Bhrgu Rishi (or Bherdvaj).
2) Angirasa founder Angiras Rishi.
3) Atreya founder Atri Rishi.
4) Vaishvamitra or Kaushika founder Vishvamitra Rishi.
5) Kashyapa founder Kashyapa Rishi.
6) Vasishtha founder Vasishtha Rishi.
7) Agastya founder Agestya Rishi.

Sub division of Gotras

The sub-divisions of these gotras are:

1) Bhargava

1.1) Jamadagnya-Bhargavas
1.2) Kevala Bhargavas

Present Day Gotras

Over its long march of time the gotra system in India has undergone many changes. The number is no longer confined to seven. It has either got mixed up with Varuna or has multiplied as a result of inter marriages among rishi families (pravara). Now most of the Brahmans outside Kashmir are having Sharma as their gotra with sub divisions such as Bargava, Vasishtha, Vishvamitra (or Kaushak), Bhardwaj and Dattatriya. Similarly kshitryas are having Verma as their primary gotra and all Vaishas are having Gupta as their main gotra. There are variations among people of different regions about the number of gotras.

Kashmiri Pandit Gotras

Originally there were six gotras among Kashmiri Pandits:

1) Dattatreya
2) Bhardwaj
3) Palladeva
4) Aupamanya
5) Maudgalya
6) Dhaumyayana

By intermarriage and intermixture with other Brahmins, the number of gotras multiplied to 190 (see Annexure A2)[5]. A distinctive feature of these gotras is that some gotras are headed by ladies instead of males.

Chapter Nine

Social Customs

Kashmiri Pandits are essentially gentle, friendly, peaceable and diligent. Their initial shyness and reserve belies an indulgent, gregarious, outgoing and fun-loving nature. They are epicureans and love good food, recreation, enjoyment and devotional music. Highly competitive and egoistical, their social traditions are spiced with a lot of exhibitionism. They are trendsetters wherever they settle and strike good relations with neighbors. Their yearly calendar of family and social activities is packed with events from birthdays to anniversaries, ashtamis (8th day of the bright fortnight), purnimashis (full-moon) to amavasyas (the 15th moonless night), fasting days to feasting days, and elaborate religious ceremonies extending over days and even weeks.

The social customs of Kashmiri Pandits are woven in the history, mythology and religion of the people. They have evolved over the centuries and been subject to a great churning, especially over the last 5 decades since India became free, more so after their forced exodus from the valley in the wake of terrorist violence in the last decade of the last century. Yet, the customs are so deeply embedded in the psyche of Pandits that they took them along as they moved to the plains of India and to different countries around the globe, to equip themselves with a sense of identity and a meaning in their daily lives. One does not, therefore, wonder at the observance by Pandits, settled even overseas, of Kechimavas, a custom as old as the time, when they prepare khichdi on the Magha Amavasi (the fifteenth day of the dark fortnight of Magha) and offer it to the Yaksha; or the custom of distributing the water-soaked walnuts to their kin after Shivratri, even when it entails sending them to large distances by mail; or participating in the elaborate wedding ceremonies, extending to several days, even of distant relatives at the expense of time and travel.

Most of the customs find their origin in some strongly held beliefs, others were need-based and yet others to suit the weather conditions and the resources, like gifting watermelons to wedded daughters on Janam Ashtami because they grow in plenty in that season.

Family Traditions

Kashmiri Pandits have centuries-old tradition of a heirarchical joint-family system with close family ties, now cracking up under the strain of migration. The head of the family is the eldest living male or female whose guidance and blessings are sought in all matters of social and religious importance, like choosing a career, selecting a spouse, celebration of festivals, buying or selling property etc. Though it is a patriarchal system, it is essentially the female who is the foundation of the family, who rules the roost and keeps the family together. However, the family takes vital decisions collectively taking into consideration the sensibilities and urges of the younger generation. The emphasis is always on education and right vocation leading the march up the socio-economic ladder.

Community Life

Kashmiri Pandits are a well-knit ethno-religious community. Even in migration they tend to cluster together in colonies. They were the pioneers of modern education in Kashmir and take the credit for founding many educational institutions and setting up the first ever girls' school in Srinagar. Now, more than ever, they seek to redefine their identity through the establishment of religious, devotional and other community centers in diasporas, recreating some of the most revered religious symbols and temples in exile like the replicas of Khshir Bhavani, Sharika, etc. Quite a number of temples and shrines, dedicated to holy men, savants and sages like Rishpeer, Rupa Bhavani, Swami Laxmanji, Bhagwan Gopi Nath etc. have come up in the new habitations in exile. It is these centers more than any political ideologies, affiliations or platforms that bind the community together.

As opposed to the Hindus in the rest of India, there is no cast system in the Kashmiri Pandits. They are predominantly Brahmins, with a sprinkling of the trader class called Bhoras who specialized in the sale of herbs – dietary and medicinal. However, this is not a watertight classification, with the Bhoras rapidly following in the footsteps of the larger community and getting into education and professions. The priestly class, also Brahmins, called Gurus or Gors, who were the reservoir of learning and scriptural knowledge in the hoary past and would preside over all the social-religious and even secular functions of their yazmans (clients), are now fast getting extinct, largely because the Pandits never made them feel proud in their profession nor provided an economic stability to this class thus, rendering them penurious, dependent and even greedy. Now most of the Pandits perform the common social and religious ceremonies through audio taped instructions, or from the ritual books.

Education as a means to an end is a sin qua non of Kashmiri Pandits. It equips him with knowledge and the means to livelihood, and to ascendancy in life. It is the main goal of their life that led to a common taunt of Muslims, 'The best way to hasten the delivery of a Pandit baby is to dangle a book in front of him as soon as the head is out.' In fact, education is the main mantra that initiates a baby into life resulting in nearly cent percent literacy in Kashmiri Pandits. That is why they are into teaching, sciences and arts, medicine, engineering, IT, law etc. Now more and more are tending to entrepreneurship and business. The rural folk, besides looking after their agriculture, took up government jobs like teachers, technicians, and clerks to supplement their incomes.

Food

Kashmiri Pandits eat four meals a day – a light breakfast and evening tea and two major meals of lunch and dinner. In contrast to the Brahmins elsewhere they are essentially non-vegetarians. This is attributed to the climate, which is harsh in winter when hardly any vegetable could grow except hak.

The breakfast usually means a loaf of bread from the baker, a smaller version of Nan (unleav-

Cooked Delicacies

Non Veg dishes

1. Rogan Josh - spicy hot cooked meat
2. Kaliya - light spicy meat
3. Yakhni - meat cooked in curd
4. Shami - minced meat cooked in curd
5. Kabargah - fried meat ribs
6. Chicken - both fried and cooked

Fowls that migrate in winter and seek shelter in watery bodies are a delicacy.

Veg. dishes

Some ubiquitous vegetarian dishes on festivals are:

1. Nadir - Yakhni - lotus stems cooked in curd
2. Damaloo - solid potatoes fried in oil and then cooked
3. Chock wangun- cooked brinjals (egg plant) with sour taste
4. Saag – Green leafy vegetable.
5. Monj – Knol – Khol
6. Razma – beans.

ened wheat bread), with kehwa tea (hot sugared tea without milk and spiced with cinnamon, saffron, crushed almonds and cardamom) prepared in a Samavar, now fast being replaced by, what is called, Lipton's tea (the universal tea with sugar and milk added to taste). The evening tea could be kehva or Lipton's or a switch over to sheer chai (a beverage, especially of the rural folk, of hot tea with milk, salt and cooking soda) with a bagel (telwor) or some other form of wheat bread.

The major meals consist of the staple diet of plain boiled rice (batta) and vegetables:– Hak (collard green), Monjas (knoll-khol) gourd and pumpkin, eggplant, cauliflower, cabbage, carrot, sochal, leesa, wostahak etc. Potatoes and Nadru (lotus stalk) is a common item, featuring alone or in combination with other vegetables or non-vegetarian preparations; lentils and peas are used sparingly while yogurt is almost invariable. Mutton, fish, eggs, fowl used to be cooked on special occasions but figure more often now with the upwardly mobile social classes who have also taken to serving wine and whiskey. Vegetable medleys, alone or with non-vegetarian items thrown in, are the theme in the diet, common examples being: nadru and potatoes, potatoes and spinach, Hak and nadru, fish and mooli, eggplant and gourd, nadru and dal, cabbage and mutton, mutton and radish etc. Food is well spiced with chilies, a hot favorite. Fruits and sweets, formerly scarce, are now finding a place in the menu.

Dress

About fifty years back at the time of independence of India all the Kashmiri Pandit males and females had a unique dress mostly used in Kashmir only. It has now given way to a common dress worn by north Indians. The only surviving dresses are the headgears worn by males (dastar) and females (taranga) at the time of their marriages.

The traditional dress of a males included a pheran-a long, loose, round, woolen robe up to a length down the knees with a another matching robe of white cotton called poch which acts as a sort of lining to woolen robe. The head gear called dastar or saafa is actually a five by one yard length of muslin cloth, plain or dyed tied round head with a notch in front. The ladies also used to wear a dyed pheran, usually of cotton or fine wool, with a poch. The pheran had woven red tape on borders and arms. The pheran used by males is still in vogue especially during winter months when people are looking for comfortable dress to cover their body.

The ladies head gear, called taranga is an assemblage of a long drawn cap with top fixed with zarbab (cloth woven with gold thread) .The cap has a well starched and polished band of white cotton ribbon about two inches broad all around head and a zooji (an oblong, about one yard by half yard long length of fine cotton cloth, fully decorated with woven patterns) worn on top of cap. The married ladies also put a puuch – a long narrow piece of twisted, well starched cotton cloth, running from head to feet, patterned like a hooded snake, on the back side of taranga. They also tied a long narrowband of cloth (usually coloured) called longi round their waist to hold the pheran tight while working or moving. Children also wore pheran with a cap.

The shoes used were wooden sleepers called khraw or grass sleepers called pulhor.

Marriage (Vivah Samskar)

(see Chapter 19 for religious rituals).
There is possibly no social function anywhere in any community as elaborate, as protracted, as consuming of time, energy and resources, as a Kashmiri wedding. It is a process that starts mentally with the birth of an offspring. It is not uncommon for the parents to comment on what type of a bride or groom they would like for the baby when it grows of age. If it is a girl, the parents start collecting items like jewelry, bridal dresses, expensive garments like the pashmina and shahtoos, and numerous gifts for the groom and his near relatives over a long period of time. This makes her dowry at the wedding time.

When the time is ripe the family starts looking for a suitable match commensurate with the social and economic class, the education and the vocation, the physiognomy and the astrological profile. The family priest prepares the Tekni (the astrological profile) from the horoscope and, supplemented with the secular profile (bio-data) of the groom/bride and the details of the immediate family tree, the information is deposited with a professional marriage councilor or interlocutor called Manzimyor (literally a go-between) who matches the details with a list of prospective grooms/brides from his data bank. However, some families make matches through social intercourse or through common friends and relatives. Once the Teknis are matched and the other expectations met, the boy and girl meet over a cup of tea or a meal and get to know each other as much as possible in a couple of hours. Second and even third meeting are common to reassure oneself before the deal is clinched. This could soon be followed with a formal ring ceremony.

After exodus from Kashmir most young girls and boys, who move away from their parents to the major metropolises and other towns of India in search of education and jobs, find it convenient as well as expedient to strike relationships on their own, within their own community as well as outside. Thus we see an increasing trend to, what are termed, 'love marriages' and 'intercommunity marriages', which are most of the time within the Hindu fold. However, a few inter-faith marriages too are reported now and then. A few traditional

Dapanbatta

It is a tradition among Kashmiri Pandits to visit close relations in person and invite them. A visit to mother's paternal home or brother's family along with the boy or girl who is getting married is essential. The date for visit is fixed in advance. A feast called Dapanbatla is served to guests and others and before departure the mother is given a new sari to wear along with cash (called Atgath) and some traditional items such as "Athor" (to be worn on dejhor) and common salt packet.

A specialty on such occasion and other auspicious ones is the burning of incense called "Isband Zalun".

functions are :

1) Gandun Ceremony - (betrothal, ring ceremony, or kath-bath).
Gandun literally means tying up. It is a formal social function when the boy and girl are declared betrothed, and morally, though not legally, bound to marry on a future date. Quite a few betrothed couples have fallen apart due to one reason or the other without legal consequences.

On an auspicious day the close kin, especially the elders, of the boy would be invited by the girl's side to a high tea, to give the betrothal a social sanction, and get to know each other, exchange pleasantries, confidences and gifts for the prospective bride and groom and discuss the dates, venues, and other formalities and conditions to be met and observed regarding the various aspects of the wedding. The girl is adorned and presented to her prospective in-laws and blessed by them. In recent times gandun has given way to a formal ring ceremony with the boy and girl additionally exchanging rings in the presence of close relatives of both sides

V'ar

V'ary is a preparation made on special occasions. It is rice porridge prepared by cooking rice with oil, with the addition of some spices, salt and lamb intestine called "Chicher" or broken pieces of walnut kernels (for vegetarians)

Isband Zalun

Isband zalun is a tradition of burning a dry herbal seed called isband, which when burnt in fire produces an aroma. It is observed on auspicious occasions. These seeds are held in the right hand fingers and then applied to the forehead of person, who is being blessed, along with a prayer for his/her prosperity and good health and then put in the fire pot (which is usually a kangri - a fire pot woven in a willow basket with handles to carry it with hands). All the present members perform this tradition in turns.

amid feasting and celebration.

2) *Dapan (Pre-matrimony) - The pitch and tempo accelerate after the betrothal, with the shopping sprees, the advance payments to hoteliers and marriage halls, the arrangement of traditional Kashmiri cooks and professional marriage singing troupes, the printing and addressing and posting of invitation cards, the personal visits to close relatives and friends, soliciting their participation in the wedding a (called Dapan bata, which meant personal soliciting but often ended with feasting by the boy or girl with those solicited and receiving gifts and blessings - see Box).

The count down to marriage provides the well-deserved and desired period of courtship for the couple – something that could not even be thought of a few decades back but is openly encouraged now.

3) *Livun - This literally meant washing and painting with sanitized earth during the days of brick and mud houses but now translates into face lifting of the houses with repairs, washing and painting and decorating it. The close relatives and neighbors are invited and, besides other items, served with a delicacy meant for the occasion called V'ar (see Box). It starts on an auspicious day, which could antedate the wedding by a few days. The bride is given a bath and her hair is let loose and oiled with tender care and affection by her loved ones to the accompaniment of music and dance and feasting and singing and the burning of isaband (see Box). The singing goes on for late hours into the morning every day to the end of the wedding. The girl does not tie her hair till the day of her wedding. The groom as well as the bride-to-be is instructed not to stray far from the precincts of their neighborhood, nor to travel to distances till the wedding function lest there is a mishap and this period is called lagnan chamit (the hibernation period before the day).

4) *Mehndirat - (the night of the henna, ladies sangeet). This is a night of special celebration.

The role of Bua (Paternal aunt)

The paternal aunt (Bua) is in charge of the Mahandirat functions. She applies mahandi to boy or girl along with chants of Wanvun (Kashmiri hymns) and then to the entire guest who are present. She receives gift of cash (called Manzizung) from the parents of the boy or girl and from all close relations. Professional mahandi applicators are now called for making nice floral designs on the hands and feet's of the girl. During the day Bua has to carry out other functions: She has to draw floral designs called "Krul" at the entrance of house with synthetic paints put on lime base. She has also to prepare 'V'ar on various occasions (See box) and Ksheer (sweet rice pudding) for for Devgon function.

Tektal

All the ladies who participate in the Devgon function have to clip "Tektal" to their saris. Tektal is a piece of paper, preferably cut from golden sheet, on which the design of Sptgrit matrikas or simply seven marks of Sindur tika are drawn. It has to remain on the head till the performance of puja comes to an end.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

The guests start pouring in early for dinner and to partake in the painting of henna on their palms and soles, in different designs, this being the henna night. The function starts with the anointing with henna of the groom/bride-to-be by their paternal aunt (Bua), to the chanting of henzei wanwun (Kashmiri hymns) by the ladies and the burning of isaband. The aunt receives gifts in cash and kind (manzizang) for being specially privileged to initiate the proceedings. She has also drawn the Krul (a floral design with paints at the entrance of door with a welcome message (like 'Welcome to the marriage of so and so'). Gulimyooth (gifts) also flows in for the hosts to the accompaniment of good wishes and blessings. Simultaneously the singing troupe begin their music and dance, often with the vaakhs (quatrains) of Lalla Ded, that mystic poetess of yore, and as the function warms up the guests too join in the fun, soliciting or singing special tunes and songs, and the youngsters, elders, in fact, everyone present is led by hand into the center to be a part of the fun and merriment. Dinner is served even as the singing goes on till the early hours of the morning when the tempo and pitch rise to a climax with the most favorite songs making an encore.

5) Devgon - It is mainly religious function where the boy or girl is given a bath with consecrated water, purified earlier by a religious ritual (see Chapter 19). In the case of girl's marriage, she is given jewellery to wear also consecrated at the religious ceremony. The main rituals are:

a) Varidan - Preparation of Kheer (a sweet rice porridge) and mungvor (cakes made from a cereal 'moong' flour) for seven deities (Spt Grit Matrikas). It is carried out by Bua (Paternal aunt) on a movable hearth with seven openings called "Varidan", at a place which has

Dejhor

One of the important ornaments, which is put on the girl and is to indicate her marital status for the rest of the life, is "Dejhor" (see Chapter 19 "Vivah Samskar" for its religious significance) (Dejhor is a triangular pair of ornament made from gold with two holes on each piece, for wearing on each ear with the help of a long thread /or gold chain about one foot down the ear This substitutes mangalsutra worn in the neck after marriage by the ladies outside Kashmir.

Vyug

Vyug is symbolic representation of various "grehas" of the universe. (Known as Suryamandal). It is made by drawing a circle on the ground, about four feet in diameter .It is filled with lime powder. Floral designs of grehas are drawn on it with various colours or previously dyed saw dust. Two earthen plates filled with rice with a coin on top, are placed on two corners on the eastern side which represent the presence of Shiv and Shakti Bridegroom is made to stand, facing east, on this Vyug, when he proceeds to brides place. Again he is made to stand on it at bride's place, along with bride before and after marriage ceremony. In some families there is a tradition of drawing vyug on some auspicious days as well .As for example on ashad shukla saptami.

been cleaned and smeared with earth. However, this is being replaced with gas stove now. The Kheer is then placed in number of earthen plates. On top of which is placed mungvor and a walnut. Seven out of these are offered to seven Mother deities during worship and the remaining ones are distributed as prashad. All the participating ladies put on Tektal. (see Box).

b) *Kanishran - Bathing with water, which has been consecrated in a ritualistic ceremony. Recitations of Kashmiri hymns (Wanvun) are made by senior ladies. A clean sheet of cloth is held above the head of boy or girl, who is getting married, by two persons while others keep on pouring consecrated water along with herbs over the head. No soap is used. One may take a regular bath later on.

Aarti Performance

Performance of Aarti involves four steps:

1) Performing Alat (see chapter 16) for its significance) by moving a glass of water over the heads of couple in clockwise manner.
2) Moving a plate, holding seven lighted wicks in lamps made from rice flour, over the heads of couple in clockwise manner.
3) Offering a piece of sweet or sugar candy to the couple to nibble with their teeth three times
4) Blessing the couple with kisses and flower petals on their heads.

c) Fixing of Ornament - In case of girl's marriage, the gold ornaments are first consecrated in a ceremony and then put on the girl. Care is taken that it does not disturb her hair which has been let loose a few days earlier on "masmuchrun" function. Twigs of mulberry tree may be used as aid for touching the hair. No comb is to be used. One of the important ornaments to wear is dejhor (see Box).

6) *Lagan (wedding) - It involves both religious and social rituals. Religious rituals have been described in Chapter 19. Social traditions are :

a) At Bridegrooms place - The groom gets a haircut and shave and a bath while the guests are gathering and being served light refreshment. To the accompaniment of Wanwun and the burning of Isaband, the groom is helped into a dress of Achkan and Churidhar (high-buttoned jacket and tight-fitting wrinkled trousers). A turban of pink or light yellow colour is fitted on his head by his uncle or an elder proficient in fashioning the headwear, with a tongue of hair peeping in front. A saffron tilak (dot) shines in the

Jaimalla Ceremony

A new tradition has been introduced lately where under the bride puts on a floral garland in the neck of bridegroom and then the bridegroom reciprocates by doing the same to the bride. This ceremony is called "Jaimalla Ceremony". The garlands are put in the presence of guests who clap loudly when these garlands are exchanged. It is time for photographers and video recorders to click on their cameras. This act has no religious significance.

center of his forehead. A brand new shoe gives him a dignified light tread, and a handkerchief peeps lightly from the left upper pocket of his jacket. He will have company from now on with a chaperon holding a Chattar (floral umbrella) on his head and another blowing into a large conch every now and then, announcing him wherever he moves. In short he is all set to win his bride as he steps on to a Vyug (see Box), faces east while his mother comes forward to perform Aarti to the admirationa and the blessings of the restive Baratis. From here, to the accompaniment of a long and loud sound of the conch, and the wanwun by ladies and showering of petals, dates, sugar-pellets (shirin), he is led to a decorated car and seated, flanked by a troupe of kids, one of whom is dressed especially like a baby bridegroom called Poth Maharaza (after-groom). The bridegroom's car leads a procession of cars and buses filled with the Baratis.

b) At Brides place - The main hub of activity is the bride's place. Here too the guests arrive to receive the Barat. The bride has a shower and is soon flanked by a hive of busy ladies, working with brushes and combs, with oils, scents and perfumes, plaiting her loose hair into the right shape and style, helping her dress in an exquisitely brocaded soft silken sari, generally of a shade of red and fitting a headwear called Taranga (see under Dress). Soon her arms are jingling with gold bangles, ears dazzling with dejhor and ear rings, the neck heavy with necklaces, the fingers smothered with rings of various designs, the hands and feet patterned in henna, a dot of saffron shining in the middle of her forehead, blazing a trail of sweet fragrance wherever she moves. She is like a fairy, fit for a god!

Meanwhile the reception is being given final touches- for this is the real test of the parents, an event which will be talked about for a long time and recounted in the near and distant future, salvaged repeatedly from memory, from albums and, in modern times, from audios and videos - the huge colorful shamiana which will accommodate nearly 500 people, buntings and balloons, flower pots and vases, designs and decorations, incense and fragrance, and a red carpet right up to the road where the groom and his party of Baratis (the guests of the groom's side) arrive in a wedding procession to be received with full ceremony and regalia through gates and arches, under the glare of flood lights, to the sound of conchs and the soft melodious strains of Shehnai (a wind instrument) as the groom and the elders are being garlanded and hugged, and kissed on the forehead in an effusive outpouring of bonhomie and affection. They are seated and served courses of snacks while the groom is led to a settee on a specially raised and highly decorated dais where the bride, helped by bride-maids and bellies moving slowly and softly joins him sitting on his left, to the clicking of cameras and the cheering of people. Now a days the Jaimala (the ceremony of exchange of garlands between the groom and bride in the Swayamvara fashion of Ramayana times - see Box) is performed at this point. Soon the couple are led to a Vyug, facing east for Aarti and then to a door of the house for the Dwar Puja (worship at the door) as a prerequisite for the groom to formally enter the house of his in-laws for the first time and from there to a specially consecrated spot for the elaborate religious ceremony of uniting the couple in the eternal bliss of holy matrimony. This takes six to eight hours depending how quickly the priest performs the rituals Baratis are served with a sumptuous lunch/ dinner, nearly always vegetarian, with numerous dishes, courses, refreshments, snacks, cold drinks, ice creams thrown in.

The religious ceremony over, the close Baratis who stayed back are now all gathered for the final, emotional act in this real life drama – the Vidai (farewell ceremony). The groom steps into the Vyoog and the bride is helped out from her house from the window by her maternal uncle in his lap and placed on the Vyug by the left side of the groom and both go through the symbolic Aarti, biting from the same sweet thrice over, their manaanmalas (golden chains tied around their heads) exchanged between them, as they step out towards the waiting car, thronged by all close friend and relatives of both sides, showering petals and blessings, singing songs, and bathing the scene with the tears and wails of separation. She departs, this beloved of her parents, dear to her siblings, friend of friends, in a royal farewell, taking along a dowry, a pot of yogurt ( Dud dull), huge bowls of crystal candy (Nabad nott) and the anguished hearts and plaints of loved ones.

Athor

Athor is a broom like object about three inches long made of threads coated with silvery or golden shine. It may be made from gold also which looks like an inverted cup to which small hanging chains and beads are fixed.

7) *Nosh Annin - (Getting bride to home) The couples at home are received with the singing of songs by the young girls and ladies at the house. They are again made to stand on the "vyug" where all the formalities of Aarti as stated above are carried out by the eldest lady of the family. The "mannanmals" of couples are removed and they are directed towards the entrance of the house. A little fun by the sister of the husband adds to the joys of celebration. She bolts the door from inside the entrance and does not allow couple to step in till she is promised an acceptable gift by her newly married brother. This is called "Zembrand." The couple upon the entrance to the house is lead to the kitchen and made to sit there on chairs (originally it was on the hearth) where they are served with symbolic food and blessed to live as a happy family unit. While the husband is allowed to go wherever he wants, the bride is ushered to a place, which has been decorated for her to sit. The eldest lady of the house is the first person to lift the veil of the bride to see her face in the presence of on lookers who have assembles there. The bride has carried a gift of gold ring or chain for her in her purse from her home and she offers it to her. It is accepted as a routine and is displayed to eager onlookers. As a matter of fact she has carried gifts of gold ornaments for all close relations and also dresses for them and even distant relatives which are in a trunk and would be distributed among them later on. Kashmiri Pandits do not demand cash as dowry (a custom which is so widespread in Indian society). A traditional dowry includes gold ornaments dresses of bride, some presents for family members, utensils etc. Recent additions include television set, music system, refrigerator, furniture and may be a car as well. For the time being every one wants to see the bride and assess the quantity of her gold ornaments, which she has got from parents side.

After she is served with milk or tea and sweets which she accepts after much persuasion, the bride is lead to a room where she is given a new dress and additional gold jewellery to which she is helped by the young ladies of the house. An essential part of jewellary to the bride is a gold chain called "Atth" which replaces the cotton thread of "Dejhur" which the bride is wearing from her parent's home. An "Athor" is fixed to the "Atth" at the bottom below where there is "dejhur", on both sides of her ear. The bride has to wear this combo of Atth, Dejhor and Athor always as a status of her married life Kasmiri Pandit ladies do not follow the tradition of putting on sindur at parting place of hair as a symbol of married status nor do they wear Mngalsutr.

8) Satrat - (the blessed night) The newly wed couple, husband usually in a new suit, and wife in new dress goes back to her parent's house in the evening of the same day of marriage (or next day if it happens to be Saturday) for what is called time. The couple are served a dinner along with other family members. This is an occasion to introduce newly wed son in law to other close relations of girl's family. He is given new cloths, usually a suit, to wear at his in laws place and so is the case with the bride. Both of them return to their home (usually very late in night) along with another "Duddhul" and "Nabad noot" for the family.

9) Phirsaal (The return invitation) and Gharachun (entering the house). These are two more functions that make the whole series of dramatic events of this wedding so tiresome, yet so colorful and zealously adhered to, to an end.

Phirsal is an invitation to the couple from the bride's people to stay with them for a few days so the groom gets to know first hand the immediate relatives, and to feel and be like a member of the family. More gifts accrue, new dishes are served, and sometimes picnics thrown in .This function are now giving way to Garachun.

Garachun is an optional grand invitation the bride's and the groom's people owe to each other by virtue of a long tradition of exchange invitations, that most would like to get over with sooner or later. It is like a mill round the neck; the earlier it is got rid of the better. The idea is to invite all the relatives of the groom to the bride's side and vice versa, for a closer acquaintance with each others relatives and friends, to an elaborate multi-course dinner/lunch. This is the occasion to wear your best dresses and your best jewelry, to showcase your culinary aesthetics, and in short to do something special and memorable. In that race of one-upmanship the function becomes more and more complicated and elaborate. The invitees assemble outside the host's residence and are welcomed by the traditional Aalat (see Chapter 16 for details) as they file past in a line, entering the house (gara achun) of the host. The function drags on for many hours what with pre- and post-lunch/dinner snacks/tea/kehwa/coffee/hard and soft beverages/music/dance etc. Cash flows in from the bride's to the groom's people on all occasions.

Mekhal/Upanyana (Thread ceremony)

The thread ceremony is the most important religious ceremony for male off springs of a family, which has morphed into yet another elaborate social function. Essentially it is the symbolic wearing of the sacred thread that initiates the boy into the life of a student. In effect he becomes a twice-born Brahmin, in preparation of the bramcharya (student) phase of life, learning at the ashram of a guru (precept), doing all the family chores for the guru including collecting biksha (alms), acquiring knowledge and skills to prepare for the next phase, the grahsti (family) life. No boy can marry until he has worn the sacred thread. The boy going through the thread ceremony is designated as a groom during the tenure of the function.

The whole ceremony assumes almost the same elaborate form as the wedding with dapanbhata (invitation), levun (washing and cleaning), mehndiraat, devgon and the mekhal (the thread ceremony) proper The additional function is Durbatta (see Box).

The religious function is a long-drawn havan (see Chapter 19) with the chanting of mantras and hymns to the accompaniment of the sound of conchs, and the fire offerings by the 'groom' who, attired in yellow cotton robes and animal skin like a bramcharya of yore, with his head clean shaven except for a chog (a short shock of hair on the crown), sporting a saffron dot on the middle of his forehead and a Narivan on his wrist, solicits dakhshana in a begging bowl for the priest (precept), accepting it from the guests who offer abid (alms in the form of cash) and utter blessings for the groom. The guests are served refreshments after they have made offerings to the fire. Shakerparas (cookies made of the flour of water chestnut), a special delicacy for the gourmet, are served on the occasion .The main functions on the day of upanyana are as under:

1) Narivam Kharun – The ladies of clan who are wives of near relations from paternal side assemble at the place where religious function is taking place and are helped by their respective husbands in putting on a band of mavli (called Narivan in Kashmiri) in their hair, with the help of mulberry twigs, so that it hangs down by the side of both the ears of the lady. They put on Tektal (see Box in marriage ceremony).The ladies after this are invited on various occasions in the performance of religious ceremony to represent the parivar (same gotra persons).
2) Abîd – Cash donation for the family priest who is conducting the ceremony. The first person to offer abid is mother's sister (masi) and her family, followed by others. Abid is a tradition in which the boy symbolically is asked to beg cash from relations

Durbata

An invitation for a special lunch function is held prior to mahandirat or on the day of mahandirat for boys' maternal grandparents along with all their relations, friends, and neighbours. The assemblage may go up to more than hundred. They are treated as VIPs and served with many courses of a nice meal. The invitation is not for nothing. They bring costly dresses for boy, his mother, father and other relations as presents. The ladies in their best dresses and jewellery are eager to join this function. A token amount of money is paid to the receiving family as "Gar -Achun" (first time entry to the house) by those who are going to boys house for the first time of time.

and parents to pay the sacrificial fees (guru dakshina) to the priest who has initiated the boy through yagnopavit ceremony.

3) Serving Refreshment – While the religious function is going on (which goes on till the evening) people come to offer abîd and later on they are treated to various kinds of refreshments such as hot tea, cold drinks, ice cream, snacks, sweets, fruits etc. A recent trend has been to set up stalls where choicest snacks, besides fruits, drinks etc are offered. Maternal side (matamal), paternal aunt (Bua) and mother's sister (masi) all participate in offering these refreshments. Packets of sweets are offered to guests for taking home.
4) Visit to the Temple – After the religious ceremony is over, the boy or boys are dressed in new clothes and a turban is put on the head. Then they are taken to a temple for a darshan of the deity to seek blessings.
5) Prashad – While the boys are on the visit to temple the place around the agnikund, where the ceremony has been going on, is cleaned and smeared with water and earth for serving dinner to boys, priest and all those who had kept a fast during the day. The special menu of dinner is moong dal (cooked lintel) and vegetables served with boiled rice. After serving food to them it is shared by all guests as prashad.
6) Vyugs Nachun – When Mekhal maharaza (Maharazas) are on visit to temple the ladies assemble to perform a dance to celebrate the occasion.( For details see under dance in this Chapter).
7) Kushalhom - Next day after yagnopavit ceremony the sacred yellow yagnopavit is replaced with a normal white yagnopavit. A small homa is performed and lunch is served to close relatives before they leave the place.
8) Atgat - All the married girls of family, who were invited, are given presents of cash (called atgath). This may be sent to them few days after the function is over.

Other Social Functions

Although marriage (Vivah) and Mekhal are the major socio religious events, there are other karmic sanskars such as kahnether, namkarn etc. Which are celebrated at a lower scale? These have been described in Chapter 19. Kashmiri Pandits celebrate their festivals with great fun. These have been described separately in the next Chapter (see Chapter 10).

Death and Mourning

Life and death go side by side while celebrations bring joy and excitement, death in the family cause's pain and mourning. The religious rituals associated with the death have been described in Chapter 20. An intriguing part of religious rituals is that the spouse of the deceased person is not involved in the performance of religious ceremonies as they are not blood relatives, who only can perform these rituals. Some social traditions are as follows:

a) Punndâv Chatn – Soon after knowing about the death of an elder, the ladies of the house and closely related ladies remove gold chains, which they usually wear round their necks, as the first act of mourning. This is put back after the mourning is over.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

b) Bâk Travn - During the first 10 days the elder ladies of house who have joined in the mourning, cry and weep in the morning, which may last for half an hour, to express grief at the departure of a dear one. This is called Bâk Travn.

c) Chhalun (Cleaning) - All except the elder son or sons and widow of deceased person choose a date falling on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday before 10th day for taking a bath and change their cloths. The widow takes first bath and changes clothes on 13 day after the death of her husband.

d) Dahim Doh - Tenth day mourning - On the tenth day after the death of an individual when males of family return from the bathing ghat, after performing rituals there (described in Chapter 20), all the relations and neighbors come to the family to join in their grief. This is the last day for public mourning. The next two days are for religious ceremonies only. On this day the married male sons of the deceased person, who have to tonsure their heads at the bathing ghat, receive new dress for wearing at ghat from their in laws along with a shawl to cover their body. The in-laws of son's also arrange to serve milk, tea, fruits etc to all the mourners at house. In case of death of wife, the husband also takes bath on this day.

e) Year long mourning – The mourning lasts technically for one year when the first shraddha of the dead ancestor is performed. During this period the widow of the deceased person does not participate in any celebrations outside home. No celebrations are held at home. However, all religious rituals are performed strictly as per religious needs. Close relations keep on visiting the family on important festival days to share the grief. An earthen lamp called "Sandya Chong" is kept on burning in the evening at some window to guide the spirit of deceased one.

f) Shadmos and Vaherver - Six months after the death of an individual a homa is performed at the house. All the near and dear ones are invited for a dinner.

On the first death anniversary (called Vehrver) after performance of Shraddha (see Chapter 20) a dinner s served to close relations to mark the end of mourning.

Singing

There are two types of singing practices:

a) Wanavun Ceremonial singing
b) Normal singing

a) Wanavun - It is one of the earliest forms of folk lore among Kashmiri Pandits, which is used as a ceremonial chant on various religious ceremonies such as vivah, mekhal, kahnether etc. (see Box).

Wanavun Verses have been composed for all the social traditions, associated with various religious functions, such as Krul Kharun, Manzirath, Devgoen, Mekhal, Yeoni Travun, Abeed, Lagan, Poshpooza etc. (see Appendix A5).

b) Normal Singing - Kashmiris have a rich collection of songs, which they enjoy

CC-OAgamnigam Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Wanvun

Wanavun always starts with the word "Hanzae" [1] which signals a call to the ladies to join a session of ceremonial chants. The elderly lady who leads the group is called Vanavan-gar.

Some say wanavun represents Kashmiri version of Shastri Sangeet.[2] In its form, Wanavun is a couplet, the second line of which is shorter than the first. It is always sung in syllables. For examples the word Hemzae is recited as

H....h... h...n....n...n...zae....zae....zae

The Couplet

Shoklam Karith Hyotay Vanavoenuy
Rut Phal Dyutay Māji Bhavanae

(With the recitation of Shuklam have we started chanting Vanavun. Mother Bhavani has bestowed upon us a boon benign) would be sung as:

Sho..o..o..k..k..l..l..l..m..m; Ka..ka...ka...rl..ri..th..th;
Hyo..hyo..tay...tay...tay;Va...Va..Va..na..va..voe..voe..ny..ny..ny's;
Ru..ru.t..t..t..Ph..ph..ph..l..l..l.. Dyu...dyu...ty...ty..ty; Ma..ma..ma..Ji..ji.
Bha..bha..bha..va..va..va..Nae..nae..nae.

It is custom to start Vanavun with the call to Lord Ganesha as indicated in the above Verse.

singing on several social and other events. Some of these songs are sung by individuals or groups to the tune of music on mahandirat. Recitation of Lal Vakhs (called Vâk-Shruk) is common, before the start of musical singing.

Music

Kashmiri Pandits do not boast of a great musical heritage. The instruments they play on social or other occasions are:

1) Tumbeknari – It is a percussion type musical instrument made from hard baked clay. It is cylindrical pipe like object, about 4 inches in diameter and 15 inches long. One end is board, about eight inches in diameter to which sheep skin has been fixed hard. When played it is held tight under the pit of the left arm and beaten hard by both the hands in a rhythmic order.
2) Ghagar – The domestic metal pitcher Ghagar is played by hitting it hard with a bunch of house keys to produce rhythmic sound along with the sounds of other instruments.
3) Nott – It is like the domestic earthen water pitcher with a narrow neck . It is played by hitting with both the hands to produce musical sounds.

4) Chumta – Metallic long tong like an object fixed with small metallic discs which are played by shaking it to the tune of music.
5) Other objects – such as metallic plate (Thal) metallic Cup (Khos) etc are also sometimes played to produce rhythmic sound.
6) Harmonium – It may also be played if a harmonium playing person in available.

There are great professional music players of Sitar, Santoor, Flute, Rabab, Tabla among Kashmiri Pandits but they are not part of social tradition.

Dance

Kashmiri Pandits do not have a great tradition of dancing like their neighbors in Punjab. A few traditions may be described as under:

a) Vyugs Nachun - The only traditional dance is the one called "Vyugs Nachun" – where under several ladies assemble after a religious function, such as mekhal is drawing close. These ladies celebrate the event by making a round circle and going round and round with each one of them going into the middle of circle by turns. While dancing the ladies keep on singing a few couplets of joy and prayers. The lady who is in the middle is named and recitations are sung in her honour. Unlike Vanavun, the rhythmic beat in the singing is faster. An example:

i) So'ndav Gndm Te Dil Hai Gom Tazy
.....Lal Baneo Âj Maharazy
(I have worn a gold chain, which has brightened my heart. It is so because so and so..... (name of person) has become maharaza (king like person in whose honour the ceremony has been performed).

ii) Haer Vch Nchneyte Saer Sonsundye;
(Haer in Kashmiri means flying bird myna which symbolises prettiness). The word Haer is replaced with the name of the lady who is dancing in the middle of circle. e.g. (Kishni/Ratna/Shoba). The second line of this couplet is repeated with other demands e.g. Hari Gch Chndnhar suit S'on Sundye (Haer wants a Chandan Har that too made of gold. Chandan Har stands for necklace).

Again
Hari Gchi (name of item of demand e.g.bangle) Sute S'on Sundye.

A few more rhymes are:

iii) Pompr Dichm Shams Gatha
(I enjoyed my life at Pampore).
Rtha Vndyi Malinyo
(I swear my blood for you, my dear paternal home).
Beni ch B'aays Rfakatha
(Dear brother and sister we love each other)
Rtha Vndyi Malinyo
Mey Chy B'ayjanin Stha
(I have full faith in my brother)
Rtha Vndyi Malinyo
Aalth Travem Mohar Hatha
(I am offering hundred coins as Aalat)
Rtha Vndyi Malinyo

iv) Hum Vothum Vigi Khotum
Tot Wothum Yarbal
(My dear boy has completed yagnya performance and is now on vyug)
Maharaz Vigi Khotum
Tot Wothum Yarbal
(My dear son is standing on vyug after performing rites at the river bank)

v) Lokut Yzman Khotkho Rathe
(Little Yajman i.e. Mekhal Maharaja has climbed the chariot)
Athe Lal Te Ratn Heth
(His hands are full of jewels)
Baye Myane Khotkho Rthe
(My dear brother you have climbed the chariot)
Athe Lal Te Ratn Heth

b) Rouf - Rouf is traditionally Muslim ladies dance which is being adopted by Kashmiri Pandit ladies as well. In this dance, the ladies divide themselves into two groups. Ladies of each group join hand and take steps back and front jointly along with recitation of some lines of a couplet with a fast beat. While one group in chorus sings the first line of couplet, the other group sings the second line after the first group has stopped. The movement of steps is not stopped at any time till the whole rouf sequence is over.

CHAPTER TEN

FESTIVALS

The life of a Kashmiri Pandits revolves round observance of all sorts of festivals, which are socio religious in nature.The local history and climate also plays an important part in the observance of the festivals. Nilamatpuran states the number of such festivals was sixty five at the time of entry of Saraswats in to Kashmir (see-Introduction).The lunar month of Posh and Phalgun, with its freezing temperature, provides an excellent set up to enjoy non vegetarian dishes like Rogan Josh, Machh, Shikar, fish etc.hence festivals like Gad Batta, Shushr and Shivaratri (Spanning over three weeks). The spring, after a long winter, when flowers appear and trees start to blossom the call is for an outing and hence festivals like Zang Trai, Baisakhi etc.Sumer brings plenty of fruit and hence, festival of Zarm Sattam, the day when one enjoys fruits only. The observance of these traditions is closely associated with lunar calendar (Panchang). It is for this reason that a Kashmiri Pandit always keeps a copy of Panchang handy and waits eagerly for its annual publication.

Monthly Festivals (As per lunar months)

1) Chet (Shukla Paksha)

Navrah (New Year) and Chetr Navratrâ

The first day Chetr Shukla Paksha is celebrated as the start of Chet Navratras by all Hindus. Kashmiri Pandits celebrate it as Navrah ( New Year day). The preparations for this event starts with previous night with a prepration known as 'Thal Barun" (see Box). Thal Barun is a tradition which symbolises prosperity for the coming year.

Thal Barun

A thali (metal plate) is filled to top with rice on which are placed new Panchang, lump of cooked rice, curd (in a cup) bread, salt (in paper) a pen with inkpot, fresh flowers, a coin, a mirror, a photo of chosen deity, and some walnuts. Wye a herb also was placed but now it has become very rare due to its non-availability. All this is covered with a cloth or another thali for night.

On the morning of Navreh, an unmarried daughter of family or in her absence any lady of house, carries this thali to all members, even to their beds, to enable them to have a look at it as the first object in the morning ,which is considered very auspicious. The girl who carried it is given blessings and a presents (cash or kind).

In Kashmir, the male members used to go

CC-OAgamnigam [illegible] reservation Foundation , [illegible]igarh to river bank, early in the morning, to have a bath. They would carry walnuts, placed over thal, and offer them to gods in the river, which were picked up by waiting boatman. The rice is used for making Th'hr; which is eaten by family members. If weather permits people would go for a round of Hari Parbhat to offer puja at various temples and shrines and also to have a picnic there at the base of Chekreshwar temple where there used to be almond trees in their early blossom in pink colour at this time of the year. Gone are the trees and the remembrances associated with this festival in Kashmir. The land is now is occupied by houses.

Te'hr

It is a tradition among Kashmiri Pandits to prepare Te'hr on festivals which is offered as navid in the puja and then taken as prashad. Tehri is prepared by adding turmeric powder to rice while it is boiling. Later on salt and melted ghee are mixed with it. Te'hr is distributed among neighbors also as prashad.

It is considered auspicious to wear new or freshly washed cloths on Navreh. A new born baby or a new bride in the family is an object of great attention, who is showered with all blessings by seniors. For newly married girls it is tradition to go to their parent's house before this day, but return back to in -laws house in time to join in the festivities. She may carry some curd and cash from her parents house as a good omen (Shogun). There is a tradition in some families to sow barley in a clean pot on the first day of Navratra and keep it at a sacred place, worship it and water these seeds with water and milk for all the nine days of Navratra. A good growth of plants is considered a good omen. These plants are then immersed in river water. Some families observe these nine days by observing a Vrat (one meal only). People consider these 9 days as very auspicious and spend much time visiting temples or conducting sat-sung etc. Some people just keep on performing jaaps. Generally vegetarian food only is taken during these days.

Third day of Nnavratra is celebrated as 'Zang Trai'. On this day the ladies of family go to visit their parents or brothers and return back same day. If weather permits one may go for a picnic to some garden or even a temple along with all family members. This festival brings joy and happiness after a long chilling winter.

On 8th day (Durga Ashtami) and on 9th day (called Ram Navmi) havans (yagnya) are performed at some sacred places like Khir Bhawani, Hari Parbat or temple (like Ram Chander temple of Sathu) where people go all day long and also enjoy favourite snacks prepared by make shift vendors (known as Halwai).

A special feature of Ram Navami at Srinagar used to be a visit to temple inside fort at Hari Parbat which usually remains closed to people round the year except on this day. Earlier there used to be a 'mela' at Chakreshwar on Hari Parbat, where people of all faiths would go to enjoy blossoming of almond trees, but that tradition has died now.

2) *Vaishakh

It falls on the first day of Bikrimi calendar (Solar

Vrat (Fast)

Fasting is a religious tradition among Hindus and it is known as Vrat. Vrat connotes no eating, but among Kashmiri Pandit tradition Vrat stands for one time eating of cereals only along with cooked vegetables and at the same time avoiding other vegetables such as spinach onions, turnip, carrot, beans and even tomatoes in some families. In actual practice performance of Vrat means observance of certain other traditions as well such as :

1) Eating meals (boiled rice etc) one time only.
2) Cleaning the place of cooking and all utensils used for cooking and eating.
3) Performing Aachman (see Chapter 18) at the time of eating one time meal and after finishing food.
4) One can eat fruits, take tea (except salt tea other than at the time of having one time meal).

However, on certain occasions such as Shiv Chaturdashi, Krishna Janam Ashtami and on Ekadeshis, no cereals are taken. These are known as Kaish Fakah.

calendar) which was the official calendar in J & K State till 1947. Baisakhi always corresponds to 13/14th April. This day is a very sacred day for Indian masses and is observed as a national holiday. For Sikhs, this day is very important day as it is the day when Sikhism was born about 600 years back. In Kashmir it is celebrated at state level as the starting day of local festivals after a long winter break. A festival is held at Nishat Garden where people of all faiths go to enjoy it. There is no religious activity associated with this day. It is purely a social event for all Kashmiris.

3) *Jesht

Jyest Ashtami

Ragnya Bhagwati is Isht Devi of majority of Kashmiri Pandits. Shukla Paksha Ashtami of the lunar month of Jyesth is celebrated as the birthday of Ragnya Bhagwati who is established at Khir Bhawani Temple, Tullamulla. It is a day of great celebration. Most of the people go to Khirbhawani to offer prayers and enjoy snacks of Lucchi (a kind of flat fried bread) and 'Nadumunj' (friend lotus stems dipped in basin flour). For devout it is day of Vrat. State government has declared this day as a state holiday. Every monthly occurrence of Shukla Astami is observed as a Vrat day. Ragnya, Bhagwati is strictly a vegetarian deity.

4) *Aashad

Har Chaturdashi

Shukla Chaturdashi of the lunar month of Ashad (hâr) is celebrated as birth day of Jwala Bhagwati located on top of Hill at Khrew. Jwalla Bhagwati is 'Ishtdevi' of some Kashmiri Pandits. Jwala is non-vegetarian and as such Te'hr (yellow cooked rice) along with cooked liver of lamb is served as prashad to people. Uncooked lungs and heart of goat or a lamb are fed to eagles and vultures who are always around there.

Guru Poornima (or Vyas Puja)

Ashad Poornima is observed as Guru

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Poornima by all Hindus. On this day people go to their Guru's Ashram to pay obeyance to their Guru. This day is also observed as Vyas Puja. Vyas is considered to be the person who compiled Vedas and Ithasas such as Ramayana and Mahabharata.

5) *Shravan

Nag Panchami

Sukhla Panchmi of Shravan is observed as Nag Panchami when people go to springs and carry worship of snakes there by pouring milk in the springs, which are considered as abodes of snakes.

Shrawan Bahh

Shukla Dwadashi of the month of Shrawan is observed for performing rites of dead children in the family. It is performed at a spring called Kapal Mochan at Batapora in Shopian.

Shrawan Punim (Raksha Bandan)

Shrawan Poornmashi which is observed as Raksha Bandan by Hindus is also observed as a Vrat day. It is the day when people have dharshan of Shivalinga at Amarnath and also at several other places such as Thujwar in Anantnag, Harkmukh at Khunmuh, Shankeracherya at Srinagar and other Shiva's temples (see Chapter 13 and 14).

6) *Bhadr

Chandan Shashti

Bhadr Krishna Paksha Shukla is observed as Chandan Shashti by women folk for the welfare of their husbands. It is a substitute of Kadva Choth observed by non Kashmiri women.

Zarm-Sattam (Krishna Birthday)

Krishna Janam Ashtami is celebrated as "Zarm-Sattam" by Kashmiri Pandits . It is celebrated as birthday of Lord Krishna on 7th dark fortnight of the lunar month of Bhadrapad. (see Box) Fasting on Zarmsatam is of a different type. No cereals are taken. Fried vegetable and fruit pakodas are specially prepared and taken by all. Singhara flour is used in these preparations.

All sorts of fruits are also consumed. Watermelon is in great demand. This festival falls in August, when Kashmir is full of all varieties of fruits, so one can say it is festival of fruits for Kashmiris.

Why Kashmiris observe Lord Krishnas Birthday on Saptami and not on Ashtami ?

Although all Hindus celebrate Ashtami as the birthday of Lord Krishna but in Kashmir it is celebrated on Saptami . The logic behind this as stated by Nagri (Koshur Samachar April 2002) is that the "birth time must follow days fast. The post-birth period is for rejoicing and not for observing any fast. Our ancestors in Kashmir had comprehended this principle and that is why we perform pooja, etc. during the night that would be carrying 8th tithi and observe a fast during the day proceeding immediate to that night".

This logic may apply to Shivratri as well, which is also celebrated one day earlier than when it is celebrated outside Kashmir.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

People visit temples in the evening where Lord Krishna statues or photos are decorated with flowers. Mass recitation of Krishna leelas is done and discussions on teaching of Bhagvadgita are carried out. Some people decorate their homes with Lord Krishna pictures and recite Geeta & Bhajans late into night when fast is broken with the sighting of Moon and a small pooja or prayer is performed for prosperity and well being of all.

Next to Shivaratri this is the day of great social interaction among Kashmiri Pandits. As per the tradition, the newly wed daughter-in-law goes to her parental home a few days earlier and returns back to home on this day. She brings new dress for herself, lots of fruits, sweats and curds, which is consumed by family members and distributed among neighbours and relations. She also brings some cash for in laws.

At community level this festival used to be celebrated by taking a procession from Ganpatyar, Srinagar with 'Jankis' of Lord Krishna from all the temples of city ,which would go round certain parts of city. People would come out of their homes to watch this procession as a matter of faith and to have fun.

Vinayak Chaturthi- Chaturdashi

(Punn Ceremony) Vinayak Chaturthi heralds a 10 day celebration of Lord Ganesha's festival. In Maharashtra it is a big annual event. Kashmiri Pandits observe this festival on any of the auspicious days during this perid as indicated in the panchang by performing a ceremony known as "Punn". Punn is a festival unique to Kashmiri Pandits for it a day of enjoying fresh rott with kehwa tea.

Punn ceremony is performed by preparing rotts-large sweetened thick breads, fried in ghee. Preparations start from early morning with a bath and then measuring the quantities of wheat flour, sugar, ghee milk and popy seeds that go in the preparation of rotts, which in turn depends on the the number of family members, relations, married daughters etc. and the share of daity. All the ladies of house are involved in the prepation of rotts, while children get involved in the collection of clean grass and flowers to be offered in the Puja. Time for the performance of Puja starts when the house lady announces the completion of rott preparation. For Puja a decorated pot with sindur swastic diagram drawn it, symbolising Lord Ganesh, is kept in a corner of room, with a picture or idol of Lord Ganesh by the side. All the members of family, are given a mixture of green grass, flower petals and rice by the house lady to hold in their hands till the completion of Puja. Additional quantities of mixture are given for absent members and also for fulfilment of special wishes. Narivans are tied around the wrists and sindur tika is applied to them. The house lady attaches an unspun cotten thread called punn to her athor (This gives the name to Punn ceremony). It is now time for house lady or by any other person to narrate an interesting story of Bib Dharammoj (see Box), which is listened with rapt attention.The story ends with the prayer: "May Lord Ganesh accept our bhog of roths in puja in the same spirit and remove our obstacles in all our endeavors." After narration of this story a brief puja is held by reciting some hymns or bhajans and performance of Prepun in which roths are offered as bhog to Lord Ganesh.

At the close of puja all persons put the mixture of grass and flowers in the pot. Prayers

Bib Dharmmoj Story

Bib Dharmmoj was a noble lady who religiously prayed to Lord Ganesha and observed this festival by preparing rotts and offering it to Lord Ganesh as prashad in puja. After her death people in that area observed this festival as Bib Dharmmoj's day. It so happened that once a king of the state also participated in this function without the knowledge of his wife. On his return to his palace his wife observed a sindur tilak on his forehead, which was put on him in the puja. She was not aware about this festival. She suspected that the king had married secretly some other lady and tilak on his forehead is due to the religious ceremony performed in the marriage. In a bitter argument with her husband she wiped out the tilak. This disrespect to the sanctity of Bib Dharmmoj's puja brought all sorts of miseries to the family. A neighbouring king attacked and took him as a prisoner. His wife and daughter lived in incognito and worked as horse stable attendants with another neighbouring king. It so happened that this king also used to observe Bib Dharmmoj day and she realized the importance of observing Bib Dharmmojs day and her guilt. Then the lady realized the truth about disrespecting it when she impulsively removed tilak from her husband's forehead. She then observed this festival in a humble way by collecting rejected grain from horse stable and making rotts from it. A puja was carried out. Her days of misery were over. The king with whom she was working promised all help when she exposed her real identity. He attacked the neighbouring king who kept her husband in custody and liberated him. His kingdom was restored. Thus their days of misery were over. There after they regularly observed Bib Dharmmoj's day and enjoyed life without any fear.

are made for individual as well as collective welfare of all beings.

Roth along with kehwa (green tea without milk) is taken as 'prashad'. The rotts are them distributed among neighbours and relatives. This is one of the traditions which every body performs even now and awaits its arrival eagerly.

Pitr Paksh (Kambr Pach) / Kanyagat

The dark fortnight of Ashwan month is observed as remembrance period for dead ancestors. Shrada ceremony or in its absence just a "Sankalp" (see Chapter 20) is performed on

Significance of Dusshra

The day is celebrated as a social event by all Hindus by burning effigies of wicked king Ravana and his two sons by the noble king Ram. Swami Aasa Ram believes that Ravana with 10 heads represents 10 senses (indriyas) Hence burning of Ravanas effigy is an exercise (also called Vijay Dashmi) for removal of dashdosh of *Indriyas (*Ten defects of senses).

the titthi (lunar calendar date) of the ancestor. Usually family priest would come to home on the tithi of dead ancestor for performing Shraddh and receiving sankalp. A fast is kept on this day by the sons and daughters and also by daughter-in-laws of the deceased ancestor. Usually daughter come to brothers place on this day and thus, it becomes a family reunion day.

Shrddhs of saints are also observed during this period. Shraddha of Roop Bhawani falling on 7th tithi is observed at Waskur as 'Sahib Saptami'.

Ashwin Navratras

Navratras are celebrated twice in a lunar year for 9 days each. The first one is known as Chetr Navratra which coincides with Navrah (New Year day) and the second one is observed during the first nine days of Shukla Paksha of Ashwin month. People observe these nine days as days of fasting and prayers. Durga Saptshudi is often recited or in its absence, Durga prayers are recited. As in first Navratra, some families sow barley and worship it for 9 day.

Ashtami is celebrated as Durga Ashtami by all Hindus especially in Bengal where it is a major annual month long celebration. In Kashmir havans (yagnya) are performed at various temples and shrines. Navmi is celebrated as Ram Navmi at Chakreshwar temple and at Ramji Temples such as Rughnath Temple 2nd Bridge and Ramchander Temple Sathiu Barbarshah.

Vijay Dashmi (Dusshra)

10th day of Ashwin Shukla Paksha is celebrated as Dusshara or Vijay Dashmi in honour of Lord Ram's victory over wicked Ravana (see Box).

Shushr Laagun

It is observed to seek protection of new born child or new bride from evil spirits.

A piece of lime (lime is used as detergent also) tied in cloth is attached to the cap of new born child (or Sari of new bride) on any day during this period and then on any auspicious day as per panchang of this fortnight, relatives and friends are invited to share Tchocha (nān) and Kaliya (meat preparation). An empty fire pot (Kangri) is kept as a symbolic gesture of fire in which well wishes put some cash as gifts for new arrival.

8) Kartik

Deepavali

The Amavasi of Kartik month is observed as Deepavali, which is celebrated as the day when Lord Ram returned back to Ayodya after 14 years exile. All homes are decorated with oil lamps and or candles in the evening when night falls. Sweets are distributed among friends and relations. Children have special attraction in playing fire works. Business families worship Laxmi along with Ganesh on the day and yet others believe winning money in the game of cards is a sign of good luck. It is not celebrated with the same enthusiasm with which it is celebrated by non Kashmiri Hindus. Devout ones keep a fast and prepare sweet fried breads called satdiv which are shared by all after puja and distributed among

Gadbatta

A raw fish smeared with sindur and some cooked fish along with boiled rice are kept in a plate on Tuesday or Saturday of the first fortnight of Paush It is placed at a clean place in the upper storey of house where there is no disturbance. It is a belief among those who observe this tradition, that "Gardevta" house deity may come in any form even as a cat to partake this delicacy. Whatever may be the truth but for family members it is time to enjoy cooked spicy fish with batta (boiled rice) in the winter cold, which is made still worst by darkness all around.

relatives and neighbours.

9) Marg (Manjhor)

Manjhor Tahar* (Marga Purnima)

It is not common custom now, but in some houses it is celebrated on Marga Purnima. A fast is kept and Tehr (rice boiled with turmeric) mixed with oil and salt is placed in a pot which is kept in the upper most story of house for house deity. It is also celebrated as Matrika puja, when seven matrikas (see Chapter 17) are worshipped.

10) *Paush

a) Shishar Paksh - Krishna Paksha of the month of Paush is known as Sheshar Paksha. Paush month on the whole is considered 'Nishad - an inauspicious month and hence no auspicious work is under taken. There is a belief that during this cold period (December-January) evil spirits are on the prowl and hence, one and all must try to protect his family and property. To protect new arrival in family (a child or new bride) a function known as Shushr Lagun is performed (see Box).

b) Gadbatta - To please house deity some people observe Gadbatta (see Box). It is said in early times the house deity (Gardevta) was worshipped on eleventh bright night of chaitra and this was called Vasta Pooja, but now that tradition has been replaced by Gadbatta and Manjhor Tahar. Ashtami of this forthnight is celebrated as Mahakali Ashtami (birthday of Mahakali Durga) Devout go to Mahakali temple on river bank, which has now the Muslim Shrine of Shahi Hamdan over shadowing it.

c) Khichri Amavas - Paush Amavasi is observed as Khichri Amavasi. Khichri is a sort of porridge made by boiling rice along with oil, moong (green cereal), pepper, turmeric, salt to which, ghee is added later on. This is offered to 'Yakshas' (a hostile tribe who were promised food on this day as per Nilamatpuran). Khrchri in an earthen plate is kept on boundary wall at night time and rest is taken by family members. A fable has it that the Yakshas partake this favourite dish wearing a red cap and who so ever snatches his red cap gets lot of riches and lives trouble free life.

Shushr Sankrati

(Shushr Sankrat) is based on solar calendar of Bikrimi Era which falls usually on 14 January. It is known as Shushr Sankrat in Kashmir and as Mker Sankrit outside Kashmir. This represents the time when Sun crosses tropic of cancer towards north i.e. the ingress of the Sun in Makar sign of the zodiac.

It is a day of fasting and giving away gifts in the name of deceased ancestors.

In the plains of India people observe this day by fasting and taking a dip in the holy places such as Kanuketra in Haryana or Gangs in Haridwar and other sacred river. In Kashmir, the pious ones keep a Vrat and offer Kangri with hot charcoal, along with other gifts and cash as a "pitrdaan" (Sanskar related to dead ancestors) to family priest.

11) *Maag (January-February)

The whole month of Mâg is considered Shud (Pure). Some devout ones would observe a Vrat for whole month and would go to Hari Parbhat for a 'parikrame' (round trip) early in the morning. The observance of festivals in this month is long one. A few are:

a) Sahib Saptami - Krishna Paksh saptami is observed as annual shraddha day of Rupa Bhavani.

b) Kah -A three day fast called kah is observed on 12, 13 and 14 day of Krishna Paksha. While 12 and 14 day are observed as Vrats (with one time meal) on 13 no meal is taken However one can take fruits and singhara (chestnut) flour preparations.

c) Shiva Chaturdashi Chaturdashi of Krishna Paksha is observe as 'Shiva-Chaturdashi' by keeping a Vrat and praying to Lord Shiva. Some consider this day as the real day of revelation by Shiva (as against Shivaratri).

d) Gauri Trai (or Gor Trai) Sokla Paksha triti is observed as Saraswati Puja day. The family priest would come with a picture of Saraswati with hymns written on it. This day is considered as auspicious day for initiation of children into studies.

e) Tripura Chaturth - Shukla Chaturthi of this month is observed Tripura Chaturthi which is also known as "Tik-Tchoram" and also as "Shruka or Sholoka Chaturthi" when children are initiated into reading religious scriptures. It is the day for propitiating goddess Tripura Sundri (who controls three worlds Bhur, Bhuvaa Swah). People also go to house of Tikus' at Karfuli Mohalla, Srinagar where Goddess Tripura is enshrined.

f) Vasant Panchmi - Fifth day of Mâg Shukla is celebrated as Vasant Panchmi. In the plain of India it signifies arrival of spring but in Kashmir, spring is still far away. Children are initiated into learning on this day.

g) Prakash Deva - Shukla Saphlami of Mâg is observed as a day for worshipping Sun ('Prakash Deva)' as manifested God. People recite Gayatri mantra and some perform "mini havan". Yet some people go to Mattan to have a dip in the hospring, which is dedicated to Surya Dev.

h) Shukla Ashtami - (also known as Bishma Ashtami))

i) Mâg Puranmashi - is observed as "Kawpurnima" a day of fun for children (see Box).

12) Phalgun (Fagun)

Maha-Shivaratri (also know as Herat)[1]

For a Kashmiri Pandit this is king of festivals. It spans over a period of 23 days starting from 1st day of the Krishna Paksha of Phalgun (lunar month) to Ashtami (8th day) of Shukla Paksha. In it, it encompasses all social, religions and even cultural activities.

From 1st day (Hurya Okdoh) to 6th day (Hurya Shyam) the whole house and household things are cleaned after long and severe winter. Materials (Samgree) to be used in pûja such as earthen ware, walnuts, grass (for making âris) etc. are collected. 7th day (Hurya Saptami) and 8th day (Hurya Ashtami) are the days for devotional prayers at home and congregational prayer with bhajans at the Chakreshwar Sharika Pîtha, Hari Parbat, Srinagar. 10th day (Dyara Daham) is the day when daughter-in-law of house hold who visit their parents during these days, return back to their in-laws house along with some shagûns for their happiness such as a kangri, salt pack (noon) bread leaves (chuchi) and cash (Heyrat Bhog). 11th day Ekadeshi (Gada Kah) and 12th day (Wagur Bâh) are special days for worship of Bhairwas. Fish in large quantities are procured and processed but not cooked. On Wagur Bâh a pot filled with water is installed at a place reserved for pûja (see Box).

The night falling between Wagur Bâh and 13th day Trayodashi (Herat Truvah) - is the main time for Shiva worship. Vatuk Pûja is a very elaborate ritualistic worship (see Chapter 21) where Lord Shiva, Parvati ,Bhairwa and Shiva Ganas are worshipped .Some people have the tradition of offering cooked meat and fish to Bhairwa. 14th day (Chaturdashi) which is celebrated as Maha-Shivaratri by Hindus all over India by keeping a strict upvas (fast) and prayers, is a day of feasting for Kashmiri Pandits. They call it "Salâm".A sect called gurtus are strictly vegetarian during Shivaratri celebrations . They do not join other groups for three days from 12 - 14 day.

In the evening brief prayers are offered to Vatak deity by the head of family from the day of Vatak pûja to amavasi. The water from pots is replaced with new water every day in the

Kawpunim a Day of Fun

On this day boiled rice with some cooked vegetables (as per reeti) is offered to crows on a grass plate called "Kawpatlu" which is made by placing two twigs, one short 6 inches long and another one foot long at right angles and are held tight with dry paddy grass. The long end serves as a handle for holding this plate. A folk song, recited by children in chorus on this occasion is as follows:

Kaw Butt Kawo, Khechrey Kawo
Walba Saney Navey Larey, Khechrey Kheh

(Crow dear crow come to my new house and enjoy eating Khichdi.

Wagur

A pot filled with water and decorated with flowers is called Wagur. It represents Lord Shiv's messenger, who went to Himalyan king Himvat's house, with a proposal for his daughter, Parvati's marriage with Lord Shiv.

Salam

On the day of Shivratri friends and relatives are invited for a lunch to share delicacies of fish and meat preparations. It is time to invite friends from Muslim community. Son in laws of the family are specially invited. People who render service to community such as washer man, barbers, postman, electricity maintenance man, come to offer greetings and also receive gifts of cash. The music lover bards come and dance (especially if there is a new born or a new bride in the house) and receive hefty presents of cash. Since most of those people are Muslims who greet with "salām", the day has come to be known as salām.

Children and ladies are also given a gift of cash on this day which is called Heyrath Kharach . Children get up early in the morning and go to elders and say Salam, which is actually a call for payment of gift money.

Family daughters, son in laws and their children are also paid this money. It is sent to them later on along with prashad of walnuts. Newly wed brides and newly born children receive good amount of money.

morning and prayers are held. On the day of Amavasi (known as Dûnya Mawas) the ladies of the house carry Vatuk vessels to the river bank in the morning and empty all water content there. On their return back home, they are promised due reward in the form of blessings by house holder.

In the evening of amavasi house lady prepares tamul chut (rice cakes) and these along with walnut kernel are finally worshipped and offered as prashad to all family members who cherish hot rice cakes, with walnut kernels This prashad along with walnuts and baked bread (purchased from bakery) is sent to all neighbours, relations during the next few days. A good quantity of walnuts along with prashad and cash (called Heyrut Bhog) is sent by the parents of married daughters to her in laws .

All the functions of this festival come to an end on the 8th day of Shukla Paksh (Tîla

Blessings from Ram Bror

A dialogue between the head of family and the ladies of house after they have returned to their home after emptying and let him come inside Vatak vessels proceeds as follows:

Family head (who is outside the main door of house) knocks at door).
Ladies reply from inside house door: 'Kus Chuv' (who is this) Family head: - 'Raam Bror'
Ladies: - Kya Hyet (what are you carrying).
Family head: - 'Anna Hyat, Dana Hyet' (with cash and plenty of food) and 'Sokh Hyet' (with happiness)
Ladies: - 'Beye won' (please repeat).
Family head - Repeats

Ladies –open the door the house.

Jatus -Tuun

The children of family have the last fun of this 3 weeks long festival by performing "Jatus-Tuun". They collect old broken Kangri pots, take out earthen pot from it, fill it with dry grass, tie a rope to it, burn it and then move it fast over their heads in clockwise motion till the whole things burns. This is usually done at river banks when ladies carry Vatuk material for final immersion in river.

Athum) when all flowers, garlands with which Vatuk was decorated along with 'âries' (the grass ring on which Vatuk vessels were kept) are carried to river bank in the evening for immersion in the river. An earthen lamp with burning oil wick is placed on a floating grass âri. The floating of lamps is reminiscent of a similar scene at Haridwar during evening prayers

Social Significance

It is a festival of great social importance to Kashmiri Pandits, when all family members of all ages assemble together to pray to god and receive blessing of elders. Children have special fun. They play a game where in cowries are played in which children (boys & girls) elders-all join. While elders, remain busy with worship, house ladies get an opportunity to show their art of cooking.

Daughters of all ages visit their parents. Prashad is shared with all neighbours and relations, thus strengthening social bonds. Walnuts are distributed among Muslim friends as well, which strengthen community bonds. Cash is paid to all serviceman such as barbers, washer man, postman etc. which besides financial help to these low wage earners, gives them a joy of participation in such festivals and they eagerly await for next opportunity.

Religions Significance

Esoterically the night of Chaturdashi/Amavasi (darkest in Phalgin Krishna Paksha Amavasi) is ideal time for the union of jiva (man) and Parmatman (Lord Shiva) the Supreme source of perennial joy and eternal beauty. It is dawn of knowledge of the Supreme self. At the mundane level this festival symbolizes the union of Goddess Parvati or Durga, the Devine 'Shakti' that stands with Shiva who is all pervading but static (see Chapter 4 and 5).

Origin

Nilamat Purana written in 6/7th Century AD mentions Shiva worship on Shivaratri was prevalent in Kashmir right before the arrival of Swarsat Brahmins from plains. One of the conditions put forward by King Nila for permitting these Swarsat Brahmins to settle in the valley was that they observe their festivals which included celebration of the festival of Shivaratri. Over a period of time this festival came to the called 'Hairat' or 'Heyrat'.

13) Chet ( Krishan Paksh)

Tson't (March)

The first day of Chaytr of solar Bikrimi calender which falls in the Chaitr Krishna Paksha (as per lunar calendar) is celebrated as Tson't. It heralds the arrival of spring in Kashmir (c.f. Basant Panchmi). On the previous night a "Thal burun" (as described earlier under Navrah) is done which is shown to all family members in the morning. 'Lisa' - a kind of early season vegetable grown wild, is used to rub the body at the banks of river before taking the first bath of season in a river. Walnuts are thrown in river which are picked up by boatmen who are eagerly waiting for it. Some people go for an outing, though it may be still cold outside.

Chetr Amavas

It represents the last-day of the year before Navrah (New Year). On this day 'Thal barun' is performed (see Navrah). Previously people used to go to Vichar Nag (spring in Srinagar) for a dip there which was considered auspicious. A meeting of astrologers used to be held here to discuss the matters relating to correct placing of rituals in the forth coming panchang. Vegetable sellers used to get wya (a Herb) to this place which people would buy for placing on Thal.

Other Panchang related traditions

In additions to above there are many other festivals or traditions which are observed locally such as birthdays and death anniversaries of saints and other spiritually advanced persons. All

Why is Shivratri called Heyrat?

Different people have given various explanation for this:

a) Hairath signifies emergence of Vatuk Bhairav in ancient past from an earthern pot ("Bhairav is one of the manifestation of Rudra"). Hairat falls on 12th or 13th day of Phalgun Krishna Paksha and that is why we celebrate it on this day and explains why earthen vessels were used Shivchaturdashi of Phalgun. Krishna Paksha is called Maha Shivratri and it is a coincidence that the two festivals are celebrate together.[2]

b) Yet another view is that 'Herat' is the altered form of 'Hari-rat', divine night or "Harishrat" - the night of delight.

c) Another version is that it has been derived from 'Hairat' - a Persian word for utter surprise. It is stated that during Pathan rule, Jabar who was governor of Kashmir, ordered that instead of February/March, the festival should be observed in the month of Asadha (Har in Kashmir) (June-July) which are hottest months in Kashmir. Kashmiri Hindus obeyed his orders and celebrated the festival in Asadha. The forced alteration of date brought innumerable curses upon the valley. There was untimely snowfall in the hot summer. The Pathans expressed 'Hairat'- utter surprise, at this. Since then Shivratri came to be known Hayrath. There is Kashmiri Couplet which records the perversity of Jabar - which is as follows:-

"Wuchiv Kya Gav Jabbar Jandas Harras Ti Kuran Wanda"

"Fie on the wretched Jabar for having turned summer into winter".

CC-OAgamnigam Digitized Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

these dates are given in the panchang. Some other days which are observed as days of fasting and worship are follows:-

a) Sankrati - All the 1st days of the twelve months of Solar calendar (Bikrimi Era) are observed as sankrati. Listening to Puranic stories about Vishnu is considered auspicious. Some families prepare satdev ("puries" made by frying wheat flour cakes mixed with sugar in ghee) and distribute the same as prashad among neighbours and relations.

b) Ashtami - All twelve Shukla Ashtami are observed as fasting days. One time vegetarian meal is taken which is prepared by cleaning all utensils used in preparation and also the cooking place.

Recitations of Durga are made and some people make it to Tulamulla to pray at the feet of Khirbhawani. Generally all people avoid taking non – vegetarian food on this day.

c) Puramashi - Some people observe all the twelve Poormashis as days of fasting and prayers.

d) Amavasya - Some people observe all Amavasyas as days of fasting and worship.

e) Ekadeshi - While in the plains of India, Hindus observe Shukla Ekadashi as a day of fasting, in Kashmir its place has been taken by Shukla Ashtami. Even then some observe Ekadeshi as day of fasting.

f) Somermavas - Any Amavasi falling on Monday is called Somermavas. It is considered very auspicious. Ladies go to Somyar Temple Ghat (Habbe Kadal) to have a bath. A Vrat is kept even by those ladies who do not keep fast on Amavasi.

g) Sankat Chaturthi - Every Chaturthi of Krishna Paksha is observed as Sankat Chaturthi to avoid bad luck. A Vrat is kept by ladies of house.

Inauspicious (Nishad) Dates

1) Pitr Paksh (see item 12)
2) Paush Month (see item 18)
3) Chaitr Krishna Paksha.
4) Panchak (see Chapter 11)

Explanations

*) Mr. A. K. Kaul an erudite scholar in Vedic and modern astronomical sciences and author of Shri Krishna Universal Ephemeris and Publisher of Punchang states (in his three articles published in Koshur Samachar March, April & May, 2001 under the title "Do we celebrate our festivals on correct dates") that we do not follow the rules of calendar preparation correctly in India. As per Vedic studies Makara Sankrati (known as Susher Sankrat in Kashmir) should correspond to winter solstice i.e. 21st December every year and not in January as is usual in North Indian Panchangs including Kashmiri Panchangs. It is because of this inaccuracy that all subsequent festival dates have also been changed and are not correct. The reason for this inaccuracy is that there have been initial mistake in recognising true date for the start of Phalgun Krishna Paksha in North India (which is recognised as Magha Krishna Paksha) in South India, Bengal and Maharashtra.

1) The description of this festival given here is a matter of the past. In the changed situation after their migration from Valley, Kashmiri Pandits now observe this day as a religious ritual without many of the details given in the write up.
Help in this write up has been taken from an article written by GN Raina of Miami USA (Unpublished).

CHAPTER ELEVEN

PANCHANG

In actual practice the Panchangs records details such as:

1) The movement of Sun and Moon as seen from Earth which is used in the preparation solar and lunar calendar.
2) The position of various planets and their entry and exist in zodiac signs on different dates, which is used in the preparation of horsecopes.
3) The dates of important festivals such as Shivaratri, Navratra etc.
4) Auspicious dates for performance of various samskaras and for travel, construction of houses and such functions. It also gives inauspicious dates for undertaking above activities.
5) The dates & timings of solar and lunar eclipses.
6) Birth day/death anniversary of saints.
7) Though not part of Panchang but most of Kashmiri Panchangs give details how to perform various rituals ,rites and recitation of various bhajans etc. in the pooja.

Panchangs over a period of time have acquired a local hue. Thus there are special Panchangs for Kashmiri Pandits, which give details applicable mostly to this community thus, they have acquired a very important position in the socio-religious life of the community. The

Scope of Panchang

Panchang means five angas. Anga means a part of body or limbs. Thus Panchang represents five limbs (angas) of the important aspects of a body knowledge dealing with movement of Sun and Moon as seen from earth. These five angas are :

1) Tithe- (Lunar day),
2) Vār- (Day of week)
3) Nakshtra- Constellation (Kashmiri Panchang is also called Neechptr) which is slang of nakshatr). There are 27 nakshtras.
4) Yuga - Yuga is variable time, during which the joint motion in longitude of the Sun and Moon amount to Approx 13°-26´. There are 27 Yugas corresponding to 27 Nakshtras.
5) Karana - It is an astrological division of a day. One lunar day is equal to 2 karanas.

Kashmiri Panchang recognizes first three angas only genuine, the knowledge about which is used in Karmkanda for ritualistic worship such as Tarpan, Shraddha, performance of samskaras and various festivals. It also plays an important role in astrology.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Panchangs are made available on yearly bases (lunar years) and people wait eagerly for a new issue, which coincides with the New Years days (Navrah).

Solar System

To interpret Panchang in its entirety one has to understand how Solar System works and how rishis watched the movement of celestial bodies such as Sun, various planets, Moon etc. in the cosmos very meticulously, over a period of time and based their calculation on their movements, so as to enable them to divide time into various segments. One has to appreciate that these rishis did not have modern tools to measure these movements. They had to base their calculations on time consuming observations and then interpret them and rework their calculations for the shortfalls that were observed over a period of centuries. They established that the movement of Sun in the cosmos was elliptic. An imaginary belt (Nine degrees on each side of elliptic) called Zodiac was drawn and movements of other cosmic bodies, which from time to time appeared or disappeared in the Zodiac were studied. As a side interest they also observed the effect of the movement of these solar bodies on human lives which forms the subject matter of "Jyotisha". In short it is a history of the development of human race and has been recognized as one of the six important Vedangas (see Appendix A1).

Twelve Rashis of Zodiac

Zodiac (called Bhachakara in Sanskrit) is an imaginary broad belt in the cosmos extending about 9 degrees on each side of the ecliptic. Ecliptic is the path of the Sun, which (path) passes exactly through the center of the zodiac. The movement of Sun in the zodiac is from East to West. The Zodiac has been divided into 360 degrees, which has been further divided into 12 equal parts of 30 degrees each known as sign (or rashi). Thus there are 12 signs in the zodiac. Their names as per western and Indian Astronomy are: (Indian names in brackets):

1) Aries (Mesha)
2) Taurus (Vrishba)
3) Gemini (Mithuna)
4) Cancer (Kateka or Karka)
5) Leo (Simha)
6) Virgo (Kanya)
7) Libra (Tula)
8) Scorpio (Vrischik)
9) Sagittarius (Dhanush or Dhanu)
10) Capricorn (Makara)
11) Aquarius (Kumbhe)
12) Pisces (Meena)

Planets

Although Sun and Moon are not planets but in the Indian system of astronomy they have been recognized as planets besides the seven other planets. Thus, there are nine planets including Sun and Moon, which as per Indian System have their influence on earth. These are: (Indian names in brackets)

1) Sun (Ravi / Surya)
2) Moon (Chandra)
3) Mars (Mangal / Kuja)
4) Mercury (Buddha)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

5) Jupiter (Guru / Brahaspati)
6) Venus (Shukra)
7) Saturn (Shani)
8) Rahu
9) Ketu

Rahu and Ketu are called shadowing planets (Chhaya Grahas) as they do not have physical or celestial bodies like other seven planets. Of the two places where the Moon crosses the ecliptic, the north point is known as Rahu and the corresponding south point is known as Ketu.

It may be noted here that all these celestial bodies (except Rahu & Ketu) are having double functions of not only revolving on their own axis from West to East) but also round the Sun. As the distances of these planets from earth vary considerably, therefore, there is great variance in the time taken by each of these planets in the Zodiac. Sun moves at the rate of roughly one degree of the Zodiac in one day of 24 hours (Sunrise to Sunset) which actually is its apparent displacement when viewed from earth, due to earths own revolutionary motion at the speed of 25,66,030 kms. per day and takes 365 days and 6 hrs to complete a circle in Zodiac, which is one solar year.

Five Limbs of Panchang

a) Tithi

It is a common knowledge that Moon waxes or wanes. By 'waxes' it is meant that the Moon becomes fuller and by 'wanes' it is meant the reverse. On the New Moon day, Moon looks like a thin semi circular disc. Then every day the semi-circle becomes thicker and bigger until after the 15th day of the New Moon day the Moon is full of light and complete in circle. This is full Moon and is called Full Moon day or 'Pûrnima/ Pûrnamashi.' Thus, from new Moon day to full Moon day it is called as 'waxing Moon'. After Poornamashi, the Moon starts diminishing day by day and after 15 days it completely disappears. This no Moon day is called 'Amavasya' and the 15th day period is known as 'waning Moon'.

The period from New Moon day to Full Moon day is known as 'Shukla Paksha' or bright half of the lunar month and the period of 15 days from Poornamashi to Amavasya is known as 'Krishna Paksha' or the dark half of the lunar month.

Thus there are 30 lunar days. These are called Tithis. The New Moon day is the first tithi and Amavasya the 30th tithi. But in common parlance, New Moon day is the first tithi of Shukla Paksha and 15th tithi of Shukla Paksha is Poornamashi. Then instead of calling the 16 lunar day as 16th tithi, it is called the first tithi of Krishna Paksha and so the 15th tithi of Krishna

Waxing and Waning of Moon

Moon, as a satellite of Earth, transverses about 13 degrees of Zodiac in one day at a speed of 1 hour and 48 minutes per degree, whereas Sun travels about one degree of Zodiac per day. This daily difference of 12 degrees in the motion of Sun and Moon around Zodiac causes waxing and waning of Moon the knowledge of which has been used for calculation of Tithi and lunar calendar.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Paksha is called Amavasya. The fifteen names of tithis of a fort night (Paksh) are follows:

1st - Prtipada, 2nd Dvitiya, 3rd - Tritiya, 4th - Chaturthi, 5th - Panchmi, 6th - Shshhti, 7th - Saptmi, 8th - Ashtmi, 9th - Navmi, 10th - Dashmi, 11th - Ekadashi, 12th - Dvadashi, 13th - Tryodashi, 14th - Chaturdashi, 15th - Amavasi or Pûrnima.

What is Meant by Devadev

The motion of Moon is very inconsistent and varies from slow, normal to fast. When it is at Perigee (nearest to Earth) it is fastest and gains 12 degrees of Zodiac in less then 16 hours and when it is at Apogee (farthest from Earth) it goes slow and takes more than 36 hours to gain these 12 degrees of Zodiac.

Thus when Moon is at Perigee tithi gets altogether omitted and when it is at apogee, a tithi gets repeated by extending its duration to next solar day. Thus tithi may also get spilled into two segments each falling disproportionately in two consecutive solar days and this phenomena is called the devadev tithi.

The mean duration of tithi is 23 hours, 37 minutes and 28 seconds as compared to 24 hours of a mean solar day. The total mean duration of 30 tithis is 29.5205 solar days. This is one of the reasons why solar day and lunar day do not coincide. The other reason for this inconsistency is because of the inconsistency in the motion of Moon.

As a general rule, a tithi that is operating at the time of sunrise is the tithi of the whole day. In case of devadev if the tithi expires before noon of the day on which it falls, then the previous days tithi is applied for various ritual purposes, however, if it expires in the afternoon, then the day on which it falls is considered at the tithi of that day.[1-2]

b) Vâr (day)

Seven days as per Kashmiri Panchang are named as given below:. (It may be mentioned here that duration of day is reckoned from sunrise to sunrise):

| Day | Hindi Name | Kashmiri Name |
|---|---|---|
| Monday | Somvar | Chandervar |
| Tuesday | Mangalvar | Bomvar |
| Wednesday | Budhvar | Budhvar |
| Thursday | Guruvar | Bresvar |
| Friday | Shakurvar | Shakurvar |
| Saturday | Shanivar | Batwar |
| Sunday | Aatwar | Aatwar |

tions, but those, which are in the path of Zodiac and enter or exist from it are 27:

1) Ashwini; 2) Bharini; 3) Krittika; 4) Rohini; 5) Mrgsira; 6) Aridra; 7) Punarvasu; 8) Pushyami; 9) Aselasha; 10) Magha; 11) Poorva Phalguni; 12) Uttara Phalguni; 13) Hasta; 14) Chitra; 15) Swati; 16) Vishakha; 17) Anuradha; 18) Jyestha; 19) Moola; 20) Poorva Ashada; 21) Uttara Ashada; 22) Shravan; 23) Dhanishta; 24) Satabisha; 25) Poorva Bhodra; 26) Uttara bhadra; 27) Revati.

To accommodate all these constellations in the Zodiac each one has been given a segment of 13°-20' in the Zodiac. Thus 27 constellations represent full zodiac circle of 360°. Each of the 27 constellations (nakshatras) is further divided into 4 quarters (called Padas) of 3° -20' each represented by number 1, 2, 3, 4.

Each of the rashi (sign) in Zodiac contains two and one quarter (pada) nakshatras and the first nakshatra coincides with the first rashi i.e. mesha, as shown in Table 2.

The influence of these nakshatras on humans is considerable and is used in the preparation and predictions of one's horoscope. Some of these nakshatras are auspicious for certain activities while others are bad. Thus observing any religious function on a date when entry of nakshatras like Hasta, Ashwini Punarvasu, Anuradha, Tishya, Mrgsher, Revti is shown in the Panchang, is an auspicious date. Similarly it prohibits performance of certain activities during the presence of Bharini, Krittika, Aridra, Aselasha, Magha, Chittra, Svati, Vishakha nakshatras. Panchak i.e. during the presence of Dhanishtha, Shatbishak, Purvabhadrpada, Utrabhadrapada and Revti nakshatras, which starts from half movement of Dhanishtha nakshatra to the end movement of Revti nakshatra, which takes 5 days is considered

Calendars

Various calendars, which are in use in Kashmir are as follows:

a) Sapt Reshi Calendar[3]

This Calendar starts from the date seven Reshis (Sapt Reshis see Chapter 8) left for heaven. "When the years of Kalimerhed by 'the arrows and eyes' (i.e. 25) had elapsed, the most excellent seven Reshis ascended heaven".

At the time of their departure from Earth these seven Reshis were 'in' the Nakshatra Magha when King Yadhistra was reigning.

This year correspondence to the year 3076-75 BC i.e. 26 years later than the year 3102 which represents the beginning of Kali-Era (Kali-Yuga) which started 35 years after end of Mahabharata war when Lord Krishna left Earth.[4]

This calendar was known as Lok-Kal or Lauhika (The Peoples Era) in Kashmir and was used by Kalhan in his Rajtaramgni. It is also known by the names of Paheri Samval in Kangra (Himachal Pradesh).

It is a lunar calendar. Lunar calendars use two way to start as the first day of year. These are called :

1) Mukhyamana
2) Gaunamana

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

In Mukhyamana 12 months period begins from the first bright-moon day of (Shaklapaksha) and in the Gaunamana the 12 month period starts from the first dark moon day of Krishna Paksha. Kashmir has been following the Mukhyamana method. Some Southern states of India also observe this method.

A Calendar, which starts from Chaitra month is called Chaitradi calender. Sapt Rishi calendar is a Chaitradi calendar and hence it starts from 1st tithi of Shukla Paksha of Chaitra month.

This date is celebrated as Navrah – New Year by Kashmiri Pandits and it coincides with 1st Navratra. In the year 2004-05 of English Standard Calendar it is running in its 5080 year. Kashmiri Pandits use this calendar for all religious activities. This is 2nd oldest calendar in India, the first being Kaliyuga Era (Solar) Calendar, which is running in its 5104 year (i.e. 26 years ahead) and measures Kalyuga Era.

This calendar is based on the theory that Seven Reshis-at the stars of Ursa Major remain "in" or conjoining with each of the 27 nakshatras or Lunar Mansions in turn for 100 years each. Thus, completing a cycle of 27 nakshatras in 2700 years. Each cycle begins with Magh Nakshatra.

It was thus in the year 2001, the lunar month of Ashwani was repeated as intercalary month. Thus the 5077 lunar year of this calendar had 13 months instead of usual 12.Again in the year 2004-5 corresponding to Sapt Rishi year 5080 it was the month of Shrawan which was repeated as additional month. It is in this way a correction is made after every 980 days to bring solar and lunar calendar in unison. Even after this adjustment over a period of a century it was observed that there is a shortfall of one full day in the solar calendar over a period of 39 months, which accumulated to one full month in 97 years. Hence it was decided that after every 97 years this adikmasa intercalation shall be done away with. This omitted month is called 'Kshaya' or dead month.

Malamasa/Bhanumasa

Till 1994 the adikmasa was repeated differently by Panchangs for two sets of Kashmiri Pandits who were described themselves as Malamasis or Bhanumasis. The genesis of this division is based on the fact that there are two different methods for symbolism leading to an intercalary month:

1) Direct counting method
2) Solar Ingress method

1) In the Direct counting method of symbolism the month in which 980 days (approx) are elapsed (reckoned from previous intercalation) that very month shall be intercalated as the adikmasa additional month (adikmasa).

In the solar Ingress method the adikmasa is repeated on the principal that if in a particular month no 'sankrati' (Solar ingress into next sign (Reshi)) occurs in between two consecutive new Moons (amavasis), that very month shall have to be repeated. While the first method was prevalent in Kashmir, the second method is prevalent all over India.

Lately post mass migration of Kashmiri Pandits,all the panchangs are carrying on Solar Ingress method (so called Bhanumasa) for calculations as this is considered prudent under the new circumstances.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

b) Vikrami Era (Solar)

It is running in its 2061 years (2004-5 AD). It is a solar calendar and starts from 1st day of the month of Vaishakh (corresponding to 13/14 April) which is popularly known as Vaishakhi. This calendar was introduced in Kashmir during Sikh rule (1819) as an official calendar and was continued till 1947 when after independence English calendar replaced it. It is still in use in other states of India such as Punjab, Haryana, Himachal Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Orissa. The name of 12 months are the same as show in the Lunar Calendar.

Adikmasa represents Correction in Lunar Calendar

As stated earlier there is a shortfall of 10.896 days in a lunar year as compared to a solar year. This residual difference accumulates into one full lunar month in about 32 months. To over come this anomaly the sages devised a method of symbolism for intercalation of an additional month called adikmasa.

c) Shaka Era (Luno-Solar)

On March, 21, 2004 AD, it entered in its 1926 year. It is a Solar Calendar with lunar month names.

This has the distinction of being the national calendar of India. The names of the month are the same as in Vikrami Era calendar.

Other Current Calenders

There are many regional calendars in India which start from different months of national calendar as per local conditions. For examples Kolar Era prevalent in Kerala starts on August 17 and is running in its 1176 years (2001 AD). Bengali Samvat Calendar starts on April 15 and is running in its 1408th year (2002 AD). Hijri Calender (lunar) used by Muslims starts from 1st day of the month of Moharram. Since this Calendar has no mechanism for symbolism, hence this calendar has a year of 355 days and accordingly New Year date may fall in Summer or Winter months. Most of the Muslim festivals

Malamasa versus Banamasa

Kashmiri Pandit community is divided into two categories depending upon which calendar they follow. These are:

1) Malamasi
2) Banamasi

The direct Counting method is of Kashmiri origin and is known as Malamasa system whereas the Solar Ingress method was given the name of Banamasa by Malamasis for those Kashmiri Pandits who migrated to India and returned back to Kashmir during Sikh and Dogra rule and followed Solar Ingress system which they followed while they were out of Kashmir.

Puranic Calender (Manvantaras)

This calendar is no longer in use except in one important religious ritual – Sankalpa anga (see Chapter 16) where parts of this Calendar are mentioned while naming the date and Era for undertaking a Karma. However, Kashmiri Pandits do not use this reference in Sankalpa. Hence its description of this calendar may only be of academic interest. This calendar takes into account time of man, devas and Brahma.

A manvantra is a cycle of creation and destruction. A Manu rules over each such manvantara. The life cycle of Brahma (Mahapralaya) is 1000 Kalpas. There are total 14 manvantaras in each cycle of Brahma which means each manvantara has a length of 71 Kalpa + residual years (1000/14 Kalpas = 71.428 years).

Presently the people are living in 7th Manvantara in the 51st "Brahmyear (BY) 1st month, 1st Paksha, 1st day, day time, 2nd Yama, III Mahurata, which is ruled by Vaivasvata (the son of Sun). Each manvantara has its gods and Spt (Seven) reshis. The gods of present manvantara are the Adityas, the Vasus and Rudras and Seven Reshis are Vaisvamitra, Jamadagni, Bhardwaja, Gotme, Atri, Vasistha and Kashyapa (who are also Vedic gods).

Pitr time is different from human time and Dev time. 30 days of human time is equal to 1 day (24 hours) of Pitra time.

Explanations

1) For performance of Shraddha, the tithi that falls, between 1.30 pm and 2.30 pm is the criterion.
2) It may be stated here that the tithi indicated in the Panchangs, which are available to Kashmiri Pandits currently are based on calculation made from Jammu (Lat 32° - 44° and Long 74° - 54°) and technically speaking are valid for Jammu residents only.
3) Inputs from articles written by Mr. C. L. Nagri in Koshur Samachar in various issues from Sept. 2001 to April 2002.

CHAPTER TWELVE

SAINTS & SAVANTS

The study of the lives and philosophies of learned men and women of Kashmiri Pandits will be studied under three categories:

a) Early period – (up to 1300th Century, AD).
b) Medieval period – (1301 AD to 18th Century, AD).
c) Modern Period – (19th Century – to present time).

Early Period (Up to 1300 AD)

This period especially 8th Century to 11th Century AD is considered Golden age of Kashmiri Pandit religious thought, when saints and savants like Vasugupta, Somananda, Abhinavgupta, Kshemeraja gave shape to Kashmir Shaivism.

Kashmir-a Reshwar

Kashmir is known as 'Reshwar' i.e. home of rishis (seers). Here every individual is saint like. It has produced saints and savants of extraordinary caliber who made deep impressions on the minds of people in their search for ultimate goal, be it happiness or liberation (moksha). An interesting fact about Kashmiri saints is that most of them lived the life of family men (grahasta) rather than being ascetics.

a) *Sangmaditya (8th Century AD)

He was one of the earliest teachers of Shaivic philosophy who lived near Pampore during the reign of lalitaditya (724-761 AD).

b) *Atrigupta (8th Century, AD)

He was a great Shiva Scholar who lived at Autarvedi (area between River Ganga and Yamuna). Lalitaditya was impressed with his sharp intellect and knowledge and was instrumental in settling him in Kashmir at Pampore where he was granted land and property.

c) *Vasugupta (800-850 AD ?)

He is described as the author of 'Shiva-Stotra', which is considered to be the first written document of Trika system (also known as Kashmir Shaivism). It is said that Lord Shiva appeared to him in his dream and revealed the ancient knowledge of Trika system in 77 Shiva strotras (hymns) engraved on stones which were lying at a protected place at Harvan (17 Kms. from Srinagar, Kashmir).

d) *Kallatacharya (850-900 AD ?)

A worthy disciple of Vasugupta, he is father of Spanda philosophy (see Chapter 4). He wrote Spanda-karika and its Vrtike (commentary).

e) *Somananda (850-900 AD ?)

He is father of Shiva philosophy known as Pratyabijna (recognition of Self) which is considered an important aspect of Shiva philosophy. His famous work is known as 'Shivadrishti'. He was 4th generation down the progeny of Sangamaditya.

f) *Utpaladeva (900-950 AD ?)

He made popular the works of his guru, Somananda by writing a number of commentaries (Karikas) on pratyabhijna shastra. His famous works are:

1) Ishvar Pratyabhijna Shakarika with Vrthi (glossary).
2) Siddhitryayi

He lived at Navhatta (Srinagar).

g) *Laxmangupta (950-1000 AD ?)

(also Laxmancharya). He was an able disciple of Utpaldeva. His famous work on Shaivism is known as "Sharada Tilaka".

h) *Narasimhagupta (930-1000 AD ?)

He was a Shaivisim philosopher and descendent of Attrigupta.

i) *Abhinavgupta (975-1025 AD)

He is one the most outstanding scholar (acharya) of Kashmir Shaivism, who consolidated all the different aspects of Shiva philosophy and presented them in his now famous book "Tantraloka". He was son of Narasimha Gupta and disciple of Laxmangupta. He has been described as"Shankeracharya of Kashmir Shaivism" by Rajanaka Mammalla ,author of Kavya Prakash. Swami Laxmanjoo (see item L of modern period saints) described him "Shiva incarnate to enlighten the people". It is said he possessed eight yogic powers (see under Hanuman Chapter 3) and had six spiritual signs and hence was respected by one and all in his life time.

He had mastered all the four systems of Trike philosophy: Krama system, Spanda system, Kula system and Pratijabhijna system (see Chapter 4).

He wrote extensively on poetics, dramaturgy (drama) and yoga tantra. His other known works are:

1) Bhairava Stotra
2) Malinivijya Vartika
3) Bharata Natya Shastra – Tika
4) Dwanmalokalochana
5) Natyalochna
6) Purva-Panchika
7) Gitarthasanghraha
8) Boda Panchadashika
9) Parmartha Charcha
10) Dehastha Devtachakra Stotra
11) Paratrimshika Vivarna
12) Paratrimshika Lagu Vitti
13) Kramashtrota
14) Iswara Pratybijnya-Vimarshini
15) Ishwar Pratijabijnya Vivriti Vimarshini
16) Parmarthe Sara
17) Tantrâsara
18) Tantra Loka

j) *Kshemaraja (1025-1075 AD ?)

He was brilliant pupil of Abhinavgupta His works include:

1) Pratyabhijnahrdayam
2) Spandasandoha
3) Spandanirnaya
4) Svacchandodyota
5) Netrodyota
6) Vijnanadhaira Vodyota
7) Shivasutra Vimarshini
8) Stavacintâmanitika
9) Parâpraveshika
10) Tattvasandoha

It is said that his work Pratijabhijnahrdyam occupies the same place in Shiva or Trika literature as Vedantasara does in Vedanta.

k) *Yogaraja (1075-1125 AD

He was a disciple of Kshemaraja and wrote commentary (karika) on Parmarthsara (written by Abhinavgupta).

l) *Jayaratha (1125-1175 AD ?)

He wrote comprehensive commentary (Karika) on Tantraloka written by Abhinavgupta.

B) Saints/Savants of Medieval Period (1301-1800 AD)

(Period of Vakh's and mysticism)

This period represents rise of Islam in Kashmir. For Kashmiri Pandits it was the period of torture, forced conversion to Islam and migration to remote areas for safety. It is as such marked by absence of scholars and savants that were witnessed in Kashmir from 8th to 11th Century AD. Even then the torch was kept burning by mystic saints like Laleshwari, Rupa Bhavani Reshpir, Jewan Shah and Nand Riyash.

a) Siddha Sri Kanth (Sidh Mole)[1]

He was guru of the most famous female saint of this period - Laleshwari and that is enough to understand his spiritual standing. Unfortunately very little was known about him till recently. One must be thankful to Dr. Veena Bakshi who was awarded doctorate degree for her thesis entitled "Srikanthas contribution to Kashmir Shaivism" recently (1999) and as such we have lot of information about him. Rajanaka Shitikantha was his original name who was born in 13th Century at Pampore, Kashmir. He was more often known by the name of 'Sidh Mola' by his followers. He was worshipper of Shakti. Three of his known works are :

1) Satotar Mala – This book is not available. Reference about it are found in his other book.
2) Kaul-Sutra – In this book different methods of worshipping Shakti are described.
3) Mahanay Prakash – In this book he has described 'Shakti peeths' of Kashmir. It is said this book is written in Kashmiri Sanskrit which was pre runner of present day Kashmiri language. He also composed Vâkhs like Laleshwari, but somehow they did not reach people.

b) *Laleshwari (1310-1380 AD)[2]

Also known as(Lal-Ded/Lal Arif)

She was first among the long list of Saints who preached medieval mysticism which later entrapped the whole of India.

She was born in 14th Century at Pandrathan near Srinagar. She was married at an early age but was treated badly by her mother in law. She found her guru in Sidh Srikanth ,who taught her Shaivism and tantric-yoga. Soon she received divine grace of Lord and expressed her unity with divinity through her Vâks which have been described as "heart pourings rather than poetic expressions". These Vâks or sayings represent Shaiva philosophy in quatrains, in the language which was understood by the people. These Vâks were preserved through word of mouth as well as through books which were written by noted writers such as Dr. Grierson (author of Kashmiri Dictionary), Dr. Barnet.Pandit Anandkaul collected these Vâks and commented on them later on.

Lalleshwari

Lall Vakhs

Several hundred Lall Vakhs have been collected. A Vākh, recited on several occasions as an incantation on festivals by professional singers is as under: (In Kashmiri).

"Shiv Chuy ThaliTthali Rozan
Mo- zan Hindu- tu Musalman
Trukay Chuk Paan Panon Prazanav
So Chay Sahibs Sat Pa'z Zaan."

Shiv pervades every place and everything. Do not differentiate between Hindu and Muslim. If you are intelligent then try to know your self and that will lead you to true knowledge of god.

Towards later part of her life she became a roaming monk like Mira and kept on reciting her Vâks which expressed divine truths of all religions. She was a strong critic of idol worship and advised people to adopt Yoga as a means for moksha.

"Idol is a stone, temple is of stone, above (temple) and below (idol) are one, which of them will thou worship, O foolish Pandit ? Cause thou the union of mind with soul."

Again in another Vâkh she says:

"O mind, why hast thou become intoxicated at another's expense ?Why hast thou mistaken true for un true"

She advocated perfection in this life rather than wait for next life. She recommends faith and perseverance for perfection.

"Shiva is with a fine net spread out, He permeath the mortal coil. If thou, whilst living, canst see Him. How canst thou when dead".

Take out self from Self, after pondering over it".

Towards her end of life, when she had finally merged herself with Lord Shiva, she said :

"I saw and found I am in everything. I saw god effulgent in everything after hearing and pausing, Shiva is the house and it is His alone, who am I Lalla?".

She preached essential unity of all religions and as such had following both among Hindus (who called her Laleshwari) and Muslims (who called her Lall Arif or Lal Ded).

It is said that through her Vâks, Kashmiri language received a great boost as a medium of expression. She added to the richness of Kashmiri language especially through her Vâkhs which make up above 30 percent of Kashmiri Proverbs.

A hospital (Lal Ded Hospital) was named in her memory in Srinagar some time back.

c) *Sahib Kaul (17th Century)[3]

Sahib Kaul alias Anandnatha was a great Shiva philosopher who had mastered Kaulism and poetry at an early age. Some believe he was a born perfect practitioner (siddha) as he revealed knowledge of god when he was just eight years old and composed verses in Sanskrit showing his understanding of Shiva philosophy.

He lived in Kashmir during the reign of Shahjehan and Aurengazeb. It is said he had death experience at an early age and wrote five verses explaining his death experience and five more after recovering from "death". He called these Verses "Shiva-Jiva-Dashaka".

d) *Nund Riyosh (1378-1437 AD)[4]

(The Sahazanand) Born to Salar Sanz and Sadra Maj, he is known by several names – Nund Reyosh or Nund-Rishi, Sheikh-Nur-ud-Din and Sahazanand. His spiritual eminence has won him the title of Sheikh-ul-Alam (Pious man of the world). His birth as a Hindu or a Muslim is a subject of controversy but what is fact is that his philosophy and way of life appealed to both Hindus and Muslims. He was normal married man and had 2 children. He did not have interest in worldly life. He meditated in caves for full 12 years, living on just milk and later on, on water alone. He believed in fasting and eating vegetarian food only. During his life time Kashmir witnessed worst type of religious prosecution under Sultan Sikander (1389-1413 AD) and his successor. At such crucial time he became the conscious keeper of people and preached universal brotherhood along with Lal Ded who was senior to him. His spiritual eminence and humane philosophy made him very popular among people and they came to see and get blessed by him. He was influenced by the Buddhist message of compassion (Ahimsa) which he preached and practiced later on.

He also composed verses like Lal Vâkh called 'Shruks' which are very popular even

Reshi Cult among Kashmiri Muslims

Nund Resh is the founder of Rishi Cult among Muslims of Kashmir which survives till this date in Kashmir.

These Rishis have their shrines throughout Kashmir and they live a detached life where vegetarian atmosphere prevails. These shrines are visited by both Hindus and Muslims. Some of the prominent shrines are:

1) Nund Rishi at Tsrar
2) Laderman Rishi at Ariari
3) Yasman at Vegibror
4) Sajan Rishi at Akhal
5) Jogi Rishi at Chair
6) Ropa Rishi at Kohsherkot
7) Ganga Baba at Badrkot
8) Mubarik Rishiat Aish Muqam
9) Khwaja Baba at Badrkot
10) Sham Bibi at Pushkar
11) Shang Rishi at Anant Nag
12) Baba Rishi at Tangmarg

now.

His mortal remains remain buried at Tsar (known as Tsari-Shareof) in Budgam District of Kashmir where a huge durgah (mosque) is built and which is one of the focal points of faith for Muslims and Hindus as well. He was one of the true founders of "Kashmiryat" (Kashmiri culture).

e) *Raghava Bhatta (Fifteenth Century AD)

He was a great Shiva scholar. He wrote commentary on Tantra and Trika philosophy in 1454 AD. Nothing more is known about him.

f) *Rupa Bhavani (1625-1721 AD)[5]

It is said that Madhao Dhar, a great devotee of Sharika Bhagwati, regularly prayed at Her feet. Pleased with his devotion, mother appeared as a young girl and asked for a boon. Madhoo Dhar asked Devi to take birth as his daughter. Sometime after this incident a girl was born in the family who from the very birth indicated her divine qualities and was named Rupa (a common name in Hindu families). Right from her childhood she was initiated into the mysteries of yoga by her father, who himself was a great devotee of Lalleshwari. She also came into contact with Muslim saints, such as Shah Qalander through her father and also Sayed Kamal who lived in their neighbourhood. Thus, from an early age she was exposed to high spiritual life and her parents were proud of her. This was an age when unmarried girls were not considered safe in home due to Pathan rule, who would abduct them. Parents preferred to marry their daughters young. Rupa was married at the age of seven to a young boy of Sapru family. Her mother-in-law did not approve of her other worldly nature, and like Lalleshwar's mother in law, made life miserable for her, which prompted her to leave Sapru's house and return back to her fathers house located on the right bank of river Jehlum, at Khanqahi Sokhta (near Safakedal). Her father welcomed her back and guided her in her spiritual path. Finding it difficult to carryout meditation in the family (grehast) environment, she decided to go for meditation in secluded places. Thus, she went to Wusun, Manigam, Waskura, Chashmu-I-Sahib (near Srinagar) where she attracted her devotees and set up ashrams. Both Hindus and Muslims went to see and listen to her. It is said that at Manigam she planted a chinar tree on the bank of Sindh river which is still growing and at Waskur (near Sumbal) she got dug a well and cured a blind potter's son with this water, which is till this date held as sacred place. She composed Vâkhs like Lalleshwari which show the depth of her spiritual attainment. A collection of these Vâkhs has been published by Prof. B. N. Parimoo.

Mata Rupa Bhawani (1677-1777)

She was a great reformer of her times. She opposed animal sacrifices, bigamy and polygamy which was common then. She encouraged Hindus to maintain their dignity even under worst conditions. She was the moral strength of community and down trodden ones in hard times.

During her life time she came to be called as Rupa-Bhavani by Hindus and 'Rupa-Arif' by Muslims. Her other name is Alakheswari (lady with a lock of hair). It is said she kept her hair un plaited. At her death, Shah Qalander, a famous sufi saint said:

"That holi-natured incarnation of unseen Broke her coil of four elements. Flew to the highest heaven with good natured heart, and united with bliss".

g) Reshi Pîr (1637 AD)[6]

(also known as Pir Pandit Padshah). His father Pandit Gobind Kaul lived at Batyar Mohalla, Alikadal Srinagar. He was only seven years old when his mother died. His father ,who was quite advanced in age, married a young lady from village Ghoshi (Kupwara Distt) after the death of his first wife. He was still a young boy when he got interested in Saddhna and made efforts to find a guru (Teacher) for spiritual attainment. He found his guru in Pandit Krishan Kar who initiated him through "a puff of his challum" (Inhaling of Tobacco) which opened his "trikaddrishti" (vision beyond). He spent 14 years in saddhna.

Sahib Satam

Rupa Bhavani attained her nirvana (death) in 1721 AD at her parent's house on the 7th day of dark fortnight of Magh. This day is observed as Sahib Saptami (Her parents were known as Sahib Dhars). Yagnya is performed at her parent's house at Khankahi Sokta, where large number of people go to offer Kand (sugar cone) and some cash. Her Kanyigati Sradha (Kambir Pach Shradh) is observed at Vaskur, where large number of devotes go to drink water from the well, which is taken out by a Muslim family (whose son was cured by Rupa).

Pir Pandit Padhshah Hardu Jahan Mushkil

Resh Pir helped people both in their spiritual and temporal pursuits and came to be called as Pir Pandit Padhshah Hardu Jahan Mushkil (Emperor of two worlds and answer to difficulties of all kinds).

It is said he influenced his contemporary Muslim saint Mulla Akund Badakshani with his Vedic knowledge who passed it on to Dara Shikoha . Sair-I-Akbar written by Dara Shikoha is based on Vedic thought.

Reshpîr, like other saints of time became symbol of Kashmiri brotherhood and had following both among Hindus and Muslims. The local governor presented him with a grant of land (jagir) in Devsar Village. His shrine at his birth-place is regularly visited by people even now, who carry a baked bread (Kulcha) to the shrine as prashad. A pair of his wooden footwear (Khadaon) is worshipped regularly. After migration in 1990, His footwear has been carried to Jammu where his followers have preserved it.

h) *Swami Jîwan Shah (18th Century)[7]

Rajkak was a person of means and lived at Rainawari. His wife was a regular worshipper of Mata Khir Bhawani Tulamulla. She was blessed with a son who was named Jîwan Shah. Jîwan Shah was married when still a child but he soon renounced world and confined himself to a room where he performed deep meditations. There are recorded many miracles performed by him, a few are narrated below:

Swami Jeewan Shah

Jiwan Shah remained in crow posture for Sixty Years

He was a master of Rajyoga and remained in 'Kag Asan' (crow posture) for about 60 years till the end of his life. During his life time people sought his blessing.

There is a custom in Rainewari Srinagar that when ever a marriage takes place, the first plate thali of feast (cooked rice, vegetables etc.) is offered to Jîwan Shah. He kept a wooden rectangular plank in his room as his furniture and people even now consider the piece of wood as sacred and feel divine presence when they touch it. He often asked his devotees to partake of food kept in his room, which sometime was stale and people ate it and were blessed.

1) In 1783 AD Pathan soldiers abducted a Hindu girl and carried her in boat. The father of girl approached Jiwan Shah for help. Who wrote a couplet in Persian language like this:

"Agar Hukmi Khuda Naist, Ba Hukum Jewan Shah." Kishti-Gark Aab Khud, Hindva Az, Aab Bala Shudl." (If it is not the gods command, by my (Jîwan Shah's) own command then the boat should capsize drowning all except the Hindu girl).

The boat did capsize and Pathan soldier got drowned, only Hindu girl landed ashore safely.

2) One Krishna Kaul – a policeman was ordered to be punished by throwing him into a well for a lapse by which a murderer had escaped from his custody. Jîwan Shah advised him to arrange a 'Band Jeshan' (a musical concert) in which the escaped murder will come and get arrested again. Shri Kaul did as advised and culprit did come and got re-arrested, which saved his life.

i) *Manas Razdan (16th Century AD)

He was a saint from Kashmir who impressed Mughal King and was given a grant of land Jagir in Punjab. A lane in Srinagar, Razdam Kocha (in Bane Mohalla) is named after him.

j) *Mirzkak (1744-1820 ?)[8]

He was a saint of high order who though not formally educated and yet continued the tradition of writing 'Vakhys' of Lalashwari tradition. Mirzkak was born at Hangalgund, Anantnag district and lived there during the middle of 18th Century. He was a born Siddha, who did not need any initiation. He was an embodiment of simplicity and celibacy. He was lover of nature and liked to remain far from crowds and yet he could not disappoint anyone who came to see him.

After his nirvana, a samadhi has been built on the bank of river Bringe at Hangalgund, which was the focal point for all Kashmiri Hindus to seek divine intervention in their daily problems of life. It is said his samadhi has been visited by high order saints and scholars like Bhagwan Gopinath, Swami Nand Bab, Swami Lakshman Joo, Krâl Bal, Sedh Mol. Saints from Varanasi, Mathura, Hardwar and other places would come every year for performing saddhna. An annual festival used to be held for days together at his samadhi.

C) Saints and Savants of Modern Period (1801-2000 AD)

(Renaissance of Hindu tradition).
With the end of Muslim rule in Kashmir in 1819, when Sikh ruler Maharaja Ranjit Singh of Punjab forced Afghans out of Kashmir, the Hindu saints and savants, who it seems, lay hidden, appeared on the surface in such profusion that it almost became difficult to accommodate all of them in this brief write up. The notable ones are:

a) Parmanand (1791-1879 AD)

Parmanand (His original name was Pandit Nand Ram) was born in 1791 AD at Seer Village near Mattan Anantnag Distt. His parents were of religious bent and thus, at a very tender age he got a peep into religious beliefs. He got his education in Persian language and learned Sanskrit from Sadhus who flocked to Mattan every year. He composed Persian poetry under the penname of "Gareeb" and Sanskrit under the name of "Parmanand". His wife, Mal Ded, was an ill tempered lady and yet the saint in him was not disturbed in his spiritual path. For his living he had to accept the job of a Patwari after his fathers death, who was also a patwari. He ultimately gave up this job for his spiritual pursuits.

Parmanand

Parmanand's philosophy is predominantly that of Bhakti-yoga. He was a great Krishna uppasak and his famous composition are "Suddhama charatr" and "Karam Bhoomi" where the emphasis is that highest goal of man is to attain mastery over ones own self by unswerving devotion to Lord. His leelas (Kashmiri stuties) which have been compiled by master Zind Kaul under the title "Krishna Leela" are part of Kashmiri folk lore. In one of his famous poems "Amarnath Yatra" he describes the various paths through which one has to go to reach Supreme Self. His poem Radha Suamber is a masterpiece devotional poem. His leela, Shiva Lagan (describing Unity of One with many) is recited by faithful ones on auspicious occasions.

b) Swami Shanker Razdam (19th Century AD)

Born in a middle class family at Kanya Kadl Srinagar, Shanker Razdan was a born Siddha. He displayed remarkable Vâkh Siddhi i.e. what he said would come true-at a young age.

As an adult he preferred life of a celibate.

Shankeran Makatch

Swami Shanker Razdan always carried an axe with him, which he worshipped. This axe came to be known as "Shankeran Makatch" (Shanker's Axe) and has now become a phrase in Kashmiri language to indicate something, which is always present.

He started his (tapasya) meditation at the shrine of Umma Bhagwati in Uttarsu and later on at Menzgam (Kulgam). After this he shifted to the shrine of Khirbhawani. Later on he became disciple of Swami Zanardan at Srinagar.

He is said to have performed many miracles. Once he saved the lives of many pilgrims at Amarnath, who were caught in a thunderstorm and at another occasion he brought back to life a dead boy of a widow, whom he later on adopted and gave him the name Ramjoo, who later on rose to become military advisor to Maharaja Amar Singh (father of Maharaja Hari Singh).

Swami Jee was a man of learning in Sharda. He has written Ramayana in Sharda Script (which has not been published so far).

A samadhi named Ratanjot at Srinagar was built by Maharaja Amar Singh in his honour besides a temple where his axe and other artifact, have been kept.

c) *Swami Ramji (1852-1915)

He was born a purohit (family priest) at Srinagar and received his initiation (diksha) from Sri Manas Ram Monga (or Manehkak) who was a great Siddha of Kashmir Shaivism.

d) *Swami Vidyadhar (1886-1950)

Ramji – father of renaissance of Kashmir Shaivism

He achieved great fame as a siddha in his life time and was respected by all and even king of Kashmir (Pratap Singh) approached him for his blessings. He can be called the father of renaissance of Kashmir Shaivism in modern times. He established a Shiva Ashram at Fateh Kedal (third bridge) Srinagar known as Sri Rama Shiva Ashram (Trika).

Swami Vidyadhar as a reformer

He was a great reformer. Kashmiri Pandits, who returned to their faith after forcible conversion to Islam were treated as untouchable by Kashmiri Pandits and called them by the nick name 'Lej-battas'. He organized a yagnya and invited all intellectuals of valley and served these so called Lej-battas himself with full devotion and thus removed one of the social barriers in a divided Kashmiri Pandit society.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

He was born in a Brahmin family of Shri Gankak Rajanak, resident of Sathu Barber Shah, Srinagar. His mother was Harmati. His father passed away when he was 6 and was brought up by elder brother Gopinath.

Swami Vidyadhar

He had a sharp memory and a resolute disposition as a child which carried him to Swami Ramji who initiated him into Trika System. He lived a life of wandering saint at Tral and Khirbhawani where small ashrams were established and where from he preached Shaivism principles.

He breathed his last at the age of 64 at Srinagar. His poetic works in Sanskrit include:

1) Guru Stuti – a hymn in praise of his guru Swami Ram Ji
2) Nirvan Villap – Hymn for Ma Rajnya
3) Kalika Stutis – Hymn to goddess Kalika
4) Saraswati Stutih – Maa Saraswati

e) Bhagwan Gopinath (1898-1968)

The highest stage that a human can attain in Shiva-Shakti Saddhna is known as Kaula or Agoreshwar. This is the last climb to reach that stage of gods creation where from it starts and is known Paravidya. Such saints are known as Bhagwan or Agoreshwar as per Hindu thought. A person in this situation is freed from all karmic bonds. For him there is neither moksha (liberation) nor rebirth. He is law into himself and performs act either directly or indirectly which may appear to be baffling.

Bhagwan Gopinath

He was born at Srinagar on 3rd July 1898 to Pt. Narayan Joo Bhan and Haarmali. It is believed he was initiated into Sainthood by Swami Zankak Tufchi.

f) Swami Nand Bab (_?__ 1973)

Swami Nandlal was unique saint who dominated Kashmir for over 50 years up-to 1973 when he breathed his last. He could divulge into past and future but for uninitiated it was not easy to understand all this. He behaved like a person

Swami Gopi nath an Agneshwar

Bhagwan Gopinath Ji belonged to the spiritual line (Parampara) of Kauls and Agoreshwars. He had reached the highest stage of Self realization. He lived all along his life in Srinagar and never went out of Kashmir. Yet his fame spread all over India and even abroad. Learned people came to his simple ashram to receive his blessings One of the greatest living saints of this order Bhagwan Ram of Varanasi has established a seat for him in "Kreem Kund" - one of the oldest and sacred shrines in Varanasi and there he sits among the galaxy of Agneshwars. Bhagwan Gopinath Ashrams have come up in Delhi Jammu and other places after migration of Kashmiri Pandits from Srinagar (in 1990).

Nandbab - the faqir

Nand Baba was a mystic saint(faqir) of high order. He was quaintly dressed, usually wearing shorts, a shirt and a hat and occasionally was accompanied by a person carrying a musical instrument- sitar. He talked through parables to his admirers. He would write some long sentences on pieces of paper in Urdu or Persian and distribute them among the persons who came to see him. He was popularly known as Nandbab.

who always spoke in an incomprehensive language which made no sense to a common man and yet if understood by those who were close to him, it made full sense.

Swami Nand Bab

He did not convey any philosophy as saints do, he was a sort of faqir who has following among all people: Hindus, Muslims etc.

He did not have a permanent place to sit but would stay at any of his follower's place ,where large number of people visited him to receive his blessings.

He hailed from village Nuner near Ganderbal.

It is said that in the hierarchy of siddhis a stage comes when a spiritual aspirant gets a vision of the universe and through his mind's eye see's the past present and future. At this stage his spiritually is so powerful that he can even change the course of thing and destiny of individuals. He was a siddha of this type.

g) Swami Anandji Maharaj of Villagams

He came from Villigam in Kapwara Tehsil of Kashmir. In his early age he worked as domestic help at the house of Dullus in Karan Nagar, Srinagar where he would use his spare time in the meditation.

It was in such situation when his master Mr. Dulu observed brilliance in the room where he was meditating. Thus his master became his first disciple and then on he became "Bab Sahib" to his devotees. Later on he shifted to Kherbawani in Tulamulla where he lived at the feet of Goddess Ragnya and blessed humanity with his divine presence from there.He was a 'Shakti Upasak' and a follower of Nandi Deity. He performed regular Yagnyas at Nandkeshwar at Sumbal.

h) Master Zind Kaul (1884-1966)

Master Zind Kaul was a theosophist, a bhakta, a Vedantic and Buddhist rolled in one. He composed poetry in English, Persians, Urdu, Hindi, Sanskrit and Kashmiri. He lived a simple life and was respected by all section of society. His poetry reflected Hindu philosophy through devotional songs. He wrote under the pen name of "Sabit". He was a great admirer of Permanand and often recited his poems. His poetic composition included, besides religion other composition on love, nature and other subjects. Some of his satirical poems like "Clerkee" made him very popular. Bhakshi Ghulam Mohd. Ex. PM of J & K was a great fan of his poetry and respected him a lot. His collection of Hindi poems "Sumran" got him Sahitya Academy award in 1956. His collection of Urdu poems under the tittle "Dewan-I-Sahit" was published in 1951.

i) Krishan Joo Razdan (1850-1926 AD)

He was a Sanskrit and Persian Scholar of repute. Although a Shivaaite by faith yet he composed songs in praise of other gods. He was a great yogi of his time and king of that time Maharaja Pratap Singh used to visit him. He had great interest in music as well. His collection of Verses "Shiva Parinayah" has been published by Asiatic Society of Bengal. In his composition of poetry he exceeds even Parmanand in the field of Bhakti poetry.

Krishan Joo Razdan

j) Swami Sonakakji (1879-1942)

Swami Sonakah was a mystic saint who was quite popular among people. Other names by which he was known are Sona Bab, Sona Bayu, Sona Matoo.

His father was a family priest. He had access to royalty of time Maharaja Pratap Singh. His younger brother Swami Rugh Bayu was also a known saint.

In his early years he also acted as a purohit (family priest) along with his father but kept his saddhna active and was often seen visiting cremation ground in Srinagar.

Swami Jee left his ancestral home in Srinagar and stayed at the house of his devotee Shri Shridar Joo Dhar at Alikadal , Kharyar for14 years. Dr. Gwashlal Kaul a prominent physician was his devotee and he sometime stayed with him.

He believed in leaving no trace of his mortal body and belongings and as such no shrine has been created in his honour after his nirvana.

Sonakak – a faqir called Lori Peer

He was a mystic faqir called by the name "Lori-Pir" (he always carried a stick "Lor" with him"). Like his contemporary mystic saint Swami Nandlal he also roamed streets of Srinagar, going into trances. At times he used abusive language to scare away people and at other times, he would sit on a shop, smoking his favourite "Challum" or ask for a cup of tea. People respected him and followed him for his "Trikal drashi" (Vision beyond). Like other mystic saints he loved to present himself as a dirty faqir who never changed his cloths.

Kashkak- a farmer saint

He preferred to live a simple life and earn his bread by toiling in the fields as a farmer Mehr Baba himself a renowned saint has paid a rich tribute to Kashkak (in his book Wayfarers). He states "he found Kashhak ever engrossed in higher pursuit in the 7th plane of consciousness".

k) Kashkak (? – 1961)

Yet another mystic saint of Kashmir, Kashkak was born and lived at Manigam, till the end of his life in 1961.He was initiated into Saddhna by his guru Naran Bhan and achieved success at an early age.

Swami Kashkak

His fame as a spiritual visionary spread far and wide and people of all categories Hindus, Muslim, government servants, businessmen and even saints came to seek his blessing.

l) Swami Lakshman Joo (1907-1991)

He was given name Lakshman by his guru Swami Ramjoo who was family priest of Shri Narayandass Raina. Swami Ramji had predicted his arrival and right from his birth introduced him to various Shiva Saddhnas which he had already mastered. Swami Ramji did not live long enough to groom up the boy under his guidance, but he had made sure that his chief disciple and successor Mahtabkak would take care for spiritual growth of Laskhman, who taught him Shaiva Shastras and saddhna.

Swami Lakshman Joo

When he was 20 years old he left home for Sadhuganga Ashram in Sopore for meditation.

> Swami Lakshman Ju - a Jnan yogi
>
> He was Jnanyogi of the highest order who guided a generation of scholars and ordinary people into the mysteries of Kashmir Shaivism. Jaidev Singh who has translated many Shiva Sutras into English, has dedicated all the books to Swami Ji whom he acknowledges as guide and guru.
> He always considered himself a scholar rather than a saint. People of highest authority such as Prime Minister of India – Indira Gandhi went to his ashram to have his darshan.

After some time he went to Daniyahana (near Harvan) where his father made an ashram for him. He stayed there for 7 seven years to study Shaiva Shastras under the guidance of reputed Scholar Maheshwar Nath Razdan. It was here that Sharika Devi (who later on became renowned saint) was accepted by him as a disciple.

It was in 1934 that Lakshman Joo built an ashram for himself at Ishber near Nishat and taught Shaiva Sutras to his disciples. He was a modest man in his life and possessed child like simplicity. His dress was a long robe (pheran) and his facial expression that of a person who wants to give everything that he has to those who ask for it.

It is one of the saddest events in the spiritual progress of Kashmiri Pandits that Swami Ji had to leave Kashmir and his ashram for Delhi in 1990 due to militancy in Kashmir. Soon after he took Samadhi in 1991 while he was at Delhi. Ashrams dedicated to his teachings and memory have been established at Delhi, Jammu, Gurgaon and San Francisco USA.

Some of his works are:

1) Abhinavgupta's commentary on Bhagwad Gita.
2) Kramanayadepka – (Twelve forms of Kali from Tantraloka).
3) Sambapancesika and Panchastavi of Dharmecharya (Hindi Translation).
4) The Secret of Supreme Consciousness.
5) Lectures on Practice and discipline of Kashmir Shaivism.

m) Swami Aftab Ji (1883-1959)[9]

He was the youngest among six children born to Shri Prakash Ram and Smt. Parvati of village Karihama Distt. Kupwara. He showed signs of spiritual attainment at an early age and later on received initiation from his guru Shri Gobind Ji Talashi – who was a mystic saint and a scholar residing at Chinkara Mohalla Srinagar. He remained bachelor and devoted all his life to meditation. He composed verses which were published in 1958 under the Title 'Bhaskar Prakash'.

n) Swami Nand Lal of Tikker (1902-1966)[10]

He was born in Srinagar in 1902. His father Pandit Sahab Kaul (Kothidar) was a known banker and had approach even to the royalty of time. His mother died when he was still very young. His step mother was saintly lady who initiated him into saddhna. Later on he received diksha from Swami Lal Ji of Varanasi. In early age he went to Sopore and worked his way into spiritual ladder at Bomai Sadhamaleun. He was a strict-vegetarian, a brahmchari and lover of sufiana music.

From Sopore he shifted to Sharada Shrine in Tanghdar (now under POK) where he stayed till 1947, when had again to shift from there to Tikker village in Kupwara Distt, where he established yet another ashram on top of a hill where he lived most of the time.

Swami Nandlal of Tikker

Swami Ji established another ashram at Hushoora Badgan Distt. He took Samadhi 1996. His chief disciples, Kral Bab, Mast-Ram Ji. Swami Sedmol (Ved Lal) and Bai Toth Ji (Swami Sham Lal) are carrying his message to masses and continuing his tradition of service to humanity.

o) Swami Mast Ram Ji (1931- Living)

His original name is Sohan Lal and was born in 1931 in Punjabi Family at Budlada (Punjab) His inner search for a suitable guru for guidance in the spiritual path brought him to Swami Nand Lal of Tikkar (Kupwara), under whose guidance he became a siddha and was given new name Mast Ram. After nirvana of his master in 1996, he established ashrams at Badipora (Badgam Distt) and antoher at Patoli Jammu where he carried spiritual activities and guides people in this direction.

Swami Mast Ram

Due to migration of Hindus from Kashmir in 1990, he also shifted his activities to Jammu

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

where he opened the doors of ashram to all migrants till they could make alternative arrangement. Later on he established a large ashram at Haridwar and also one at Delhi. These ashrams have become centers for religious activities of Kashmiri Pandits. Swami Jee has learned Kashmiri and has a large following among Kashmiri Pandits.

He does not believe in the performance of miracles. He is a Karmyogi Sanyasi who works for the upliftment of the masses.

p) *Karûnamai Mâ (1917-2000 AD)

Thirty five km away from Gurgoan, at Sanp Ki Nangli near Sohna ,there is a beautiful ashram spread over about 10 acres of land known as Shree Karunamai Mâ Shaktipith, which was established by Karunamai Mâ on Basant panchmi in the year 1988. It has a temple with a large hall to accommodate 500 people with a large idol of Ragnya Bhagwati. Near by is the ashram where Karunamâ lived with her disciples. It houses a library and other cooking arrangement for large gatherings as big as 3000. All around there are fruit trees and green gardens. The very sight of the ashram is pleasing to the eye.

Karunamai Maa

Karunamai Mâ was born on Nag Panchmi in 1917 in the family of Kitchlûs at Indore and was given the name Bimla. She received traditional education at Allahbad and Varanasi and was married in Channa family. She had three sons. Parm Siddha Srî Kant of Bîjbihera was family priest of Channas, who would stay with them during winter months when life in Kashmir becomes difficult ,due to extreme cold. He noticed the spiritual tendencies in Bimla and after several years of training initiated her into the world of spirituality in 1956 at the bank of River Ganges at Kanpur and gave her the new name of Karunamai Maa.

Karunamai Mâ was a great devout of Ragnya Bhagwati. She visited Khirbhawani temple regularly till 1989 when further visits became difficult due to unrest in Kashmir.

Karunamai Maa - Ragnya incarnate

Karunamai was a Kashmiri saint in all respects. She was initiated by a Kashmiri guru Swami Siri Kanth of Bijibihara. The main deity of the temple where she carried daily puja is Ragnya Bhagwati of Tullamulla. She preached Shaivism and Vedanta . Most of the recitations at prayers are of Kashmiri origin ( Unknown outside Kashmir) She liked Kashmiri food and same type of food is served even now to all on important occasions. She had a divine personality. She was fair and in her simple dress she always looked like a goddess. Karunamaī Mā had a talent for writing prose and poetry, invoking deep philosophical thoughts. She had a melodious voice with which she rendered her compositions into beautiful prayers dedicated to her guru and Ragnya Bhagwati.

Karunamai Mâ had a charming personality. She composed several poems and Dohas (couplets of wisdom) which have been published. She would often sing her compositions and various stuties with her rich musical voice.

Karunamai Maa liked travelling. She travelled many foreign countries such as UK, Europe, Canada etc.

During her life time she initiated a number of people into the path of spirituality. She handed over charge of ashram to her chief disciple Nand Bhaba in 1998 and took samadi in Oct., 2000.

q) 'Kamal' Pandit Janki Nath Kaul - a Savant Scholar (1914-1997)

His grandfather Pandit Shivaa Kaul was a Sanskrit scholar and a seer. It is from him that he developed interest in the scholarship of Sanskrit. He was a great scholar of Shiva Philosophy and was a disciple of Swami Laxman Joo. His monumental works include:

Janki Nath Kaul

1) Commentaries on Bhawani Nama Sahsra Stutih
2) Panc'astavi
3) Shiva Sutra Vimarsha
4) Sampanchashika
5) Parmarthsara
6) Vedant Dindimah
7) Indrakash Satortram

After migration from Kashmir he held classes at Jammu where he taught. Bhagwad Geeta, Indrakshi strotram, Atma Bodh, Tatve Bodh, Upnishad, Panchastava & Maha Puran. He died in 1997 at the age of 83. He received President Award in Sanskrit.

r) Rughnath Kukiloo (1911-1997)

Pandit Rughnath Kukiloo was one of renowned saint cum scholar cum astrologer who lived at Banamohalla Srinagar in a narrow lane by river side. He was worshipper of Shakti and anyone who visited him could see his worshipping place in ground floor where he would receive visitors. One could see ladies waiting at his place with horoscopes of their children to seek his blessings in solving their routine problems.

Rughnath Kukillo

He was a Sanskrit Scholar who had studied Vedas and Shastras and astrology. He regularly performed havan during navratra days and observed fast for 5 days of Shivratri during which time his house, looked like an ashram where lines of people waited to have his dharshan. He was always dressed in simple cloths – a 'pherun' and white 'dastar' on his head. His introduction to Panchastavi written by Pandit Jankinath Kaul Kamal gives a sight of his knowledge about shastras.

Other Saints

The list of saints is endless, but there are not sufficient details available about their lives, which does not in any sense make their contribution, less important. They have, or are continuing to

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

SHRINES & TEMPLES

There is hardly a hamlet in Kashmir where there is not a religious place of Hindus, be it a hillock, a mountain peak, a cave, tree, spring lake or river. There are sixteen temples (Yars) on the bank of River Jehlum in Srinagar called Shurah Yars (!6 Yars) dedicated to various gods such as Lord Shiva, Lord Ram or Bhairwa.

Shrines and Temples of Kashmir fall under two periods of their construction:

A) Temples built during the period of Hindu reign which ended in 14th Century AD.
B) Temples and Shrines of later Period (14th Century AD onwards).

A) Temples of Hindu reign[1] (upto 14th Century)

Most of these temples were heavy structures made with large limestone blocks without use of mortar dedicated to Lord Shiva. Many of these temples now lie in ruins, maintained by Archeological Survey of India. These temples suffered destruction due to natural processes such as earthquakes, poor maintenance and human agency (many Muslim rulers destroyed these temples). Some of the better known temples of this period are:

1) Shankercharya Temple
2) The Sun Temple of Martand Martand
3) Awantipura Temple
4) Naristan Temple
5) Pandrathan Temple
6) Pattn Temples
7) Payech Temple
8) Kulrmeru Temple
9) Naran Nag (Wangat) Temple
10) Bamzu Cave Temples
11) Mamleshwar Temple-Pahalgaum.

1) Shankercharya Temple

A massive stone temple built on top of hill known as Shankeracharya hill, named after that great Hindu revivalist Shankeracharya, dedicated to Lord Shiva, is one the main landmarks of Srinagar over looking Dal Lake. It is place of worship for Hindus and a sight where from one enjoys the total scenery of Srinagar city. It is a favourite tourist spot. The temple is at a height of about 300 meters above city towards east.

The history of this temple is woven in the myth and history of Kashmir.It is said to have been built by King Sandiman, who ruled Kashmir 2605-2540 BC[2] and was named "Jeshtashwara" temple. The hill was then known as "Jet Lundrak".

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Later on this temple was renovated by King Gopaditya (369-390 BC). This hill came to be known as Gopadri in his reign. Even now the base of this hill on the present day Cantonment side is known as Gopkar where Maheraja Harisingh built a palace known as Gopkar Palace. The base of the hill on the Dal lake side was known as Bhaksira Vatica (now known as Buchwara).

Shiv Temple Atop Hill

Worship at ancient Shankeracharya Temple is still carried out
It is the only ancient temple where worship is still carried out.

The temple is built on polygonal base of about twenty meter height which is made of massive lime stone blocks, without mortar. The temple itself is about fifteen meters high from the base. A huge Shivlinga has been installed inside this temple which is the main object of worship by devotes. It is said this temple was connected with river Jehlum by Sculptured stones which were later on removed during Muslim rule and were used for construction Pathermesjid in Srinagar.

Later on this temple was repaired by King Lalitaditya (700-760 AD).

It is said Adi Shankeracharya visited Kashmir in the ninth century AD when he was on a mission to stop the influence of Buddhism in India which had by then become popular in Kashmir as well.

Gen. Cunningham (a western historian) believes this temple is "Jayesthrudra" temple built by King Jaluka, son of Ashoka the great ruler who ruled Kashmir some time around 100BC.

The temple was lately renovated during 1970's by Dharmarth trust. A marble statue of Adi. Shankeracharya was installed at the base of temple. A stair of stone slabs was built for the last lap of about 100 meters. A TV tower stands on this hill which is about 200 meters above groun level. A water tank (with pumping arrangement for lifting of water on top of hill) has been installed to meet requirements of water for Shiva worship. A small hut provides shelter to pilgrims. A garden with flowers and a few Chinar trees in front of temple add to the beauty of place.

Muslims of Kashmir call this hill Takt-Sulaeman.

2) Martand Temple

(also known as Pandu-Larey - the house of Pandvas)
It is situated on the highest point of Karewa plateau, about 3 miles east of Anantnag. This temple is now not more than 40 feet in height but its solid walls and bold outlines, with littered blocks of massive stones with carvings of figures, give it a most imposing appearance.It is reported to have been built between 370-500 AD (see Box).

3) Awantipur Temple

Awantipur lies on the bank of river Jehlum 18 miles from Srinagar.

Martand - a Towering Sun temple

The mass of building, now known as Martand Temple consists of one lofty central edifice, with small detached wings on each side of the entrance, which is 63 feet long and 36 feet wide. The whole structure lies in the middle of a large quadrangle. The length of the outer side of the wall which is blank, is 90 yards, that of the front 56 yards. There are in all 84 columns-a singularly appropriate number in a temple of Sun as number 84 is accounted as sacred by Hindus in consequence of its being the multiple of the number of days in the week (7) with the number of signs in the zodiac (12). The colonnade is recorded in the Rajterangi of Kalhan as the work of famous king Lalitaditya 693-729 AD.

This was ancient capital of King Avantivermane (854-883 AD). The whole neighbourhood is strewn with ruins, but the only traces that remain of its former greatness are the two temples which were built by Avantivermane, one before his accession to the throne and another and longer one subsequently. Both were dedicated to Mahadeva, the former under the title of Awantiswami, the later under the title Awantiswara. The style of these temples corresponds to that of Martand temple. A mosque stands now on some of these ruins.

4) Narastan Temple

This temple lies in the eastern part of the Kashmir valley about 35 miles from Srinagar via Trahat. Its situation is very picturesque, looking down a narrow valley at the feel of lofty mountain of Brariangan range. The cellar stands in a walled enclosure about 65 feet square. This wall is about 5 feet thick and 8 feet high. The main entrance is to the west side through an imposing portico.

A Linga which existed in the cellar is missing and floor has sunk.

5) Pandrathan Temple

It is located or the bank of river Jehlum in Srinagar City, now a Cantonment area.

The stone temple stands in a tank 40 square yards with water about 4 feet deep. The water comes from a spring on its northern side. The dome stone roof of the temple, carved with sculpture of a classic design, makes it look like a great structure. The temple is 18 feet square with a projecting portico on each side. It is reported to have been erected during the reign of King Partha (921-931 AD) and is dedicated to Mahadeva. The temple was called Meru Vardhama Swami. Pandrathan is a corrupted name of Sanskrit word "Puranadhisthana" which was the previous name of Srinagar city.

6) Pattan Temples

The old name of Pattan was Sankerapura. Two temples were built here by Sankervarma (883-901 AD) who succeeded Awantevarma. These temples were given the titles of Sankara Gauresha and Sugandhesvara and were dedicated to Mahadeva. Both the temples are simple cellars, but in the larger one, the projection of the closed porches at the side is so considerable that they form deep niches, or rather shallow chambers, in each of which was a

linga. They depict Martand type of structure, which is still well preserved.

7) Payech Temple

It lies 19 miles from Srinagar under the Naungri Karewa, and about 6 mile from river Jehlum.

This temple is stated to be well preserved. The cellar which is 8 feet square has an open doorway on each of the four sides. The grandeur of this temple lies in its construction as it is made of only ten stones, the four corners being each a single stone with a pyramidal structure over it, made of huge carved stones. General Cunningham attributed this temple to the reign of Narendraditya (483-490 AD). The building is said to be dedicated to Lord Vishnu as Surya (Sun God). The interior is still occupied by a large stone linga.

8) Kulrmaru

At Gesipur (Kupwara) 2 stones pillars which natives call Gurmat represent miniature models of temples which occur all over valley. The place of the open doorway is sculptured with words resembling Sanskrit (?).

9) Naristan (Wangat) Temple

About three miles north of Wangat in Kangan at the head of a stream, far from human habitation, are some ruins of temples. They are in two groups situated at a distances of a hundred yards from each other and consisting of respectively of six and eleven distinct buildings. The buildings have been damaged by forest growth.

The architecture is of a Payech type building, the most striking feature being the bold projection and lofty arches of the lateral porches.

In close proximity is a sacred spring called Nagbal and by it the footpath leads up to the heights of Harmukh to the mountain lake of Gangabala which is a celebrated place for pilgrimage. The construction of these temples was probably made at different times by returning pilgrims as votive offerings after successful accomplishment of hazardous ascent.

10) Bumzu (or Bhumju Caves)

The two caves in the limestone cliffs on the left bank of the Lidder river about a mile north of village Bhawan are known as Bumzu Caves The larger cave is dedicated to Kaladeva. The cave temple stands at the far end of a natural but artificially enlarged fissure in the cliff. The entrance to the cavern, which is more than 60 feet above the level of river, is carved into an architectural doorway. A passage, 50 feet in length, leads from it to the door of the temple. It is a simple cellar, 10 feet square interior dimensions,

Bumzai Cave Temple

Represents earliest specimen of Kashmir Temple.

Dr. Stein believes that this temple is the same temple as the Bhima Keshva temple, mentioned by Kalhan. It was built by King Bhima Sahi, who ruled Kabul Valley in the 10th Century AD. However, Laurence believes that from construction of the temple and material used in its construction, this is the earliest perfect specimen of a Kashmir temple, and dates from the first or second century AD.

built on a raised plinth and approached by a short flight of steps. (see Box) The square doorway is flanked by two round headed niches, despoiled of their statues. A Shivalinga stands at the entrance to the cave, which is partly hidden from view by the houses of local inhabitants.

Close by is another cave of still greater extent, but with no architectural accessions. About half a mile further up the valley, at the foot of the cliff, are two temples, the larger of which has been converted into a Muslim Tomb.

11) Mamleshwar Temple – Pahalgam

Overlooking Pahalgam across the river Lidder there is a massive limestone temple with a dome like structure. The entrance to the temple is through a small open entrance. A Shivalinga still adores the temple, which receives worship during Amarnath yatra period. A small spring near by is also considered sacred.

B) Shrines of Later period (Post 14th Century, AD)

First four centuries of this period were the period of oppression for Kashmiri Pandits. Their temples were destroyed by Muslim zealots and worship became difficult. Those who survived or did not accept Islam as their new religion, preferred to carry worship at home.

Some of the better known temples & Shrines are as follows:

12) Shrines around Hari Parbat

Hari Parbhat has been associated with religious activities from very ancient times. Sharika Mahatmya relates that Durga taking the shape of a Sharika bird (locally called Maina) carried with her beak a part of hill (Saligram) from the Mount Meru and dropped it at a place in order to close the gate of the Daityas who still lived in the remnants of Satisar lake. Subsequently she took abode on the hill to make sure they could not escape. This gave name 'Sharika Parvat' to the hill. In Kashmir the hill is called Hari Parvat (Haer in Kashmiri – stands for the bird Maina).

In the earlier times people made a round of this hillock as an act of religious activity. Later on icons were created at selected places by smearing rocks with sindur (red oxide) and still later on some small structure came up at these places as shelter against rain and heat. These icons are places of worship now. The prominent ones are:

a) Chakreshwar or Sharika Temple

पीडेशवरी शिलारुपां शिारिकां प्रणिमाम्यहं ।।

(May Bhagwati Sharika who is all effulgence by virtue of seven Bijakhsharas; who is having brilliances of Sun; whose pair of lotus feet are the objects of obeisance of seven sages, who is the remover of the ills of seven lokas and whose dwelling is "Pradymna Peetha" in the middle of Srinagar city in Kashmir, founded by King Pravasen, protect us.)

Icon Worship

Destruction of temples by Muslims encouraged Icon Worship in Kashmir Bamzai a noted historian of Kashmir writes: "For carrying worship outside their homes they created icons in the form of rocks or springs without any or major structures as symbols of worship, which ultimately developed into present day shrines".[3]

Goddess Sharika is recognized here in a rock which bears regular geometrical lines representing Sri Chakra Sharika's symbol of worship. The deity is anointed with Sindur (red lead). This shrine is also known as 'Chakreshwari' According to "Shakta Shastra" Sharika is praised and contemplated as the most beautiful and magnificent deity with 18 arms who saves devotes.

अघोर व्याधिनाशी च घोरदुःखनिवारिणी ।
अष्टा दशभुजापायाच्हारिकाशयामसुन्दरी ।।

(Goddess Sharika, inseparable spouse of Vamadeva Shiva, adopted 18 arms emanating from her five fold glory.)

Sharika - Is an Isht Devi

A stone 20 feet by 15 feet smeared with sindur , believed to represent Sri Chakra (a yantra) is the abode of mother Sharika (a form of Durga). This is situated about 300 feet above ground level in the middle of the hillock facing east. Recently this shrine was renovated by community members.

Night long kirtans were held here on Saturday nights and homas performed during navratras. Sharika is the Isht devi of some Kashmiri Pandits.

b) Syambhu Ganpati at Ganeshbal
At one end of hillock a part of rock has been smeared with sindur (red oxide) which is supposed to be Lord Ganesh in Sayambhu form (natural form), A small structure has been raised for carrying out prayers. The Shrine is very sacred place of Kashmiri Pandits who pray there before making a parikrame (round trip) of Hari Parbat. Temple priests report for puja around 4 a.m by which time some regular worshipper reach the place from far off places. The Hemja astuti of Lord Ganash (see Chapter 22) is recited as the main prayer by all.

c) Saptrishi Shrine
It is small rock with a cave like opening. It is considered to be the sacred place for meditation. With the construction of residential houses in this part, it has almost disappeared from sight now.

d) Mahakali Temple
A small structure at the foot of hillock, smeared with Sindur is known as Mahakali Temple where people go for meditations.

e) Deviangan
A plane ground at the foot of Chakreshwar is known as Deviangan. A few structures here are used for offering prayers to Sharika by those who do not want to climb stairs to go up to Shrine.

f) Hari Asthapan
A place about 100 steps up on the hillock is known as Hari Asthapan. A temple at the base is known as Ram Kaul Temple.

g) Hanuman Temple
A carved figure of Hanuman in rock which has been kept in a room, following on parikrame route is paid obeisance by people.

h) Pokribal Temple
A temple covering a spring slightly away from the hillock is a place of regular worship, where bhajan mandalies were held on Saturday nights.

Dogra rulers. A black idol of Goddess Kali is installed here. The temple is open to public only for one day in a year i.e. Ram Navmi. The idol was stolen a few years back by miscreants but was restored soon.

13) Khir Bhawani of Tulamula

Dhyan

(I make obeisance to that one goddess who, having taken to position of the Supreme God is the Queen in reality, whose form is made of light and is adorned by (the luster) of twelve suns, who is seated on a throne and is wrapped with Serpents.)

Tullamulla is a beautiful hamlet, 25 Kmn away from Srinagar, on way to the famous Mansbal Lake. River Sindhu coming down from Sonamarg, flows around it thus, converting it into an island surrounded by marshes. In the midst of this island there is a spring which is the abode of Ragnya Bhagwati the most benevolent and revered deity (Isht Devi) of Kashmiri Pandits. Ragnya Bhagwati here manifests not only in a stone sculpture but also in the colours of spring water, that reflects her moods and destines of her devoties.The large fenced stone paved courtyard, surrounding the spring is shaded by huge, very mature chinar trees, that form a canopy. All round the courtyard are small two storyed hutments with shops selling the various puja items and special preparations called Nadir Munja (Lotus root pakodas) and Lucchi (Chapaties fried in oil).

Ksheer Bhawani takes its name from the offerings of ksheer (sweet rice porridge) which Ragnya Bhagwati enjoys eating. Besides this she is worshippedwith the offerings of flowers, Vena (Fragrant cuttings of plant that grows in this area) and milk.Earten ports of various sizes are used in the making of ratandeeps which are traditionally moved at aarti.

The regular prayers are offered every morning and evening. "Leela Rbda" stuti (see Chapter 24) is recited during day long worship of goddess by devotes who come in hundreds every day.

An annual festival is held here every year on Jeshta Asthama (June-July) which is also Government Holiday in Kashmir. Festivals on a smaller scale are held on every shukla asthami round the year.

Some years back Dharmarth Trust renovated the place by demolishing old deleted structure outside temple premises and raised Dharamshala for staying of pilgrims. A number of structures were raised by local business men and some individuals for performing havâns etc. A park outside the premise before entering the temple adds to the grace of the place.

Legends

1) There is a legend that couple of centuries back, Goddess Ragnya appeared in a dream to Pandit Govind Joe Gadru, a resident of Srinagar, who traveled by boat from Soura (bank of Ancherlake nearest to Srinagar) and after locating the place poured milk in the spring as an offering to deity in the spring.
2) A Brahmin (Krishna Pandit) was ordered by a divine person to proceed to Shadipur by boat and there from go via a mesh of streams of Sind

River to reach the spot where goddess lives. He was guided by the movements of a snake to reach the exact spot where there is temple now. This place was located by Pt. Krishna Pandit on eight shukla Jeshta and as such since then this day is being celebrated as birthday of Ragnya.

Vegetarian

The goddess Ragnya is vegetarian and here no body who has taken meat or eggs enters the sacred premises of worship. Even non-Hindus observe this divine order.

14) Jwala Ji Temple at Khrew

A temple dedicated to Mata Jwala Ji ( An Isht Devi) was built on the spur of a hillock about 250 feet above ground level during Twentieth Century by Late Raja Daya Krishna Kaul at Khrew village which is 25 kms East of Srinagar. It has a stairs of around 300 steps made with dressed limestone's slabs which lead up to sanctum sanctorum. The temple is a simple conical structure made from timber and iron sheets. It is reported that about one century before the construction of temple, Jwala Ji manifested here in the form of a flame (Jyoti), which now stands covered with a "Shila" (4 x 4 x 4 feet) smeared with sindur. It is stated that this "Shila" has naturally carved mystical lines forming triangles and hexagons forming Sri Chakra.

Mythological Link

A legend has it that a group of demons (asuras) who tried to go to Dev Lok to grab the treasure of Kuber, ware checkmated here by Jwali Ji and thereafter She decided to stay here at the request of a Brahma Saddak who was praying here.

Historical Reference of Ragnya Bhagwati

Ragyna Pradurbhava which is a section of Brimgish Samhita states that during Epic Age King Ravana who ruled Lanka got-intoxicated with power which lead to his downfall at the hands of Lord Ram. Goddess Ragnya who lived in Lanka then asked Hanuman to take Her to 'Satisar' along with 360 Nags. Hanuman chose the spot where she is residing now.

Natural Phenomenas

The colour of water of the spring changes periodically from rosy red, to faint rosy, to light green, to lemon yellow and milky white, grey white & dark grey. A shade of black colour is supposed to be inauspicious.

At time it is observed that bubbles coming out of water, arrange the flowers (offered by devotes to the spring) in a certain pattern which resembles the shape of a yantra- known as Ragnya Devi Yantra. Only the chosen devout can have a sight of this yantra which is considered as auspicious dharshan.

35) Jeshta Devi Temples

A temple dedicated to Jeshta Devi at the foot hills of mountain range near present day residence of Governor near Chashma Shahi Srinagar is a popular place for darshan on Thursday, especially in the month of Jeshth. A small temple built inside a spring with the idol of Jeshta Goddess is the focus of worshippers.

Other Shrines

These are:

a) Nandraza at Sumbal - It is tradition among people living here to offer a lamb as sacrifice (known as Raaz Kath) when a new bride comes to village or a wish is fulfilled. A huge chinar tree on the left bank of river marks the place.

b) Nandakashwar Bhairav at Sopora - A Shiva Temple on the left bank of Jehlum at Sopora is associated with Nandakashwar Bhairav, where annual festival is held on Jeshta Amavasya.

c) Shailputri (Devibal) - Situated on the left bank of river Jehlum at Baramulla, it is considered to be as sacred as Kheer Bhawani by the local people. Durga Mata is seated here on a throne which is surrounded by a kunda from which water gushes out.

d) Borus - 18 meter from Srinagar on NH-1A, in a zamindar's compound, stands a Shivalinga carved out of stone about 5 feet high with a circumference of about 8 feet. A water stream flowering down the hill is known as Ganga. In earlier times this was one of the stages for halt of pilgrims on way to Amarnath.

e) Manasbal - On the northern bank of Manasball lake near Kondball there is a spring and near this there is an old archeological temple on the bank of lake. The temple is made of large lime stone slabs. It has got submerged in slush and mud of the lake but only top of temple made of one large block is visible now which partly gives a view of the entrance to temple. It is said there is a reference to this temple in Neelmat Puran.

f) Baramulla - An eight foot high Shivalinga stands majestically near the house of a Sikh in open area near Kanil Bagh, Baramulla. Nearby lie ruins of Buddist Stupa.

g) Verinag - A large black Shivalinga about 4 feet tall located in a hut with Kaccha brick walls exists in the valley sloping down from Jawahar Tunnel. It is said to have been installed by Dogra rulers who used to worship here before leaving or entering valley. It is no longer worshiped.

h) Khirbhawani temple at Kupwara. A temple dedicated to Ragnya Devi at Tikri Kupwara is the focal point of local Hindu population. It is also the place where Ashram of Swami Nand Lal exists.

Explanations

1) The description of these temples is based on the book "Valley of Kashmir" by W.R. Lawrence - Published in 1900 AD.
2) Refer to article Shankeracharya temple hill by P.N. Magazine in the book "Kashmiri Pandits" a cultural History.
3) Bamzai-PNK - Cultural and political history of Kashmir.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

PILGRIMAGES

"Kashmir is Parvati; know that its King is a portion of Shiva".

Nilmatpuran

For a Kashmiri Pandit life revolves round religious rituals and pilgrimages. There are 51 Mahatmyas in Kashmir, which describe pilgrimages to various tîrthâs. During peaceful times men and women would leave their home early in the morning when it is still dark and make a round of Hari Parbhat or on top of Shankeracharya hill to the temple there and return home before it is sunrise. The same tradition was followed in other places where they would go to their religious places such as temples, springs etc. Pilgrimages of all sorts, long and short, even at a discomfort to their physical bodies, were undertaken for the enrichment of soul or as religious command.

Some of these pilgrimages continue even now (when Kashmiri Pandits have been forced out of Kashmir) under tight security provided by government and yet others have been abandoned. Some of the prominent pilgrimages dear to the heart of a Kashmiri Pandit may be described as follows:

a) Amarnath Yatra
b) Shardamata Yatra
c) Harmukh-Gangbel Yatra
d) Dashar at Shadipur

Amarnath Yatra

Amid tight security arrangement by J & K Government and Central Government, around one hundred and fifty thousands pilgrims of all ages, males, female, sadhus from all over India made it to Amarnath cave to pay their obeisance to the icy-Shivalinga of Lord Shiva during the

Kashmir a Sacred Land

The whole of Kashmir is sacred land. Every mountain peak and every water body here is associated with divinity. To the east there is Harmukh (16903 feet), with Gangbal Lake in its lap; Mahadeo Peak over looks Srinagar city; Amarnath (17321) guards its southern borders and yet beyond the Shamsabari Ranges Sharda Mata, so sacred to every Hindu, keeps a watch on its northern borders.

lunar month of Shrawan (14th July-12th August) in 2004. All the pilgrims who want to go for this Pilgrimage (Yatra) have to register themselves in advance at various centers all over India. Under tight escort provided by security personal from Jammu, the pilgrims assemble at Pahalgam. This is the only pilgrimage which has survived even after militancy by Islamic fundamentalists who spare no effort to disrupt it by killing pilgrims where ever and when ever they get a chance.

Historical Background

Bringisha Samhita which describes the religious sanctity behind various sacred shrines of Kashmir written by the Rishi Bringish, states (in Amerishwara Mahatmya, which forms part of Samhita), that the Icy-S*hivalinga* in the cave at Amarnath was revealed to him by Lord Shiva Himself upon intense meditation. Moved by the fervent prayers of His devotees to show them the path of salvation, he revealed location of shrine to His devotes.

There is a mention of this cave in Nilamata Puran as a pilgrimage destination. Kalhan, in his Rajtaringni also describes the importance of this cave. Jonaraja (who wrote later edition of Rajtaramgni) describes the visit of Zan-ul-Abiden (1420-1470) to the shrine. Haider Malik - a Persian historian who visited Kashmir and describes period from 1586-1627 has also given description of this Cave.

Mythological Legends

There are several mythological legend about this cave :

1) Lord Shiva was implored by His wife Parvati to tell Her about the secret of Amarkatha – tale of eternity. Lord choose this spot by hitting the mountains with His trident (Trishûl) which carved a cave in the mountain and that spot was selected by Lord Shiva for narrating Amarkatha to Parvati. Here, He explained the secret of immortality to Parvati. This date happened to the be the full Moon day of Shrawan. Two pigeons, which some believe appear on this day at cave, are said to be Shiva and Parvati to bless the faithful on this day. Yet others say these two pigeons represent two beings who attained immortality by overhearing the dialogue between Shiva and Parvati.
2) Another legend says that a village grocer Sodhawani by name was told by children about the presence of a person amidst them who came riding a bull. He waited for his arrival and when he came again, Sodhawani recognized him as Shiva and followed Him back to cave. When he later on told about his adventure to people, they also went to cave to have dharshan of Lord, where they instead found an Icy-Shivalinga and prayed there and since then the practice of pilgrimage started. Another variant of this legend is that Sodhawani's one cow made it to cave everyday to provide milk to Lord Shiva and once when Sodhawani followed her, he saw Lord Shiva face to face and received His blessings.

Rediscovery of Cave

The pilgrimage to Amarnath stopped during 16-18th Century AD as Muslim rules of the day made it difficult for Hindus to carry on their religious duties and with the passage of time

A Muslim rediscovered Location of Cave

Malik Family (Muslims) receives part of offerings for rediscovering location of Amarnath cave. It was due to a Muslim gentleman with the surname of Malik who, while following his strayed animals in the neighboring meadows, reached the cave where he saw Ice-Shivlinga and disclosed its location to Hindus, who as a reward give Malik family one fourth of offerings even now.

people forgot about the route to reach there. Gradually the importance of this pilgrimage was lost. However, with the change of guards in the nineteenth century when Muslim rule was replaced with Sikh and later on with Dogra rule things started to change. It was in this new political environment that Hindus sought to rediscover route to the cave, which was discovered by a Muslim named Malik..

Pilgrimage (Yatra)

The traditional yatra starts from Srinagar Dashnami Akhara located at Maisuma (Badshah Bridge) around 6th of Shrawan Shukla. A prayer is held at this temple amidst large devotes and saddhus, where a silver mace about 10 feet long (known as Chari Mubarak – for divine protection of yatra) is propitiated. Mahants carry this silver mace in their hands right up to cave through various halts enroute. The first part of pilgrimage from Srinagar to Pahlgam (96 km) takes about 5 halts at pre determined places at Pampore, Avantepora, Bijbehara, Thujwar and Ganeshbal.

The second part of pilgrimage (46 km) is a mountaneous track ,covered by foot, or horse or on dandies (for old and disabled) from Pahlgam to the Cave. This is done in 4 days with 3 night halts at Chandanvari,Wavjan and Panchtarni. Many pilgrims drive direct up to Pahlgam and some even upto Chandanwari.

Chandanwari Halt

The first day of travel to Chandanwari is through plain asphalt road along the bank of Lidder Stream which originates from Sheshnag Lake. It is a comfortable journey through green forest woodlands and enjoyable scenery. A large plain ground provides tent shelter for night halts. Some huts have been erected as shelter places.

Wavjan Halt

One leaves tree line at Chandanwari and starts journey in the morning, climbing the idyllic Pissu Ghati, a rather difficult climb and indeed, a test of one's nerve. Pissu pass leads to Zojibal. As pilgrims trudge about 5 Km. on the narrow tracks along the flanks of mountains from Zojibal till they reach about half a Km before Wavjan, the second halt, a bowl of green water lake Sheshnag comes in view. One gets a full view of this lake from Wavjan. It is about 300 feet down the Wavjan plateau. Sheshnag is a jewel among the high altitude lakes of Kashmir.Its shimmering green, ice cold, clean water is fed by the glaciers on top of mountains which surround it on three sides. This lake is the abode of thousand hooded snake (Sheshnag) and the source of River Lidder that flows through a narrow gorge towards Chandanwari and finally joins River Jehlum near Bijbihara Wavjan ( 3171 meters above msl) is a small windy plateau where

Waxing and Waning Of Icey Shivlinga

It is staid that this Ice Shivlinga wanes and waxes along with the phases of the Moon. On Amavasi it is not visible but on Purnmashi it is at its maximum glory. A dharshan of this linga, at the end of such a long and tedious journey, brings joy and sense of fulfillment of a life's mission. At the very sight of dharshan chants of "Har Har Mahadev" (victory to Shiv) come out spontaneously from pilgrims. Those who carry shunk, blow it hard as a soul satisfaction benediction to Lord Shiv.

pilgrims pitch their tents. A few houses provide permanent shelter here. Some yatris dare to have a dip in the holy Sheshnag lake and yet others who cannot bear the cold of the water avoid it or just manage with a face wash.

Panchtarni Halt

The first part of this journey is again a steep climb of 5 kms up to Mahagunas pass (4350 meters). One may feel lack of oxygen at these heights, to over come which arrangements of oxygen cylinders are kept in store by medical units attached with yatra. The downward journey from Mahagunas is through meadows known as Poshpather which is full of flowers with intoxicating sporific scents. People are advised not to rest, lest they lap into a lethargy and sleep The treck continues on a gentle slope till one reaches Panchtarni, so called because five streams coming from upper reaches meet here. It is a plain valley which provides large tented accommodation. A few permanent structures provide shelter for storage of tents etc and can be used for night halt.

Final Journey to Cave

On the morning of Puranmashi, Charimubarak along with yatris leave for this final 7 km. journey to the holy cave. The journey from Panchtarni goes on a gradual ascent by the side of hill and then it turns by 180 degree into the valley with melting glacier, through which one passes. On the left side of mountain valley there is a large cave like opening at 3880 meters height above msl. This cave is15 meters long, 17 meters wide and 14 meters high, about 70 meters above valley floor, which is the ultimate destination of yatra.

At the end of this amphitheater like cave there one finds stalagmite of ice -Shivalinga formed by trickling water drops from the ceiling of cave. This Shivalinga at its largest was measured about 14 feet high and about 5 feet in diameter at base. Before entering the cave, the devout take a bath in the Amravati nalla which cascads down from the west of cave which removs all the fatigue and prepares one mentally to have darshan of Shiva in His linga

After praying before Lord in the traditional way pilgrims smears their bodies with white chalk powder (a by products of limestone) scooped out from walls of cave.

Just by the side of main linga, there are two more lingas, small in size, which are worshipped as Parvati and Ganesh.

It is said that when Swami Vivekananda visited this cave in 1898 AD he exclaimed "I never had been to anywhere so beautiful, so inspiring".

Alternate Route from *Baltal

This alternate route starts from Baltal on Srinagar-Sonmarg-Leh highway. The cave is only 15 kms journey from this side which although difficult but, takes less time. This route has been converted into a pony track with the assistance of Indian Army. After traveling over a glacier in the initial phase, one has to go to the confluence of Amravati nala, with another nala coming from Sind river (not to be confused with the major river by this name). From this point one has to make a steep climb of about one thousand feet to join the traditional route from Pahalgam about 4 km. short of Cave. The to and fro journey is covered in one day on horseback.Now helicopter service has been introduced from Baltel to Cave.

b) Sharda Mata Yatra[1]

Another name for Kashmir among Keshmiri Pandits is Sharda Desha. (abode of Goddess Sharda). Even the script, which Kashmiris derived in earlier times for writing their texts, is known as "Shardalipi".

For Kashmiri Pandits pilgrimage to this tirtha is spiritually elevating but alas! This pilgrimage has stopped since 1947 after Shamsabari Mountain Range beyond Kupwara where this tirtha is located was annexed by Pakistan and now falls in POK.

Mythology

Mahatmayas are scriptures describing sacred Pilgrimages. In Kashmir so far 51 Mahatmayas have been found. Sharda Mahatmaya perhaps written by Madhvacharya (1199-1276) states that Muni Shandalya prayed to Goddess Sharda to have Her darshan. He was advised by Goddess to proceed to Shardavan where She would show Herself to him in the form of Shakti. On way to Shardavan he bathed at a spring known as Krishna Nag which turned his body into golden colour.

Sharda Devi Hymns

Sharda Devi manifested Herself with the recitation of the hymn-"Sharda Varda Devi"

Sharda Varda Devi, Mūkshidata Saraswati
Sharneyetrambike Gouri Narayani Namostute
Namastasyey, Namestasyey, Namestasyey, Nammo Namah !!

(I bow again and again to Sharda Devi who is liberator and source of all knowledge).

These are the hymns, which Shandalya Muni recited at Rangvatika and Goddess Sharda manifested before him. Kashmiri Pandits offer their prayers to Sharda Mata Who epitomises Goddess Saraswati (goddess of learning). Sharda Mata is also worshipped by Hindus living in South India . Early in the morning when they get up from bed, they pray northwards to mother Sharda with the hymns: "Namastey Sharda Devi, Kashmira Mandals Vasini" (salutations to goddess Sharda who resides in Kashmir).

He proceeded further to the north and ascended mountain and there he saw the dance of Goddess Sharda in a mountain meadow, known as Rangavatika (Rangwar Forest). Here he recited the oft recited hymn "Sharda, Varda Devi". Goddess revealed Herself to him at a spot in this place which is the "Sacred spot".

Legend has it that Pitras approached Muni Shandalya and requested him to perform their 'Sharddha'. To perform tarpan (water oblation) for dead ancestors Muni took a handful of water from the confluence of Kishanganga and other stream. Kishanganga is described as Madu Sindhu in Mahatmaya), half of which turned into honey, hence the name Madhumati for the stream which joins Kishanganga at this point now known as Sharda Ganga. (This is the spot where people perform Sharddha of their dead ancestors).

Location

The focal point of Pilgrimage is a temple which is located in Neelam Valley (upper Kishanganga) about 10 kilometers from LOC in Pakistan occupied Kashmiri (POK) in a small village called Shardi on the right bank of river Kishanganga which flows from west to east in this valley and joins river Jehlum down stream at Domel also in POK. The temple is flanked by two streams flowing on either side which join Kishenganga.

If approached from Kashmir Valley, one has to cross Shamsabari Range (at one of the several passes) which are around 10,000 ft above msl), then descend to river level cross river Kishanganga at any place where there is bridge and climb into Shardi Village. Sharda Temple is located east of this village. The main temple is located on the lower slopes of Sharda Peak. Nanga Parbhat and K2 Ranges lie for away north of this temple. A castle/fort known as Sirhasila lies to the west in the neighbourhoods of temple.

Temple ( see photographs)

There are no actual records as to who built this massive temple, but it is believed to have been built by a local lord in the middle of 12th Century AD, during the reign of Jaisimha (1128-55 AD) in Kashmir. It is believed that a small group of Saraswat Brahmains, upon their entry into Kashmir, settled in Neelam Valley (see Introduction). The temple is dedicated to goddess of learning and art Sharda Maa.

The site of the temple is on a ridge at the base of Sharda Peak, which is approachable

A flat stone slab is the object of worship at Sharda Temple.

In the middle of the inner square of main temple is a stone slab, which measures six by seven feet (6 x 7) with a thickness of about six inches. This slab is believed to cover a 'kund' (fire place) or spring from which goddess Sharda appeared to bless Sage Shandalya. This kund (or stone covering it) is the object of special veneration by the pilgrims who put a paste of sindur and ghee on it as is the tradition among Kashmiri Pandits.

through the staircase from western side where there is village Shardi and a castle (or fort) known as Sirhasila. The staircase is built of massive locally available stones, of 63 steps in six flights each about 10 feet wide, with stone parapets on either side. The stairs lead to a quadrangle court surrounding temple, which is 142 feet long and 94 feet wide, enclosed by a massive stone wall which is about six (6) feet thick and eleven feet high. The entrance to the central court is through a gate with a double porch which leads directly into sanctum sanctorum of temple. The other three walls have blank archways, standing to heights of about 20 feet from base to apex. In the center of northern wall is a small recess 3 feet square which houses two Shivalingas.

The main temple has been built in the middle of this enclosed quadrangle, on a basement of twenty four feet square, which is five feet and three inches high from ground level. The entrance to temple is from the western side in line with the main entrance to quadrangle, through a flight of steps which are 5 feet wide and flanked by side walls. The cell of the main temple is twenty two feet square. On each side of the porch way are two square pillars about sixteen (16) feet high and two feet six inches apart.

The interior of inner temple is a square of twelve feet and three inches, which has no decoration of any kind. The roof is made of plane horizontally laid stones.

Visitors to the shrine during 12-15th century included Zaine-ul a bidini, the king of Kashmir who visited this shrine in 1422 AD (as recorded by Jonaraja in his Rajaterangni). Jonaraja describe presence of a wooden idol of Sharda in the temple. Justice KN Katju who visited this shrine in 1935 did not find this idol there. There are also reports that the flat stone covering the kund or spring had engraving of Sri Chakra (Similar to one there is at Chakreshwara) but later descriptions of this shrine such as by Abul Fazl (who wrote Aaina Akbar) and MA Stein (1892) do not corroborate this statement.

Traditional Pilgrimages

Pilgrimage to Sharda Maa resumed during nineteenth century when Muslim rule was replaced by Dogra rule. Under Dogra rule Pilgrimage to sacred places was encouraged by providing relief, security etc. There are many traditional routes to reach the place, the most common one was through Gangbal Lake then cross over Shamsobari range at Razdan pass on Mari Nag pass and then cross Kishinganga River through any improvised bridge to reach Shardi. This route was later abandoned as it involved a tough climb and lack of adequate arrangements resulted in a tragedy in which thousands of Pandits got killed at Gangbal Lake due to early snowfall and heavy rain. Another reason could be that the date for performing yatra at both places was the same i.e. Gangashtami (Shukla Ashtame of Bhadr) and hence one had to choose either of places for yatra. Both these places are also associated with immersion of ashes of dead ancestors and performance of shraddha there. Around the middle of nineteenth Century the traditional pilgrimage was performed as given below:-

Much before Gang Ashtami preparations for pilgrimage started by contacting the people who were willing to join in pilgrimage. Government of the day provided security and may be some medical relief. Pilgrims had to make their own arrangements for catering, which necessitated formation of assemblages of people to share such responsibilities. Groups of people then assembled at various places on pre decided dates for onward march. These places of assemblage were Devi Angan at Hari Parbhat for yatris from Srinagar; Sumbal and Bandipora, Sopora, Handwara, Tikri and Sogan in Kapwara. Approximate date of arrival at each halt was announced so that people from these places could join the main pilgrimage.

For those starting from Srinagar, they would assemble two or three days prior to Bhadra Amavasi (journey on Amavasya was considered inauspicious) and after paying obeisance to Sharika Maa (Chakrishwar) people would proceed to Gushi (Kupwara) to reach there before third tithi of Shukla Bhadur. Yatris from other places also reached Gushi before this date.

On 4th tithi yatris bathed in a rivulet which comes from Drang which is considered holy. Then they visited walnut tree groove on the banks of Kamil River named Rangwar (substitute for Rangavalika) and then they proceeded either to Kralpura to cross Shamsobari Range at Pharkoran Pass or to Luderwan to cross Shamsabari Range at Farakhan Gali. People from Lolab Valley preferred to cross Shamsobari Range through Burhom pass and meet the main pilgrimage at Tejavang (Tejjan) and yet people from plains travelled via Muzzafarabad over to Kafir Khan Range at Reshian Gali and then cross Kazinag Nar at Karnah and cross over to the other side of Kishanganga at the existing bridge or move east wards on the southern bank of Kishanganga and joined main pilgrimage at Dudnial. By the end of sixth of Bhadur almost all pilgrims met at Tajavana on the bank of Kishanganga. Night long recitation of Stotras in praise of Goddess Sharda was carried here before next day's move. Next day i.e. 7th Shakula, yatris cross Kishanganga and moved eastwards towards tirtha. In the morning of next day i.e. Ashtami yatris climbed up the stairs of temple after a bath in river, have a darshan of Maa Sharda and perform rituals as per their traditions and then after this they performed shraddha of their ancestors at the banks of Madhumati. An evening in the meditation around the temple rounded up the yatra. Some reports say yatra ended at Devi Angar Srinagar after paying obeisance to Devi at Chakrashvar.

c) Harmukh Gangbal Yatra[2]

A brief description of yatra has already been given in the Sharda Yatra which in some cases included this yatra as well. Like Sharda Yatra, this yatra also culminated on Gangashtami (i.e. Ashad Shukla Ashtami) and hence some of people chose to join either of the two yatras.

During Dogra rule this received full patronage from royalty of the day. A contingent of police, medical staff and other government functionaries accompanied this yatra. Tented accommodation was arranged at places of halt along with porters, horses etc. for carrying luggage and for riding. The main purpose of yatra was to carry the ashes of dead ancestors for immersion in the Gangbal Lake which is situated at an altitude of about 14000 feet above msl. flanked by peaks all around with Harmukh as the towering peak. This occupies the north eastern part of the mountain ranges of Kashmir adjoining Ladakh.

In a normal year about ten thousand people moved, which included yatris, government officials, horseman, porters cooks, helpers and even barbers (for giving a shave after immersion of ashes). It was like a modern day Amarnath Yatra in all respects which came to an abrupt end with the change in the political system in the state in 1947.

Yatra Details

1st Day – People assembled at Nuner (near Ganderbal)and then proceeded to Prang where there was first night halt

2nd Day – People traveled early morning from Prang and reached Chattergul where there was second night halt.

3rd Day – Yatra started early in the morning for Ramradhan where water from Gangbal lake oozes out from rocks Yatris have a dip in this water and perform preliminary shraddha of dead ancestors. The journey from Chattergal to Ramradhan involves an initial climb of five hours over Barath mountain to the height of about 14,000 feet above msl, where there is a beautiful lake called Bransar.

4th Day – A small uphill walk through glacial boulders one comes to a place known as Branbal where there is a pass in the mountains from where yatris have the first glimpse of the Gangbal Lake down below. While crossing this pass, yatris raise the cry "Oh my dear so and so (name and relations of ancestors) - in heaven I have taken you across Barnbal". En route to Gangbal Lake one comes across two springs called Dokhsar and Sokhsar with hot and cold water respectively and later on another spring called Kolsar where yatris throw coins. It is said a single crocodile lives in this spring. Two more springs Nund and Koul appear before one reaches on the shore of Gangbal Lake about 7 kms away. The, ashes of dead ancestors were immersed in the clear, shimmering waters of this lake with all the reverence to the dead ancestor and a shraddha performed after which a hair cut was done by the accompanying barber. This coincided with Gangashtame.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Some yatris stayed here for night and yet some made a hasty retreat down below to avoid chilly winds at this height.

Return Journey

For return journey, yatris used a different route, which involved 9 km descent over mountains called Buthsher to reach Wangeth and then to Narannag where there existed a temple (now in ruins) and a spring. After worshipping Sun god at Narannag the yatra came to an end.

A tragedy which took place here in one of the yatras killed about ten thousand people due to early snowfall and inadequate arrangement for shelter which discouraged people to perform this yatra.

Jammu & Kashmir Government is currently planning to use water from this lake for generation of power by channeling it through a tunnel to provide a fall of water at a suitable place.

d) Dashar at Shadipur

A pilgrimage used to take place at Shadipur (15 miles down the river Jehlum from Srinagar) where river Jehlum meets the waters from river Sind (a local stream). The confluence of these two rivers called "Sangam" is very sacred to Kashmiri Pandits. A Chinar tree (called Prayag Bûn) marks the place of confluence. People generally immerse the ashes of dead ancestors here where there is a small temple.

The place is easily approachable either by vehicle from Mansbal side or by crossing on a boat on river Jehlum from Shadipur.

On certain occasions when the alighnment of stars is in a phase called "Ashtgreh", people would come here to have a bath and perform Shraddha of dead ancestors. This was called Dashara (not to be confused with burning of effigies of Ravana or Vijay Dashmi). People were aware of this date much in advance through the local panchangs. Thousands turned out on this date for yatra. Government and Dharmarth (a local Hindus body of Jammu & Kashmir) both were actively involves in the successful conclusion of this yatra for which no annual date is fixed. It may occur once in 10 years (called locally 'Dehi Veher Dashar') or after many years – The last Dashar took place around 1972 ?) for over three days which was witnessed by the author. Several hundred tents were pitched under the Chinar trees on the banks of river Jehlum where people came in thousand in buses from Srinagar via Mansbal.

Explanations

1) This write up based on two published articles regards Sharda in Koshur Samachar in the month of November and December, 2002 written by Brig. Rattan Lal. Author is grateful to him.
2) The write is based on an interview with Ramchand Kaul (95) by Dr. K. L. Choudhary at Jammu in 2004.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

INTRODUCTION TO KARMKANDA

Scope of karmkanda

As stated earlier in the introduction , karmkanda describes in detail the liturgy for performance of religious rituals. Karmkandas are regional in nature. The karmkanda followed by Kashmiri Pandits was written by Logareshi some time back in seventeenth (?) century.

Types of worship

There are two main types of worship:

1) Homa (Havan): This includes oblations made to deities involving use of fireplace (agnikund).
2) Puja (or Patha): This involves recitation of mantras and stuties along with performance of certain actions . No use of agnikund is made.For example Bhawani nama sahasra can be recited as a stitih( patha) or for carrying out a ygnya (homa).

Karmic Rituals

Karmic rituals may be described as under:

1) Nitya Karmas (obligatory karmas) (see Chapter 18). These are recommended to be performed daily. They include:

   i) Snana – bathing after night sleep in the morning.
   ii) Sandhya Vandana – worship of Sun God.
   iii) Panch Mahaygnyas – Five Yagnyas (five great sacrifices).

2) Naimittika Karmas (Samskaras) (see Chapter 19). These are to be performed once in life time). These rites are called samskaras, which vary from region to region. In north India these are 16, in south India 40 and in Kashmir 24.
3) Post Death Rituals (see Chapter 20). (Some Karmkandas treat them as part of samskaras). These are:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

i) Antyeshti - funeral rites at the time of death and mourning period.
ii) Shraddha /Pitr puja performed on death anniversary of the ancestor.

4) Dev Yagnyas Besides samskaras, homas are performed for various deities such as Lords Ganesh, Vishnu, Shiv, Durga and Surya on special occasions (see Chapter 21).
5) Religious festivals – (see Chapter 21). Certain rituals are performed on religious festivals such as:-

i) Shivratri
ii) Navratras
iii) Dipavali
iv) Sankrati

6) Adyatmic karma (auspicious rituals see Chapter 21). This include rituals performed to propitiate deities for their benevolence on certain occasions such as:-

i) Janamdin pooja – birthday
ii) Bhumi pooja – laying foundation of new house
iii) Greh Pravesh – house warming of new house

7) Stotra (patha) Saddhna (see Chapter 22-26). Certain stotras are recited orally, which carry eulogy of a deity or deities with different epithets, which are considered powerful mantras e.g. Indrakshi Bhuvaninama Sahasra, Shivmahimnastrotra etc.

Stages of a Karmic Ritual

Karmic rituals have three stages:

1) Purva Bhaga
2) Pradhan Bhaga
3) Uttara Bhaga

1) *Purva Bhaga

It includes mantras and actions, which are necessary, for mind set for undertaking performance of karma. It involves purification of body, both internally as well as externally. Kashmiri Pandits have devised a set of 15 steps known as Dûp Dîp Puja, which is used as a Purva Bhaga in almost all rituals.

2) *Pradhan Bhaga

It represents the main purpose of ritual that is going to be performed and hence, deities that grant that aspect of success are invoked and prayed upon to grant success. It has many patterns. The most exhaustive one has sixteen steps hence known as Shodashapachara (16 Upchars). Next short version has ten steps known as Dashopachara (10 Upchars). Further down is five steps known as Panchopochara (5 Upchars).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3) *Uttara Bhaga

This is the concluding part, which involves thanking deities for having come during ritual and requesting them to leave the place and proceed to their abodes. Prayers are also made to deities to bestow peace to participants in the ritual. Prasad (left over offerings of deities) is distributed among the worshippers.

Angas (Parts of a ritual)

The mantras and actions in a karmic ritual are repetitive in the same rite or in different rites. These are called angas (parts). Just as a language is a combination of several sentence, which in turn is made up of certain words, karmic rituals have also angas for words, several angas constitute a Bhaga and several Bhagas constitute a karmic ritual.

Performance of Ritual

It is obligatory on the part of performer to state in the beginning whether he/she is going to perform Patha or Homa and the purpose for doing it.

The following recitation is used in continuation with the mantra of the particular deity who is to be propitiated:

Âtmano Vanmnh Kayoparjit Pâp Nivarnârthe ..... (state desire*).... Siddrtha Pathey or Homey Viniyoga

आत्मनो वाङमनः कायोपार्जितपाप निवारणार्थे अमुक कामना सिद्यर्थे पाठे/होमे विनियोगः

(I am undertaking performance of Patha or Homa for my desire to achieve success in ....(state purpose)* and removal of sin committed through speech, mind and body).

The permutation and combination of angas in a particular sequential order makes a complete ritual. A list of the angas used in Nitya karmas is given in Chapter 16 along with mantras, their meanings and methodology for performance. Similarly Chapter 17 describes the angas of Homa.

A) Puja (पूजा) / Patha (पाठे)

a) Purva Bhaga Angas (Dûp Dîp Puja)

For all Pujas, Kasmiri Pandits have laid down a compact set of fifteen angas to be performed in a definite chronological order. This is known as Dûp Dîp Puja. The sequence of angas is as follow (the number in brackets with the prefix 'A' refers to the number given in Chapter 16 where a particular anga has been described in detail):

1) Âchman (आचमन) (see A1) Sipping water for purification.
2) Snklp (सन्कल्प) (see A2) Solemn vow to perform a Karma. Its performance indicates time (as per local Panchang), location of performer and the Karma, which is to be performed.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

3) Âsan Shodan (आसन शोदन) (see A3) Purification of seats.
4) Prithvi Puja (पृथवि पूजन) (see A4) Worship of earth as Mother.
5) Âkash Puja (आकाश पूजन) (see A5) Worship of sky as holy abode of gods.
6) Ganesh Puja (गणेश पूजा) (see A6) Seeking blessings of Lord Ganesh for smooth performance of Karmic ritual.
7) Guru Puja (गुरू पूजा) (see A7) Seeking blessings of teacher (Guru) or Brahma.
8) Nyasa (न्यासा) (see A8) It involves mental appropriation or assigning of various parts of body to tutelary gods by touching parts of body along with recitation of mantra which enhances sanctity of Karmic ritual.
9) Bhu Shuddhi (भू शुधि) (see A9) This involves throwing black sesamum seeds (Til) around performer of Karma to keep away evil spirits.
10) Pranayam (पराणायाम) (see A10) It is yogic practice which involves regulated breathing for proper disposition of mind.
11) Prokshana (परोक्षणा) (see A11) It involves symbolically purifying body by sprikling water made pure by mantras on the body.
12) Mârjana (मर्जिना) or Mntrsnan (see A12) Purification of self by mantra recitation.
13) Pvitri Dharna (पवित्री धारना) (see A13) Pavitri is a ring made of dhurva grass or a metal ring such as silver or gold, which is worn on anamika finger during the ritual (For explination of Pavitri see Section Materials listed, later on in this Chapter).
14) Anulepna (अनुलेपना) (see A14) This involves applying tilak paste on performers forehead and to others who are present and to objects of puja.
15) Dûp Dîp Snklp Siddhi Prarthana (धूप दीप सन्कल्प सिद्धि प्रार्थना) (see A15) Concluding prayer of Snklpa.

b) *Pradhan Bhaga Angas

While mantras for invocation of different deities differ in different Karmkandas, but the methodology remains same known as Shodashopachara (शोडाशोपचारा) (16 steps). For worship of one deity use of the name of that one deity e.g. Shivay (शिवाय) or Gneshay (गणेशाय) or Vishnuve (विष्णाये) or Durgai (दुगयि), is made. similarly for couples of deities, the words Shivay Parvati Sahitay (शिवायपार्वती सहिताये) or Vishnu Lakshimi Sahitay (विष्णु लक्ष्मी सहिताये) are used.

As per Kashmiri Tradition six deities are invoked in Prayers: Ganesh, Shiv, Vishnu, Durga, Surya and Kumar (or Karttikeya). The last two are just briefly dealt. Traditionally Ganesh, Shiv, Vishnu and Durga are worshipped individually and collectively. For collective worship each deity is named separately in each of the angas of worship e.g. Dyan of Ganesh, Shiv, Vishnu, Durga is held separately similarly for all the 16 upchars which is rather time consuming affair. However, it has now been replaced by Panchayatn system (पनचायतन) of worship that is followed in north India.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Under the Panchayatn system five deities only are worshipped. These are: Ganesh, Shiv, Vishnu, Durga and Surya. They are collectively addressed. The primary deity of worship is the one, who is the main deity for a particular puja e.g. If Lord Ganesh is the chief deity it is called Ganesh Pnchayatn'. Similarly If Lord Vishnu is the chief deity it is called Vishnu Pnchayatn and so on for other deities. The recitation for the five deities is made as given below:

1) Ganesh Pnchayatn:

Om Ganesh Vishnu Shiv Durga Surya Bhyo Nmh.

(ॐ गणेश विष्णु शिव दुर्गा सूर्या भयो नमः)

2) Vishnu Panchaytn:

Om Vishnu Shiv Ganesh, Surya Durga Bhyo Nmh.

(ॐ विष्णु शिव गणेश सूर्या दुर्गा भयो नमः)

3) Shiv Pnchaytn:

Om Shiv Vishnu Surya Durga Ganeshe Bhyo Nmh

(ॐ शिव विष्णु सूर्या दुर्गा गणेश भयो नमः)

4) Devi Pnchaytn:

Om Durga Vishnu Shiv Surya Ganesh Bhyo Nmh.

(ॐ दुर्गा विष्णु शिव सूर्या गणेश भयो नमः)

5) Surya Pnchaytn:

Om Surya Shiv Ganesh Durga Vishnu Bhyo Nmh

(ॐ सूर्या शिव गणेश दुर्गा विष्णु भयो नमः)

As a matter of fact placement of these five deities is also predetermined as per details given above.

Shodashopachara Pûja:

1) Dhyan (ध्यान) (see A18) Meditation on the form of Isht Deva and other gods who are invoked in the ritual.
2) Avahan and Archam (आवाहन and अर्चाम) (see A19 & A20) Welcoming gods to take their seats and also seek permission of gods to offer their worship.
3) Pran Pratishtha (प्राण प्रतिष्ठा) (see A21) Invocation for bringing idols into life.
4) Âpo Prashana (आपो प्रशाना) (see A22) Purification of water to be used in the ritual by mantra recitation.
5) Padya (पादयो) (see A23) Washing feet of gods.
6) Arghyam (अर्धयं) (see A24) Washing face, hands of gods.
7) Âchman (आचमन) (see A25) Pouring water on idols as an act of purification.
8) Snanam (मार्जिना / देव स्नान / अभिषेक) – Abeshaikh - Bathing idols with various ingredients. It has three parts:

    i) Marjina/Mntrasnan (मार्जिना / मन्त्र स्नान) (see A12) Purification by recitation of mantras.
    ii) Dev Snan (देव स्नान) (see A26) Bathing with water milk and other ingredients.
    iii) Dev Âchman (देव आचमन) (see A25). Purification after giving bath to deities.

9) Mntr Gudak (मन्त्र गुडक) – Purification of deities with mantras. It has 3 sub-stages:

    i) Mantra Gudak (मन्त्र गुडक) (see A27). Recitation of mantrs.
    ii) Âlat (आलत) (see A28). A welcome ritual.
    iii) Pad Sparsh (पाद सपर्ष) (see A29). Touching feet of deity after bath as an act of respect.

10) Âsan Prathistha (आसन प्रतिष्ठा) (see A30) Placing deities on seats after bathing.
11) Vstr Grhn (वस्त्र ग्रहन) and Ygnopavit grhn – Placing garments and yagnopavit on deities. It has two parts:

    i) Placing garland or flowers as clothes (see A31).
    ii) Placing Yagnopavit (see A32).

12) Anulepa (अनुलपना) – Placing tika on deities (see A33).
13) Pushpanjali (पुष्पांजली) – Offering flowers (see A34).
14) Ârti (आरती) – It has five acts.

    i) Dûp Dîp Arpan (धूप दीप अर्पण) (see A35). Worship with lighted camphor burning in a lamp (ratandeep).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

ii) Chamer (चामर) (see A36). It is a symbolic worship of deity by moving a chamer in front of deity.

iii) Tilak/Arg/Pushp Smarpan (तिलक/अर्ग/पुष्प सर्मपन) (see A37). Offering tilak argya and flowers to deity.

iv) Chatrum/Abushn (छत्रं/आभुषण) (see A38). Placing canopy over deities head and placing ornaments.

v) Âdarshnam (आर्दशनम) (see A39). Showing mirror to deity so that he/she can have look at his/her self.

15) Naivedyam (नैवेध्यम) – It is an offering of Bhog (eatable items) to deity which is partaken by worshippers as prashad of deity called Naived. It has three stages.

i) Madurparka Arpan (मधुपार्का अर्पण) (see A40). Offering honey as sweet drink.

ii) Navedyam/Prasad (नैवेध्यम / प्रसाद) (see A41).Offering eatables.

iii) Tambulam (तामबूलम) (see A42). Offering sweet dish for eating.

16) Parikrama (परिक्रमा) – It has two acts.

i) Parikrama (परिक्रमा) (see A43) It is an act of circumambulating around deity as a mark of respect.

ii) Mantra Pushpanjali (मत्रं / पुष्पांजली) (see A44) It is an act of offering symbolically flowers etc to deity through mantras only.

Short Version of *Shodshopchara

The shodashopchara of deities carried out by Kashmiri Pandits is very long and time consuming. The recitations are also very complex. This results in avoidance of some of the upcharas by the priests while performing puja. As against this the shodshopchara carried by Hindus outside Kashmir is very simple with one or two line recitations. (see Nityakarm-Pujaprakash published by Gitapress Gorakpur).

Since this upchara is frequently used for worship of deities, hence a short form of it is given below:

1) Avhan (आवाहन) —(a)— Avahanarthey Pushpm Smrpyami (आवाहनार्थे पुष्पं समर्पयामि) (Drop flowers in front of deity).

2) Asan (आसन) —(a)— Asanarthey Pushpm Smrpyami (आसनार्थे पुष्पं समर्पयामि) (Drop flowers in front of deity).

3) Padya (पादयो) —(a)— Padyo Padym Smrpyami (पादयो पादयं समर्पयामि) (Pour water along with other materials over deity) or sprinkle it with Vashthur (for photos).

4) Arghya (अर्ग्या) —(a)— Hastyoh Arghym Smrpyami (हस्तयोः अर्घ्यं समर्पयामि) (Offer Arghya to deity).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

5) Achman (आचमन) —(a)— Achmnm Smrpyami (आचमनं समर्पयामि) (Pour cold water along with camphor and some scented materials over deity).
6) Snan (स्नान) —(a)— Snanarthm Jlm Smrpyami (स्नानार्थं जलम समर्पयामि) (Pour water along with Ganga water (if available) and other ingredients).
7) Vastr (वस्त्र) —(a)— Vstrm Smarpyami (वस्त्रं समर्पयामि) (Put flowers or clothes over deity's head).
8) Chndn (चन्दन) —(a)— Chandnm Smrpyami (चन्दनं समर्पयामि) (Apply chandan tika to deity).
9) Pushpmala (पुष्पमाला) —(a)— Pushpmala Smrpyami (पुष्पमाला समर्पयामि) (Put garland of flowers over deity).
10) Dûpa (धूप) —(a)— Dupm Agrapyami (धूप आघ्रापयामि) (Move doop in front of deity).
11) Dîp (दीप) —(a)— Dîpm Darshyami (दीपं दर्शयामि) (Move dîp in front of deity).
12) Naivedya (नैवेद्या) —(a)— Naivaidym Nivedyami (नैवेद्यं निवेदयामि) (Offer dry or fresh fruits to deity).
13) Dakshina (दक्षिणा) —(a)— Dakshina Smrpyami (दक्षिणा समर्पयामि) (offer cash as Dakshina for deity).
14) Ârti (आरती) —(a)— Krpurarartvym Smrpyami (कपूरारार्तिव्यं समर्पयामि) (Perform arti with burning camphor).
15) Prdekshina (प्रदक्षिणा) —(a)— PradikshinaSmrpyami (प्रदक्षिणा समर्पयामि) (circumambulate around deity physically or mentally).
16) Nmskar (नमस्कार) —(a)— Nmskaram Smrpyami (नमस्कार समर्पयामि) (offer final Nmskar and touch feet of deity with right hand).

Dashupchara

Those who due to some reason cannot offer Shadshopachara puja, may offer Dashupchara (ten Upachara) puja. The ten Upacharas in their chronological order are as follows:

1) Avhan (A19)
2) Pranpratishtha (A21)
3) Padya (A23)
4) Arghyam (A24)
5) Achminyam (A25)
6) Snanam (A26)
7) Vastr Grahn (A31)
8) Anulepna (A33)
9) Ârti (A36)
10) Naivedyan (A41)

Panch Upchara

Those who cannot perform even ten upcharas, for them Panchupchara (five Upcharas) have been prescribed. These in the chronological order are as follows:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

1) Anulepnam (A33).
2) Pushpanjali (A34)
3) Dûp Dîp (A35)
4) Chamer (A36)
5) Naivedyam (A41)

Manspûja

It is a mental puja in which no material for worship is used. It is recommended for those who cannot undertake puja as stated above due to time constraint or some other reason. Scriptures state that Manspuja has the same reward as the one performed by Shadshopchara, or Dashupchara or Panchupchara. It has six steps with recitation of mantras in following chronological order.

1) Om 'Lm' Prithivyatmkm Gndhm Pariklpyami

ॐ 'लं' पृथिव्यात्मक गन्धं परिकल्पयामि ।

(I am offering whole earth as tika to deity with the bijmantra Lm).

2) Om 'Hm' Âkashâtmkm Pushpm Paiklpyami

ॐ 'हं' आकाशात्मकं पुष्पं परिकल्पयामि ।

(I am offering The whole of sky as flowers to the deity with the sacred bijmantra Hm).

3) Om 'Ym' Vayatmikm Dhupm Paiklpyami

ॐ 'यं' वायात्मिक धूपं परिकल्पयामि ।

(I am offering all the air as dhoop with the sacred bijmantra Ym).

4) Om 'Rm' Vhnyâtmkm Dîpm Drshyami

ॐ 'रं' वह्नयात्मकं दीपं दर्शयामि

(I am offering all the the lights as deep with the sacred bijmantra Rm).

5) Om 'Vm' Amritatmkm Naivedym Nivedyâmi

ॐ 'वं' अमृतात्मक नैवैधं निवेदयामि ।

(I am offering all the ambrosia as naveed with the sacred bijmantra Vm)

Om 'Saum' Srvatmkm Srvopcharm Smrpyami

ॐ 'सौं' सर्वात्मकं सर्वोपचारं समर्पयामि ।

(May the Deity be happy with these offerings which are dear to Him).

c) *Uttara Bhaga (Puja)

1) Namaskara (नमस्कार) (see A45) Paying final obeisance to the deity with folded hands.
2) Aposhina (आपोशन) (see A46) offering final achman to the deity.
3) Dakshina (दक्षिणा) (see A47) Paying priest his wages by offering it first to the deity. It is offered along with dharba, purified by drops of water.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

4) Charnamritam (चर्णामृतं) (see A48) Sipping water from deity's feet as an act of purification.
5) Kshma Yachna (क्षमा याचना) (see A49) Atonement for short comings in the worship.
6) Shanti Path (शान्ति पाठ) Recitation of some shanti hymns (see Chapter 24). For all round peace.
7) Upasthana (उपस्थना) (see A50) Requesting deities to return back to their original place where from they had come for receiving worship.
8) Raksha sutra (रक्षा) (see A51) Request for protection by tying raksha sutra on the arm.

B) Homa

a) Purva Bhaga

The angas in a homa are almost a complete ritual inself. A number of deities are involved who are worshiped with 5, 10 or 16 Upcharas. The selection depends on the type of homa. However establishing of Kalash is universal in all homas. The main angas may be described as: (The number with the prefix 'B' refers to the chapter 19 where under the particular anga has been described in detail):

1) Establishing of Kalash (Varuna the water deity is invoked in a Pitchar, which is placed in the NE corner (Ishan Kona) at the place of homa (see B1).
2) Additional Kalash On occasions like marriage, Upayana, additional Kalash is established for giving a purifactory bath to person who is getting married or initiated (see B2).
3) Matrikas (Universal Mothers) are invoked to be present. They may be seven (Sptgrit Matrikas - see B3), sixteen (Shodash Matrikas - see B4), or 64 Yognies (see Yogni Puja - B5).
4) Khetrpals- Field deities (Khetrpals 20-49 in numbers) are invoked in all homas (see B8).
5) Nine grehas, (nine planets) are worshiped on important occasions like marriage, upanyana for their proper alignments (see B6).
6) Nandimukha Shraddha is performed on all auspicious occasions to seek blessings of Pitrs (dead ancestors) (see B7).
7) Agnimukha For performance of homa, agnikund is to be established for receiving oblations. This is called Agni mukha (see B9).
8) Vaishvadevas Minor deities manes, animals, birds, insects etc are offered food to maintain proper balance in the rta (cosmic order) (see B13).

b) Pradhan Bhaga

The Pradhan Bhaga of a homa depends on the type of karma/samskara. This will be discussed under relevant samaskara.

c) Uttara Bhaga

1) Jayadhi Homa - To propitiate subordinate deities ahuties are offered in their name in the

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Agni kund. The number of these deities again depends on karma to be performed. The maximum number is 60 (see B10).

2) Prayaschita Homa - Ahuties (oblations) are offered to 10 deities for condoning any mistakes that might have crept during main homa (see B11).
3) Purn Ahuti - All people who were present during the homa offer a joint oblation after recitation of peace prayers. (see B12).
4) Varuna Upasthana - Varun deity who was invoked in the Kalash, is now requested to leave the place and proceed to His designated quarters.
5) Agni Upasthana - Agni dev, who was invoked to receive oblations, is now requested to leave.

Materials Used In Puja/Homa

a) Utinsals and other objects

1) A flat thali for giving a bath (Abesheikh) to idols.
2) A throne or thali for keeping idols after bath.
3) A bowl to keep flowers and argya (rice).
4) A pot for keeping water to be used in puja at various times.
5) Two flat cups (called Pranpatra) for miscellaneous uses.
6) One spoon for sipping âchman.
7) One argya patr (a cupped spoon with cupped handle) for pouring water during abesheikh (not essential).
8) One bowl (called nirmal bowl) for storing water and other things used during rituals.
9) A conch (Snkh) for blowing.
10) One bell (Gnta) for ringing during arti.
11) A small pot for holding chandan / Saffron paste (tika).
12) A flat sandstone and chandan piece for the preparation of tika.
13) One Rtandeep (for keeping light during puja with ghee wick) and one Dup stand held in a tray (preferably).
14) Chamer (made by fixing peacock feathers or long soft hair of antelope fixed in a wooden or metal handle) for chamer (ârti).
15) A Yagnopavit (Sacred third) used in certain rituals only.
16) A fire pot for homa (in certain rituals).
17) Kalasha – a pot made of gold, silver or copper. If it is not possible to get pot of above metals then an earthen pot can substitute it. ( Use of utensils made from iron are forbidden).
18) Shruva used for offering ahuties during homa.
19) Shrucha used for offering ahuties during homa.
20) Mat for sitting used for offering ahuties during homa.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

b) Consumables

1) Dharba or Kusha grass cut into pieces of about 6 inches long (if this is not available one can use flowers). The legend has it that Garuda brought nectar from heaven and placed the vessel containing it on kusha grass. Hence kusha is considered pure and pavitri made of kusha is also considered as purifier.
2) Dûp or Agarbati.
3) Cotton for making wicks of Rtndip (ghee lamp).
4) Match box.
5) Arghya (wet unbroken rice called akhit).
6) Flowers (loose and natural).
7) Panchgavya (पंचगव्या) – the five products of cows:milk, curd, ghee, urine and cow dung. Cow is considered as the most sacred because all devas reside in it. The cow urine is considered as Varuna,cow dung as Agni, curd as Vayu, milk as Soma and ghee as Surya.
8) Panchamrita (पंचमरिता) – the five kinds of divine foods : milk, curd, ghee, honey and gur (Raw sugar).
9) Panchratna (पंचरत्ना) – a collection of five jewels or precious stones:Gold, Diamond, Sapphire, Ruby & Pearl.
10) Saptdhâtu (सप्तधातु) – a collection of seven metals: gold, silver, copper, brass, iron, zinc and lead.
11) Saptadhânya (सप्तधान्य) – collection of seven kinds of grains: barley, wheat, sesamum, millet, kamganî (a kind of corn), green lentil and gram.
12) Madhutraya (मधुतृया) – a mixture of ghee, milk and honey.
13) Sarvagandha (सर्वगन्धा) – camphor, sandal, musk and saffron.
14) Sarvaushadhi (सर्वाषधि) – the different herbs like kuta, jatâmamsi, haldi, daru haldî, morabela, chandana, Vacha, Sitajîta, Champaka and mothâ (most of these herbs are rare). Generally Srshp (सर्वषप – yellow mustered oil seed) is used now.
15) Saptmrttika (सप्तमातृका) – seven earths collected from seven sacred places.
16) Panchang (पन्चांग) (five ingredient) – laja (baked paddy grains); kumkum (or sindur) Sarvoshidi (see item 14 above) Vishthur (see item 19) and water. These are used for washing of deity's feet as per Kashmiri tradition.
17) Ashtang (अष्टांग) – (eight ingredients): water, milk, curd, ghee, rice, barley, srshp (Yellow mustard oil seeds) and Vishthur. These are used for washing hands face of deities as per Kashmiri tradition.
18) Panchdashang (पन्चदशान्ग) (15 ingredients) : water, milk, curd, ghee, honey, shaker (raw sugar) Srship (yellow oil seeds), laja (baked paddy) Srvoshidi (see item 14 above) chandan tika, gold, jewel, flowers and Vashthur (golden or jewels are just dipped in the bowl and taken out). This combination is used for abesheikh (giving bath) of deities as per Kashmiri tradition.
19) Vishthur (विष्ठुर) (Kurcha). It is an object made from a blade of Kusha grass (or dharba) about 6 inches long by giving a loose knot in it at ¼ end. Longer end is held in hand to sprinkle water or other mixtures over deities with the longer end (see Picture).

20) Pavtri (पवित्रि) – It is a circular ring made from darbha or kusha grass by making a ring and fixing it with more darbha to fit into the anamika finger of the right hand by worshiper. In its absence one can use gold or silver or copper ring. (for its significance see B3 in Chapter 17).

Positioning of Utinsels and other ingredients

(Visa a Vis the performer of Puja). The performer of puja or homa should always sit facing East. All the utensils and ingredient used in puja should be in his/her front, some to the left side and some on the right hand and some in front side as given below:

Left hand side

i) Pot filled with water called Kalash (see Anga B1)
ii) Gnta
iii) Dûp in some holder
iv) Oil lamp (if used in puja)

Right hand side

i) Ratndeep with ghee
ii) Conch (Shnkh)

Front side

i) Tika made with chandan and Keser in some pot.
ii) Flowers (loose and compact) along with arghya (washed rice).
iii) Some edible things such as fruits, (dry or fresh) for Naived (Prashad).

Naming the five fingers of hand

The five fingers of hand are named as follows:

1) Angusht (अगुंष्ठ) (Thumb)
2) Tarjini (तर्जनी) – 1st Finger
3) Madhya (मध्या) – 2nd Finger
4) Anamika (अनामिका) – 3rd Finger
5) Kanishth (कनिष्ठ) – 4th Finger or short finger.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Tirtha in the palm of hand

1) Pitr-tirath (पिततीर्थ) Area between Thumb and Tarjini is known as Pîtr Tirth. It is used for offerings made to Pîtrs (ancestors).
2) Kây Tirth (काय तीर्थ) Area of palm below Kanishth on left side is known as Kây Tirth. It is used for offerings made to Rishis.
3) Dev Tirth (देव तीर्थ) The tips of fingers are known as Dev Tirth. It is used for offerings made to Devas.
4) Agni Tirth (अग्नितीर्थ). The area of palm from where fingers grow out is known as Agni Tirth.
5) Brhm Tirth (ब्रहमतीर्थ). The starting position of palm is known as Brhm Tirth.

Positioning of Yagnopavit in the rituals

Wearing of Yagnopavit (called Yonya by Kashmiri Pandits) is essential for performance of Karmic rituals. Thus a person who has not been initiated through upnayana sanskar cannot perform karmic rituals. For performance of rituals, yagnopavit is held in three positions :

1) Svena (सवेना) – Yagnopavit stands on left shoulder and is held in the right arm.
2) Upsvena (उपस्वेन) – Yagnopavit is stands on the right shoulder and is held in the left arm.
3) Kntho (कन्ठो) – Yagnopavit is held in the neck only.

All karmas performed for devas are with svena position; while karmas performed for Pitrs are done with upsvena position. Karmas done for Rishis are performed in Knthe position.

Some useful tips about performance of Rituals

1) There is no avahan (welcome) required for the worship of deities where Shivlinga is present. Similarly for Shaligram and worship of deities in Gangas no avahan is needed. It is so because god is always present in above mentioned objects.
2) Flowers and leaves that have started getting rotten should not be applied in Pûja, but tulsi, Ganges water and water from sacred places is always pure and as such can be used any time.
3) Flowers after offering to deities are called 'Nirmal'. Flowers smelt before their offering to deity are also called 'nirmal'. Such flowers should not be reused. Nirmal should be disposed off properly (either in a dug pit or some water body).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

4) Flower should be offered with right hand, held under thumb on anamika and madyama finger. Avoid touch of thumb and tarjini (first finger).
5) While removing used flowers from deity, use thumb and tarjini fingers only.
6) For any shortage of material offering use of flowers can be made as a substitute.
7) Recite the word Amuk (अमुक) if one does not remember or know the name or gotra of an ancestor e.g. Amuk Gotra.
7) One should know his/her Isht Devta (or devi). Keep on reciting Isht devas name (e.g. Ragnya Bhagvatye) along with recitation of other deities. Isht devta is the family deity and as such deserves propitiation in every act of puja. Scriptures describe that worship of Isht deva only is enough to propitiate one's deity.
8) Remember a few eulogies of deities (A52). After naming a deity in worship it is a tradition to recite some of his/her eulogies before performance of an anga or a ritual.

Some commonly used Terms

1) Om (ॐ) – This is the sacred mystical sound which represents the Absolute Brahman.
2) Svâhâ (स्वाहा) – (hail to) - When oblations in ygnya are offered to Agni the word Svaha is uttered.
3) Svadha (स्वाधा) – (enjoy relish) when pitras or spirits of deceased ancestors are offered food libations or refreshing drinks (i.e. in Tarpana, Sraddha etc) the word Svadha is uttered.
4) Nmh (नमः) – (I bow with reverence).
5) Arghû (अर्घो) – offering rice to deity as an act of oblations.
6) Pushpm (पुष्पं) – offering flowers to deity.
7) Smalubnm (समालम्भन) – smearing or applying tika .
8) Gndo (गन्दो) – Tika – a paste of sandal wood and saffron obtained by rubbing Saffron on a sandstone slab with a piece of sandal wood
9) Om Tat Sat Brahmo Ady Tavat (ॐ ततसत ब्रह्म अध्य तावत) That Supreme Self Brahman Who is truth, today (Adhy) Tavat (so far) ..... This is used in Snklpa (see A2).
10) Ygnya (यज्ञ) – oblations made to deity through Agni.
11) Home (होमा) – offerings of oblations made to fire (Agni).
12) Viniyoga (विनियोगा) – Indicates purpose of action
12) Akstt (अक्षत) – unbroken rice offered in Pûja.

Do's and Donot's

1) Aachara ( Religious discipline)
One is supposed to follow aachara strictly while at home. However there are certain concessions in other situations: 25 percent while remaining in cities; 50 percent when out of station; maximum possible relaxation while travelling.

2) Ygnopavit should be in savana position during snana, achmana pradikshana namaskara and pranayam dev tarpan while during pitr tarpan it should be in apsevena position with pavitri removed. Yagnopavit should be in kantha position during Rishi tarpan.
3) After performing a samskara all persons who have observed fast should sit at the same place. Before eating food host or head priest should perform achmana (sipping of water) along with all sitting persons. At the close of eating, achman should again be performed together by all. No food should be eaten after this achman. During eating all should maintain silence.
4) After an eclipse is over one should take a holy bath. One should not take a holy bath during night.
5) Hair and nails are considered as dead parts of body as no pain is felt when they are removed. They should be cut before performance of an auspicious karma.
6) Treading and jumping over the shadows of divine idols, teachers, parents, sages and other venerable persons should be avoided as their shadows contain parts of reflected glory.
7) One should sit facing east while offering prayers to gods as east is the direction of Devas. All offerings to dead ancestors should de made facing south as that is the direction where Yama (god of nether world lives).
8) Tarjani finger is considered ashud (dirty) as it is the pointing finger used in identifying a person (which is a sign of association with ego). Hence it is not to be used while applying flowers, tika or other offerings to deity. One should not use it for applying tika to himself or to others. However it should be used along with thumb for removal of nirmal after the puja or homa is over.
9) One should not turn his/her back towards deity or a holy person after darshan. He/She should walk backwards till he/she is out of the sight .
10) While performing puja/homa one should not wear night clothes. One should wear cleanly washed clothes.
11) While going to a shrine one should check in advance if there are any restrictions for entering the shrine. For example while entering Kshirbhawani shrine at Tulamula in Kashmir one is advised not to enter if one has taken non vegetarian food or eggs on that day.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

FREQUENTLY USED ANGAS IN PUJA

A1) Achman (Purification act) (आचमन)

Âchman is symbolic purification act. A small quantity of water say 1-2 cc is sipped from right hand palm three times along with recitation of mantra.

Om Shm No Devir Abhishtye Âpo Bhvntu Pitye Shmyor Abhi Srvntu Nh

ॐ शं नो देवीर अभिष्टये आपो भवन्तु पीतये! शंयोर अभि स्रवन्तु नः ।।

(Oh God, may the divine waters be propitious to us for the fulfillment of desires and for our drinking. May gods shower on us joy and welfare).

Achmans is made at the beginning of all karmic rituals. In the Shodasha Puja of a deity, achman is performed several times by simply pouring or sprinkling water on deity with recitations of the words Âchmaniym Nmh (आचमनीय नमः).

There are several traditions for Achman outside Kashmire.g.

a) Arya Samaj Tradition

Three sipping of water are carried out along with recitation of following 3 mantras:

1) Om Amrtopstrnmsi (ॐ अमृतोपस्तरणमसि) (O, immortal Lord, you are base).
2) Om Amrtâpidhânmsi Svaha (ॐ अमृतापिधानमसि स्वाहा). (O, immortal Lord, you are my upper cover).
3) Om Satyam Yashh Shrîrmyi Shrîh Shrytam Svaha (ॐ सत्यं यशः श्रीर्मयि श्रीः श्रयतां स्वाहाः) (May we be rich in truth, glory and wealth. May they all be there, come to stay with me).

b) Gorukal Tradition

It is performed by sipping water 3 times from right hand palm (keeping angusht and kanishtka fingers away) along with recitation of following mantras:

1) Om Keshvayai Nmh (ॐ केशवाय नमः) (I bow to Keshva – Vishnu incarnation).
2) Om Narayanay Nmh (ॐ नारायणाय नमः) (I bow to Narayan – incarnation of Vishnu).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3) Om Madhvay Nmh (ॐ माधवाय नमः) (I bow to Madhvah – incarnation of Vishnu).

After this mouth is cleaned of any sticking water by lower palm of right hand angusht twice along with recitation of mantra.

Om Hrshhikeshay Nmh

ॐ हृषीकेशवाय नमः

(I bow to Hrishkesha – an epithal of Lord Krishna).

A2) Snklpa (Resolution to do) (संकल्पा)

Snklpa is a resolution to do some auspicious karma as laid down in scriptures. It is recited verbally at the start of the performance of a karma. It has 5 parts:

1) Naming of deity who is to be propitiated.
2) Time when it is being performed, which starts with the date of manifestation of God Brahma.

Om Tat Sat Brahmo Adhy Tavat

(ॐ ततसत ब्रहम अध्य तावत).

( From the beginning of That Supreme God Brahma who is Truth today at this time (Adhy – today).

One has to state cosmic time which starts with Kalpa, Manvantara, Yuga etc. (see Chapter 11), followed by month (Masay); fornight (Paksha – bright or dark) date (Tithi – from 1st to 15th of fortnight) day (Var) among seven days) and period kâl – morning, midday or evening as per panchang of Kashmiri Pandits (see Chapter 11).

3) Place where karma takes place i.e. India (which in Puranic terminology is referred as Jmbhudvipa, Bharat Khanda, Bharat Varsha).
4) Name with parentage and gotra (see Chapter 9 for gotra) of performer.
5) Type of karma being undertaken (viz: Nitya Karma, Samskara or any other Karma).

Thus a Snklpa reads as follows:

Om Vishnu, Vishnu Vishnu (naming Vishnu 3 times). Adhy Brahmnohni (date from manifestation by Brahma). Dvitîprardhe, Shri Shvetvarah Klpe, Vaivsvn, Mnvntare, Asht Vimshatme Klyuge, Kliprthm Charne (this has reference to cosmic time as per cosmic calendar – see Chapter 11).

Jmbudvipe, Bharat Khanda, Bharat Vrshe ① Khetrey ② Nagre/Grame ③ Mâsey ④ Pakshey ⑤ Tithe ⑥ Varse ⑦ Kale ⑧ Gotrey; Ahm ⑨, ⑩ Karm, Krishiye.

ॐ विष्णुर्विष्णु र्विष्णु अद्य ब्रह्मणोहि द्वितीपरार्धे श्री शवेतवाराह कल्पे वैवस्वत मन्वन्तेरऽष्टविशंतमे कलयगे कलिप्रथमचरणे ।

जम्बूद्विपे भारत खण्डे भारतवर्षे ① क्षेत्रे; ② नगरे (ग्रामे) ③ मासे ④ पक्षे ⑤ तिथौ ⑥ वासरे ⑦ काले ⑧ गोत्रे; अहं ⑨, ⑩ कर्म करिष्ये ।।

① State direction – North (uttar उत्तर), South (dakshan दक्षिण), East (purv पूर्व), West (pshchm पश्चम).
② State names of city or village (e.g. Jammu City or Khrew village).
③ State month of year (e.g. Mag masey).
④ State fortnight - Shukla or Krishna (शुक्ला/कृष्णा).
⑤ State date as per lunar calender( 1-15) (प्रथम पूर्णमासी/अमावसी).
⑥ State day of week (e.g. Sumvasrey, for Monday).
⑦ State time of day, morning (Prata), midday (Madhay) Evening (Sayam) (प्रातः/मध्य/सायं).
⑧ State Gotra of performer (e.g. Dattatrey kauley).
⑨ State name of Performer (e.g. Shamlaley).
⑩ State type of Karma (e.g. Sandyaupasna Karme).

Short form of *Snklpa

(see Chapter 11 for Panchang). The above Snklpa is used for major Karmas (Smskars such as Vivah, Upanyana etc) for nitya karma (daily karma) a much shorter version is used, which reads as follows:

Om Tat Sat Brahma Adhy Tavat Tithou Adye ___ Masey ( name the lunar mouth)_____*Pakshey* (Shukla/Krishna) ___*Tithou* (Prtipada to Amavsya/Purnima) ___ Varey (Ravivasrey 'Sunday' – Shanshcharvasrey 'Saturday') ___ Kale (Prata/Madhya/Saym) ___ Deshey (Name country e.g.Bharatvarshey or Amerika ___ Gotrey (name of performer, along with gotra e.g. datattrey gotrey:- if gotra is not known use the word Amuk,); *ahm*_____(performers name) ___ Karm Karishye (name the karma such as Brahm Yagnya, Tarpn etc. see Panch Mahayagnya under Nitya karma).

ॐ तत सत ब्रह्म अध्य तावत तिथो अद्ये _____मासे ____पक्षे_____तिथौ_____वारे_____ काले_____देशे _____गोत्रे; अहं_____कर्म करिष्ये ।।

Example

A typical snklpa of bath (snan) performed by a person in India whose name is Shyam lal, Gotra is dattatrey kola, month is Mag, paksh is shukla, date (Tithou) is ashtami, day is Monday, time of performance is morning would be recited as under:

" Om Tat Sat Brahma Ady Tavt Tithou Adhy Mag Masey Shukla Pakshey Shub Tithyam Ashtamiyam Somvasrey Prata Kaley Ahm Shamlaley Datattrey Koley Snanm Karishyey"

Note

To exprss the above sankalpa in sanskrit it is practice to add words :

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

1) 'Shub' ( meaning auspicious) in the recitation of date.
2) 'yam' to the date e.g. ashtami as ashtimiyam.
3) replace word 'r' with the words 'asray' for the day of week e.g. somvar as somvasray. ravivar as ravivasray and so on.
4) 'ey' to the name of person e.g. shamlal as shamlaley.

Other Snklpas

1) Offerings made to Pitras (dead ancestors) on certain occasions are also known as Snklpa. In this after recitation of above sankalpa, offerings such as eatables, clothes etc are sprinkled with water held in cupped right hand along with black sesamum with the concluding words. Anum Snklpm (for eatables) Vstrm Snklpm (for clothes), Dhnm Snklm (for money).
2) At the end of a Karma, Snklp is recited again for the successful completion of karma (see A15).

A3) Aasan Shodan or Sthula Shuddhi (Cleaning the seat) (आसन शोधन/स्थूला शूद्धि)

After cleaning the seat of worship symbolically with a darbha broom (kept specially for this purpose), a small quantily of water is placed in pranipatr along with Vishthur or couple of pieces of darbha. This water is first consecrated by recitation of Viniyoga mantra and then, the seat for worship is symbolically made pure by sprinkling water over it with the help of Vishthur or darbha.

a) Viniyoga (naming Rishi etc. of this mantra).

Asy Shrî Âsn Shodn Mntrsy Meruprshth Rishi Sûtlm Chhndh Kûrmo Devta Âsan Shodn Viniyogh

अस्य श्री आसन शोधन मन्त्रस्य मेरूपृष्ट ऋषि सूतलं छन्दः कूर्मो देवता आसन शोधन विनियोगः ।

(For purification of deities seat (âsan) by Mantra, Meru Preshht is the sage (Rishi), Kûrma (tortoise incarnation of Vishnu) is the presiding deity; sûtla is the name of the metre. Deity is requested to take the seat).

b) Purification of Seat

Om Prithivyai
Tvya Drita Loka Devi Tvm Vishnuna Drta
Tvm Ch Dhârayâ Mâm Devi Pvitrm Kuru Chasnm

ॐ प्रथिव्यै ।
त्वया धृतालोका देवि त्वं विष्णुना धृता ।
त्वं च धाराया मामदेवि पवित्रं कुरू चासनम ।

(Om, O mother Earth, the worlds are supported by you and you are supported by Lord Vishnu. O goddess Prithvi support me too and purify my seat as well).

After reciting above mantra one should salute the seat by touching or bowing and then sit on it.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

A4) Prithvi Pujan (Worship of earth as mother) (पृथिवि पूजन)

While applying tilak, arghya and flowers to floor in the front, recite following words:

Prîm Prithiviyai Âdhar Shaktyai Smalubnm
Gandho Nmh Arghyo Nmh Pushpm Nmh

प्रीं पृथिव्यै आधार शकत्यै समालभनं
गन्धो नमः अर्गो नमः पुष्पं नमः ।

(I bow to mother Earth who is the support of Primal energy and offer my salutations by applying tilak, arghya and flowers).

A5) Aakash Pujan (Worship of Sky) (आकाश पूजन)

While applying tilak, arghya, and pushp (flowers) to sky symbolically by holding it in fingers and pointing towards sky, recite following:

Sknd Âdhâr Shktyai Smalubnm Gndho Nmh Argo Nmh, Pushpm Nmh

सकन्द आधार शकत्यै समालभनं गन्धो । नमः अर्गो नमः पुष्पं नमः ।

(To sky which is the support of Prime Energy I offer my salutations by applying tilak, arghya and flowers).

A6) Ganesh Pujan (Seeking blessings of Lord Ganesh) (गणेश पूजन)

Lord Ganesh's blessings are sought for the smooth performance of the karma that is intended to be performed by applying tilak, arghya and flowers to Him along with recitation of mantras. The recitation of mantra is :

Om Shuklmber Dhrm Vishnu,
Shshivrnm Chturbhujam! Prsnn Vdnm Dyaye Srv Vignop Shantiyai

ॐ शुकलांभर धरं विष्णु ।
शशिवर्ण चतुरभुजं प्रसन्न वदनं ध्यायं सर्व विघ्नोप शान्तयै ।।

I pray to Lord Ganesh, Whose clothes are white like sky itself (He is everywhere like God Vishnu); Who is bright and cool like the Moon; Who has four arms (control over four directions) and is always happy. Even gods for fulfillment of their desires and removal of obstacles in the success of their chosen karma worship Him.)

In Smaskaras and in his special pujas he is worshiped very eloberately (by Shodosho Puja).

A7) Guru Pujan (Seeking blessings of guru) (गुरू पूजन)

Trinity of gods Brahma, Vishnu and Mahesh are the first guru's of an individual. If one worships his chosen human guru (living or dead) then he/she is worshiped as an agent of trinity of gods who guides one in the right path to follow. While applying tilak, arghya and flower to guru one recites following words :

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Guruh Brhmâ Guruh Vishnu Gurudevo Maheshvra
Guru Sakshât Prbrhm Tsmy Shri Garve Nmh
Gurve Nmh Prm Gurve Nmh Prmacherya Nmh
Âdhi Siddhi Byo Nmh

गुरूः ब्रह्म गुरू विष्णुः गुरू देवो महेशवरः ।
गुरूः साक्षात परब्रह्म तस्मै श्री गुरूवे नमः ।
गुर्वे नमः, परम गुर्वे नमः, परमाचार्या नमः,। आदि-सिद्धभ्यो नमः ।।

(Guru is Brhma, Vishnu and Mahesh. He is Omnipresent, I bow to Him who is Supreme Master and source of all siddhas – right actions.)

In Smaskaras and special poojas Guru-Astuti (see Chapter 22) is recited.

A8) Angnyas (Assigning parts of body to Gods) (अगंन्यास) (see Chapter 6)

Nyassa is an act of mental appropriation or assigning parts of body to tutelary deities. Various parts of the hands and body are touched upon while reciting mantra assigned to that place to enhance the sanctity of puja by linking body and cosmos at micro and macrolevels. It has two parts:

a) Karnyas (touching fingers of both hands).
b) Shdngnyas (touching various parts of body).

a) Karnyas (करन्यास)

(one can perform this with Gayatri mantra, Shivmantra (Om Nmh Shiv) or any other chosen mantra.

1) Gayatri Mantra Karnyas: While holding 2 pieces of dharba in anamika fingers of both hands with dharba turned back wards perform following actions along with recitations as given below:

i) Om Bhu Angushtha bhyam Nmh (ॐ भू अनगुष्ठाभ्यां नमः) Touching thumbs of both hands.
ii) Om Bhuvh Tarjnîbhyam Nmh (ॐ भुवः तर्जनीभ्यां नमः) Touching tarjini fingers of both hands.
iii) Om Svh Madhma bhyam Nmh (ॐ स्वः मध्यमाभ्यां नमः) Touching Madhya fingers of both hands.
iv) Om Mhh Anamikabhyam Nmh (ॐ महः अनामिकाभ्याम नमः) Touching anamika fingers of both hands.
v) Om Jnh Kanîsthkabhyam Nmh (ॐ जनः कनिष्टिकाभ्याम नमः) Touching Kanishta fingers of both hands.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

vi) Om Tph Stym Kar Tal Kar Prsthabyam Nmh (ॐ तपः सत्यं करतल-कर पृष्ठाभ्याम नमः) Moving both the hands in such a way that front of both hands move over the backs of both hands.

Extended Karnyas of Gayatri Mantra

i) Om Tat Savitur Angushthbhyam Nmh (ॐ तत सवितुर अंगुष्ठाभ्याम नमः) Touch both thumbs as stated earlier.
ii) Vreniym Tarjanibhyam Nmh (वरेण्यं तर्जनीभ्यां नमः) Touch both tarjini fingers.
iii) Bhergodevsym Madyamabhyam Nmh (भर्गो देवस्यं मध्यामाभ्याम नमः) Touch both Madyama fingers.
iv) Dimahi Anamikabhyam Nmh (धीमहि अनामिकाभ्याम नमः) Touch both Anamika fingers.
v) Diyoyo Nh Kanishthka bhyam Nmh (धियोयो नः कनिष्टिकाभ्याम नमः) Touch both Kanistha fingers.
vi) Prochodyat Kartal Kr Prshthabhyam Nmh (प्रचोदयात करतलकर पृष्ठाभ्यां नमः) Moving both hand as stated earlier.

Short form

i) Om Bhur Bhuvh Svah Angushthbyam Nmh (ॐ भूः भुवः स्वं अंगुष्ठाभ्याम नमः) Same as above.
ii) Tat Savitur Vrenym Tarjinibhyam Nmh (तत सवितुर र्तजनीभ्याम नमः) Same as above.
iii) Bhargo Devsy Madhyabyam Nmh (भर्गो देवस्य मध्याभ्यामा नमः) Same as above.
iv) Dhimhi Anamika byam Nmh (धीमहि अनामिकाभ्याम नमः) Same as above.
v) Diyoyonah Kanisthkabyam Nmh (धियो यो नः कनिष्ठाभ्याम नमः) Same as above.
vi) Prochodyat Krtlkr Prshtabyam Nmh (प्रचोदयात करतल का पृष्ठाभ्याम नमः) Same as above.

2) Om Nmh Shivay Mantra-Karnyas

i) Om Angushthabyam Nmh (ॐ अंगुष्ठाभ्याम नमः) Touching both Thumbs.
ii) 'Na' Tarjinibyam Nmh (न तर्जनीभ्याम नमः) Touching both Tarjinis.
iii) 'Ma' Madhymabyam Nmh (म मध्याभ्यां नमः) Touching both Madyamas.
iv) 'Shi' Anamikabyam Nmh (शि-अनामिकाभ्याम नमः) Touching both Anamica finger.
v) 'Va' Kanishthakabyam Nmh (व-कनिष्ठकाभ्याम नमः) Touching both Kanisthas.
vi) 'Ya' Krtlkr Prasthabyam Nmh (य-करतलकर पृष्ठाभ्याम नमः) Moving hands as stated earlier.

3) Dev Krnyas: Sometimes instead of mantras names of gods are used for performing karnyas e.g.

i) Om Bhahmaye Angushthbyam Nmh (ॐ ब्रह्मये अंगुष्ठाभ्याम नमः)
ii) Om Vishnuye tarjinibyan Nmh (ॐ विष्णुये तर्जनीभ्यां नमः)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

iii) Om Rudraye Madyamabyam Nmh (ॐ रूद्राये मध्यामाभ्यां नमः)
iv) Om Satyaye Anamicabyam Nmh (ॐ सत्याये अनामिकाभ्यां नमः)
v) Om Jnaye Kanisthkabyam Nmh (ॐ ज्ञाये कनिष्ठाभ्याम नमः)

b) Shhadngnyas (षडङ्गन्यास) (see figure on next page)

1) Using Gayatri Mantra

i) Om Bhu Hrdyaye Nmh (ॐ भू हृदयाये नमः) Touching heart region with four fingers of both hands.
ii) Om Bhuvh Shirse Svaha (ॐ भुवः शिरसि स्वाहा) Touch forehead with four fingers of both hands.
iii) Om Svah Shikhaye Vshht (ॐ स्वः शिखाये वष्ट) Touch top of head.
iv) Om Mhh Kvchayhum (ॐ महः कवचाय हुम) Touching left shoulder with right hand and right shoulder with left hand.
v) Om Jnh Netrabyam Nmh (ॐ जनः नेत्रेभ्यां नमः) Touching both eyes with madyama and tarjini fingers of both hands.
vi) Om Tph Astray Pht (ॐ तपः अस्त्राय फट) Striking hard left hand palm with tarjini and madyama fingers of right hand palm to produce sound.
*) The words Nmh, Vausht, Hun, Vausht, Pht are diffferent expressions of surrender in offering oblations to the respective deities invoked in this anga. (Source - Panchastavi by J. N. Kaul).

2) Using Om Nmh Shivay Mantra. Touching part of body as stated above.

i) 'Om' Hrdyaye Nmh (ॐ हृदयाये नमः)
ii) 'Na' Shirse Svaha ('न' शिरसे स्वाहा)
iii) 'Ma' Shikhaye Vsht ('म' शिखाये वषट)
iv) 'Shi' Kvchay Hum ('शि' कवचाय हुम)
v) 'Va' Netrabyam Nmh (व नेत्रेभ्यां नम)
vi) Ya Astray Phat (य असत्राय फट)

3) Invoking gods directly without use of mantra. Touching part of body as stated above.

i) Om Brahmaye Hrdyaye Nmh (ॐ ब्रह्मो हृदय नमः)
ii) Om Vishnuye Shirse Svaha (ॐ विष्णु शिरसे स्वाहा)
iii) Om Rudraye Shikhaye Vsht (ॐ रूद्राये शिखाये वषट)
iv) Om Satye Kvchay Hum (ॐ सत्याये कवचाय हुम)
v) Om Jnane Netraye Nmh (ॐ ज्ञाने नेत्राये नम)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Other traditions

Arya Samaj Nyasa (Ang Sprsh Mantra) (अङ्ग-स्पर्श मंत्र)

Put a little amount of water on the left-hand palm, and apply same to various parts of body as indicated below with the anamika and madyme fingers of right hand.

1) Om Van Ma Âsye Astu (ॐ वाङ म आस्येऽस्तु) Touching mouth.
2) Om Nasor Me Prâno Astu (ॐ नसोर्मे प्राणोऽस्तु) Touching nose.
3) Om Akshnor Me Chkshur Astu (ॐ अक्षंणोर्मे चक्षुरस्तु) Touching both eyes.
4) Om Karnayor Me Shhrotram Astu (ॐ कर्णयोर्मे श्रोत्रमस्तु) Touch both ears.
5) Om Bâhvor Me Balm Astu (ॐ बाहवोर्मे बलमस्तु) Touching both arms.
6) Om Ûrvor Me Ojo Astu (ॐ ऊर्वोर्मे ओजोऽस्तु) Touching both thighs
7) Om Arishhtâni Me Angâni Tanus Tanvâ Me Saha Santu (ॐ अरिष्टानि मेंऽङ्गानि तनूस्तन्वा मे सहसन्तु) Sprinkle water on all parts of body.

A9) Bhu Shuddhih (Keeping away evil spirits) (भू शुद्धि)

Evil spirits have to be kept away by throwing black til seeds (Sesamum) around in all directions while reciting following mantra.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Apasarpantu Te Bhuto Ye Bhuta Bhuvi Samsthitah
Ye Bhuta Vigna Kartaras Te Gacchantu Shivjnaya

अपसर्पन्त ते भूता ये भूता भुवि-सन्स्थिता
ये भूता विघ्न-करतारस्ते गाचन्तु शिवाझना ।

(Those evil spirits and ghosts who are in this place and who may disturb my meditations let them go away by the immediate order of the Supreme Lord Shiv).

Other traditions

As per Gurukul Tradition kicking the earth thrice with hind part of the left leg performs this kriya. No til is used.

A10) Pranayama (Rhythmic breath control) (प्राणायाम)

Pranayama or rhythmic breathing is one of the most important kriya (action) in yoga as well in meditation. Prâna means breath and ayama means expansion. The discipline through which breath is expanded and regulated is known as "Pranayama". On the physical plane this exercise in yoga is used for attaining longvity, health and extraordinary energy. Deep breathing supplies enough oxygen to the lungs and thereby to the whole body, that helps in purifying blood. Pranayama also helps in exhaling impure elements in our body through breathing (see Box in Chapter 6).

A11) Prokshana/Shank Brahmn (Purifying body with consecrated water) (प्रोक्षणा/शङ्ख ब्रमण)

It is a symbolic act of purification of body at the start of performance of Karma by sprinkling water on body by Vishthur (dharba-see Chapter 17) which is kept in Pranipatr (pot), along with recitation of following words:

Tirthey Sneym Tirthm Ev Smanam Bhvti Manh
Shmso Ârrushho Dhurtih Prann Mrtysy Rkshâno Brhmnspti.

तीर्थे स्नेन तीर्थ एव समानां भवतिमानः
शंसो आररूषो धूर्ति प्राणड मर्त्यस्य रक्षाणो बह्मणस्पते ।

(Let this water have the same effect as having a bath at a holy place (Tirtha). Let it make me safe from any disease and save me from death).

Gorukul Tradition

The water for purification of body is kept in a conch (Shnkh) and after its purification by recitation of following mantra it is sprinkled on the body. Hence it is called Shnkh Brahmn.

Om Apvitrh Pvitro Va Srvâsthani Gto PYh Smvetpundrîkashm Sa Vahyâbyntrh Shukchih

ॐ अपवित्रः पवित्रो वा सवीस्थां गतोऽपिवा यः स्मरेत्पुण्डरीकाक्षंस वाहयाम्यन्तरः शुचि ।

(Let one may be in purified, polluted or any other condition he (or she) is indeed in purified state internally as well as enternally if he/or she) think of Pundrikashu Lord 'Vishnu' always).

A12) Marjana/Mntr Snan (Purification through mntra) (मारजना/मन्त्र स्नान)

It is an act of purifying ones inner self by recitation of mantras only. No water is used.

Recite words "Iti Mnantr Snamîyni Nmh" (इति मन्त्र सनानीयं नमः).

Gurukul Tradition

1) Om Âpo Stha Mayobhuvah (Oh water gods, you (always) confer happiness over those who mediate upon you).
2) Om Ta Na Urje Dadhatana (Bless us with strength).
3) Om Mahe Ranâya Chakshase (Bliss us) to attain the highest wisdom.
4) Om Yo Vah Shivatamo Rashah (That most auspecious essence (of bless).
5) Om Tasya Bhajayateha Nah (make us partakers thereof).
6) Om Ushatir Iva Mâtarah (Even as eager mothers (fied their children with the milk from their bosom).
7) Om Tasmâ Aram Gamama Vah (To him we request toa come).
8) Om Yasya Kshayâya Ginvatha (To whose abode you send us).
9) Om Âpa Janayathâ Ca Nah (Waters, bless us with (spiritual) children (and grand children to continue this spiritual line).

After reciting each stanza from 1-7 above the performer should sprinkle water over his head each time. While chanting the eighth stanza he should offer water to Earth. Chanting the 9th stanza, once again he should sprinkle the water over his own head.

If the marjana kriya is done in a river, one should take dharba in his hand to spraokle water over his head while reciting mantras.

This mantra is also used for Snana when it is not possible to do actual bath with water due to ill health or any other reason.

A13) Pavitri Dharn (Wearing Pavitri) (पवित्रि धारण)

Pavitri[1] is put on the anamika finger along with recitation of following mantras:

Vsoh Pvitrm Asi Shtdhârm Vsunam Pvitrm Asi, Shstr Dharm,
Aykshmâ Vh Prjya Smsrjâmi Rays Poshhen Bhula Bhvntî[2]

वसोः पवित्र असि शतधारं वसूना पवित्र-असि सहस्त्र-धारम
अयक्षमावः प्रजया प्रिया संसृजामि रायस्पोषेण बहुला भवन्ती ।।

(Oh, Vasus, make us pure. may this pavitri remove our hundred impurities, which may further remove thousand impurities. May we be free from all ailments and may our progeny be large and happy).

Note

1) See Chapter 15 for preparation of Pavitr.
2) This mantra as per Gurukul Tradition has second line as follows:

Devstva Svita Punatu Vso Pavitren Shtdharen Supva Kumdhuk

देवस्तवा सविता पुनातु वसो पवित्रेण शतधारेण सुप्वा कामधुक

(Oh, Vasus, you are luminous ones. Please purify us with your hundred streans and fulfill our all wishes).
This mantra is used in Homa.

A14) Anulepna (Smearing or applying tilak) (अनुलेपना)

Applying tilak (a paste made by rubbing chandan and saffron on a stone) is an important part of ritual. Tilak along with arghya and flowers is applied to:

a) self during puja
b) to others who participate in the puja
c) to dîp, to
d) to dûp, and to
e) to Sun and other deities.

The recitation of mantras for those is as follows:

a) Self

Parmatmne Purushhotmaye, Pnch Bhutatmkay Vishvatmne, Mntr Nathay, Âtmne, Naraynay, Âdhar Shktyai, Smalubnm Gndho Nmh, Argo Nmh, Pushpam Nmh.

(I am applying tilak along with argha and flowers with due reverence to Vishnu who is known by various epithets such as Parmatma, Purushotma, Pnch Bhutatmka, Vishvatmn, Mntrnath, Âtma, Narayna, Âdhar Shakti (primordial energy) etc).

b) Applying Tilak to Others

Mntrartha Sflah Sntu, Purnh Sntu Northah
Shtrunam Buddhi Nashstu Mitrnam Udyestv
Âyur-Ârogym-Eshvrym Ett Tritym
Astute, Jiv Tvm Shrdh Shtm.

(May the mantra be efficacious in all respects, may your enemy loose their intelligence, may your friends grow in stature, may you have three gifts of long life, freedom from illness and enjoyment of life; may you live for one hundred autumns.)

c) Applying Tilak arghya & flowers to Dîp

Sv Prakasho Mha Dîph, Srvtstimiraph Prasîd Mm Govind Dîpaym Priklpita.

स्व प्रकाशो महा दीपः सर्वतस्तिमिरापहः प्रसीद मम गोविन्द दीपोयं परिकल्पिता ।।

(O Govind, you are self luminous, a great source of light, remover of all darkness, be pleased with me and enlighten me).

d) Apply Tilak to Dûp Agarbati along with arghya and flowers

Vnspati Rso Divyo Gndhadya Gndhvt Tmh Âdhar Sktyai Srv
Devanam Dûpo Nmh Argo Nmh Pushpm Nmh

(I bow to that Lord who is beholder of dharma who is positively Real One, I bow to all divinities and to Bhaskars (Suns).

A15) Dhup Dip Snklp Siddhi Prarthna (prayer for success in sankalpa) (धूप दीप संकल्प सिद्धि प्रार्थना)

At the end of Dûp Dîp, a request is made to deity for the success of Snklpa taken at the beginning of puja.

A little amount of water is poured in Pranipatr along with two dharbha or Vishthur and arghya. Pouring it first on the fingers of right hand, while holding Pranipatr by left hand along with recitation of following words then pour this water in nirmal thali:

( I do not have the knowledge of my father, mother, brother or friend and even I am not aware of the conditions of day and night i.e. when I am deep in meditation, then I take refuge under the light of Dîpa (Luminous light) which is actually luminious light of Narayana- who is Âdhar Shakti "Primordial Energy". May my Snklpa "resolution" of Dûp Dîp Pûja be propitious).

This is short version. In its longer version Snklpa (A2) is recited again and in place of the words "Âtmane Naraynay Âdhar Shaktyai" - the names of various deities who are being propliated are recited.

A16) Pitr Yagnya / Tarpan (Offering water oblations) (पित्र यज्ञ/तर्पण)

As per Vedic thought a man is born with three debts (rins) and Pitr ygnya or tarpan is one of the means of repaying that debt. The three debts are those of devas, rishis and pitrs (dead ancestors). Tarpan is an act of offering water oblations to these three entities along with darbha (to purify water) and some other materials which are dear to them. Tarpan is always preceded by a Snklp (see A2) and followed by Avahan (see A19).

a) Dev Tarpan (oblations to devas) (देव तपर्ण)
Facing east, Yagnopavit in Svena positions (women performers should keep their hair lock 'lathur in Kashmiri' on right shoulder); right knee should touch ground, left knee up; pavtr should be in anamika finger of right hand, hold three pieces of darbha (with tips facing east) along with rice in the forefingers of right hand and then pour water from a cup or arghya patr held by left hand on the darbha and let is go into nirmal thali (or water body) while reciting following words*:

1) Om Bramahdhyo Devsytraptyntam Svaha (ॐ ब्रहमादयो देवस्तृप्यन्ताम स्वाहाः) (O Brahma and other devas may your thirst be quenched).
2) Om Bhur Devsy Traplyntam Svaha (ॐ भूर्देवस्यतृप्यन्ताम स्वाहाः) (May the thirst of devas of Bhu Loka (Earth) be quenched).
3) Om Bhuvh Devsytraptyntâm Svaha (ॐ भूवः देवस्यतृप्यन्ताम स्वाहाः) (May the thirst of all devas of Bhuvh Loka (antriksh) be quenched).
4) Om Svuh Devsytraptynantam Svaha (ॐ स्वः देवस्यतृप्यन्ताम स्वाहाः) (May the thirst of all devas of Svrg Loka be quenched).
5) Om Bhur Bhuvh Svah Devsy Trîptyantam Svaha (ॐ भू भुर्वः स्वः देवस्यतृप्यन्ताम स्वाहाः) (May the thirst of all the lokas (Bhu, Bhuvh & Svh) be quenched).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

*) This is short from of tarpan for Devas based on Gayatri Mantra. In other form of Dev tarpan names of 25 devas are recited with oblations of water and rice.

b) Rishi Tarpan (ऋषि तपर्ण)

Facing north, Yagnopavit Knthi "in the neck" (women should keep their hair lock on back side), sitting in normal position with both knees touching ground, pavtri in anamika finger, one should hold darbha in fingers of right hand along with barley or wheat. Water, poured over the right hand from a pot held in the left hand should be made to go down from the from Kaytirth of hand (see Figure in Chapter 15). Recite following words:

1) Om Marîchâdi Rishiysy Trpyntâm Trpyntam (ॐ मरीचिदि ऋषियस्यतृप्यन्ताम तर्पयन्ताम)
(May Marichi Rishi and other Rishi's thirst quench.)
2) Om Snkâdi Rishysytrayntam Trpyntams (ॐ सन्कादि ऋषियस्यतृपयन्ताम)
(May Snka and other Rishis thirst quench).
3) Om Bhu Rishysytripyntam Trpyntra (ॐ भू ऋषियस्यतृप्यन्ताम तर्पयन्ताम)
(May the thirst of Rishis (of Earth) be quenched).
4) Om Buvh Rishysytripyntam Trpyntan (ॐ भुवः ऋषियस्यतृप्यन्ताम तर्पयन्ताम)
(May the thirst of all Rishis of Buvh Loka (antiriksh) be quenched).
5) Om Svh Rishysy Tripyntam Trpyntan (ॐ स्वः ऋषियस्यतृप्यन्ताम तर्पयन्ताम)
(May the thirst of all Rishis of Svrg Loka be quenched).
6) Om Bhur, Buvh, Svh, Rishysy Trpyntam Trpyntea (ॐ भू भुर्वः स्वः ऋषियस्यतृप्यन्ताम तर्पयन्ताम) (May the thirst of all Rishis of Svrg Loka be quenched).

c) Pitr Tarpan (पित्र तृपर्ण)

Facing south, Yagnopavit in Upsvena position (women should keep hair lock on left shoulder), left knee touching ground, right knee up, pavitri removed from anamika finger, one should hold tight two pieces of darbha, bent in the middle, by thumb and side of palm. With a small quantity of black sesamum in the the right hand palm, pour water from a pot held in the left hand over sasamum and let it go through Pitr tirth in the nirmal pot or ithe water body (if performed at River bank) (see Figure in Chapter 15). Recite following words:

Asmat —(a)— (Vasurups for parents, Rudrrups for Grandparents, Aditrups for great grand parents) Trpyntam Idm Tilkodkm (Ganga Jalam Va- if Ganga jal is also used), Tsmai Svkdha Nmh. Tsmai Svdha Nmh, Tsmai Svdha Nmh.....

(अस्मत .(a).... (वसुरूपस्य) (रूद्ररूपस्य / आदित्यारूपस्य) तृप्यन्तामइदं तिलकोदकम; गगंजलवा तस्मै स्वधा नमः तस्मे स्वधा नमः तस्मै स्वधानमः

(May this water along with sesamum quench the thirst of my relation as given in (a) above who is of the form of Vasu (Vishnu for parents, Rudra for grandparents and Aditya 'Sun' for great grand parents). May they enjoy it (repeated 3 times).

a) State relationship with ancestor, follower by his/her name and Gotra. Add words -'Sy'(स्य)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

after the name of ancestor e.g.

Shyamlalsy (शामलालस्य) for Sham Lal.

Somnathsy (सोमनाथस्य) for Som Nath.

Note

i) For Deva Tarpan one has to use the word Trpyntam Svaha (तृप्यन्ताम स्वाहाः) once only.

ii) For Rishis Tarpan one has to use the words Trpyntam (तृप्यन्ताम) twice.

iii) For Pitr Tarpan one has to use words Tsmai Svdha Nmh or Tebhyo Svadha Nmh (plural form for more than one being) (तस्मै स्वधा नमः) three times.
Svaha is a call of joy ( Svaha is also described as wife of Agnidev). Svadha means enjoy. Trpyantam means to satisfy.

Naming Pitrs

1) Father – Pitr (पिता)
2) Grand father – Pita Mhh (पिता महः)
3) Great Grandfather – Prpita Mhh (प्रपिता महः)
4) Mother – Mâta (माता)
5) Grandmohter (paternal) – Pita Mhi (पिता मही)
6) Greatgrand Mother (paternal) Prpîta Mhi (प्रपिता मही)
7) Grandfather (maternal) – Matâ Mhh (माता महः)
8) Great Grand Father (maternal) Prmata Mhh (प्रमाता महः)
9) Great Great Grand father (maternal) Vrd Prmatma Mhh (वृद्ध प्रमातामहः)
10) Grand mother – Mâta Mhi (माता मही)
11) Great Grand mother (maternal) Prmata Mhi (प्रमाता मही)
12) Great Great Grand mother – Vrd Prmata Mhi (वृद्ध प्रमाता मही)

These are twelve ancestors who are due to receiving Tarpan.

Naming ladies

Ladies are named first as per their maiden name followed by the given name after marriage. Using the words Tt Saman (तत समान) for describing both the names e.g. for maiden name Kamla and married name of Shobawati the naming would be "Kamla Tt Saman "Shoba Deviyai" (the word Devyai is added to all married women living or dead).

Tarpan for Relations

For relations other than above tarpan can also be made.

Brother – Brata (भ्राता).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Brother wife – Brata Patni (भ्राता पत्नी).

Uncle (paternal) – Pitr (पित्र).

Uncle wife – Pitr Patni (पित्र पत्नी).

Uncle (maternal) – Matul (मातुल).

Uncle wife (maternal) – Matul Patini (मातुल पत्नी).

Father-in-law – Shushra (शुशरा).

Mother-in-law – Shushru Patni (शुशुरू पत्नी).

Friend (मित्र).

Short Tarpan

If due to some reason one is not in a position to offer Tarpan individually to all the pitrs, then one can have recourse to short tarpan as follows:

Asmat Mata Pita Dvadash Pitrbyo Amuk Gotrbyo Trpyntam*
Idm Tilkodkm Tebyo Svdha, Tehyo Svdha, Tebyo Svdha.

असमत माता पिता द्वादश पित्रोभ्यो अमुक गोत्रभ्यो तृत्यन्तां
इदम तिलकोदकम तेभ्यो स्वधा तेभ्यो स्वधा तेभ्यो स्वधा ।

(May my twelve Pitr from paternal side as well as maternal side relish this water along with sesemum for quenching their thirst).

*) If one is not sure about gotra, then used work Amuk (अमुक) which means unknown

Example

1) Tarpam of Father (Name Sham Lal Gotra Dattetrey Kola)

Asmat Pita Shamlalesy Vasurupesy Dattatrey
Koley Gotrsy Trpyantam Idm Tilkodkm (Ganga Jalam Va) Tasmai Sudha Nmh,
Tsmai Sudha Nmh, Tsmai Susha Nmh

2) Tarpan for mother (Paternal name Kanta, married name Shobawati Gotra- Mudgulay, with Ganga jal).

Asmat Mata Kanta Tatsaman Shobadeviyay Vasrupasy Madgulay Gotrey Trpyantam Idm Tilkodkm
Gangajalam Va Tsmai Sudha Nmh, Tsmai Sudha Nmh, Tasmai Sudha Nmh

3) Tarpan for father, grand father and great grand father (Names father - Sham lal, grand father - Govind, great granf father- Mukund gotra Dattatrey kola).

Asmat Pita Shamlalsy Vasurupasy Pitamha Gobindsy Rudrrupsy Pripita
Mha Mukandsy Adityrupsy Dattatrey Koley Gotresy Trpyantam
Idm Tilkodkm Tebhyo Sudha Nmh, Tebyosudha Nmh, Tebyo Sudha Nmh

A17) Prepyun (प्रेप्युन)

It is Naveed Anga (A41) used on major occasions only. It is not used in Nitti Karma Pujas. The word Prepyun is actually misspelt word of Prarpn which is made of two words Par (for others) and Arpan (to give). Thus Prepyun means to give something to others. Kashmiri Pandits prepare some eatables which they share with others on auspicious occasions like festivals e.g. Shivratri or birthday. The offerings are simple Tehri (boild rice with turmeric and mixed with boiled oil or ghee and sprinkled with salt) or Puries (wheat flour sweetened cakes fried in ghee) or simply some dry fruits. Prepyun is not a puja in itself.

The recitation of mntras is names of various deities such as Lord Ganesh, Vishnu, Shiv, Durga, Kumar, Surya with a number of their epithets. Tuttelary gods, goddesses, Bhairvas etc all are invoked. Towards the end the Isht Dev (or Devi) along with above deities is specially prayed upon to accept this delicious food as a reward for the performers hard work and dedication with which the offering has been prepared.

Preparatory

1) The food Tehri, Puri or dry fruits are placed in front of deity where the puja is being performed.
2) From the offerings of food (called Prashad) about 250 grams of Tehri or about 5 numbers (if Puri) is removed and kept in a plate. This is called Chttu.
   Also seven handfuls of Tehri from the main pot are taken away and kept at separate places in a thali. (If puri is offered then one puri is to be cut into seven pieces). This is called Dev/Devi Bhog.

Puja

a) Main Prasad

The performer and all others touch the Prasad plate (if gathering is large then they can touch the person in front who is in touch with Prasad plate and for even larger gathering a chain like this can be formed by touching the adjacent person.

Recitation

A18) Dyan (Visualising diety's form (ध्यान)

Dyan is an act of visualizing the form of deity as described in Vedic Theology (see Chapter 3). At the start of pûja of a deity it is the practice of visualizing the form of deity who is to be propitiated. Some deities e.g. Lord Shiv has several forms and in such case the form associated with that ritual

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

is visualized. Deities form may be invoked through an object like idol, picture or icon. Some of the common dyans of deities are as follows: (see also Section on Stuties, Chapter 22-24).

1) Lord Ganesh

Sindûr Kumkum Hutashn Vidrumark Rktabje Dadinenbhây Chaturbhujay
Hermb Bhairv Ganeshvr Naykay Srvarth Siddhi Phalday Shri Mahagneshvray.

(I meditate upon Lord Shiva Who is dear to Gauri (Parvati), Who is Lord of three worlds, Who is dear to His worshippers, Who removes all fear and hardships, whose flag bears the mascot of a bull, Who is known as Rudra and is beyond the concept of time.)

3) Vishnu Dhyan

Shântâ Karem Bhujeg Shaynam Padam Nabham Suresham
Wishvadharm Gagan Sadreshaym Meghvarnm Shubhangm
Lakhshimi Kantam Kamal Naynam Yogibir Dyân Gameyam

(I am bowing to that Lord Vishnu Who has calm disposition,Who is sitting on Sheshneg (Lord of Snakes) ,Who has lotus in the center of his belly (Nabhi), Who is Lord of devtas, Who is the cause of the universe, Who is present everywhere like sky, who is like a cloud, whose all parts are beautiful, Who is husband of Goddeess Lakshmi, Whose eyes are beautiful like that of lotus, Whom yogis realize through meditation, Who wards off all evils and Who is Lord of Lords, I bow that Lord Vishnu.)

4) Durga Dhyan

Om Sinhasthâ Shshi Shekhrâ Mrkt Prkhyaih Chaturbhibujaih
Shnkh Chkr Dhnuh Shransh Ch Ddhti Netras Tribhih Shobhita
Âmukttang Gdhar Knkn Rnt Kanchî Rnn Nûpra

(She, Who is riding a lion, with Her head bedecked with the crown of the Moon. Whose body radiates with the radiance of like that of Mrkt (a mythological gem). In Her four arms She is holding a conch (Shenkh); a disc (Ckr); a bow (Dhnush) and arrow (Vân). She has three eyes and whose various organs are decorated with armlets, necklace, a tinkling waist belt of gold, and bangles and dazzling earrings.That Goddess Durga may remove all our distress.)

5) Gayatri Dhyan

Om Balâm Viddam Tu Gayatrîm Lohitam Chturananm
Rktamberdvyopetam Akshsutrkram Ttham
Kmndludhrâm Devîm Hnsvahn Smsthithan

(Gayatri is a maiden girl full of knowledge. She has blood hued four faces. Her garments in front and back are also blood coloured. She is holding Rudrakshi mala in one hand and also Kamandla (a sort of bucket) in other hand. She is seated on a swan. She is an incarnation of Saraswati. She lives in Brhm Lok (Svarga) Lord Brahma is Her husband. She comes down from Surya Mandal with the recitation of gayatri mantra.)

A19) Aavahan (Welcoming Deities) (आवाहन)

It is a part of the ritual to welcome deities to be present during the performance of a karma to receive oblations. Two pieces of darbha or a flower are held in right hand and avahan recitation then starts as follows.

1) Âvahi Bhagwn (आवाहि भगवन) (name of deity* alongwith his/her eulogies. See A 52).
2) Bhktanugrh Kark, Asmât Dyanurdhen Snnidhanum Kuru Prbhu (repeat 3 times (भकतानु-ग्रह कारक असमात दयानु-रोधेन सन्निधानम कुरू प्रभू). (Oh God, you are the one who blesses devotees with anugraha "divine grace". Please be merciful and remain present here). Thus for inviting Shiva along with Parvati the recitation would be as follows:

Avahi Bhagwan Shivay, Bhavay Devay, Shrvay Devay, Rudray Devay….. (these are eulogies of Shiva) Parvati Sahitay (if He is invoked along with His Spouce), Bhaktanugrh Kark Asmat Dyanurudhen Sanidhanum Kuru Prbhu.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

*) Naming of deities is as follows:

1) Lord Ganesh - Maha Gnpatye (महा गणपत्ये)
2) Lord Vishnu - Pundrikaksh (पुण्डरीकाक्ष)
3) Lord Shiv - Parvatinath (पार्वतीनाथ)
4) Durga - Durgayai (दुर्गाये)
5) Gayatri - Gaytriyayai (गायत्रीयाये)
6) Shiv and Parvati - Shivay Parvati - Sahitay (शिवाय पार्वती सहिताये)
7) Vishnu and Lakshmi - Vishnu Lakshmi Sahitay (विष्णु लक्ष्मी सहिताये)

A20) Archam (Seeking permission to worship) (अर्चाम)

This is an act of seeking permission of deity to worship Him or Her. Holding two pieces of darbha along with rice (arghya) by anamika and madyame fingers and pressing with thumb, the permission of deity is sought by reciting His/Her Bhijmntra (see A53) followed by the words:

Archam Ahm Krishhye Om Kurushve

अर्चाम अहं करिष्ये ॐ कुरूष्वे

(I am seeking permission to worship, which is granted ).

A21) Pran Pratishtha (Bringing idols to life during Puja) (प्राण प्रविशठा)

This is a symbolic act by which idols of worship are made live to receive oblations.

A small quantity of water is placed in panchpatra (or metal cup) which has vishthur or 2 pices of darbha or a flower in it for sprinkling water on idols. The ritual has three parts:

a) Prayer to Lord to listen to your request.
b) Prayer to gods for brining idols to life to receive oblations.
c) Naming the particular idol, that is sough to be brought to life for receiving oblations or worship.

a) Three mantras as given below are recited and at the end of each recitation a few flower petals are put in the pranipâtr (cup).

Smvh Srjami Hrdym Smsrshht Mnoastu Vh Smh Srshtastnvh Sntu Vh Sm Srshhth
Prano Astu Vh, Smyavh Priyh Tnvh Smpriya Hrdyani Vh
Âtmâ Vo Astu Sm Priya Sm Priyh Tnvomm.

संवः सृजामि हृदयं संसृष्ट मनोअस्तु वः । सः सृष्टस्तन्वः सन्तु वः सं सृष्टः ।
प्रणो अस्तु वः संयावः प्रियाः तन्वः । सं प्रियाः हृदयानिवः ।

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

(I place you in the garland of my heart for continued union with my mind and prana. You are the Âtmâ residing in my body please continue to stay with me).

b) After above prayers to Lord, the idols are brought to life by sprinkling water over them with the help of Vishthur (or darbha or flower) by the recitation of following words:

Ashivnoh Prânstau Te Pranm Dttan Ten Jîv.
Mitravarûnyoh Prânstau Te Pran Dttan Ten Jiv
Brhspteh Prânstau Te Pran Dttan Ten Jiv

अशिवनो प्राणस्तौ ते प्राण ते प्राण दतां तेन जीव ।
मित्रावरूणयौ प्राणस्तै ते प्राण दतां तेन जीव ।
ब्रहस्पतेः प्राणस्तौ ते प्राण दतां तेन जीव ।।

(This is request to Vedic deities Ashvini, Mitra-Varuna and Brhaspati to bring idols to life).

c) At the end of above two acts, one concludes with the following recitation: _(a )_ Jivdhanm Pariklpyami Nmh जीवदान परिकल्पयामि नमः (Please Bring to life so & so deity).

(a) State name of deity who is being propitiated e.g. for Lord Shiv and Parvati substitute words Bhagwtah Shivay Parvtay Sahitay. (भगवत शिवाय पारवी सहिताय).

For naming Lord Ganesh substitute words Mha Ganpatye (महा गणपतये) etc. (see A19 for naming of deities).

A22) Apo Prashana (Purification of water) (आपो प्रशाना)

This is an act by which water is symbolically purified for further use of Âchman, washing of deities feet (Padyo) and his hands face etc. (Arghyam).

Water held in Pranipatr (pot) is poured into the right hand and purified by recitation of following mantra three times and then put back into pranipatr for further use:

Sham No Devirabhishtaya Âpo Bhavanti Pityay Shanyorabhi Srvantu Nah

शं नो देवीर्भिष्टय आपो भवन्तु पीतये शंयोरभि स्रवन्तु नः ।

(Oh water god (Varun) you wash our sins and you have made us happy. Heal our body from sickness and drive away all sickness from us. May we use the sanctified water for drinking and sacrificial purposes. Shower upon us your grace through these waters).

A23) Padyo (Washing deity feet) (पाद्यो)

Washing of deity's feet is one of the symbolic acts of puja. Water already purified by Âpo Prashana (A22) mixed with Panchang, five ingredients (see Chapter 15 consumables) is sprinkled over deity by Vishthur along with recitation of following mantra:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation

ॐ पादयो पाद्यं समर्पयामि ।

(I am using this sacred water from Ganges and other sacred rivers for washing your feet. Please accept it)

A24) Arghym (Washing deity hands and face) (अर्घयं)

Water held in Pranipatr, already purified by Âpo Prashana (A22) mixed with Ashtang (see under consumable materials Chapter 17) is poured over deity or deities along with recitation of following mantra:

Gnd Pushpakshtlair Yuktm Gryni Sampaditm Mya
Grhnntv Argym Prasanashch Bhvntu Me Srvda
(a) Argyam Samarpiyamey Nmh

गन्धपुष्पाक्षतैर्युक्तमर्घ्यं सम्पादितं मया ।
गृह्नन्त्वर्घ्यं प्रसन्नाश्चच भवन्तु में सर्वदा ।
(a) अर्घयं समर्पयामि नमः

(Oh Gods so and so please accept offerings of Gndh (tika) flowers, aksht (unbroken rice) along with other ingredients for washing you face and hands, please be happy with me/us always.).

(a) Recite name of chosen deity or say 'Srv Deva' (सर्वदेवा) for more than one deity.

A25) Dev Aachman (Purification of deity) (देव आचमन)

This is an act of pouring pure water over deity to purify it of any sticking materials used in oblations. This type of achman is performed almost after every oblations. Sometimes some scents (and or camphor) is added to water as an aroma.

Mantras used in the act may be simply naming the deity aong with some elogies e.g. Bhgvth Shivay Bhavay Devay, Shrvay Devay, Rudray Devay .... so on and end up with the words Achmaniym Nmh (आचमनीयं नमः) or else recitation of following words:

Krpuren Sughndhn Vasitm Svad Shîtlm Toym Âchmanyrthm Grhnuntu Prmeshvrh.

कर्पूरेण सुघन्धेन वासितं स्वाद शीतलम तोयमाचमनीयार्थं गृहनन्तु परमेश्रवरः ।

(Oh Prmeshvr please accept this achman "purification with cold, tasty water scented with camphor and other scents).

A26) Dev Snan / Abhesheikh (Bathing of deity) (देव स्नान / अभिशेक)

Bathing of deity with water and other ingredients. Abesheikh (bath) of male deities is carried by Panchdashang (पचंदश स्नान) (see Chapter 15) along with recitation of the name of deity followed by some eulogies and wrapped up with the words Jalam Sampriyami Nmh. (जलं समर्पयामि नमः) e.g. for Lord Shiv's abesheik start with 'Mhadevay' followed by some hymns from Rudra mantra such as (see Chapter 25):

Asnkhyata Shstrani Ye Rudra Âdi Bhumyam Teshham Shstr Yojnev Dhnvani Tnmsi

असंख्याता सहस्त्राणि ये रूद्रा आदि भूम्याम । तेषा सहस्त्र योजनेव धनवानि तन्मसि ।

Panchdash Snanm Smrpyami Nmh
(पचंदश स्नान सर्मपयामि नमः)

(I am offering bath with fifteen ingredients 'Padeties' See Translation from Rudr Mantra in Chapter 25).

(Number of these mantras can be increased if one wants to do so and still further one may add a few eulogies of Lord Shiv see Anga A52.)

For bath of female deities the abeishekh is carried with eight ingredients (Padeties) called Ashtang (see Chapter 15) with following recitation:-

Amây Kâmây Châvngne Tankdharney Taray, Pavtiya, Ykshney Shri Mha Ragnya Bhagvatey Sharika Bhagvatey, Jwala Bhagvtey, Vrida Bhagvatey (for more eulogies see Anga A52) and finally close with the words:

Ashto Snanm Smrpyami Nmh (अष्टो स्नानम सर्मपयामि नमः) (I offer with eight ingredient) (for translation above recitation see Anga A52).

A27) *Mantr Gudk (Purification of deity with mantras) (मन्त्र गुडक)

Water is held in a cup and mantras are recited while it is poured seven times over deity after formal bath is over along with recitation of mantra. The mantra may be simple Om Namo Shivay (for Shiv).

Om Namo Ganeshaya (for Ganes) Om Namo Vasdevaye (for Vishnu) Om Namo Durgey (for Durga) at the end wards Mntr Gudk Pariklpyami Nmh मन्त्र गुडक परिकल्पयामि नमः is recited:

*) Mantr Gudk is Kashmiri Tradition for Mantr Snan (A12).

A28) Âlat* (Welcome home or throne) (आलत)

This is an act of welcoming deity or a new guest (such as new bride, new born children) to home. In pûja after a deity is given bath, he is welcomed to his throne by performing âlat. A small quantity of water is held in the palm of left hand along with few grains of rice. It is then rotated in clockwise direction three times over the head of deity where deity has received bath . Rice is then picked up by the tarjani finger and angusth of right hand and thrown away over the left shoulder of performer. Following recitation is made:

Grhnntu Bhgvt Bhkta Bhutah Prasâd Brhmnh Pnch Bhutash
Ch Ye Bhutastesham Anuchrashchye, Te Trpyntu Voushht

गृहणन्तु भगवत-भक्ता भूताः प्रसाद ब्रहमनः पन्चभूताश
च ये भूता स्तेषाम अनुचराशचये ते तृप्यन्तु वौषट ।

(Oh, God, please accept the offerings of your devout and be satisfied with it).

*) This ritual is prevelent among Kashmiri Hindus only. Outside Kashmir welcome ritual is done by Avahana alone.

A29) Pad Sparsh (Touching feet) (पाद सपर्श)

Pad Sparch is a formal way of offering respects to a deity or an elder or a guest. In pûja, deity's feet or seat is touched by right hand while bowing down and then touching the hand to performers forehead. The words "Charnam Sparshyami Nama" (चर्नाम सपर्शयामि नमः) are recited along with respectful adoration of god.

(I bow to Lord by touching His/Her feet).

A30) Âsan Prathistha (Placing deity at designated place after bath) (आसन प्रविशठा)

After bathing and Mantar Godake, the deity is to be placed on His/Her usual seat. This is an act for decorating deity's seat with flower etc and placing the deity on that seat. Following sholokas are recited:

a) Put flowers on the proposed seat of deity uttering the words:

Âsnaye Nmh, Pdm Âsnayeh Nmh Jnan Asnaye Nmh

आसनाये नमः पदम आसनाये नमः ज्ञान आसनाये नमः ।

(I bow to the seat of deity which is like lotus and full of wisdom).

b) Place the deity on the seat, while doing so, recite Gunas (attributes) of that particular deity (see A52) and end up saying Manglam Karu (मन्गलं कुरू).

(Please be happy with my offerings).

A31) Vastra Grhan (Putting an clothes of deity) (वस्तृ गृहन)

The deities are given clothes after they are seated on their seats. Puting flowers on deity along with recitation of attributes of that deity (see A52) and closing with the words perform this act:

Vstrm Samarpyamii Nmh

वस्त्रं स्मरप्यामि नमः ।

(Please accept clothes with my full reverence).

A32) Yagnopavit Grhn (Offering Yagnyopavit to deity for wearing) (यज्ञोपवीत गृहन)

Yagnopavit of the deity (except Durga) is placed by offering flowers. The name of the deity along with His attributes (see A52) is recited and flowers placed. After this following words are recited:

Yagnopvitm Samarpyamii Nmh

यज्ञोपवीतम स्मरप्यामि नमः ।

(Please accept Yagnopavit).

A33) Dev Anulepna (Smearing deities with tilak) (देव अनुलेपना)

Recite following words:

Srveshvr Jgt Vindya Divyâsnm Susmsthita
Gndh Grhan Devesh Dîvgndop Shobîtm

सर्वेश्रवर जगत वन्ध दिव्यासन सुसंस्थित ।
गन्ध गृहाण देवेश दिव्यगन्धोप शोभितम ।।

Name diety with few eulogies and then apply tilk with the closing words

Smalbnm Gndo Nmh

समालभने गन्धो नमः ।

(Almighty god, seated on His/Her divine seat, please accept this Gndh (tika) for your beautification with my full reverence).

A34) Pushpanjali Arpnm (Offering flowers as an act of submission) (पुष्पांजलि अर्पन)

At the end of pûja loose flowers held in a cupped hand are offered to deity as an act of final submission before the deity. While offering flowers deity's gunas as in A52 are recited and while laying the flowers before deity the words Pushpanjalim Smarpyami Nmh (पुष्पांजलि समर्पयामि नमः) (I am submitting myself with the offering of Palmful of flowers) is recited. After this the performer prostrates before the deity. All others who participate in the pûja, also offer pushpanjali and bow down or prostrate in front of deity.

A35) Dûp/Dîp Arpan (Offering of dûp and dîp) (दूप दीप अर्पन)

Dûp or Agarbati and dîp (ratandeep with flame) and or burning camphor is moved in front of deity with the recitation of attributes of particular deity followed by the words "Dûpo Dîpo Parîkalpyami Namah" (दपो दीपो परिकलप्यामि नमः).

A36) Chamer/Ârti (Recitation of bajans etc) (चामर/आरती)

This is an act of reciting some prayers in front of the deities. Chammer (see Chapter 15) is gracefully moved right and left in front of deity as if he is being fanned with a hand fan. Other participants move Dûp and Dîp / Camphor and yet others play on other musical instruments like conch, striking wooden harmer against metallic disc which is hanging from a rope with a regular beat along with other types of bells. All people present in the assembly stand up and join in the recitation of prayers. Prayer for recitation of various deities are given in the Chapter 22-26.

A37) Tilak, Arghya, Pushp Samarpan (Anounting deity with Tilak and offering Argya with flowers) (तिलक/अर्धया/पुष्पं समरपन)

Tilak, argya (rice) and pushp (flowers) are offered to deities. Recite attributes of concerned deity and apply tilak, argya and flowers. End up by reciting words:

Gndo , Arghyo , Pushpm Samarpyami Nmh

गन्धो अर्गो पुष्पं समर्पयामि नमः

A38) Chaterum / Abhushanam (Putting umbrella over the head of deiti) (छत्रम/आभुष्णम)

Usually an umbrella made of Gold / Silver or just flowers is placed over the head of a deity. In pûja some flowers are placed over head of deity as a symbolic action of installing Chater (umbrella).

Some people have the custom of decorating deity with gold/silver/flower objects as ornaments.

This action is called Âbusham.

After reciting Gunas (adoration) of a particular deity as in A52. The flowers are put on deity's head with the following recitation:

Chtrum, Samarpyami Nmh

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

वसत्रं समर्पयामि नमः

(I am offering Chater with full reverence). If ornaments are offered:

Abhushnni Samarpyami Nmh

आभुष्णं समर्पयामि नमः

(I am offer ornaments with full reverence.)

A39) Âdharshnam (Showing mirror to deities) (आधर्शनम)

This is an act of showing mirror to deity so that he/she may have look at his/her face/body to see how nicely he/she has been decorated by the devotee and thus fulfill the devotees heart with love and satisfaction of doing this pûja. A mirror with face turned towards deity is shown to deity. In absence of mirror right hand is symbolically used as mirror.

After reciting deities Gunas (see A52) recitation of words is carried out.

Âdarsham Pariklpyami Nmh

आधर्शनम परिकलप्यामे नमः

A40) Madhurparka Arpanm (Offering Madhurparka as a drink)(मर्धूपर्का अर्पण)

It is an act of offering honey, milk, sugar mixture in water as a sweet drink to deity after pûja has been done. The accompanying mantra recitationt is as follows:

Khira Jy Madhu Sumishrm Shubrddhn Smnvîtm
Shhdrsaih Smayuktm Grehnannm Nivedeya (Name of deity) Mdhurpkm Pariklpyami Nmh.

क्षीरा-जय-मधु संमिश्रम शुभ्रदध्न समन्वितम!
षडरसैः समायक्त गृहाणा निवेदये (Name deity) मधुर्पकं परिकल्यामि नमः

(Oh (deitys name) please accept sweet Madhurpkm drink made of six ingredients like milk, honey, sugar etc.)

A41) Naivedyam/Prashada (Offering of eatable to deity) (नैवेध्यं/प्रशादा)

Fruits (dry and or fresh) with or without sugar (crystals) are offered to deity with the recitation of their gunas (as in A52) followed by the words Navedyam Samrpriyame Nmh. (नैवेध्यम सर्मपयामे नमः). A part of the this offering is offered to participants as a Naveed or Prashad for their consumption as an offering from the deity in recognition of pûja that has been offered to Him.

A42) Tambulam (Mouth sweatning) (ताम्बूल)

(Mouth sweatning) (Offering Pân (पान), Elechi (इलायची), Lovng (लोंग), Supari (सूपारी) etc to deity).

Deities are offered tambul consisting of pan, elachi, supari lovng etc to sweaten their mouth after fruit etc. has been offered.

After eulogising the particular deity (as in A52) the words are recited:

Mukh Suvarthey Tambulm Smrpyami Nmh

मुख सुवार्थे ताम्बूल समर्पयामि

(Oh Lord please accept tambul for sweetning your mouth).

A43) Parikrama (Going round the deity) (परिकृमा)

After pûja is over, one goes in a clock wise direction round the deity called Parikrama. However, in situations where it is not possible to go round the deity, a mental movement is done. The following shaloka is recited along with offering of flowers:

Yani Kani Ch Poapani Jnmantr Kritani Ch
Tani Srvani Nshyntu Pradikshnm Pde Pde

यानि कानि च पापानि जन्मान्तर कृतानिच
तानि सर्वाणि नशयन्तु प्रदक्षिणं पदे पदे ।।

(Oh, Lord whatever sins I have committed during my life time so far, please destroy all of them while I am making a circumambulation).

A44) Mantr Puspanjali (Offering flowers mentally) (मन्त्र पुष्पान्जलि)

Flowers are offered to deity mentally by reciting following Sholoka:

Shrdyaskîtya Bhktya Hard premna Smrpitah Mntr Pushhpanjlichaym Krpya Prighhitam

श्रदया स्क्तया भकत्या हार्दप्रेम्णा समर्पित । मन्त्र पुष्पान्जलिचायं कृपयां प्रतिघृहिताम ।।

(I lord I am offering Mantra pushpanjali with all my love for you, please accept it).

A45) Namaskara (Bowing to deity as homage) (नमस्कारा)

Homage is paid to deity before standing folded hands, bowing or prostrating. The following Sholoka is recited:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Nmastu Anantay Shstrmurtye Shstrpadakshi Shirorbahvey

सहस्त्रनाम्ने पुरूषाय शाशवते सहस्त्र कोटि युग धारिणे नमः ।।

(I offer my salutations to Purusha (God) Who is beyond limits,Who has thousand forms, with thousand feet, heads and arms, Who has been through thousands of yugas (time cycles).)

Recite a brief adoration of deity (from A52) and conclude by reciting.

Prarthana Pûrvkm Nmskaram Smrpyami Nmh

प्रार्थनापूर्वकम नमस्कारान समर्पयामि ।

(At the end of puja I am offering Namaskar).

A46) Âposhana (Achman at the end of puja) (आपोशना)

This is a sort of Âchman given to deities at the end of pûja. Water in a small pot is consecrated by the Âpo Prashana (A22) and then the same is sprinkled over deity by reciting His attributes (see A52) followed by the words.

Âposhnm Nmh Âchmneym Nmh

आपोशनं नमः आचमनीयं नमः

A47) Dakshina (Paying the priest) (दक्षिणा)

Priest is to be paid for performing the pûja. In case the pûja has been conducted by Yajman (head of the family) himself, even then dakshina in the form of a token flower is to paid and kept at the feet of deity. A small quantity of water is consecrated by Âpo Prashana (A22) and then this water along with flowers coins/and til is placed at the feet of deity. Attributes of deity (A52) are recited followed by the words:

Dkshinyai Til Hirny Rjt Nishkrn Ddani

दक्षिणयै तिल-हिरणय रजत निष्कर्ण ददानि

(I am offering Dakshina along with Til (Sesamum) and gold without any attachment to material things for karma).

More flowers/coins/till are placed with the words:

Eta Devta Sdkshnânnam Priyntâm Pritah Sntu.

एता देवता सदक्षिणा-नेन प्रीयन्तां प्रीताः सन्तु

(All the deities who are present may received dakshina with my/our ulmost obeisance.)

A48) Charnamritm (Sipping water from deity's feet) (चर्नामृत्म)

A small quantity of consecreted water is offered to all those who participated in the pûja, after it has been conseacrated by the following mantra:

Akâl Mrtyu Hrnm Srvvyadhi Vinashnm
Vishnu Padodkm Pitva Punrjnm Na Viddte

अकाल मृत्यु हरणं सर्वव्याधि विनाशनम ।
विष्णु पादोदकम पीतवा पुनर्जन्म न विघते ।।

(Please save me from untimely death, remove all obstacles, after drinking water purified by the feet of Lord Vishnu there is no rebirth).

A49) Kshma-Yachna/Prâyashcitta (Atonement) (क्षमा याचना)

This is an act of atonement for the errors committed in the ritual. A few sholokas are recited while bowing down head and keeping both hands in namaskar mode. A few sholokas are as follows:

1) Mntr Hînm Kriya Hinm Bhkti Hinm Jnardn
Yt Pujitm Mya Dev Peripurn Tddstu Mai

मन्त्र हीनं क्रिया हीनं भक्ति हीनं जनार्दन ।
यत पूजितम मया देव । परिपूर्ण तदस्तु मै ।।

(May my prayer be efficacious even when I may have done so with inadequate knowledge of mantras, kriya (karma) or Bhkti (devotions).

2) Avahnm Na Janami Na Janemi Visrjnm
Pûja Cheva Na Janemi Kshmsv Prmeshvra

आवाहनं न जानामि न जानामि विसर्जनम ।
पूजा चैव न जानामि क्षमस्व परमेशवर ।।

(I do not know proper way of welcoming or bidding goodby to deity, or offering pûja, as per established tradition, please excuse me for such lapses).

A50) Upasthâna/Visarjana (Return of deities to their abodes) (उपस्थाना / विसर्जना)

Whenever any deity is invoked by Avahana after the worship in over, the deity is requested to get up and return to its original abode. The mantra/sholoka itself contain request for return, praise of deity, request for boons, and request to make the karma perfect, inspite of errors etc.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

This is followed by obeisance.

Name deity followed by His/Her gunas (attribute) and thenrecite:

Pujnm Achhidrm Sampurnm Astu Evm Astu.

ॐ पूजनं अछिदं सम्पूर्णम अस्तु एवम अस्तु

(May my pûja be over without any imperperfections).

A51) Raksha (Protection) (रक्षा)

Protection is sought from deities in various ways:

a) Raksha Sutra (Mavli/Narivan) is tied on right wrist (males) left wrist (females) after the pûja is over.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

FREQUENTLY USED ANGAS IN HOMAS

B1) Kalash/Kumb Sthapn (Establishing Kalash-Invoking Varun God in a waterpot) (कलश/कूम्ब/वरूण पूजा)

It is a very important anga in all homas and pujas. It is also called Kumb because water is held in a pot (Kumb). Varuna- god of water bodies is invoked in this puja and hence it is also called Varuna Puja also. Kalash is considered to be witness (Heruk = secret agent) during performance of a karma.

As per Kashmiri tradition before Kalash puja recitations of Vedic hymns (Svstivachan) in praise of Vedas and other deities Ganesh, Vishnu, Rudra, Gayatri is carried out. Ganesh is usually invoked in the lower part of *Kalash At times Kumar, Lakshmi, Vishvakarma are also invoked at specified places in the Kalash diagram on which Kalash is placed (see diagram).

A note worthy tradition among Kashmiri Pandits is the importance they attach to Kshterpals (also called Bhutpnch). Thye are always invoked in Kalash Puja, be it on an auspicious occasions like marriage or Shivratri Puja or an inauspicious occasions like antyeshti (death ritual).

* In other traditions Lord Ganesh is invoked separately at the beginning of ritual.

Preparatory (see Diagram in B9)

i) Draw Kalash diagram in the NE corner (called Ishan Kon). There are two types of diagram both having an eight petalled lotus in the central part called Ashtdal on which Kalash pot is place. The two variants of Kalash diagrams are:

   a) Inder Kalash (see diagram next page).
   b) Brhm Kalash (see diagram next page).
   Inder Kalash is used on auspicious occasions while Brhm Kalash is used on inauspicious occasions.

ii) An oil lamp (deep) and 2 small bowls (representing Kshterpals) are placed in the SE corner (called Agney Kon) see Figure.

iii) Performer sits facing East, while priest (if available) sits by his side facing North.

iv) Put water and walnuts in the Kalash pot and place it on Ashtdal with due reverence and draw Swastika diagram on the pot with sindur.

v) Put a bowl or a plate filled with rice over Kalash pot.

vi) Cover Kalash with printed cloth (About one sq. meter).

a) *Svastivachan

There are about 60 hymns which are recited on auspicious occasions like Yagnopavit or vivah. The most common are about 15 as given below:

1 ) Omkaro Ysy Mûlm Krm Pd Jthr Chhnd Vistirn Shakha Rik Ptrm,
Sâm Pushpm Yjur Uchit Plh Syat Atherva Prtishtha || 1 ||

(May we mediate on that eternal god, our creator, independent reality who manifests through Sun propitiated by the highest gods, one who bestows wisdom, bliss and even lasting life; may our intellect be illumined by that light of god).

c) *Kshetrpal Puja

Offer argya without flowers to 20 Kshterpal see anga B8 .

Kalash Puja

I) *Purva Bhaga

a) Avahan (Welcome) (see A19).
Address Kalash Deva as Kalash Devtbhya 'Herukadibhyh Vatukadibhyh' (see Pradhan Bhaga for more details). Sprinkle water from Pranitpatr kept by the side of Kalash to Kalash and Kshetrpal and proceed as described in the anga.

b) Raksha Prayer (Invocation of deities residing in various quarters).

i) Throw away some arga to the south of Kalash and recite following mantras :

Ym Deva Dkshinat Sda Ymnetra Rkshohnsta Nh Pantu Te No'Vntu Tebyh Svaha

यं देवाः दक्षिणात सदो यमनेत्रा रक्षाहणस्ते नः पान्तु ते नोऽवन्तु तेभ्यः स्वाहा : ।।

(All deities of southern quarters who are watched by Yama, please save me and accept my salutations. May you be happy).

ii) Throw away some arga to the west of Kalash with the following mantras:

Ya Devah Pschchat Sdo Marut Netra Rkshohnste Nh Pantu Te No'Vntu Tebyh Svaha

यं देवाः पश्चात सदो मरूत नेत्रा रक्षाहणस्ते नः पान्तु ते नोऽवन्तु तेभ्यः स्वाहा : ।।

(All the deities of the western quarters who are under the watchful eyes of Marut please protect me and accept my salutation. May you be happy.)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation

iii) Repeat above action towards north of Kalash and recite:

Ye Devah Uttrat Sda Mitr-Varuna Netra Rkshohnste Nh Pantu Te No'Vntu Tebyh Svaha

यं देवाः उत्तरात सदो मित्रा वरूण नेत्रा रक्षाहणस्ते नः पान्तु ते नोऽवन्तु तेभ्यः स्वाहा : ।।

(All the deities of the northern quarters who are under the watchful eyes of Mitra - Varuna please protect me and accept my salutations. May you be happy.)

iv) Repeat by throwing arga in east direction and recite:

Ye Devah Purh Sdogni Netra Rkshohnste Nh Pantu Te No'Vntu Tebyh Svaha

यं देवाः पुरः सदोग्नि नेत्रा रक्षोहणस्ते नः पान्तु ते नोऽवन्तु तेभ्यः स्वाहा : ।।

(All the deities of the eastern quarters, who are under the watchful eyes of Agni, please protect me and accept my salutations. May you be happy.)

v) Repeat above action by throwing arga in the upper direction above Kalash and recite:

Ye Devah Uprishhdh Somnetra Av Svdnto Rkshohnste Nh Pantu Te No'Vntu Tebyh Svaha

यं देवाः उपरिषदः सोमनेत्रा अव स्वदन्तो रक्षोहरणस्ते नः पान्तु ते नोऽवन्तु तेभ्यः स्वाहा : ।।

(All the deities who reside in the upper regions under the watchful eyes of Soma, please protect me and accept my salutations. May you be happy.)

c) Invocation of Ganesh

Apply Tilak in the lower part of Kalash pot for Ganesha and recite.

Nishhasid Gnpte Gneshu Tvam Avahur Vipritmm Kvinam-N
Rte Tvt-Kriyte Kinchnare, Mham-Arkm Mgvn-Chitrm-Arch

II *Pradhan Bhaga

Puja of Kalash is performed by performing dup dip puja as per Shodoshopchara or Dashopchara or Panchopchara (see Chapter 15 and 16). Address Kalash devta with the recitation:

Kalashyag Devtbhyh Herukadibhyh Vtukadibhyh

कलशयाग देवताभ्यो हेरूकादिभ्यः वटुकादिभ्यः

(These are eulogies of Kalash (Vtka=Brhmchari-who is bachlor. Heruk=one who works as a secret agent.)

Tradition outside of Kashmir

1) Ganesh Puja is done by 5, 10 or 16 Upcharas.
2) A simple figure of eight petal lotus is drawn on which Kalash pitcher is placed.
3) Grains are placed in the pitcher in place of walnuts.
4) Vedas and waters from sacred rivers are invoked in the Kalash.
5) Dhyan recitations of various gods are made (see Chapter 22 Dhyan).
6) Under some traditions even Brahma is invoked in the Kalash along with other deities who number about 20.
7) Coconut and Mango tree leaves are used as cover for Kalash pot.

B2) Pradhan Kalash Sthapna (प्रधान कलश स्थापना)

Also known as Udaka Shanti (उदका शान्ति) or Kani-Shran ( in Kashmir). This is an act of installing additional pitcher (to the south of Kalash already described in B1) along with Nine grehas in which Varun Dev is involved. The water thus consecrated is used for purification of the person by a bath who is to be married or initiated through Upanayana.

Preparatory

Along with pitcher for main Kalash (see B1) another pitcher filled with water is placed just south of main pitcher.

Puja

The puja for this anga is carried out along with the puja for installation of main Kalash (B1) and all the ingredients put in main Kalash are put in this pot as well (except walnuts).

Avahan

The invocation (avahan) of Varuna in this pot is carried by the following recitations:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Om Tattvâ Yâmi Brahmanâ Vandamânastadâshâste Yajamâno Havirbhih
Ahedamâno Varuneha Bodhyurusham Samâ Na Âyuh Pramosîh
Om Varunâya Namah Bhûrbhuvah Svah Varunamâ Avâhayâmi

ॐ तत्वा यामि ब्रह्मणा वन्दमानस्तदाशास्ते यजमानो हविर्भिः । अहेडमानो वरूणेह बोध्युरूशं समा न आयुः प्रमोषीः
ॐ वरूणाय नमः भूर्भुवः स्वः वरूणमाह अंवाहयामि ।

The Priest recite "I pay my obeisance to Lord Varun and request him along with my yajman (performer) to stay in this pot. May You grant him life of hundred years, wisdom, power, and intelligence with the recitation of Gayatri mantra Om Bhu Bhuva Sva..... I invite you to take seat."

After Avahan the worship of Main Kalash and Pradhan Kalash is carried out together. The invocation and worship of Varuna should be done in the Pradhan Kalash pitchers first placed in the southern side and then in the Main Kalash in the northern side .

B3) Saptghrt Matrika Puja (Worship of Seven mothers) (सप्तधृतमातृका पूजा)

This is an important anga of many Samskaras. Husband and wife perform it together. In this anga seven matrikas (seven Mothers) are worshiped. These seven mothers are 1) Shriya (श्रिया), 2) Lakshimi (लक्ष्मी), 3) Dhriti (धृति), 4) Meda (मेघा), 5) Pushti (पुष्टि), 6) Shradha (श्रद्धा), 7) Sarasvati (सरस्वती).These are the seven deities who were created by Durga during Her fight with the demon Mahishasur (see Chapter 5).

000
0000 00000 000000 0000000

Preparatory

Establishing Sptgit Matrikas

1) In the South East Corner (called Agni Kon) place white cloth sheet, or white paper sheet. Draw a symbol of Svastika on this cloth or paper sheet. In the middle of this Svastika write Shri (श्री). Just below it draw one circle with Sindur.
In the next line below this, draw two circles in the 2nd line from south to north (right to left) and similarly continue increasing one circle in each line till in the seventh line there are seven circles. Place Walnuts in the seventh line on each of seven circles and put caps of rice balls over them along with cooked vapul hâk ( a Kashmiri vegetable).* (see Figure).
* (As per non Kashmiri tradition gur –' raw sugar ' is used in place of vapul hak )

Establishing Vasodhara (वसोधारा)
Vasus are a group of eight divinities. These are:

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

i) Ap (or Ah), ii) Dhruv, iii) Som, iv) Ghr (or Ghv), v) Anil, vi) Anl, vii) Prtyusk and viii) Prbhas.

i) आप (अह), ii) ध्रुव, iii) सोम, iv) घर or (घव), v) (अनिल), vi) अनल, vii) प्रत्युक्ष , viii) प्रभास

These Vasus are worn in the form of a ring (Pavitri) or drawn on a wall in the form of seven streams of ghee (Vasudhara).

2) In alignment with the seven circles with walnuts draw seven streams with liquid ghee on the wall facing performer at a medium height of about two feet from groud level. For this purpose a small part of the wall is plastered with cowdung (or in its place a sheet of thick paper is pasted on wall, so as to save paint of wall).
The performer along with his wife and ward for whom the Samskar is to be performed sit facing east (wife on right side and ward to the right of mother).While drawing the ghee streams the following recitation of mntra is made:

Om Vsoh Pvitrmasi Shtdharm Vsoh Pvitrimasi Shstrdharm
Dvs Tva Svita Punatu Vsoh Pvitren Shtdharen Supva Kamdhukshh

ॐ वसो पवित्रमसि शतधारं वसोः पवित्रमसि सहस्र धारम ।
देवस्त्वा सविता पुनातु वसोः पवित्रेण शतधारेण सुप्वा कामधुक्षः ।।

(O vasus you are the luminous ones. Please make us pure. May you remove our hundred impurities, which may further remove thousand impurities. May we all be happy.)

Puja

a) Avahan and sthapna

i) Om Bhur Bhuvh Svh Shryai Nmh – Shriyam Avahami Sthapyami

ॐ भूर्भवः स्वः श्रियै नमः श्रियमावाहयामि स्थापयामि ।

ii) Om Bhur Bhvh Srh Lkshmyai nmh - Lkshmavahani Sthapyami

ॐ भूर्भवः स्वः लक्षम्यै नमः लक्ष्मीमावाहयामि ।

iii) Om Bhur Bhvh Srh Drtyai Nmh – Drtim Avahyami Sthapyami

ॐ भूर्भवः स्वः धृत्यै नमः धृत्यं आवाहयामि स्थापयामि ।

iv) Similarly for Medayai. (मेघायै)

v) Similarly for Pushtyai. (पुष्टयै)

vi) Similarly for Shradayai. (श्रद्धायै) vii) Similarly for Srasvtyai. (सरस्वत्यै)

Carry out rest of puja by Shoshopachara (शोडशोपचारा) or Dashopachara (दशोपचारा) or Panchopachara (पन्चोपचारा) (see Chapter 15 for details.)

Use the words Om Bhubhvh Svah Sptghrtmatrka Byo.

ॐ भूर्भवः स्वः सप्तघृतमातृकाभ्यो

For collective address of all the seven mothers use the words:

Om Bhubhvh Svah Sptghrtmatrka Byo

ॐ भूर्भवः स्वः सप्तघृतमातृकाभ्यो

Example
For Padyo anga recitation would be

Om Bhur Bhuvh Svh Sptghrtmatrhabyo Padyo Padym Smrpyami

ॐ भूर्भवः स्वः सप्तघृतमातृकाभ्यो पादयो पाद्यं समर्पयामि

b) Ayusha Mntra for long life
With flowers in cupped hands recite Ayushya Mntra (prayer for long life):

1) Om Âyusyam Varchasyam Râyasposhhamaudbhidam
Idam Hiranyam Varchasvajjaitrâyâvishatâdu Mâm

ॐ आयष्यं वर्चस्वं रायस्पोषमौदभिदं ।

Here devas help even old people to live more than hundred years, helping then gaining safety from all evils; here even pitras also live for hundred years free from the fare of narak (nether world) and evil spirit. May we also be granted same boon of living for hundred years.

B4) Shodashamatrika Pujan (Worshipping 16 goddess Mothers) (शोडश मातृका पूजन)

It is an important anga in various Sanskaras performed by husband and wife together, with wife on left side. Sixteen deities called Mothers (matrikas) are worshipped .These are: 1)Gauri (गौरी), 2) Padma (पदमा), 3) Shchi (शची), 4) Medha (मेघा), 5) Savitri (सावित्रि), 6) Vijaya (विजय, 7) Jaya (जया), 8) Devasena (देवसेना), 9) Svadha (स्वधा), 10) Svaha (स्वाहा), 11) Dhrti (धृति), 12) Pushti (पुष्टी), 13) Tushti (तुष्टी), 14) Âtm Kuldevta, (आत्मकलदेवता) (राज्ञी/शरिका/ज्वाला),( family deity Ragnya/Sharika/Jwala), 15) Lokmatrbhyo (लोकमातृभ्यो) (cosmic mothers addressed collectively as Lokmatribyo (लोकमातृभ्यो). Before worship of these 16 Mothers it is essential part of puja to worship Ganesha (see B1) along with these mothers.

Preparatory

1) Establish 16 *Matrikas

On a wooden board or white sheet of cloth or a paper placed in the South East Corner (Agni kon), make 16 boxes by drawing five vertical lines and five horizental lines (see Figure).

These 16 blocks are filled with rice (or rice dyed yellow with turmeric powder.)

2) Establish *Vasudhara (see part 2 of B3)

Worship

This is carried through shodoshopchara (16 steps of puja as given in Chapter 15).

B6) Navgrh-Mndl Pujn Also called Greha puja (नवग्रह मण्डल पुजन)

This is an act of worshiping nine planets (called Nvgrh). These are 1) Sun (Sûrya), 2) Moon (Chndra), 3) Mars (Mngal), 4) Mercury (Buddha), 5) Jupiter (Brahspati), 6) Venus (Shukra) 7) Saturn (Shani), 8) Rahu, 9) Ketu (see Chapter 11 also). In Hindu philosophy these grehas play a considerable role in the lives of individuals and hence they need to be propitiated on important occasion to receive their blessings and or remove evil effects which could arise due to their placement at the time of Samskara. The planets are brought down to the terrestrial plane, installed wherever necessary and then worshipped. As such it constitute an important part of ritual.

The places of these grahas are fixed and as such are placed at predetermined positions in the Navgreh Chart (see Figure).* These grehas have their own charriots drawn by different number of horses; they belong to various jatis (Vargas) and also have gotras like humans. They have also preference for their chosen colours.

(*While the positions of planets (Grehas) are same among all traditions, but symbols representing these grehyas vary. The symbols shown in this chart are those which are depicted in Kashmiri Scriputres.)

In some traditions the squares of grehas are decorated with coloured lintels of the colour which is favourite of that grehya.

Navgreh Puja

Along with nine planets (grehas) following deities are also invoked in this puja:

1) Âdhidevtas (आधिदेवता) – This is a group of nine deities namely Ishvr, Uma, Skund, Vishnu, Brhma, Indr, Ym, Kâl, Chitrgupt who are placed on the right hand side of Navgrahas respectively in the same order as shwon in the chart.
2) Prtydhi Devtas (प्रत्यधिदेव) – This is also a group of nine deities namely Agni, Ap, Prthvi, Vishnu, Inder, Indrani, Prjapati, Srp and Brahma who take seats on the left side of Navgrahas in the same order as given in the chart.
3) Panchlokpal (पन्चलोकपाल) – This is a group of five deities namely Ganesh, Durga, Vayu, Âkash, Ashvani who are invoked in the homes of Ketu and Brhspati.
4) Dashdikpal (दशदिकपाल) – These are ten deities of quarters (directions) namely 1) Inder, 2) Agni, 3) Ym, 4) Nirtritika, 5) Varun, 6) Vayu, 7) Kubera, 8) Isha (or Mahadeva), 9) Brhman, 10) Ann'tka. These are placed in ten directions outside the Navgreh Mndal as under : 1) East, 2) South East, 3) South, 4) South West, 5) West, 6) North West corner, 7) North, 8) North East, 9) between East and North East, 10) Between West and South West.

Placement

In the North East corner (called Ishan kon) to the south of Kalash pitcher, a place is selected where nine squares are made by lime or coloured powder (roli) or by rice powder by drawing four vertical and four horizontal lines (see Figure). In some places a table is used where coloured grains fill the squares. The selection of colour is done on the basis of the chosen preference of deity for a particular colour. However in Kashmiri tradition no coloured grains are used. This is served by using coloured flowers or just any flowers.

Puja

As per Shodshopachara (see Chapter 15).

a) Snklpa

As per anga A2, close with the words.

Adityâdi Navgrhnam Âdidevta Prtydhi Daivt, Lokpal, Dikpal
Sahitanam Avahn Pujnadi Karisheye Om Karishe

आदित्यादि नवग्रहाणाम अधिदेवता प्रत्यधिदैवत लोकपाला दिकपाल
सहितानाम आवाहनपूजनादि करिष्ये ओ करिशे

( I am undertaking worship of all lumanaries such as navgrehas along with adityas prtydevas, lokpals, dikpals etc.)

*If worship of Navagrahas only is conducted them mention of Navgrehnam only should be made. In some pujas, worship of Lokpal and Dikpal puja is carried out separately hence accordingly modify Snklpa and the worship that follows.

b) *Avahan

Along with Grehas, Âdhidevtas and Prtydhi Devtas.

(Welcome to Surya Dev who resides in the *Vishakha Nakshtra (*constellation of seven stars), along with Adhidevtas and Prtydhi Devtas seated in the middle of Navgreha Mandal who rides a charriot drawn by seven horses, whose Jati is Kalimge and gotra Kashyp. Whose colour is red and he is holding lotuses in two hands).

After avahan recitation, drop red flowers and raw rice grains at the designated place for Surya in the Nvgreh Mndl. Next drop white flowers and raw rice grains on the right-hand side of the Surya for Îshvara (marked as No 10 in the Chart) and on its left-hand side for Agni (marked as no 19 in the chart). When making the invocation keep the red and white flowers separately in both hands. The reason being that the propitiatory rites of chosen tutelary gods demand use of white flowers only.

2) Moon (Chandra)
With white flower and raw rice in your hands invoke Moon along with chosen goddess Uma and tutelary god Jl on the south-east quarter of the Sun (marked no 2 in the Mndl) :

Om Chaturdashyâm Krttikânvitâyâm Samudre Jâtamatrigotram

c) Pran Prathistha (प्राण प्रतिष्ठा)

Carry out pran prtishtha (see A21 Chapter 15) and end up with the recitation of words as given in Avahana of grehas above. However, if worship of Navgraha and others is done separately then modify the words accordingly e.g. If worship of Navgrehas only is being performed than , then the closing words would be Suryâdinvgrha Deva Pran Prathistha Smrpyami after recitation of Pran Prathistha Mantras as given in the A21. Similarly for Panchlokpals, and Dikpals.

For rest of the Upacharas follow instructions given in Chapter 15 with modification as shown in Snkalpa above.

B7) Nândi Mukha Shraddha (नन्दीमुखा श्राद) (Also known as Abhyudaya)

It is an act of invoking pitras (dead ancestors) on auspicious occasions to have their blessings. This anga proceeds or follows main Sanskara. Since it is an auspicious karma, it differs from the usual Shraddhas in the following ways.

1) Rice is used in place of sesamum for offering of oblations to pitrs
2) Mysticial call that accompanies usual Shraddha is Svadhâ but in this the mystical call is

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Svaha (as is done in homas).

3) Usually Shraddha is performed by males, but in this case Shraddha is performed by females.

4) Usual order of invocation of pitrs in usual Shraddha starts from father (Pitru) to grand father-great grand father and then from mother (Matru) to grand mother-great grand mother but in this Shraddha it is just the reverse. First to be invoked is Paternal Great Grand mother (Prapitâ Mahi) – Grand mother (Pita Mahi) – Mother (Matru) along with their respective husbands followed by similar ancesstors from mothers side great great grand mother (Vrd Pramata Mahi), great grand mother (Pramata Mata Mahi), grand mother (Mata Mahi) alond with their husbands. Only these six Pitrs are invoked for seeking blessings (see Anga A16 for naming of Pitras in Sanskrit).

5) Vishvedavas invoked during usual Shraddha are Pururava and Ardrava, but in this Shraddha Vishvedavas invoked are Satya and Vasu.

6) There are no libation of water or feeding of ghee in the sacrificial fire. Offering of rice balls (Pindas) and refreshing drinks are made to Pitrs.

7) Yajnopavit is worn in Savya manner (i.e. from left shoulder to right side) as against usual Shraddha where yagnopavit is worn in apsavena manner (i.e. from right shoulder to left side) performer.

8) If performer's parents are alive, then performance of Nandi Shraddha is forbidden. However, if mother is dead, but father alive, then in that case Shraddha of mother and grand mother can be performed. Similarly if mother is alive but father is dead, then in that case, Shraddha of maternal grand fathers great grandfather are performed.

Preparatory

Prepare eight small altars and place leaves of dhaka tree (or in its place leaves of some other fruit tree such as mango or lotus leaves) on these altars. These are seats of two Vishvedevas and Six pitras. Place Kusha grass on all these eight seats Performer should sit facing east.

Puja

1) Snklpa (see A2) – end with words :

Nandi Shraddhm Ahm Karishhye (नन्दी श्रादमहं करिषये)

Offer Arghya (mixture of rice and flowers).

2) Washing feet of Vishvdevas and ancestors-

i) Vasudevas

Spirinkle water on 2 leaves housing Visvedevas and recite following words:-

Om Nândimukhâh Satyavasusamjnakâh Vishvedevâh
Om bhûrbhuvah Svah Idam Vah Pâdyam Pâdâvanejanam Pâdapraksâlanam Vrddhih

ॐ नान्दीमुखाः सत्यवसुसंज्ञकाः विश्वेदेवाः
ॐ भूर्भुवः स्वः इदं वः पाद्यं पादावनेजनं पादप्रक्षालनं वृद्धिः ।

Hey maternal grandparents (of three generation) of a different gotra (from mine) please come here along with your wives. For your satisfaction I have provided phalmuls (vegetables fruits etc) along with dakshina (wages) to two nandimukh brahmans.

The Brâhmanas shall say 'Susampannam' after the fee has been paid. The function should end with the following mantra:

Om Vâje Vâje Vata Vâjino Dhanesu Viprâ Amrtâ Rtajnâh
Asya Madhvah Pibata Mâdayadhvam Trptâ Yâta Pathibhirdevayânam

ॐ वाजे वाजे वत वाजिनो धनेषु विप्रा अमृता ऋतज्ञाः ।

8) Prarthana

Let the householder then entreat the Brâhmanas to declare the ceremony closed with their own blessings and those of the manes. Let the Brâhmanas declare (astu paripârnah) and mutter the following verses to mark he end of the rites:

Pramâdât Kurvatâm Karma Pracyavetâdhvaresu Yat
Smaranâdeva Tadvisnoh Sampûrnam Syâditi Sthitih || 1 ||

प्रमादात् कुर्वतां कर्म प्रच्यवेताध्वरेषु यत् ।
स्मरणादेव तद्विष्णोः सम्पूर्ण स्यादिति स्थितिः ।। १ ।।

Whatever deficiencies may have been left in the performance of this karma, may please be condoned.

By remembering, or by just naming Achuta (Vishnu) whatever deficiencies might have remained in the performance of ritual, are removed by Him. Oh Achula (Vishnu) please accept my obeisance.

The curtain drops with the householder concentrating on the Lord, so that his shortcomings evident in the performance of the rites may be condoned:

Om Visnave Namah Visnave Namah Visnave Namah

ॐ विष्णुवे नमः विष्णुवे नमः विष्णुवे नमः ।

B8) Kshtrpal Pujn

Kshtrapals are protectors of fields and are beneficial to mankind. (see Chapter 5). There are 49 Kshtrpals who are worshiped on major Samskaras along with Kalash. Generally two small pots mark their presence. In earlier time every Kashmiri Pandit family used to keep two small pots (called Saniwari) in the kitchen by the side of the hearth. The lady of the house would place cooked rice in these two pots before serving to the family members. These Kshtrpals also receive worship in Navgreh homa (see B6). Since it is time consuming to name all the 49 Kshtrpals generally they are invoked collectively by the Mntra.

Om Bhur Bhuvh Svah Kshetradipalye Nmh

ॐ भूर्भुवः स्वः क्षेत्रादिपतिये नमः

Or

Ekon Pnchasht (49) Kshetr Pal Byo Nmh

ॐ भूर्भुवः स्वः ऐकोनपचांशत क्षेत्र पालाभ्यः नमः

They are worshiped by Shodshopachara or Dashopachara or Panchopachara. The invocation of 20 prominent Kshtrapals is as under:

B9) Homa (होमा) (Act of offering oblations in Agni)

(see Figure). Agni fire god is also known by following names:

1) Jâta Vedas – All knowning.
2) Havya Vâhana – carrier of offerings to Devas.
3) Kâvya Vâhana – carrier of offerings to Pitras.

Agni receives offerings and simultaneously converts these offerings into those forms in which they are liked by Devas on Pitrs.It is because of this quality in Agni that makes it an important Anga in various Samskaras and homa yagnyas for deities such as Mahâ Ganapati Homa, Maha Rudra Homa or Navagraha Homa, Mrtynjaya Homa etc.

Utinsels etc. Required. (see Chapter 15)

1) Darvâ / Spoon with a long hand and one head.
2) Shruva spoon with long handle with two heads.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

3) Pranita Patr (for water).
4) Ajaya Patr for ghee.
5) Lots of darbha grass.

Agni Mukha

Agni mukha is an act of symbolic purification of vessels (patras) leaves (dharvis). Ghee (ajya) by darbha. It is mostly action oriented. Use of mantra is limited.

Whereever ahuties (oblation) of ghee and other objects are needed to be done, the accompanying mantras called Homa Vytahrtis, are as under:

Homa Vyahrtis

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Bhuh Svaha | Agnaye Indur (this is for Agni) | Na Mum (not mine) |
| Bhuwah Svaha | Vayuvay Indan (this is for Yau) | Na Mum (not mine) |
| Svah Svaha | Savitur Idam (this is for Surya) | Na Mum (not mine) |
| Aum Bhur Bhuvah Svah-Svah | Prajapatye Idam (this is for prajapati) | Na Mum (not mine) |

The various steps are as follows:

1) Sthandita (preparation of Agni kund) – Preparation of sacrificial ground by digging, ploughing, leveling etc. This is symbolically done by Samidh or Darbha. A small square platform is made by bricks and mud to house the Agni called Agni Kund.
2) Prâk Toyam – A small water vessel is kept, in the east of kund ,to prevent evil forces from entering, while allowing entry to devas only.
3) Agnim Idhva – To light fire from some other source (to kindle flame).
4) Patrosâdana – Placing vessels on the darbha seat in west (upside down) and other implements.
5) Pavitra Samiskara – two darbhas are cut properly to the specified length, having a sharp tip, dipped into water and wiped from root to tip with water. Now this becomes purified and can act as purifier.
6) Prokshani Samskara – (Sprinkling of consecrated water).
   All the vessels are touched with pavitra (purified as stated above) and the placed in normal position. Other purification (prokshana) acts are:
   i) Place pavitra on top of Prokshana Patra (vessel) and then fill it with water.
   ii) Add Aksht (unbroken rice) to this patra.
   iii) Purify all materials by sprinkling water kept in Prokshana patra.
   iv) Place this Prokshana Patra on the right hand side of the karta (performer) who faces east.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

7) Pranita Samskara (Pot kept by the side of Agni). Various steps for purification are as:

i) Filling water though Pavitra by placing darbha on top of vessel and then filling water.
ii) Adding akshat (unbroken rice) to water.
iii) Utpavana move darbha (from west to east) with pavitra.
iv) Lift patra utpo nose and then keep it down on the North.
v) Cover mouth with darbha.
vi) Utter Namah to Varuna for successful completion of worship.

8) Ajaya Samskara (purification of ghee). It has following steps.
i) Ghee is melted in agni and then a small quality is poured in Agni kund through pavitra.
ii) Take out some burning charcoal from Agnikund, place it on north of kund and heat ghee again on these Charcoals.
iii) A darbha lighted in agni fire is brought near ghee and thrown in south west direction.
iv) Take 2 darbhas, cut small pieces from tip. Wipe both portions with water, place the tip pieces in Ajay patra.
v) The other portion of the darbha is lighted, taken around Ajay patra in Pradakshina mode (clockwise). The darbhas are then thrown to the north.
vi) Ajaya patra is moved to north of Kund.
vii) The chercoal taken out from Agni kund is put back in the Agni kund.
viii) Utpavana of Ajayapatra (from west to east).
ix) Pavitra knot untied and thrown into Agni.

9) Darvi/Sruva Samskara - (Purification of spoons used for Ahuties) of ghee & other materials. It has following acts:

i) Symboltic heating in Agni.
ii) Wiping with darbha.
iii) Agni heating.
iv) Prokshana (sprinkling of water with pavitra).

10) Paridhi (Keeping away evil forces) - Darbha placed around Agni kund in 3 direction NWS (in the east prak toyan has already been established see Item 2 above.).
11) Agni Parishechana - It is an act of surrounding with continuous water drops, any object (food, agni etc). This acts as a boundary within which anything that is placed is purified by subsequent mantras.
Deities Aditi, Anumati, Sarasvati Devies & Savitr are addressed while pouring water.
Recite name of deity and close with the words Anumanyasva Prasuva (अनुमानयास्वा प्रसुवा).
12) Idhma Homa – 15 darbhas dipped in ghee are offered to Agni (Mntra – Om Bhuv Bhvh Svah (ॐ भूर्भुव स्वः).
13) Âghâra Homa – Libations of ghee are poured as a continuous stream (dhara) with Darvi/Sruva spoons across the Agni from NW (Vayu) to SE (Agni) direction for Prajapati and

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

from SW (Nirriti) to NE (Ishana) direction for Indra (see Figure ).

14) Ajây Bhaga – In the Agni Kunda, 3 homas are performed in sepearate places i.e. NE, SE and Centre. This symbolises that the sacred fire has now two eyes and a mouth (mukha) and thus fit for receiving oblations. That is why this anga is called Agni Mukka.

15) Sarva Prayashchitta – Homa to Prajapati as atonement for all faults that might have occurred during above action with the mantra (Om Bhur Bhuva Svah).

A homa like puja has three parts:

a) Purvanga or Purv Bhaga.
b) Main anga or Pradhan Bhaga.
c) Uttâr anga or Uttara Bhaga.

a) *Purvanga (The performer sits facing north)

1) Archam (see A20).
2) Ganpâti Puja (A6)
3) Snklpa for homa (see A2).
4) Establishment of Kalasha (B1).
5) Agni Mukha (see Figure) (having Agni for mouth).

b) *Pradhan Anga

Homas as per Karma/Samskara e.g. Vivaha, Upanyana etc.

c) *Uttara Bhaga

1) Jayadhi Homa (जयाधि होमा) – (B10) After the main deities of the Karma have been propitiated, it is now the turn of Subordinate deities to receive oblations. The categories of the subordinate deities are those who represent abstract qualities, Lords of different spheres, Gandharvas along with Apsaras and even Brahma with the request to protect knowledge.
2) Prayashchita Homa (प्रायश्चिता होमा) (B11) - To atone for faults that might have crept in during the performance of homa.
3) Purn Ahuti/Svishtakrt Homa (पूर्ण आहुति) (see B12) - Ahuties given to agni. The recitation depends on the Samskara e.g. In Vivah, Purn Ahuti hymns carry prayers for happiness of couple, giving examples of noble couples like Ram, Sita, Lakshmi, Narayan, Shiva, Parvati etc. followed by Shanti Path (see Chapter 22).
4) Varuna Upasthana (Goodbye to Varuna) - The water in Pranita Pâtra is poured in four directions and the remaining water is poured on the ground. With this Prokshana (sprinkling of water) is done on the performer i.e. Karta. Ahuties are offered with Gayatri Vyahrties.
5) Agni Upasthana (Good bye to Agni) - Ahuties are offered to Agni, Vayu, Surya, Chandra, Vishnu etc. with Gayatri Vyahrties.

Short Version of *Homa

The Procedure given above is for homas on major event, for other purposes a short version is as follows:

Purva Bhaga

1) Established fire in Agni kund or Agni pot
2) Place Pranit Patr with water and Vishtur in it.
3) Pran Pratishtha (see A25)
   Sprinkle water with Vashthru or Darbha on the fire pot, three times.
4) Burn tips of two darbhas in the fire pot and then place them on the right side (i.e. south) of fire pot. Recite following words:

Nirdgdhm Rksho Nirdgdha Ratir Apagne, Agni Mamadm Jhi Nishhkrvya Dm Sidha Devyjnm Vh

निदगंध रक्षो निर्दग्धा रातिर अपाग्ने अग्नि मामादं जहि निष्क्व्या दं सीधा देवयजनं वह ।

5) Pranayam (see A10).
6) Purifying Agni – Sprinkle water from Pranitpatr nine times on the Agni pot with Vshthur with following recitations:

   i) Rtmtvya Styen Perismu Hyami (ऋतंत्वया सत्येन परिसमू ह्यामि) (for custodians of cosmic order Rita I am offering this water oblations.)

B13) Vaishvadeva Bali/Bhut Yagnya (वैश्वदेव बली भूत यज्ञ)

This involves propitiatory oblations made to certain deities, tutelary gods, household divinities, spirits, men, birds other animals and all creatures including even lifeless objects. The oblations in this anga are cooked food items such as cooked rice and bread cakes made from rice flour (called Tchotvor in Kashmiri). Oblatious are made to Agnidev (in an enclosure drawn with darbha) and to ancestors.

This anga forms are important part of Vatkpuja (Shivratri) for Kashmiri Pandits . It is also used in funeral rites.

Preparatory

1) Charcoal or dry wood fire is kept burning in an earthn bowl or portable agnikund (to receive oblations). It is kept in front of performer who sits facing east.
2) Place Pranitpatr in the SW Corner of agnikund .Put Vashthur or two darbhas along with sesamum and rice in this Pranitpatr .
3) Keep rice cakes (Tchotvoros) and cooked rice ready (along with ghee and darbha).

Purvbhaga

See short version of Homa from B9.

Pradhan Bhaga

a) Dev Bali - (Food offerings to 36 tuttelary deities- Takshas) Place Yagnopavit in svena position. Put little ghee on a few rice cakes and rub it on them by two pieces of darbha. Recite following :

Vaishvadevsy Siddhsy Srvgtogrysy Annsy Juhoti Paksy
Grten Smlipy Svsti Astu Shrutm Abhidhary

वैशवदेवस्य सिद्धस्य सर्वतोग्रयस्य अन्नस्य जुहोति पाकस्य
घृतेन संलिप्य स्वस्ति अस्तु श्रृतम अभिधार्य ।

(I am offering this cooked food along with ghee to Vaishdevas for success and happiness of performer).

Make small pieces of these rice cakes and offer these as Ahuties one by one to Agni pot with the following words:

1) Somay Svaha (सोमाय स्वाहा)
2) Mitray Svaha (मित्राय स्वाहा)
3) Vrunay Svaha (वरूणाय स्वाहा)

या काचित यागिनी रोद्रा सोम्या घोरतरा परा खेचरी भूचरी रामा तुष्टा
भवतुमे सदा आकाश मातृभ्यो अन्न नमः समालभन गन्धो नमः अर्धो नमः पुष्पं नमः

(Female deities, Yogini, Raudra, Saumya, Gortra, Pra, Khechu Bhuchri and Rama, who live in the sky, please accept the food along with gndha, arga and flowers).

j) Gogras (also called Panch Bali). Five Balis are offered for gov (cow), svanah (dog), kaka (crow), arthis ( air borns insects) and pipilika (ants, worms, insects etc). Small quantities of food are placed at five places near where food has already been offered to Pitrs.( In other traditions it is placed on leaves) Recitations for each of 5 balies are :

1) For cows (Gobhyo) Gobhyo Annm Nmh (गोभ्यो अन्नं नमः)
2) For crows (Kakebhyo) Kakebhyo Annm Nmh (काकेभ्यो अन्नं नमः)
3) For dogs (Shvankebhyo) Shvankebhyo Annm Nmh (श्वानकेभयं अन्नं नमः)
4) For Arthis (airborne insects) Arthinam Annm Nmh (अर्थिनाम अन्नं नमः)
5) For Pipilika (ants, insects, worms etc). Pipilakabhyan Annm Nmh (पिपीलिकाभ्यां अन्नं नमः)

B14) Divch Kshir Puja

It is an important anga of various samskara for Kashmiri Pandits. Seven mothers (called Matarka Devas) are worshipped by offering Kshir (rice, milk with sugar preparation). The seven mothers are 1) Anumati (अनुमति), 2) Raka (राका), 3) Sinivali (सिनीवाली), 4) Kuh (कुह), 5) Dhatri (धातरी), 6) Srveshvri (सर्वेशवरी), 7) Annishvri (अन्नीशवरी).This anga is a variant of Sptgrit Matrika ( B3) prevelent among in Kashmiri Pandits only. It is of Kashmiri origin and hence is confined to Kashmiri community only.

Preparatory

1) Kshir (rice milk sugar custard) is prepared at a clean place (usually by paternal aunt) and is placed in seven earthen pots (takus).
2) Moongdal cake, rice flour cake, walnut, cooked vapalhak (a green leafy vegetable ) and Mavli are placed on these pots.
3) The performer, and married ladies of the clan attach decorative paper sheets (called tektal) on their saris near where it stays on head. The tektals are marked with seven sindur tilaks (to represent seven mothers).
4) A small part of Kshir is placed in a thali for Naveed.
5) Kshir is placed at two places in a thali (or in 2 small earthen plates to represent Kashtrpals.

Puja

Dup Dîp Puja

1) Snkalpa Siddhi Prarthana.The recitation in the Snklpa Siddhi Prartha (A15) is as follows:

2) Puja – Puja is carried out by 16 or 10 upchars (see Chapter 16)
3) Prepun – All the ladies touch Naveed Thali and perform prepun as given in the anga A17.) Close prepun by naming all the seven mothers as given above.

Recite the words Paysm Samarpyami Nmh (पायसं परिकल्पयामि नम) (Please accept the offering of Ksheer).
Touch all the seven plates one by one with the recitation of individual names of deities i) Anutyai, ii) Rakayai.....so on and recite the following prayer:

Jatvedase sunvam Sosm-Arti Yto Nidhati Vedh Snh
Prshht Ati Durgani Vishva Navev Sindhum Durita – Tygni

जातवेदसे सुनवाम सोसम आरती यतो निदहाति वेदः सनः

8) Apushan (Achman at the end of puja) Perform it as given in A46 close with the words

Anumatyai (name all the mothers) Aposhanm Nmh Achmaniym Nmh

अनुमत्यै अन्नीशवर्यै अपोशानं नमः आचमनीयं नमः

9) Dakshina – Perform as per A47. Name all the seven deities while offering dakshine with some coins.
10) Chatu Puja (see from A17).
11) Ist Dev / Kshetrapal Pujai (see from A17).
12) Tarpan (see from A16)

B15) Devgon

(Purification of Individual). This Anga is used for purification of an individual who is to be married or initiated in the yognopavit ceremony. This is a tradition among Kashmiri Pandits only. It could be a substitute for Udaka Shanti (water peace) anga which is described in Karmkandas outside Kashmir. As its performance takes a lot of time, it is usually done one day (or atleast one night) earlier than the actual Samskara. It has a lot of social content with it (see Chapter 9).

The main sub-angas of Devgon are:

1) Kalash Sthapna (see B1).
2) Pradhan Kalash Sthapna (see B2) consecrated water is used for purification of the individual who is to be married or initiated by gining a bath known as "Kani-Shran"..
3) Navgreh Puja (See B6)
4) Spt Matri Ka Puja (see B3).
5) Divichkshir Puja ( See B14 )
6) Homa (B9) with -

   i) Anna (offering cooked rice as Ahuties).
   ii) Ajaya (offering ghee as ahuties).
   iii) Gayatri Homa with offering of barley and panch meva (dry fruits).
   iii) In Kanyadan Vivah Samskara all jewellary and utinsels (to be given to girl as dowery) are consecrated and worn by the girl including degharo.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

NITYA KARMAS

(OBLIGATORY DAILY KARMAS)

It includes following three Karmas:

A) Snan
B) Sandya or Sandhya Vndna
C) Panch Maha Yagnyas (great five sacrifices)

A) *Snan

Before one takes up performance of Karmic rituals it is essential that one should have a bath (Snan) and then perform Sandya (also known as Sandya Vandana). In good old days both these acts were performed at river bank and hence scriptures give all the directions as to how it should be performed at river banks. With the changed situation one has to take the message as stated above and then act as per prevailing situation.

*) Snan is not Karmic ritual. It is only a preparation for Karmic rituals. There is no tradition in other regional Karmakandas for recitation of mntras for Snana excepting Snklpa (for taking bath) and reciting of word "Om Om" or "Ram Ram" etc. while taking bath. Recitation of long mntras (or words) for different acts of bathing is a typical Kashmiri tradition.

a) Washing of Left foot

Om Nmostv Anantay Shstra MurtyeShstr Padakshi Shiroru B'have !
*Shstr Namne Purushay ShashvtoShstrkoti Yugdharine Nmh

ॐ नमोस्तवनन्ताय सहस्त्र मूर्तये सहस्त्र पादाक्षि शिरोरू बाहवे ।
सहस्त्र नामने पुरूषाय शाशवते सहस्त्र कोटि युगधारिणे नमः ।।

(I bow to that Purusha (god), who is beyond limits who has thousands of forms, with thousand of feet, heads and arms; who is known by thousands of names, who is eternal, who has been through thousands and crores of "yugas" (time cycles).)

) This is a very efficacious mntra which is also used as concluding prayer after performance of rituals (see A45). It does not seem to fit properly for washing his own feet by worshiper.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

b) Washing of Right foot

Om Nmh Kmlnabhay Nmste Jlshayne Nmste Keshvanant Vasudev Nmostute

ॐ नमः कमलनाभाय नमस्ते जलशायिने ।नमस्ते केशवानन्त वासुदेव नमोस्तुते ।।

(I bow to Lord Vishnu who is also known as Keshv, Anant and Vasudev's son, who has lotus in his navel and lives in water.)

c) Bathing

It has two acts:

1) Consecrating water
2) Bathing with consecrated water

1) Consecrating Water

Hold water in a both hands (held to form cup shape) and consecrate the same by following mntra:-

Gnga Pryag Gynaimishh Pushkaradi TirthaniYani Bhuvi Snti Hariprasadat !
Âyantu TâniKr Pdm Pute Mdîya Prkshalyntu Vdnsy Nishaklnkm

गगां प्रयाग गयनैमिष पुष्करादि तीर्थनि यानि भुवि सन्ति हरिप्रसादात ।
आयन्तु तानि कर पद्म पुटे मदीये प्रक्षालयन्तु वदनस्य निशाकलङ्कम ।।

(With of grace of Hari let washing of hands, feet, body etc in the waters be as efficacious as a bath in the sacred Tirthas of Ganges, Prayag, Gaya and Pushker.)

2) Bathing with consecrated water

While pouring the above consecrated water over head, one should recite following mntra.

Tirthe Sneym Tirthm Eva Smanam Bhvti Manh !
Shmsyo Arurûshho Dhurtih Prânnmrtysy Rkshno Brhmnspte

तीर्थे स्नेयं तीर्थमेव समानानां भवति मानः
शंस्यो अरूरूष धूर्तिः प्राणङमर्त्यस्य रक्षाणो ब्रहमणस्पते ।।

(With the grace of Brahma, let this bath be as efficacious as bathing in a Tirtha which removes all physical ailments and saves one from death).

d) Washing *Yagnopavit

Hold yagnopavit in thumbs of both hands and wash it in the palms of both hands by rubbing it along with recitation of Gayatri Mntra three times

Om Bhur Bhuvh Svh Tt Svitur Vrinym
Bhrgo Devsy Dhîmhi Dhiyo Yo Nh Prochodyat

ॐ भूर्भुवः स्वः तूत सवितुरवरेण्यं भर्गो देवस्य ।
धीमहि धियो यो नः प्रचोदयात ।।

(May we mediate on that eternal god, our creator, independent reality who manifests through sun propitiated by the highest gods, one who bestows wisdom, bliss and even lasting life; may our intellect be illumined by that light of god).

After washing yagnopavit it should be worn back, first in the right arm and then in the neck along with recitation of following mantra:

Yagnopavitm Prmm Pvitrm Prajapatyeryet Shjm Purstat
Âyushhym AgyrmPrtimnnch Shubrm Ygnopavitm Blum Astutejh

यज्ञोपवीतम परमं पवित्रं प्रजापते यति सहजं पुरस्तात ।
आयुष्यम अग्र्यं प्रतिमञ्च शुभ्रं यज्ञोपवीतं बलम अस्तु तेजः ।।

{Om ! This sacred (sacrificial) thread is supremely purifying, it is worn from the beginning of time from the date of manifestation by Prajapati (Brahman). May this sacred thread endow me with maximum longevity, strength and radiance.)

B) Sndhyopsna/Sndhya-Vndna (सन्ध्योपसन/सन्ध्यावंदनम)

(Invoking blessing of Gayatri/Sun God). It has four main angas with sub-angas as follows:

1) Preparatory
2) Pranayam
3) Suryarghy
4) Gayatri Mntr Jâp

1) Preparatory – It involves purificatory acts of body and seat of prayer and resolution for performance of karma as follows:

   i) Âchman (see anga A1 of Chapter 16 for details) Sipping of water 3 times as a purification act.
   ii) Snklpa (see anga A2 for details) It is a resolution like to complete the karma.
   iii) Âsan Shodan (see anga A3 for details) It is an act of purification of seat for performance of karma.

2) Pranayam – It is an act of synchronizing movements of breaths with thought process and purification of self with mantras as per details given below:

   i) Pranayam (see anga A10 of Chapter 16)
   ii) Marjana (see anga A12 of Chapter 16)

3) Suryarghya - It is an act of offering water to Sun either at river bank or at home. Water held in cupped hands along with flowers (and arga, chandan etc.if done at home) It is offered to Sun three times along with the recitation of following mantras:

   i) Viniyog

   Om Karsy Brhma Rîshrgaytri, Cnada Parmatma Devta Arghydane Viniyoga

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

ॐ कारस्य ब्रह्म ऋषिर्गायत्री छन्दः । परमात्मा देवता अर्घ्यदाने विनियोगः ।।

(Om , Brahma is the Rishi, Gaytri Chhnda and Parmatma Devta of this arghya viniyoga (see Chapter 6 (Mntra) for explination of above terms).)

ii) Mntra Recitation (Gayatri Mntra)

Om Bhur Bhuvh Svah Tat Svitur Vrenym Bhrgo Devsy Dhimhi, Dhiyo Yo Na Prachodyat

ॐ भूर्भुवः स्वः तत्सवितुर्वरेण्यं । भर्गो देवस्य धीमहि । धियो यो नः प्रचोदयात् ।।

(see translation given above).

iii) Nmh After recitation of Gayatri mantra drop water in river or in a pot (if done at home) along with recitation of following words:-

Brhmsvrupine Surynaraynay Nmh

ब्रह्मस्वरूपिणो सूर्यनारायणाय नमः ।।

(I bow to Narayan whom I visualize as Sun God and like Brahma)

4) Gaytri Mantr Jâp (for details of Jâp see Chapter 6). It involves following steps:

i) Shdngnyas (see anga A8 of Chapter 16) It is an act of assigning part of body to various Tutelary gods.
ii) Dhyan of Gaytri Mata (see anga A18) It is an act of mental visualisation of the form of deity.
iii) Gayatri avaham Welcoming Gayatri :

Om Tejo Asi Shukrmsy Amrtm'si
Dhamnam'si Priym Devana Dhrshhtm Gayatri Japam'si

ॐ तेजोऽसि शुक्रमस्यमृतमसि ।
धामनामसि प्रिय देवानामनाधिष्टं गायत्री जपंऽसि ।।

Oh god, you are possessor Tejsvi (illumination) Shuykrm (viriles Seman) Amrit (immortality) Damana (permanent abode), loved by all gods, please guide me by casting right guidance.

iv) Gayatri Mntr Jâp (see Chapter 6 for performance of Jâp).

Gayatri Mantra

Gayatri Mantra first of all appears in the Rig Veda (111.62.10) and later on in the Yajur Veda) and Soma Veda. In the Upnishads. Gayatri is also called "Savitri" which is the name of Solar deity (see Chapter 1).

It is one of the greatest and powerful mantra which was revealed to Sage Vishwamitra after a transcendental experience in meditation. In Bhagwat Gita Lord Krishna has described Gayatri mantra as Maha Mantra (the Supreme Mantra).

Vrties

Vraties have been described as mystical utterances, seven in number as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1) | Bhu | 2) | Bhuvah |
| 3) | Svah | 4) | Mahah |
| 5) | Janah | 6) | Tapah |
| 7) | Satyam | | |

These Vrties when used with Gayatri Mantra, enhance the efficacy of mantra. Thus a full Gayatri mantra along with Vraties reads as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Om | God |
| Bhuh | that is eternal |
| Om Bhuvah | who is creator |
| Om Svah | who is independent |
| Om Maha | who is worthy of worship |
| Om Janah | who has no beginning. |
| Om Tapah | who is the light of wisdom |
| Om Satyam | who is truth |
| Om Tat | that eternal God |
| Savitur | (Sun) the source of light |
| Varenyam | propitiated by highest gods |
| Bhargo | that bestows wisdom, bliss and life |
| Devasya | the light of that effulgent god |
| Dhimahi | we meditate |
| Dhiyo | our intellect |
| Yo | who |
| Na | our |
| Prachodayat | may lead towards illumination |

On some occasions following mantra is also recited at the end of above Gayatri Mantra

| | |
|---|---|
| Om Âpo | one who protects us from water of karma. |
| Jyoti | one who is light of all lights |
| Raso | one who is everything |
| Om Rtam | one who blesses us with immortality |
| Brahma | that Almighty God |
| Bhur Bhuvah Svah | who pervades in earth, atmosphere and heaven |
| Om | may He bliss with enlightenment. |

ॐ भू ॐ भुवः ॐ स्वः ॐ महाः ॐ जनः ॐ तपः ॐ सत्यं
ॐ तत् सवितुरवरेण्यं भर्गो देवस्य धीमहि धियो यो नः प्रचोदयात ।।
ॐ आपो ज्योति रसो ॐ रतम ब्रह्म भूर भुवः स्वः ॐ ।

(May that eternal god, our creator, independent Reality, who is worthy of worship, one who has no beginning, who is light of wisdom and truth. That Lord who manifests through the Sun propitiated by the highest gods, one who bestows wisdom, bliss and everlasting life. We meditate on that light. May that light of god illuminate our intellect. May that almighty god, who protects us from water of karma, who is light of all lights, who is everything, who blesses us with immortality and who pervades earth, atmosphere and heaven bless us with enlightenment.)

Short Version*

Only 3 Vyahrstis are recited along with mantra starting with the pranva 'Om'

| Om | Bhur Bhuvah Svah | Tat Savitur Varenyam |
|---|---|---|
| Pranava | 3 Vyahrtis | 1st Pada |
| | Bhargo Devasya Dhimahi | Dhiyo Yo Na Prachodayat |
| | 2nd Pada | 3rd Pada |

(Om, effulgent light that has given birth to all lokas or spheres of consciousness Oh, God, who appears through the Shining Sun, illumine our intellect.)

*) In Vedas Gayatri is described as Divine Mother resting on three feet. They are:

1) Gayatri – the three vital forces Prâna, Apana, Sâmana
2) Savitri, the three worlds – Bhumi, Antariksha, Dyvah
3) Sarasvati, the three Vedas – Rchah, Yajumshi, Sâmani,

Each group of above has 8 syllables sounds.

1) Pra (प्रा), Na (ण), A (अ), Pa (पा), Na (न), Sa (स), Ma (मा), Na (न), = 8
2) Bhu (भू), Mi (मि), An (अन), T (तए), Ri (ऋ), Ksh (क्ष), D (द), Yo (यो )= 8
3) Ri (ऋ), Ch (चःए), Y (यए), Jum (जूं) , Shi (शी ), Sa (साए), Ma (माए), Ni (नि ) = 8

These 24 syllables represent the 24 tattvas of the body of the deity Maha Gayatri according to Sankhya philosophy.

However, according to Vedic interpretation Gayatri Mantra has 24 syllables which have been divided into 3 feet (known as Pad of 8 syllables each),

1) तत, स, वि, तुर, व, रे, ण्य अम = 8
2) भर, गो, दे, व, स्य, धी, म, हि = 8
3) धि, यो, यो, न, प्र, चो, द, यात = 8

Three feet of Gayatri are the sub-stratum of the whole universe.

*Mala Jâp

The technique for mala jâp has been given in detail in Chapter 6. Shastras state that mala should be held in a bag through which one can pass right hand to hold mala. It should be held at navel height for morning Jâp and at eye level for evening Jâp. Before start of Jâp one should pray to deity of mala for making, mala jâp powerful., by holding the mala along with bag on ones head by right hand and recite following mantra which has three parts:

1) Bhij Mantra (Recite three times)

(I have undertaking most sacred and scrit Jâp. Please __(name of deity or guru) give me success in my endeavour).

Note

1) If one has been initiated by a teacher (guru) then in that case one should perform atleast one Jâp mala of guru mantra at the conclusion of Gayatri Jâp to make jaap more efficacious.
2) There is a tradition of performing 24 mudras (see Chapter 6) before start of Jâp followed by 8 mudras after Jâp. Some scholars do not consider it is part of Sandhya-Vndna.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation

Kar Jâp (Jaap on hand fingers) (see Chapter 6). If for any reason one cannot perform mâla jâp, then one can perform Karjâp on right hand fingers as well. One kar Jâp is equivalent to one mâla jâp.

If Syndya can not be performed at riverbank, then one can perform it at home. Water offered as oblation in Sndhyarghya should be collected in a bowl and then placed at the root of a tree.

Vedic Sndhya (as prescribedby Arya Samaj).

1) Achman (see Anga A1)
2) Ang Sparsh Mntrâs (Abulation Phrases).

i) Om Vak Vak (ॐ वाक वाक)

the debt of Devas, Rishis and Pitr. (see Chapter 1) The five acts of sacrifice (yagnya) are as follows:

a) Ygnya/Tarpan – This is paying back the debt of Pitrs (ancestors) who helped us to grow and stand on our legs.
b) Brhm Ygnya – It involves study of sacred scriptures and propagation of the knowledge contained there in.
c) Dev Ygnya – It is an act of offering oblations to devas to receive their uninterrupted blessings.
d) Bhut Ygnya – (Also called Bali Vaisvdev) It is an act of offerings made to tutelary gods, domestic deities and various living beings such as dogs, crows insects ants etc.
e) Manush Ygnya (or Athithi Ygnya) – It is an act of offerings made to fellow humans who need help.

Initially these five ygnyas involved use of fire oblations as well, hence the word ygnya but now use of fire oblations has been given up.

a) *Pitr Ygnya/Tarpan

It involves performance of a sankalpa followed by tarpan as given below:

Snklpa – (see A2 Chapter 16) At the close add words:

Aham Dev, Rishi, Pitr Tarpan Karishaye

(अहं देव ऋषि पित्र तर्पण करिष्यै)

(I am going to perform Tarpan for Devas Reshis and Pitrs)

Tarpan – It has three parts :

i) Dev Tarpan
ii) Rishi Tarpan
iii) Pitr Tarpan

See anga A-16 from Chapter 16 for performance all the three tarpans of this ygnya.

b) *Brhm Yagnya

The various angas are:

1) Achman ( See A1)
2) Snklpa – (See A2 ) Close with the words:

Ahm "Brhmyagnym Krm Karishhye" as Karma

ब्रह्म यज्ञ कर्म करिष्ये

(I am undertaking performance of Brhmyagnya Karma)

3) Recitation from sacred books – One may read a few sholokas from Bhagwatgita or

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Ramayan or any sacred book. If this is not possible due to paucity of time then one may recite Gayatri Mantra, three times.

c) *Dev Yagnya

1) Purva Bhaga Dûp Dîp Puja (see Chapter 15).
2) Pradhan Bhaga. This involves puja of chosen deity or deities as per Shodoshopachara or Dashopachara or Panchopachara (see Chapter 15).
3) Uttara Bhaga.

   i) Namaskara/Sampurna/Praname – It is an act of paying final homage to deity after completion of puja (see A45).
   ii) Âposhna (see A46).
   iii) Dakshina (see A47).
   iv) Charnamntra (see A48).
   v) Kshema Yachna/Prayschita (see A49).
   vi) Upsthana (see A50).
   vii) Raksha (see A51).

d) *Bhut Ygnya (also known as Balivaishvdev)
It is an act of offering cooked food items as homa to agni (fire) at home with which one cooks food and one part of the left over is eaten as prashad by the family while the other part is served to five living beings known as Panch Bali. These are: 1) cows, 2) dogs, 3) crows, 4) devas and 5) ants.

Since the food is traditionally cooked in a kitchen, hence its performance also takes place there by the family head. With the change in the style of human living, this ygnya is no longer performed as a nitya karma. It is now performed on some major events such as Shivratri by Kashmiri Pandits.

e) *Atithi Yagnya (or Manush Yagnya)
This is an act of offering food which is cooked at home to guests. Welcome of guest at home is an essential tradition of Hindus. Its importance can be gauged from the fact that scriptures describe serving food to the athithi (guest) if he is in hurry even before it has been offered to agni in the Bhut Yagnya described above. If there is no guest, then it can be served to Panch Balis.

Some Useful Hints

1) Remember that Karma Kanda has its origin in Vedas and Vedic knowledge is unlimited. Various sutras have picked up hymns from this source as per their own perception, hence such a variance in the recitation of hymns. Despite this, methodology known as kriya has remained almost unchanged since Vedic times. Hence one should focus on methodology and not get bothered about recitation on long mantras if it is found difficult.
2) Performance of a karmic action has two parts : i) recitation and ii) kriya (i.e. what is to be done).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Recitations are generally long and complex eulogies of deity being propitiated. If one is not comfortable with the long recitation given in the scripture in such situations one should name the deity who is being propitiated, then recite some of his/her eulogies (see A52) and then describe Karma e.g. applying flowers Pushpm Samarpyami (पुष्पं समप्रयामि).

3) Again if material for a kriya is not available use the word "amuk" for that material and offer flowers as substitute. e.g.amuk samarpyami.

4) One should prepare his own Puja Prayer book, after selecting prayers and kriyas which one want to perform. Practice the performance of these kriyas before actual performance.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

SAMSKARAS

Performance of these Samskars is the essence of Hindu Traditions. The English translation of Samskaras is sacrament which means religious ceremony, but a Hindu Samskara is much more than a religious ceremony. Hindu scriptures describe it as "a religious purificatory rite and ceremonies for sanctifying the body, mind and intellect of an individual so that the individual may become full fledged member of community".[1] These Samskaras are believed to have their origin in the social traditions of the people in various regions. Since the traditions of various regions vary, the performance of these Samskaras also have wide variations although religious format remains more or less the same. The ladies of the household play a prominant role in the performance of these Samskaras.[2]

In North India the number of these samskars is generally sixteen. Some sections of society do not include death related Samskars (such as Antyesthi and Shraddha) as part of regular Samskaras. In south India the number of samskar is 40 and even 48. In Kashmir, one can count twentyfour Samskars (excluding death related samskars). In actual practice, several post Upanayane Samskaras are performed along with Upanayana (keeping in view that the boys now a days are initiated not at 7-8 years age as prescribed in the Sutras but much later than that age). Thus, the actual number of Samskaras may be stated as eleven and even among these eleven Samskars, Upananayana and Vivah receive some attention, while others are observed with a much less enthusiam. Services of priest or priests are required in the performance of these Samkars. A brief description of the Samskaras follows:

A) Bîj Vapn/Garbhadâna (बीजवापन/गर्भदाना)

In Hindu society marriage is not desire of lust but desire for good progeny. Hence before having sex first time at the time of rta (between 4th and 16th day after the wife's mensurative period) a religious ceremony is performed by the couple which involves following angas:

1) Snklpa for Bij Vapn( see A2 chapter 16)
2) Ganesh Pûja – see A7.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3) Sptmatrika Puja – see B3).
4) Nandimukhe Shraddha (see B7).

b) Pumsavana (पुंसावना)

It is performed in the third month of pregnancy for protection of the fetus and some say for having a male child. It is performed when moon is in the male constellation. Religious ceremony is same as for Bîj Vapn.

c) Simantonnayana or Simontkrn (सीमन्तोन्नायाना / सीमन्तकरण)

This Samskara is recommended to be performed in the fourth or fifth month of pregnancy or even later.

This ceremony is also known as

i) Hair Parting.
ii) Dvd Anun by Kashmiri Hindus and
iii) Baby Shower in the Western World

The purpose of this Samskara is three fold:

1) To keep away evil spirits which are bent on devouring fetus and suck the blood of woman. Goddess Shri is invoked by husband for protecting his wife & child.
2) To bring about prosperity to mother and long life to the unborn child.
3) To help grow intellect of the child, the mother is kept in happy mood and fed with dishes which she likes most and asked not to move heavy objects.

Ceremonies

1) The date for performance is chosen when moon is in male constellation.
2) Mother is required to keep fast for day followed by performance of religious ceremonies indicated in Bîj Vapn.
3) After this the wife is seated on a chair on the side of fire kund and husband parts the hair of wife upwards with a bunch of even number of unripe udambara fruits or mulbery twigs along with three darbhas while reciting the mantra "Bhur, Bhuvah, Svah or three Mahavakyas (see Chapter 3).

d) Jatakarm (Birth Ceremony) (जातकरण)

The birth of a child is great even in the life of married couple. it is celebrated both as a religious cer-emony and social event. The religious ceremony is the same as given in Bîj Vapn.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

e) Namakarna (Name giving) (नामाकर्ण)

In most ceremonies Jatakarma and Namakarna Samskara are performed together preferably on the 11th day (or even later on) of the birth of child. Scriptures give detailed instruction for naming a male or a female child. It should be indicative of i) Sex of child, ii) Cast and Vrga iii) Qualities that child may possess. Male names should be of even syllables and should not end in L or R. Similarly girls names should be indicative of their tenderness and loveliness and should have odd syllables in it and generally should end up with 'i' or 'a'. Religions ceremonies recommended are the same as given in the Bij Vapn.

f) Surya Darshan (सूर्य दर्शन)

There is no major religious ceremony involving in it. The child is exposed to Sun on a suitable day after 3 months for the first time by the parents along with recitation of Bhu Bhuh Svah Mantras of Agni and Prajapati (see Agni Mukha in B9).

g) Chandr Darshan (चन्दर दर्शन)

It is similar to Surya Darshan except that the child is exposed the bright light of moon coming from southern side after about six months of birth. Religious ceremony is same as for Surya Darshan.

h) Annprashn (अन्नप्राशन)

When child is 6 months, he/she is given solid food. The mantra for purification of food to be fed is the same as given in Agni Mukha (see B9).

i) Chudakarna/Mundan/Zar Kasai (चूडाकर्ना)

It is Samskar for first tonsure of a male boy which usually takes place between 9 months to three years after birth. The hair that grows on child while in mother's womb is not considered auspicious and hence needs to be removed.

Preparatory

1) Items as given in angas B1, B2 and part 'a' of B9.
2) A barber with steel blade for tonsure.
3) Cow dung in an earten pot to keep hair after tonsure and subsequent disposal.

Religious ceremony

i) Establish Kalsha and *Pradhan Kalsha (*see B1 & B2).
ii) Perform Purvabhaga Anga of Homa (see Part 'a 'of B9).

iii) Braiding

The braiding involves following actions by the father of boy:

1) Hot & Cold water is mixed to which is added a little butter or curd along with recitation of following mantra:

Om Us-hn-ena Vâya Udakenehyadite Keshân Vapa

ॐ उष्णेन वाय उदकेनेह्यदिते केशान् वप ।

Please cut hair after rubbing it with hot or cold water.

2) With boy sitting facing east, his hair is braided on the southern western and northern side. Moisting the southern side (i.e. right side) braid with above mixture, recite following mantra:

Om Savitrâ Prasûtâ Daivyâ Âpa Undantu Te Tanûm
Dîrghâyutvâya Balâya Varcase

ॐ सवित्रा प्रसूता दैव्या आप उन्दन्तु ते तनूम् ।
दीर्घायुत्वाय बलाय वर्चसे ।

Oh Water Deity born through the grace of Suryadev please protect the body of this individual. Bless him with long life.

3) Divide braided hair on southern side (as in Step 2 above) in 3 parts and hold them separate with 3 clips. Divide all the three parts of braided hair into further 3 sub-division. While touching the tips of three kushas (picked from the bundle of 27 blades already kept) into the roots of the first bunch of hair out of three recite following mantra:

Om Osadhe Trayasva

ॐ ओषधे त्रायस्व

Oh Kusha and herbal deities, protect this individual.

4) While picking up Razor, recite following:

Om Shivo Namasi Svadhitiste Pita Namaste'astu Ma Ma Himsih

ॐ शिवो नामासि स्वधितिस्ते पिता नमस्तेऽअस्तु मा मा हिंसीः ।

Oh Rudradeva (or Shiv) my obeisance to You. You are deity of all the instruments used in the braiding, please protect this child from all injuries.

5) While cutting the hair with three kushas shoved into them mutter the following:

Om Nivartayamyayuse Nnadyaya Prajananaya Rayasposaya Suprajastvaya Suviryaya

ॐ निवर्तयाम्यायुषऽन्नाद्याय प्रजननाय रायस्पोषाय सुप्रजास्त्वाय सुवीर्याय ।

Oh boy (or son) I am going to tonsure your head for the sake of your peace, prosperity, eating delicious food, productive energy, wealth and progeny.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

6) Of the three parts of hair on the right side which have been braided, cut those of the western side along with Kushas, keep this hair in the pot containing cow dung which has been kept on the northern side. Recite following while cutting the hairs.

Om Yenavapat Savita Ksurena Somasya Rajno Varunasya Vidvah
Tena Brahmano Vapatedamasyayushyam Jaradashtiryathasat.

ॐ येनावपत् सविता क्षुरेण सोमस्य राज्ञो वरूणस्य विद्वान् ।
तेन ब्रह्मणो वपतेदमस्यायुष्यं जरदष्टिर्यथासत् ।

Dear barber (Napit) use the same cutting blade (Khur) for removal of this boy hairs which you use in the tonsure of boys of royal families and other high ups. Make him fit to be owner of large herd of cows, wealth and large progeny.

7) Keep three kushas each in the other two braided parts of the hair on the east, cut then too and keep them in cow dung as was done above vide item 6. No mantra are to be recited now, one has to maintain silence.
8) Now shift to western side. Follow same procedure as above. The mantra recitation for cutting the first braiding on the western side is as follows:

Om Ryayusham Jamadagneh Kashyapasya Ryayusham
Yaddeveshu Ryayusham Tanno'astu Ryayusham

ॐ रयायुषं जमदग्नेः कश्यपस्य रयायुषम्
यद्देवेषु रयायुषं तन्नोऽअस्तु रयायुषम् ।

Oh, the deity of three conditions of human life (childhood, youth and old age) just as rishis such as Jamdgin and Kashyp were blessed by you with long life, please bless this boy also for long life of three conditions.

9) The same procedure is to be followed for cutting hair on the northern side. The recitation of mantra for cutting the first braiding is as follows:

Om Yat Kshurena Majjayata Supeshasa Vaptra Va Vapati
Keshanchindhi Shiro Masyayuh Pramoshih

ॐ यत् क्षुरेण मज्जयता सुपेशसा वप्त्रा वा वपति
केशान्धि शिरो मास्यायुः प्रमोषीः ।

Oh Napit (barber) please use that Khur (cutting blade) for removal of this boy hair which is sharp and pretty. Oh god protect this child bless him with long life.

10) Handover razor to the barber who after through (rubbing of mixture of hot and cold water along with butter, shaves the head leaving a tuft (called Shekha or Choti)[3] at the top of head. The cut hair is collected by mother, put on cow dung and finally put in ground along with some walnuts (from Kalash). Walnut saplings that may sprout from these walnuts in the ground, are then replanted at proper places for their growth and fruit.
11) The concluding act of tonsure is performed by mother who collects ash from Havan Kund

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

with the root of Sruva and applies it with her right ring finger to herself and to boy with the recitation of following :

Om Tryayusham Jamadagneh Iti Lalate
Om Kashyapasya Tryayusham Iti Grivayam
Om Yaddeveshu Tryayusam Iti Dakshinabahumule
Om Tanno Astu Tryayusham Iti Hrdi

ॐ रयायुषं जमदग्नेः इति ललाटे ।
ॐ कृयपस्य रयायुषम् इति ग्रीवायाम् ।
ॐ दद्देवेषु रयायुषम् इति दक्षिणाबाहुमूले ।
ॐ तन्नो अस्तु रयायुषम् इति हृदि ।

Touching Khur (cutting blade) on forehead of boy recite "Oh three energies (Shakties) of Jmdani Rishi protect this boy."
Touching Khur on the head recite "Oh the three energies of Kashyp Rishi, please protect this boy."
Touching Khur on right shoulder of boy recite "Oh the three energies of Dadveshu Rishi, please protect this boy."
Touching Khur to the heart of boy , recite "Oh the three energies of Tann please protect this boy."

12) In the end , the priest conducting the ceremony has to be paid dakshina and receive his final blessings. Then all the Brahmins who participate in the puja are served with delicious food.

j) Upanyana/Mekhla (उपनयाना/मेखला)

(The details given here under are only indicative. For performance of this Samskara the priests conducting the ceremony should use the relevant scriptures).

Initiation of boy or boys through Upanayana Samskar is important next only to marriage (Vivah) among Kashmiri Pandits. Initially this Samskar was introduced for initiating a boy for study of Vedas under the guidance of the teacher (guru) at his ashram (residence). Later on its importance shifted to initiation of male child into society to enable him to perform religious rituals regarding the three debts called rins (see Chapter 1) which is an essential responsibility of a Hindu boy. The recommended age for its performance for a Brahmin boy was 7-8 years and one could combine Tonsure Samskar[4] with it. It has lost much of its religious appeal now and in some cases it is performed a day or two before marriage to enable boy to perform marriage ritual for which yagnopavit is considered essential. The number of priests required for performance of upanayana should be around four with their duties as under:

i) Recite Vedas and guide in the conduct of ceremony. He should be a learned acharya. He is designated as "Chandr Taruk" (चन्द्रतारुक) and is given a place of honour in the ceremonial place.
ii) An assistant priest to Chander Taruk who takes up recitation of gayatri mantra for twelve thousand times or less on behalf of boy's father (as stated by him during Snklpa). He also recites Bhagwad Gita along with others priests or people from assembly and occasionally joins Chander Taruk in the melodious recitation of Vedic hymns.
iii) Family priest -- He conducts all the actions (kriyas) during Upanayana e.g. homa etc.
iv) Assistant to family priest who puts on tilak to the people in assembly, ties rksha sutras

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

(Narivan) on arms (males right arm females left arm) and also conducts "Ayu Darshan" (see B9). He also helps family priest in the conduct of his duties.

Preparatory

A special pavilion is erected with Agni Kund in the middle. the pavilion should be large enough to accommodate all the priests, Kalash, Navgreh charts and family members. Care should be taken to keep good ventilation for letting go out smoke from Agni Kund.

Ceremony[5]

i) Previous day – Dev Gon (see B15).
ii) Next day (Day of Upanayana).

a) *Purva Bhaga

Following angas are performed by family priest along with his assistant much before the start of actual upanayana - called Pradhan Bhaga.(Some priests perform these angas during night time so as to be able to start Pradhan Bhaga in the morning and complete the ritual by evening).

i) Ganapati Puja – See A6.
ii) Kalash Sthpn – See B1.
iii) Matrika Pujan – B3 or B4.
iv) Nandimukha Shraddha – See B7.
v) Navgreh Mndll Pujan – See B6.

b) *Pradhan Anga

(Boys father sits facing east with his son or sons on the right).

1) Snklpa[6]

a) Gayatri Jap
As a first step12000 Gayatri japs or any other number of japs is to be made. (Services of a priest are used for this purpose). After recitation of sankalpa as shown in anga A2 (Chapter 16) close with the words:

Dvadshshstrm (for 12000) (द्वादशसहसत्र)
Or Amuk (for any number) (अमूक)
Gayatri Japmhm Brhmndvara Karishaya (गायत्री जपमहं ब्राहमणद्वारा करिष्ये)
(I am perfoming 12000 or so many gayatri japs through the services of a Brahman).

b) Upnayane Snklpa close with the words:

Asy Kumars Dvijtvsiddhidvarâ Vedtryydhikar Siddhyrthm
Shri Permeshvr Prîtyrthm Ch Upnynm Karishye

(With a view to pleasing the gods, so that my boy or boys may become dvija (or twice born)[7] and possess the right of learning the Vedas I shall have his/their initiation performed).

If the initiation is to be performed along with tonsure, the performer should use the words "Chudakarmopnayanakhye Karishye" (चुडाकर्मा चोपनयनमे) in place of "Ch Upnayanm".[8] (चोपनयनमे).

2) Placement – The boy or boys after bath, who is/are to be initiated, sit on the western side of Agni Kund facing east, along with their father (or the person who is to conduct Upanayana in place of father).

3) The Kupina – The boy is given a long yellow kurta specially designed for the occasion along with a cap for wearing. This symbolizes simplicity and purity of thought.

4) The Girdle[9] – The family priest helps the boy to tie a cotton girdle round his waist. The cotton girdle is a triple cord called Mekhla by which name Upanayana ceremony is known among Kashmiri Pandits. A strip of cloth called Shranpath is passed from front to back to cover private parts which is held by the girdle on both sides. The accompanying mantra is :

Om Iyam Duruktam Paribâdhamânâ Varnam Pavitram Punatî Ma Âgât
Prânâpanâbhyâm Balamâdadhânâ Svasâ Devî Subhagâ Mekhaleyam

ॐ इयं दुरूक्तं परिबाधमाना वर्ण पवित्रं पुनती म आगात् ।
प्राणापानाभ्यां बलमादधाना स्वसा देवी सुभगा मेखलेयम् ।

Oh, Yagnopavit, please remove our papas (effects of bad deeds), thorough Your Pran, Apan, Vayu (i.e. Pranayam) Just as Your Sister, Mekhladevi does it for her devotes.

5) Putting on Sacred Thread (yagnopavit)[10] This is the most important act in the upanayana and has to be performed at the most appropriate time as per astrological calculations made earlier. A yagnopavit (called sacred thread) is first of all purified by the family priest by the sprinkling water on it and at the same time reciting following mantras :

a) Om Âpo Histhâ Mayobhuvastâ Na Ûrje Dadhâtana Mahe Ranâya Cakshase
Om Yo Vah Shivatamo Rasastasya Bhâjayateha Nah Ushatîriva Mâtarah
Om Tasmâ Aram Gamâma Vo Yasya Kshayâya Jinvatha Âpo Janayathâ Ca Nah

ॐ तस्मा अरं गमाम वो यस्य क्षयाय जिन्वथ । आपो जनयथा च नः ।।

Oh, water deity be gracious to us. Your sacred sap is offered by mothers to their young ones for their intelligence, growth and power to fight with enemies. You are source of all herbs which fulfill needs of seekers. You are like Vishnu, please remove our deficiencies and grant us children and grand children.

The wearer of yagnopavit says, "I am wearing garments which will grant me vision, power, brilliance, fame, like that of Mitradeva.

7) Holding Staff – A Staff of palashya or mulbury wood, about the height of boy, is given by the family priest to the boy which he has to hold in his right hand. Staft symbolizes long life. While accepting the staff, boy recites following mantra:

Om Yo Me Dandah Parâpatadvaihâyaso Ahibhûmyâm
Tamaham Punarâdada Âyushe Brahmane Brahmavarcasâya

ॐ यो मे दण्डः परापतद्वैहायसोऽधिभूम्याम् ।

I am holding this staff for gaining Brahmtej (Brahmas Vision) and long life.

8) Purification by Water – The family priest Kulguru, holds water in his cupped hands and pours it three times in the cupped palms of boy with reciting of following mantras:

Om Âpo Hishthâ Mayo Bhuvastâ Na Ûrje Dadhâtana Mahe Ranâya Chakshase
Om Yo Vah Shivatamo Rasatasya Bhâjayateha Nah Ushatîri Va Mâtarah

9) Touching the Heart – The Kulguru touches boys heart reciting over his right shoulder. This indicates taking over charge of student. The mantra recitation by the priest is as under:

Om Mama Vrate Te Hrdayam Dadhami Mama Chittamanuchittam Te Astu
Mama Vachamekamana Jushasva Brhaspatishtva Niyunaktu Mahyam

ॐ मम व्रते हृदयं दधामि मम चितमनुचितं ते अस्तु
मम वाचमेकमना जषुस्व बृहस्पतिष्ट्वा नियुनक्तु मह्यम् ।

I am holding you in my heart. May you be like me. Follow my orders conveyed through speech. Brahaspati his chosen you for doing this.

10) Mounting the Stone – The boy is asked to mount a stone (a pestle). It is as symbolic gesture to standing firm during the student strip.

11) Taking Charge – Kulguru holds the right hand of boy and asks him a few question such as:

i) Ko Namasi ? (को नामासि) - What is your name Te boy has to give his name along with gotra.

ii) Ksy Brhmcharysi (कस्य ब्रहमचार्यसि) - Would you remain bachelor ? The boy has to respond in affirmation by saying. Bhavatah (भवतः).

Following the dialogue the priest recite:

Om Indrasya Brahmacâryasyagnirâcâryastavâhamâ-câryastava (Amuka)

ॐ इन्द्रस्य ब्रह्मचार्यस्यग्निराचार्यस्तवाहमाचार्यस्तव (अमुक)

Oh Lord Inder, this boy promises to remain brahmchari (bachelor) and hence forth you will receive orders from me.

The priest recites the name of boy along with his gotra in the above recitation where the word 'Amuk' stands for gotra of boy.

12) Quarters (Directions) – The boy bows to various directions with folded hands. First he turns to east while his guru (priest) recites.

i) Prajaptye Tva Priddami (प्रजापति त्वा परिददाम) (O, Prajapati. I bow to you in the east).

ii) Turning South, Om Devay Tva Savitre Pariddami (ॐ देवाय त्वा सवित्रे परिददामि) (Oh, Devas I bow to you in the south).

iii) Turning West, Om Adbhyastvaushhadhi Byah Pariddami (ॐ अदभ्यस्त्वौषधीभ्यः परिददामि) (Oh, Divinities of west I bow to you).

iv) Facing North, Om Dyavaprithvibyam Tva Pariddam (ॐ द्यावापृथिवीभ्यांत्वा परिददामि) (Oh, Dyavo and Prithvi-Sky and earth I bow to you).

v) Looking Down Wards, Om Vishvebystva Bhutebhyah Pariddan (ॐ विशवेभ्यस्त्वा भूतेभ्यः परिददामि) (Om all the living being of world I bow to you).

vi) Looking Towards sky, Om Srvabhystva Bhutebhyh Pariddami. (ॐ सर्वेभ्यस्त्वा भूतेभ्यः परिददामि) (Om all the living beings of universe I bow to you).

13) Circumambulation of Agni Kund – The boy next moves round the agni kund and then takes seat next to his guru on the west side i.e. northern side.

14) Request for Performing Homa – Then taking flowers, sandalwood and garment for guru in his hands, offers these items to the priest with the recitation as follows:

Om Adya Karttavyouppayanayanahomakarmani Krtakrtavekshnrupbrhmkrm
Krttum (Amuk) Gotra (Amuk) Ahm
Brahmnmebhi Pushpm Chandnm Vasobhirbrhmtven Tvahm Vrne

(For the sake of performance of Upanayana homa, please accept the gift of flowers, chandan and clothes from…..(name)….. of……. Gotra). While accepting these gifts, the priest recites:

Om Vrto'smi (ॐ वृतोऽस्मि)

15) Homa – The priest now shifts to the southern side of agnikund. Boy's father prepares a bed of Kusha (with tips towards east) for him on which he sits and proceeds for performance of homa, starting with:

i) Purvabhaga anga (see B9).
ii) Pradhan Anga (The recitation of mantras is very long which have not been given here. For these one may refer to the books which have been given at end of this Chapter.[11] The verses uttered are full of educational significance and with prayers to agni by the boy and his guru. A gist of these mantras is as follows:
"O Agni ! You dwell everywhere both inside and outside. As a purifying agent you destroy all defilements and by purging men of their impurities, you make them pure like yourself and then protect them. You are O, Agni, undeniably the way leading to auspicious action. Pray be so kind to me, that I may make this sacrifice with sincere heart and may this propitiate the celestial deities. Making me in your own image, bless me with the faculty of recognising the real source of happiness and of destroying that which leads to suffering (dukha)."
iii) Uttara bhaga (see B9).

16) Paying Dakshina (Sacrificial fees) – After completion of homa, priest is to be paid for performance of homa along with recitation of following mantra:

Om Adyaitasminnupanayanahomakarmani Krtâkrtâvekshanarûpabrahmakarmapratisthârthamidam
Pûrnapâtram Prajâpatidaivatam Amukagotrâyâmukasharmane

Today, at this yagnopavit ceremony in the presence of Brahma I offer you (this rice) as sacrificed fees for giving brahmjnan to me (of _____ gotra).

17) Initiation and Acharya's Instructions – The Aachrya initiates boy by uttering Brahmjnan in his ear (It is considered secret knowledge). The knowledge that a guru imparts to his pupil (shesh) regarding spirituality of the universe is popularly known as Brahm Jnan. In this Guru advises his pupil that the sole objective of a human being is to know reality of universe. That reality is not separate from your own being, Brahmi Vidhya enfolds this very knowledge. The recitation is as follows:

"Om Om Om Trigun Purûsh Kshetr Char, Moham Bhindi, Rajas Tamsî Bhindhi, Prâkrit Pashjâlam Sâvarnam Parihar, Satwam Grahan Purshotamosi, Som Suryanal Pravar, Parmdhâman Brahama Vîshnu Mahayshwer Svrûp, Sreshti Sthati Samhâr Kârak, Brû Madye Nilaye, Tayjosi Dhâmâsi Amritâtman Om Tat Sat Hamsah, Shuchi Shat, Vasurant Rikshishat Hota Veydishat, Atithir Duronsat, Nrshat Varsat Rirsat Vyomsat, Abjâ Gojâ Ritigâ Adrija, Ritam Param Brahm Svrup, Sarvgat Sarv Shaktay, Sarvayshvr Sarvindriya Granthi Bhedam Kuru, Paramam Padam Paramarshaye Parmârg Braham Dvâramsar, Kumârgam Jahi Shat Koshikam Sharîram Tyeja, Shudhosi Budhosi Vimlosi Khymaso Svpadam Âsvâdaya Svâha"

(Recitation of Om three times is made in the beginning for removal of all pain and sufferings. You are a 'Trigun Purusha' (you are bound by three gunas which pervade whole universe); you are 'Khetrchr' (your body is like a field, which is subjected to constant digging and harvesting), destroy your Moh (greed) which is the cause of your placement in the Rajas and Tamas gunas; destroy all Prakrati Pash Jalm (false bondages that bind you with nose). Know the Truth (Sattvm) you are yourself Purushottam (Supreme Being), Soma (Somdeva), Surya (Suryadeva) Anal (Agnideva), Prvr (Illumined) (being), Parmdhan (wise being), of the form of Brahma-Vishnu-Mahesh; creator and destroyer of universe; you are the one who can he reaches by focusing on the part of body between eyes; you are the Supreme Abode, the immortal Sat (truth) and Hamsa (life breathing consciousness); you are Shrechisht (residing at clean place); Vasurantrikshst (Vasudevta residing in the sky); you are Hota (the oblation made in Agni) Vedisht (the Agni of Yagnya); You are Atithirdranst (the guest attethe among the householders), Nrsht (residing among humans), Vrst (residing among gods), Ritst (residing among holders of Truth) Vyomst (visible and invisible in the universe), Abj (born in water), Gaga (the medicinal herbs), Adrija (the streams that flow from mountains), Ritija (the Supreme Truth); you are the very form of Parm Braham (Supreme God). You are Srvgt (who is everywhere), Srv Shakti (the most powerful one), Srveshr (god of all beings), Srv-Indrey (master of all functions), leave this laziness and focus on that Prmm Pdm (the Supreme Self) Parmarg (Supreme Guider); know your true self, leave Kumarg (the misleading way). Don't bother about Sht Koushikshrir (body made of Six elements). You are Shud (pure self) Buddhu (wise-one), Viml (pure one), know your true self and accept it as your true path.')[12]

The Acarya's Instructions

Having initiated the boy, the priest gives further instructions to boy who should gratefully acknowledge it.

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

Âcârya - (brahmacâryasi) (ब्रह्मचार्यसि). You are a celibate now entitled to perform all that is enjoined by the Vedas.

Students - (bhavâni) (भवानि). So be it.

Âcârya - (apo'shâna) (अपोऽशान) Perform the acamana.

Student - (ashâni) (अशानि). I shall act accordingly.

Âcârya - (karma kuru)(कर्म कुरू). Perform your evening ablutions, study the Vedas and go about begging alms.

Student - (karavâni) (करवाणि). I shall do all these.

Âcârya - (mâ divâ susupthâ) (मा दिवा सुषुप्था). Avoid all mid-day siesta.

Student - (no svapâni) (न स्वपानि). I shall not sleep in the early afternoon.

Âcârya - (vâcham yachcha) (वाचं यच्छ). Maintain silence while eating and defecating.

Student - (yachchâni) (यच्छानि). I shall not utter a word on either occasion.

Âcârya - (adhyayanam sampâdaya) (अध्ययनं सम्पादय). You should study the Vedas regularly in accordance with the prescribed rule.

Student - (sampâdayâni) (सम्पादयानि). I shall study the Vedas regularly.

Âcârya - (samidhamâdhehi) (समिधमाधेहि). You should offer oblation of firewood or fuel to agni every day.

Student - (âdadhâni) (आदधानि). I shall offer such an oblation with unceasing regularly.

Âcârya - (apo'shâna) (अपोऽशान). Perform âcamana after every meal.

Student- (ashâni) (अशानि). I shall not fail to do so.

18) Gayatri Mantra Recitation and writing – Having listened to the Âcârya's instructions with rapt seriousness and acquiescence, the boy being initiated should touch his feet and take his seat facing the west to the north of the fire. The student and the Âcârya should sit facing each other. In that case the Âcârya would face the east and, while thus facing the young bachelor, discourse on the Gâyâtri Mantra. The following samkalpa should be ultered after this:

Omadya Mama Brahmavarchasavedâdhyayan-Âdhikârasiddhyartham
Gâyatryupadeshâmgavihitam Gâyatrîsâvitrîsarasvatîpûjanapûrvakamâchâryapûjanam Karisye

ओमद्य मम ब्रह्मवर्चसवेदाध्ययना-धिकारसिद्धय्र्थं
गायत्रयुपदेशांगविहितं गायत्रीसावित्रीसरस्वतीपूजनपूर्वकमाचार्यपूजनं करिष्ये ।

(This is expressive of the celibate's resolve that for the attainment of divine glory, superhuman powers and rights to study the Vedas, he would reverence his acharya along with Gayatri and Sarasvati both described as an integral part of the Gayatri mantra.)

Recitation of Gayatri Mantra with Pranava and Vyahrtis – As stated earlier Om is called Pranava and Bhur, Bhuvah, Svah, Mhah Jnah, Tapah Satyam are seven Vyahrties. (see Chapter 18) In recitation of Gayatri mantra with Vyahrties generally only first three

ॐ भूभूर्वः स्वः तत सवितुर्वरेणयम भग्रो देवस्य धीमहि दियो यो नः प्रचोदयात

The acharya (priest) should write and recite the mantra, which boy should simultaneously copy and recite. At the end both should say "Om Svasti".

19) Salutations and greeting – At the concluding phase of ceremony, gods and priest collectively or separately (Agni, Sun and Acharya) are saluted with due devotion. The mantra recited are as follows:

a) Amukagotrah Amukapravarah Amuka (Sharmâ, Varmâ, Guptah) aham Vaishvânara Tvâmabhivâdaye. अमुकगोत्रः अमुकप्रवरः अमुक (शर्माए वर्माए गुप्तः) अहं वैफ्वनार ।

b) Amukagotrah Amukapravarah Amuka.... aham Sûryadeva Tvâmabhivâdaye. अमुकगोत्रः अमुकप्रवरः अमुक.....अहं सूर्यदेव त्वामभिवादये ।

b) Amukagotrah Amukapravarah Amukanâmâham Bho. अमुकगोत्रः अमुकप्रवरः अमुकनामाहं भोः ।

Replying, the Acharya and other brahmanas should bless the boy with ayusman bhava (आयुष्मान् भव). It is then that the student should salute his parents and other elders and teachers and receive their good wishes.

20) Rounds for Alms – It is a symbolic begging by the boy for paying guru his dakshina. He holds a thali (or bowl) in his hands, standing with the stick in right hand and begs for alms from people in the assembly with the words Bhavati Bhiksham Dehi (भवति भिक्षां देहि). To begin with he starts with his mothers sister (masi) which is a Kashmiri Traditions otherwise it is mother from where he receive first alm. Scripture say the alms should be in the form cooked grains which should be gracefully accepted by the words "Om Svasti" by the recipient.

The pupil should keep the alms received before the acharya. On receiving acharya's permission with the words Bhaikshhm Bhunkshhva (भैक्षं भुङ्क्षव) the boy should partake the food offered.[13]

21) Purn Ahuti – At the conclusion of Homa, a mixture of barley, rice and flowers is offered to agni kund along with recitation of shanty mantras (see Chapter 22).

22) Brahmn Bhojn – At the end Brahmans, pupil and all close relations who have kept a fast are served food. After this the people in the assembly are also served prashad.

23) Performance of other Samskars – It is a tradition in Kashmiri Karm Kanda that recitation of following Samskaras also takes place along with Upanayana, some of which are performed separately by followers of other karmkandas.

a) Traividkm – Upanayana is only a religious permission for study of Vedas.[14] The actual study of Vedas starts from an auspicious date after initiation and with performance of certain rituals. In Kashmiri tradition the initiation into the study of Vedas is done along with Upanayan by recitation of certain Vedic hymns by pupil under the guidance of priest (guru).

b) Upakarm (उपाकर्म)

c) Chaturhotrkm (चातुर्होतृकम)

d) Chaturhotrkap Vrgh (चातुर्होतृकापवर्गः)

e) Prvrgy Vrtm (प्रवर्ग्यव्रतम) (Promise by initiated to study Vedas in forests).

f) Prvrgy Vrtapvrgh (प्रवर्ग्यव्रतापवर्गः) (Promise by initiated for service of cows to become tejasvi (intelligent).

g) Arun Vrtm (अरूणव्रतम) – (Promise by initiated one to study Upanishada mantras).

h) Arun Vrtapvrgh (अरूणव्रतापवर्गः)

i) Upanishad Vrtm (औपनिषदव्रतम).

j) Shrikamh (श्रीकामः).

k) Yeshskama (यशस्काम)

l) Upanishad Vrtapvrgh (औपनिषदव्रतापवर्गः)

m) Godanm or Keshanta (गोदानम / केशन्ता) – This Samskar is recommended to be performed by boy when he is around 16 years old and beard grows on his face, which needs to be removed. A suitable date is decided and after a small religious ceremony, beard is removed. Under Kashmiri tradition, a recitation of prayers to the devas who control growth of beard, is usually done along with Upanayana.

n) Snanvrt/Samavartana (स्नानवर्त / सामावर्तना) – This represents end of studentship. Samavartana means "returning home from the house of the guru". It is called Snana also because bathing formed the most important item of the Samskara. After this samskara one gets the licence to marry (Vivah) at a suitable age.

k) Vivah (marriage)

(The details given here under are only indicative . For performance of this Samskara the performing priest should consult the actual scriptures). Vivah is the most important of all the Hindu Samskars. Manu who is the father of Indian civil code recognised eight methods through which Vivah (marriage) could be performed.[15]

These are 1) Brahma, 2) Daiva, 3) Arsha, 4) Prajapatya, 5) Asura, 6) Gandharva, 7) Rakshasa and 8) Paishacha. They have been further divided into two groups. The first four are known as Prashasta and next four as Aprashasta. At present only the Brahma method and Asura method are recognised.

Brahma Method

In the brahmana tradition girl is given by the father with ornaments to a person whom he considers man of character and learning, who is invited voluntarily and received respectfully without taking anything in return. The marriage of Surya (daughter of Sun) with Soma (Moon) as described in the Rigveda is the prototype of this marriage.

Asura Method

In this method father accepts money from the bridegroom as the price of giving his daughter in marriage. This method of marriage is common among lower casts.

Vedic Concepts of Marriage

Indian marriage are still based on Vedic concepts which are as follows:

1) Boy should have remained Brahmchari (Bachelor) and learned study of Vedas. Bride should have reached the age of puberty and should be younger than bride groom.
2) Boy and girl should not be from the same gotra.
3) The rituals are based on the description of the marriage of Surya (daughter of Sun) with Soma (moon) in Rigveda and later on in Atherveda[16] with some later additions.
4) Among the deities worshiped for blessing the couple special mention is made of Soma, Ghandarva and Agni who help the physical development of girl and it is they who are the enjoyers of her person. Thus the ceremonies central to the marriage proper are recited to the effect that the bride was first the wife of Soma (moon), then of Ghandarva, then of Agni who lastly bestows her to the human husband. Prayers are also recited to drive away demons and bless the chariot which carries couple.

Marriage Ceremony

Marriage Ceremony, although had their origins in the religious ceremonies, but over a period of time the religious ceremonies got less important and vivah came to symbolise an occasion for festivity in the communal life where under all relatives friends etc. participate. Some of the essential steps of religious ceremony as prescribed in the texts are no longer being performed.

The priest who conducts the ceremony is asked or does purposefully ignore the full rituals and in a such a situation it is rather difficult to describe what is the tradition of this ceremony as it is performed now. However the following description is based on the texts of "Vivah Vidhi"[17] which is standard text for religious ceremony of marriage among Kashmiri Pandits and "The Vivah" which is an English translation of Hindu book on marriage (written by Bhaiyaram Sharma) by R C Prasad.

Previous Day (Devgon)

Both bride and bride groom are purified with consecrated water of Pradhan Kalash (B2) during the religious ceremony known as Devgon (B15). Where as at bridegrooms place there is not much activity on this day, but at brides place there is lot of activity.

The would be bride after holy bath (Kanya Shran) is given gold ornaments which she wears at the time of performance of Homa at Devgon. The special feature of this ceremony is the wearing of "Dejhoor" by the would be bride, which is symbol of her marital status for the rest of life.[18] The utensils that are part of her dowry are also purified by homa.

Dejharoo (Tatanka)
Tatanka is an ear ornaments put on by every Indian women as a mark of being chaste and virtuous wife. Kashmiri Pandits women call this ornament 'Dejhor' which consists of 2 small oval shaped balls of gold with holes for hanging from their both ears by a chain (of gold or thread). The esoteric significance of Dejhor is as follows:

Two Triangular ornaments represent 'Shivakona' and 'Shaktikona', the male and female aspect of 'Para-Shakti' – the Supreme Power. Left one (Vama) has its apex down wards and the right one (Dakshina) has its apex upwards. The three sides of triangular represent three modes of manifestation of Para-Shakti : Iccha-Shakti (Volition), Jnana-Shakti (knowledge) and Kriya-Shakti (activity). Each has its central point which is called Bindu the pivotal point which is known as Parabrahama Swarupini Para Shakti (see Chapter 4 and 9).

Preparatory (At Bridegroom Place)
There is no performance of religious ceremony. Bridegroom after wearing suitable cloths and a turban on his head, and wearing garlands of flowers etc moves towards brides reception place along with entourage of relations, friends etc called bharatis. Family priest is also part of bharat as it is he who conducts the religious ceremony at brides place. In his absence, brides father provides services of a priest.

At Brides Place
There is hustle and bustle every body is on the move. A mandap (place for performance of ritual) has already been erected which measure, about 20 feet by 20 feet. All material required for ceremony are placed there and sitting place for bridegroom and bride during religious ceremony is well decorated on the western side of Agnikund. All Bharatis are received in the main hall or shamiana and after some rest bridegroom and bride are asked to stand at the door of mandap where brides father receives bridegroom and proper ceremonies of marriage starts.

Marriage Ceremony[19]

1) Dvar Pujan (also called Madhurprka) - Bridegroom and bride are made to stand in front of the mandap gate facing the door where girl's father stands along with priest. The place where bride and bridegroom stand is covered with dry grass or a few blades of darbha grass.The bridegroom is worshiped as a symbol of Vishnu with Shodshoupchara (Chapter 15). He is given a six stranded yagnopavit to wear for conduct of puja. Henceforth he always wears six stranded yagnopavit. After that he is given a drink of Madhuparka (a mixture of water, milk, curd and honey) which has already been consecrated by the priest by conducting a brief puja of Ganesha along with other deities of Panchayatan. Other deities worshiped are dharma, adharma, Prithvi and Akash.
2) Rkshghn Mantra - The bride and bridegroom go inside mandap and are offered a seat by the girls father. The priest makes recitation of mantras in praise of Varuna God for protection of the couple.
3) Worship of deities by bridegroom - It involves performance of following angas: (see Chapter 17).

   i) Kalsh Puja (see B1)
   ii) Yogini Puja (see B5)
   iii) Nandi Mukha Shraddha (see B7)
   iv) Navgreha Puja (see B6)

4) Establishing Agnimukha for Homa (see B9)
5) Worship of deities by Bride - Ganesh Puja by shodshopchara methord (see Chapter 15).
6) Sammukhikarana - It is an act of bringing bride and bridegroom face to face and look at each other (through mirror) when they are asked to do so by bride's father. After this bride-groom recites following words:

Aum Samanjantu Vishvedevah Samopo Hrdayani Nau
Sammatarishhva Sandhata Samudeshtri Dadhatu nau

ॐ समन्जन्तु विश्वेदेवाः समापो हृदयानिनौ
सम्मातरिश्वा सन्धता समुद्रेष्ट्री दधातुनौ

This and other mantras recitations are addressed to bride by the bridegroom. Jist of mantras is as follows:-

(O Maiden, all the gods of the world (Vishvadevah – Samstadevatah) may, like pure water, purge your mind as well as your Samskaras of the taint of sin while letting you retain all the best qualities. Like a propitious wind, let Prajapati be favourable and leads us to righteousness and help us attain wealth, potency and liberation. Let the gods of Gayatri Mantra grant us the four goals of life "dharma, artha, kama and moksha".)[20]

7) Shakhopachar (also called Gotrochchara). This is introduction about the ancestry of both the parties given by the bridegrooms side as well as from girls side. In reality no names of the ancestors of each family are given, rather a prototype recitation is carried out by which both claim their lineage to the dynasties of Sun and Moon and various Rishis (This Upchara is not carried in Kashmiri Vivah).

8) Kanyadana (giving away girl as gift) by girls father.

a) Snklpa - (Putting the right hand of girl in right hand of bridegroom). The recitation of snklpa is very long (known as dvijetaravarnakanyadana Samskalpa). The conducting part is as under:

Yagnya Purushah Prajapatih Priytamiti Kanya Vrsya Dkshnhaste Ddatu

यज्ञ पुरूषः प्रजापतिः प्रीयतामिति कन्या दक्षिणहस्तो वरस्य दक्षिणहस्ते दद्यातु

(The gist of Sanklpa is as under "May Prajapati, Yajnapurusha Vishnu, the soul of sacrifice as he is called be pleased with the Samskara, the ritual of Kanyadana, in which brides right hand is held by the right hand of bridegroom.)

The gist of the rest of the Snklpa is as under

i) Snklpa of Kanyadana, is being performed for obtaining absolute happiness of our forefathers.
ii) For purifying my twelve preceding and twelve succeeding generations through the progeny born in this girl.
iii) For the propitiation of Lakshimi and Narayan etc.

b) After giving the gift of girl, the gist of recitation is as under :
I give away this girl adorned with gold ornaments to you, Vishnu with the desire of conquering the world of Brahma. The nourisher of the whole universe, all creatures and gods are witness to the fact that I make gift of this girl for the salvation of my forefathers".

c) The father of girl puts forward the condition for marriage as follows:

Dharme Charthe Ch Kame Ch Natichritvya Tvyeym (धर्म चायें च कामे च नातिचरितव्या त्वयेयम).

("In the attainment of Piety, Wealth and Desire, she is not to be transgressed.)[21].

To this bridegroom promises.

Natichrami (नातिचरामि)

(Transgress her I will not).

After this dakshina is given to the priest.

9) Eulogising of "Kama" by the bridegroom - Bridegroom then puts a question to himself:

Aum Ko'dat Kasma 'adatkamayadatakamo Data Kamah Pratigrahita Kamaitatte

ॐ कोऽदात कस्मा आदात्कामोऽदातकामायादांत्कामो दाता कामः प्रतिग्रहीता कामैततै

("who has given this bride to me". To which he himself replies Kam-Iti. "Kame-the god of Love".)

10) Eulogising of bride by the bridegroom - The bridegroom then recites following mantras, (gist only given).

i) "O Maiden! May all the quarters, the winds that purify all, the Sun whose rays are all lustrous gold, and fire may infuse you with love for me".

ii) "O Maiden! May you be sinless with eyes brimful of innocent simplicity. Pray never kill your husband by doing anything outrageous and improper. May this marriage ceremony auger well for your proteges who like so many animals depend on you for help and well being. May you be jovial and light-heated, beautifully radiant and lustrous, a mother of valiant sons and even ready to serve such gods as the god of fire even while being fond of flirtation. May you be by nature blissful and purveyor of bliss, a redresser of grief and altruistically disposed towards all men and animals".

iii) "O Maiden! You were fortunate enough in that you had protector guardian husband from your very childhood. Your three husbands from the day of birth, Moon, Sun and Agni looked after you and nursed you. I am your fourth husband and will protect you like the aforesaid gods.

iv) "The Sun who is the light of the world, its eye, may endow this women with winning qualities and modesty and so mould her nature that she may become a loving wife and wishing to be blessed with happiness".[22]

11) Panigrahna and Pratijne (Taking sacred vows).
With the right hand of the bride clasped by that of the bridegroom, the following seven vows are taken:

Sacred Vows of the Marriage Ceremony (gist only given).

a) By Bridegroom

1) O, graceful one, I take your hand for prosperity, good children and happiness. Live with me happily till old age. The creator of the universe, learned people and elders assembled here, entrust you to my care for the fulfillment of conjugal life.

2) O beloved one, having followed the path of righteousness I hold your hand. I now become your husband and you my wife.

3) O beautiful one, the sustainer of the universe has united you with me for the fulfillment of the duties of the grihastha ashram (life of householder). May you enjoy a hundred years of joyful life with me.

4) O charming one, with knowledge received from learned men, we become today husband and wife as is the law of god's creation. May the creator of the universe bless us with good children.

5) O sweet one, may the forces of nature – the Sun, Earth, Air, Water, Electricity and Fire – help us to produce noble children.
6) O dearest one, I have accepted you for the continuation of my dynasty, I shall always be faithful in love to you. I shall not do any immoral act. I promise to lead a pure married life.

b) By Bride

1) O my dear one, I too accept your hand for our mutual well being. May you live long with me in love, harmony and understanding. From today let us surrender ourselves to each other and never be unkind or unloving to each other.
2) O my dear, through the grace of god I have, this day, accepted you as my lord. In this world there shall be nothing dearer to me than you.
3) O my lord, I too, having lived an upright life, today become your wife, together with you I shall do my duties to fulfill our married life faithfully.
4) O courageous one, I too entreat Paramatama's blessing for begetting noble children.
5) O My Lord, may we live in harmony making appropriate use of the herbs, plants and other bounties of god, living a healthy life may we have worthy children.
6) O my dear, I too will remain true and faithful to you, I promise to perform my household duties as required by our dharma.

12) Sapt Padi (Taking seven steps) - With a knot tied between the clothings of bride and bride-groom (or by just holding hands as per Kashmiri tradition) indicating fusion of two hearts and different families), the bride and bridegroom take seven steps round the Agnikund (sacred fire) symbolising entry into married life.[23] With every step the blessings of god are sough :

1) Food and Nourishment
2) Strength
3) Wealth
4) Education and knowledge
5) Children
6) Health
7) Love and friendship

13) Brahma Pujan - The bramana (priest) is given presents and remuneration and assigned the role of Brahma for conducting ritual which involves following steps.

i) Snklpa by bridegroom.
ii) Tie thread (Narivan) to bramana as a mark of respect.
iii) Invoking Agni Devta in the Agnikund by Agni mukha homa (see B9).
iv) 21 Ahuties are offered to agni by bridegroom along with recitation of their names.
v) As uttaranga of homa 18 ahuties are given (see B9).

14) Jya Homa (with Ghee) - Homa with recitation of mantras is carried out. The gist of these

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

recitation is as follows:

i) Agni who is the most outstanding of all gods like Indra that presides over the sacrifice, may rid this maiden's sons and grandsons of mortality (mrtyupaskat).
ii) May Agnidev bless her with motherhood of a rich family of children.
iii) May Varuna command that the children of this maiden be set free from the tentacles of death so that the maiden may not have to suffer on account of the death of her children.
As a part of the tradition, bride receives ten walnuts from bridegroom, which she passes on to her father in law as a symbolic gesture of providing a progeny of ten children to the family.

15) Laya Homa

a) Bride and bridegroom standing together with joined cupped hands, both facing east toward Agnikund. Bride's brother (or a maiden as per Kashmiri tradition) pours parched paddy (laya) in the hands of bride. She puts into agnikund along with the repetition of mantra recited first by the bridegroom. This is repeated three times.

Gist of mantra

i) "Aspiring to have a suitable match, the maiden did obeisance to the lustrous fiery Surya, who as an Aditya or as the chief of the manes (Aryama) may accustom her to living in her husbands family, away from that of her parents".
ii) "May my husband live a long life of virility and success and may my kinsfolk be affluent").
iii) "O may husband I drop these parched rice grains (layas) into the fire considering that they are the source of prosperity and luck. I do so for the approval of Bhagadevta (The god of destiny )of this overwhelming affection we have for each often").

b) In the next step, bridegroom holds the right hand of his wife and recites mantras. Gist of mantras :

i) "I hold your hand, dear wife, so that you may live long with me your husband. The three gods – Bhaga, Aryame and Savita have given you as the mistress of my entire household In order you may cause to appear such auspicious things as the sixteen forms of finery (elegant dress, fine garments etc.) six rasas, elegant jewelry and the supreme joy of giving birth to my sons".
ii) Dear wife I am Vishnu, you are Lakshmi and Brahmni, Vaishnevi . Rudrani – the three Shakties combined together
iii) Though we belong to two different gotras we have performed the marriage ceremony and have acquired the rights of a duly married couple.
iv) May our sons, grandsons reach old age and attain immortality. May we also continue to love each other faithfully".

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

16) Shilarohna (rolling on stone) - A stone (usually pestle) kept in the northern direction is used for rolling over it by right foot only by the wife at the command of her husband with the recitation of mantra (gist of mantra – "Oh wife ! May you stand firm on the stone kept in front of you. May you acquire the Samskara of this stone and be steady and firm like it. This firmness may help you tread the foes down and overcome enemies").

17) Sarasvati Vndna - Vedic hymns is praise of Sarasvati are recited the gist of prayer is as follows:

"O Sarasvati, Goddess of eloquence and learning and source of all well being you are the very fountain head and store house of rice (or food in general), which is the reason why you are called Vajinivati (वाजिनीवती).[24]

18) Dayabatta - At the end of homa, prasad (cooked food) is partaken by the newly wed couple from the same plate, both offering morsels of food to each other as a token of affection.

19) Poshpuja - Parents of the bride and bridegroom shower flowers on the couple who are made to sit under a canopy over their head symbolising their bedroom, which is preparation for garbhadhana samskar (to have an ideal progeny).
Vedic hymns are recited along with names of various sages and saints (great warriors, heroic mothers, famous kings and queens of the whole Vedic lore, thereby suggesting names for their progeny. With this ritual the marriage ceremony comes to an end.

Explanations

1) Panday, Rajbali-Hindus Samskaras published by Motilal Banaresidas, New Delhi – 1976-2002.
2) The Social Traditions associated with various Samskaras have been described separately see Chapter 9.
3) Shikha and Yagnapavit are two things essential for a Hindu for performance of rituals. The logic behind keeping a choti (or shikha) has been given as a tribal tradition in earlier periods and for protection of a spot on head called "Sushruta" where two arteries namely shira and sandhi join. It ensures long life. Its damage can cause sudden death. The practice of keeping shikha is fast disappearing among Hindus now.
4) Scriptures do not recommend performance of tonsure at the time of Upanayana if it has already been performed. Among Kashmiri Pandits tonsure is done along with upanayana even if it has been perfromed earlier.
5) It is beyond the scope of this book to write down all the detailed recitations of Sanskrit hymns used in this samskar (it will need a separate publication). However, one or two hymns of each step have been given along with gist of other recitation of mantras.
6) In some case this snklpa is skipped if additional priest (assistant of chandertaruk) is not available.
7) A Person who has been initiated is called Dvija (twice born). One birth is the physical birth as a child from mother and the other birth is spiritual birth through initiation.
8) If tonsure is also to be performed along with Upanayana, then in that case tonsure ceremony is to be performed in the beginning . However ifit has already been performed then this ceremony is not to be performed, but a simple shave of head may be given. It is tradition in Kashmiri Karmkanda that at the time of Upanayana recitation of all the pre Upanayana Samskaras from Gharbdhan onwards is carried out (one fails to understand the logic behind it. It only lengthens the performance of the samskara).
9) The significance of girdle is that is symbolizes submission to sensory discipline to what is called Vrtabhanda or voluntary acceptance of a life which may lead to learning, good conduct, sagacity etc.
10) The yagnopavita should be of three strands of cotton thread which should be of the length of 96 times of the breadth of four fingers of a man. The three folds of the cord represent three gunas, the three rins (debts). They are tied together by a knot called Brahmagranth (Brahmgand in Kashmiri) which symbolizes the trinity of gods. It should be understood that wearing of the sacred thread is not initiation. Initiation takes place with the recitation of gayatri mantra (see step 20 next).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

11) The sequence of steps for performans of Upanayana described has been taken from the books 1) The Upanayana by R. C. Prasad poublished by Motilal Banarasidas and Hindu Samskaras, by the Rajbali Pandey published by Motilal Banarasidass.

12) Translation taken from English edition of Vijyashar Panchang with some modifications.

13) The tradition followed in Kashmir for collection of alms starts right from the time Yagnopavit is put on the boy (step 5) before any initiation has taken place. The alms are in the form of cash.

14) Study of Vedas without Upanayan was not permitted in Vedic period and people of the Shudra cast were permanently debarred from study of Vedas. and hence no upanayana for them.

15) For details see Hindu Samskaras by Rajbali Pandey –ibid.

16) The hymns mostly recited in Kashmiri Pandits marriage are from Atherveda as against, the custom prevailing in northern India where Rigveda hymns are common.

17) Vivah Vidhi (विवाहविधि) prepared and published by Pandit Nath Ram Shastri in 1922 (A reprint is now available).

18) There is no ornament like "Mangal Sutra" in the Kashmiri Pandit marriage. A Kashmiri married women wears Dejhoor as a symbol of her married status. The religious significance of wearing Dejhoor by married women has been given by Janki Nath Kaul (Kamal) in his book Panchastavi.

19) Although marriage ceremony has more action then recitation, it is beyond the scope of this book to describe the recitations in details which will need a separate treatment. However, an adequate description of actions and gist of main mantras has been given along with selected recitations to give reader an insight into the ritual.

20) Quotes given here and at other places have been carried from the book "The *Vivaha", by R.C. Prasad. ibid.

21) The gist of mantras given is from the book Hindu Samskaras written by Rajbali Pandey ibid

22) Gist of mantras taken from "The Vivah", by R.C. Prasad Op. Cit.

23) Legally it is only after performance of Sapt Padi that the marriage is considered as consumed. As per Kashmiri Pandit tradition during Sapt Padi couple is made to walk over seven currency notes which is considered as inauspicious by some as cerruncy symbolises Laxmi (wealth).

24) Monier Williams a famous Indologist has given following meaning of the word "Vaja" :
It implies energy ,vigour, spirit, speed, a contest ,race ,conflict , battle war, the prize of a race or battle, booty ,gain, reward.....The mantra is a prayer concluding a sacrifice ( From Vivah by RC Prasad).

CHAPTER TWENTY

ANTYESHTI & SHRADDHA

(OBSEQUIL RITES)

As per Hindu Tradition disposal of a dead body is also a Samskara. It is called Apara (later) Karma. However it is more commonly known by the name Antyeshti (Final ygnya) in which the dead body is treated as a combination of five elements (Panchmahabhutas: ether, air, water, agni and earth) This body is offered as an oblation in the homa where under the body disintegrates and releases these five elements to join back to their respective sources. The dead person immediately after death is called a Preta. It hovers around the place of residence for one human year which is equivalent to 12 days of Pitr Calender (24 hours of Pitr time is equivalent to one month of human time – see Chapter 11) in the form of Sukshma Sharira (subtle body of mind and ego – see Chapter 1). At the end of one human year it finds a new body and is then called a Pitr. Thus all the rituals connected with Preta are called Antyeshti rituals and those with Pitr are called Shraddha. All the rites performed under Antyeshti have been designated with the aim of transferring a Preta into a Pitr. With the passage of time carrying out these Antyeshti rituals over a period of one year may have become difficult, hence the whole samskara of one year has been compressed into a gauna (secondary form of 13 days affair from the date of death.[1] The performance of monthly Masvar (monthly shraddha) Shadmos (six monthly shraddha) during preta stage of ancestor is a local tradition to keep up the remembrance of departed soul irrespective of karmic demands. The rituals connected with Antyeshti are as follows:

A) On the day of death
B) On the tenth day
C) On eleventh day
D) On twelfth Day
E) Round the year Shraddhas

A) On the day of Death

1) When the person is still on the death bed

1) Anna Dana – Sufficient quantity of rice (about 10 kg or more) in a pot with clean clothes of dead person on it are placed by the side of person and if possible he/she is made to touch it as a snklpa. Some family member can also perform it in critical conditions.

2) Recite mantra in the ear - The eldest son or in his absence any one should slowly recite some Vedic mantra or 'Brahma Jnan' (see under Upanayana Chapter 19) or Guru mantra (if known) in the right ear of the dying person.

3) Put Ganga Jal in mouth - The eldest son or any one else in his absence should hold the dying person's head in his lap and put a teaspoonful of Ganga water (or in its absence water consecrated by Saligram Puja) to the dying person. All near relatives who are present may also do so quickly.

2) *Yama Homa (When the life has ebbed out)

Preparatory

2.1) Clean the floor at the place where the dead body is to be kept. Smear it with cow dung (if possible). Place grass, darbha and black sesamum (til) over it. Lift the corpse slowly and put it over this grass bed with head in the southern direction.[2] Place a lighted earthen oil lamp near the head of dead person with the notch of lamp facing north.

2.2) Stretch out all the hands and feet of the dead person.

2.3) Recitation of Bhagvad Gita or some sacred mantras should be carried out by the mourners till body is prepared to be shifted from the place .[3]

2.4) At some place in the compound, clean a small area about 6 x 6 feet by smearing it with clay or cow dung. In the absence of a compound (e.g. in a flat) this homa may be carried out in a balcony.

2.5) The following materials will be needed for Homa 4

i) Barley flour – ½ kg
ii) Barley grains – ½ kg
iii) One bowl (or taku) for use as Agnikund and carrying to shamshan (cremation ground) for subsequent use.
iv) About 10 small earthen lamps or bowls.
v) Earthen bowls large (8"-10" dia) or taku – 5 Nos.
vi) Earthen pitchers , large (1' x 1½') -1 and small (6" x 8") – 1.
vii) Walnuts – 15
viii) Ghee- ½ kg.
ix) Basket – 1 No for carrying Agnikund and other items to Shamshan (size 15" x 15").
x) Panchmewa (shrean, dry apricots, khajoor,moongphali candies etc.) - total weight about 1 kg.
xi) Piece of drywood – small quantity.
xii) Small quantities of honey, doop, kesr, sesamum, sindur, mavli, darbha, milk, curd, srshp (oil seeds).
xiii) A few cakes made from barley flour (250 gms).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

xiv) Cooked rice – 1 kg.
xv) Potato fingers fried (250 gms).
xvi) some coins

2.2) Homa

2.2.1) Purva Bhagha - The performance of Purve bhagha has following steps:

a) Establishing Kalash (Kalash Sthapna) (see B1 Chapter 17). In this homa besides the Brhm kalash three more kalash pots are established. These are :

i) Gayatri kalash on the southern side of Brhm kalash (i.e. right side).
ii) Bairov kalash on the right hand side of Gayatri kalash.
iii) Astr (or Indr) kalash – On the right side of Bairov kalash.

The pots used in all the kalash's are earthen lamps (except Bairov kalash where a small earthen pitcher is used). In these kalashas water along with vishthur and one walnut is put which are placed on Ashtdals (eight petal lotus figure).
In place of Kshtrapals, five earthen lamps are placed on Aashtdals which represent panchbhuhs.
Lighted oil lamp kept at the head of corpse is taken out and placed on ashtdal in Agneykon (SE Corner). The performer sits facing east along with priest (or one who conducts the ritual) (see Figure).
For carrying out ritual follow instruction as given in Anga B1 of Chapter 17. Address all kalash's together with the words:

b) Establish Agnimukha in an earthen pot (see short version of B9).

c) Purification of offerings - Put some baked bread (Tchvoru) in an earthen bowl (taku) and place it on the left side of performer. Place some barley on this bread. Lift shruch (see Chapter 15 under "utensels") or a piece of wood if shruch is not available by the right hand, place vishthur (see Chapter 15) on it. Recite the words:

Matuh (for mother) or Pituh (for father) Anty Kriya Nimitm

ॐ मातु/पितः अन्त्य क्रिया निमितं

(For the sake of performance of last rites of mother or father).

Put this shruch upside down along with*vishthur* on the pieces of bread kept in pot with the recitation:

Agnye, Vayve Suryay Brhmne, Prajaptye Kushhmrshhebhy Jushhtm Nirvipami

अग्नये वायवे सूर्याय ब्रहमणे प्रजापतये कुष्भ्रषेभ्य जुष्टं निर्वपामि

(Oh, Agni, Vayu, Surya, Brhmn, Prajapate and Rishis, please be happy with this Pitr oblation).

Next remove shruch and keep it aside. Lift vishthur, wash it with water and place it on shruv (see Chapter 15). Next put this vishthur on bread pieces by emtying this shruv on it. Recite the same words as above. Instead of last word Nirvipami (निर्वपामि) recite Prokshami (प्रोक्षामि) (Prokshami = Purification).

Next insert a pieces of darbha in the bread cake and cut it into pieces for offering as oblations in homa.

d) Establishing Ajya pot (Ajya = ghee)

Offer an oblation of walnuts in thefire pot (Agnikund) with the following recitation:

Pitr or Matu Antykriya Nimitm Idam Aajym Arpyami Nmh

पितु अथवा मातु अन्तयक्रिया निमित्त इदं आज्यं अर्पयामि नमः

2.2.2) Pradhan Anga - Ahuties for departed soul. Offer oblations of ghee along with pieces of bread cake as oblations in fire pot with following recitations:

i) Ayushhyh Pranm Sntnu Svaha (आयुष्यः प्राणं सन्तनु स्वाहा)
ii) Pranat Vyanm Sntnu Svaha (प्राणात व्यानं सन्तनु स्वाहा)

x) Antrikshat Divm Sntnu Svaha (अन्तरिक्षात दिवं सन्तनु स्वाहा)

xi) Divh Svh Sntnu Svaha (दिवः स्वः सन्तनु स्वाहा)

(These ahuties pray for the happy and full of life journey of Atma from the various stages in the human body covering pran, vyan, dpan, eyes, ears, speech, earth antirksh and finally to Svarga).

2.2.3) Uttara Bhaga

a) Ahuties for deities etc. (with ghee & pieces of bread).

i) Ritutithyadi Bhyh Devtabhyh Svaha (ऋतितिथयादिभ्यं देवताभ्यः स्वाहा) (to deities of seasons, dates etc.)

ii) Brhmney Svaha (ब्रहमणे स्वाहा)

x) Om Svh Lokay Svaha (ॐ स्वः लोकाय स्वाहा)

xi) Om Bhur Bhuvh Svh Lokay Svaha (ॐ भुर्भव स्वः लोकाय स्वाहा)

b) Purn Ahuti – Empty all ghee of Ajya pot into the Agnipot. Put the walnut from this Ajyapot on sruch and offer it to Agnipot while reciting following Purn ahuti mantra:

Âshravitm Atyâshravitm Vshhtkrtm Avshhtkrtm Annukrtm Atynukrtm Ch Ygne
Tirikrtm Krmno Yt Ch Hînm Agni Stani Prvidn Etu Klpyn Svaha

(Oh Agni Dev, whatever Karma has been done with or without correct calls may please be accepted with pleasure).

The Agni in the Agnipot has to be kept alive for carrying it to the cremation ground for further use there.

3) Giving a bath to the Corpse

3.1) Preparatory

i) A shroud made from white cloth for covering corpse up to neck.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

ii) A white cloth cap to cover corpse from neck upwards including head. On this cloth write Gayatri mantra with saffron in reverse order as given below:

ॐ त-या दचो प्रनः योयोधिहिमधी स्यवदे
गोर्भ ण्यं रेर्वतुवि त्सर्त स्व स्य वर्भु भू ॐ

iii) Two white sheets about 2 meter x 1 meter for placing below the body of corpse after bath and one placing over it. The upper sheet is dyed with saffron if the dead person was the eldest member of family or an aged person.

iv) A wooden platform for placing corpse over it during bath. (usually available from some temple or social organisation).

v) A bier (a wooden platform with wooden supports fixed to it both in front and back to enable atleast 4 persons to carry the corpse to Shamshan bhumi on their shoulders. The platform has raised sides to keep the corpse in place during final journey to Shamshan). It is usually available from some temple or social organisation.

vi) A shawl for covering the bier.

vii) Two lengths of cloth strips (I x 3 feet) for covering private parts of body before and after bath.

viii) A few narrow strips of cloth cut from white sheet or for tieing parts of body sch as hands, feet etc. after bath.

viii) A small quantity of white cotton and honey.

ix) A sock or grass shoe ("Pulhor").

x) Flowers loose and garlands.

xi) Laya ( perchad paddy) 250 grams.

3.2) Bathing of Corpse - The corpse is lifted from the place in the room and carried to the place where it is to be given a bath with lukewarm water mixed with water from three additional kalashas i.e. Gayatri kalash, Bhairov and Astr kalash. (If Yama homa is carried at cremation ground, then the water from these kalashs may be sprinkled over the corpse before final cremation). Milk, curd, ghee, srshp (yellow mustard oil seeds), black sesamum are added to this water. The corpse is placed on wooden platform for giving bath. While giving a bath to the corpse it should be held in a partial sitting position or at least with the head up above ground level. During bath Gayatri mantra along with Vyhrties should be recited as given below:

Om Bhu,Om Bhuv,Om Svah,Om Mha,Om Jnah Om Tapah,Om Satym
O m Bhur Bhuvh Svah Tat SavitурVrenym Bargo Devsy Dhimahi
Deyo Yo Na Prachodeyat

Keep on repeating it till the bath is over. Recitation of 16 hymns of Purushasuktam (see Chapter 23) is considered very auspicious during all the kriyas linked with Anteyeshti. While these recitations are going on, others who are present may simply recite Shrimat Narayn, Narayn Narayn (श्रीमत नारायणए नारायण नारायण) or Kshntvyo Mepradhh Shiv Shiv Shiv Bho Shri Mahadev Shmboo (क्षन्तव्यो मेपराधः शिव शिव शिव भो । महादेव शम्भो).

After bath has been completed following acts have to be performed:

i) A new lion cloth is put on the private parts .
ii) Yagnopavit worn by males is taken out through head and a new one is put on his body through feet in Upseven Position.
iii) Nine Openings of body (both male/female) are to be closed with round balls of doop. These nine openings are 2 ears, 2 eyes, two nostrils, one mouth, front and back private openings.
iv) Put a pavitr (see Chapter 15) on right hand anamika finger.
v) Put on sindur tilak on the forehead and tie a Mavli (Narivan) on the right hand arm (for men) left hand arm (for women).
vi) Place a coin in the mouth.
vii) Wrap the body with white shroud.
viii) Put on cap, but do not cover up face. This should be covered after performance of Arti.
ix) Rub honey on the lower part of both feet and put on cotton on it and then put on grass sleepers (a woolen, sock may be used if grass sleeper is not available).
x) Tie hands and feet together with a pieces of cloth strips already kept ready xi) Place the corpse on the other wooden platform which has been covered with a sheet of white cloth and laid with flower petals, darbha and til (sesamum).
xii) Place cotton sheet (dyed saffron for the eldest member) on top of the corpse.
xiii) Place a new shawl over the body and decorated it with flowers before final journey.
xiv) An oil lamp is kept burning at the place of bath after the corpse is removed. This will be removed after the cremation is over.

3.4) Aarti – Take the corpse held on wooden platform to a convenient place with head on the southern side where everyone can have a final look on the face and make floral offerings. An Aarti with Ratandeep, in which camphor is poured regularly to keep the flame alive, is now to be made by recitation of Vishnu Aarti (Jy Narayan) and or Om Jai Jgdesh (see Chapter 22). If Shnkh is available it should be blown loud and make Gnta ringing as is the practice in any Arti.
At the end of Arti a Snklpa (see A2) is to be made as follows:

Om Tt St Brhm Adhy Tavt..... Mase..... Pakshe ..... Tithi ..... Vare..... Gotre..... Pitu or Matu with Name Svrg Praptyrthm Dupm Rtndeepm Krpurm Arpiyami

ॐ तत सत ब्रहम अद्य तावत.....मासे.....तिथि.....वारे..... गोत्रे.....पितु/मातु नाम सहित स्वर्ग प्राप्तयर्थ धूपं रत्नदीपं कर्पूरं अर्पयामि नमः

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3.5) Pind Dan – Three Pindas (balls) are made from the barley flour. One Pinda is placed on the bier with the Snklpa recitation as above with the closing words.

Anty Kriya Nimitlm Eshh Te Bodhh Pindh Preth Trpytu

अन्त्य क्रिया निमित्तं एष बोधः पिण्डः प्रेतः तृप्यतु

3.6) Journey Towards Cremation Place - The face of the corpse is finally, closed to view by pulling cap over it. The children of family bid good by by showering *laya (*perched pady grains) on the departing soul, while others shower flowers, dry fruits with "Shirin" and coins.In the preparation for lifting the bier, the performer puts his shoulder under it on the head side of corpse (which is facing south) and others follow at other places of bier. It is carried to a little distance by the performer (Krta) who is then replaced by other kith and kin. The karta after freeing himself from the bier has to carry a willow basket containing burning Agnipot of Yama homa, lighted oil lamps (which was earlier kept by the side of corpse and then in the compound); all the kalashas and earthen pots, pieces of bread left from homa and two barley pinda and also cooked rice about one kg.
He carries it on shoulder with his waist tied by a cloth as a mark of mourning. He leads the funeral procession followed by bier carries and then followed by relations and well wishers. During this journey the mourners keep on reciting Kshntvyo Me'pradh Shiv Shiv Shiv Byo Shri Mahadev Shamboo. As per Kashmiri Pandit tradition, ladies do not join the funeral procession. They stay at home. Journey is broken before reaching cremation ground for a halt at a platform outside cremation ground (some tradition have 4 halts symbolising 4 stages of life). The corps is placed on this platform (called Thak Pend) with head south wards. it is exposed to sunlight briefly. Out of 2 remaining barley Pinds (balls) being carried in the basket, one pind is placed on the bier with the recitation of Snklpa (see A2).
The closing words of Snklpa are as follows:

Ant Kriya Nimithm Eshh Te Mkrdhvjh Pindh Preth Trpytu

अन्त्य क्रिया निमित्त ऐष ते मकरध्वजः पिण्डः प्रेतः तृप्यतु

(For the sake of keeping Preta satisfied in this Antim Kriya, Mker dvjh Pinda is being offered).

A clockwise round of the bier is made and then it is lifted again.
In case some transport is used for carrying the bier, the procession terminates after a small distance just outside the place where from corpse is carried and assembles again at cremation ground. This pinda is then offered at a platform within cremation ground.

3.7) At cremation ground -

1) Pind Snklp – After placing bier on the ground place third barley pinda on it with the recitation:

Om Tt St.... closing words are. Anty Kriya Nimitlm Eshh Te Ym Dhut Pindh Preth Trpyuth.

ॐ तत सत ब्रहम अन्तय क्रिया निमित्त एष ते यमदूत पिण्डः प्रेतः तृप्यतु

Establishing Kalash (see Figure under2.2.1).

2) A small place – 2 x 2 meters is cleaned. Brhm Kalash is drawn on it with barley flour on the North Eastern corner. To the right of this an Ashtdal is made with same flour for placing Agni pot. Small earthen lamp which was used as Kalashpot at home is taken out from basket and placed on Brhm Kalash along with water, walnut and vishthur. Live agnipot brought from home is placed on Ashtdal. Burning oil lamp brought from home is placed on the SE corner as is usual in a homa. Performer sits facing east. Both kalash and agnipot have pranitpatr (a pot with water and vishthur) in the SW corner.
3) Kalash Puja – Kalash puja has already been done at home. If it was not possible to perform it at home then it has to be performed here.
4) Homa for Yama – This is repetition of homa done earlier at home with following modified ahuties for departed soul.

i) Om Ayur Ygnen Svaha (ॐ आयर्यज्ञेन स्वाहा)
ii) Om Prano Ygnen Svaha (ॐ प्राणोज्ञेन स्वाहा)
iii) Om Apano Ygnen Svaha (ॐ अपानोज्ञेन स्वाहा)
iv) Om Vyano Ygnen Svaha (ॐ व्यानोज्ञेन स्वाहा)

vi) Om Smano Ygnen Svaha (ॐ समानोज्ञेन स्वाहा)
vii) Om Chkshu Ygnen Svaha (ॐ चक्षुज्ञेन स्वाहा) viii) Om Shrotrm Ygnen Svaha (ॐ श्रोत्रज्ञेन स्वाहा) ix) Om Vak Ygnen Svaha (ॐ वाकज्ञेन स्वाहा)
x) Om Mno Ygnen Svaha (ॐ मनोज्ञेन स्वाहा)
xi) Om Atma Ygnen Svaha (ॐ आत्माज्ञेन स्वाहा)
xii) Om Brhma Ygnen Svaha (ॐ ब्रहमाज्ञेन स्वाहा) xiii) Om Jyotir Ygnen Svaha (ॐ ज्योतिरज्ञेन स्वाहा) xiv) Om Svr Ygnen Svaha (ॐ स्वरज्ञेन स्वाहा)
xv) Om Prshthm Ygnen Svaha (ॐ पृष्ठज्ञेन स्वाहा) xvi) Om Ygno Ygnen Svaha (ॐ यज्ञोज्ञेन स्वाहा)

5) Chit-vas Puja – This involves drawing a kalash diagram at the place where the corpse is to be cremated with barley flour after the place has been cleaned and smeared with earth. Wooden pegs are driven on the outer side of Chitvas Kalash as shown in figure. Flowers, Tilak, Arga are placed on it. Puja at place is carried out as given below:

i) Pran Pratishtha (see A21)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

ii) Gayatri Mntra (3 times)

iii) Snklpa (see A2) for Archam close with the words:

Chitvas Devtanam Atmano Pitu (or Matu) Antykriya Nimitm Archam Ahm Karisheye Om Karishv

चितवास दवतानां आत्मनो पितुं मातु अन्तकृया निमितं अचाअद्यं करिष्य ॐ करिषय ।

iv) Asan (see A3) Put 2 pieces of darbha in the Ishankon (NE Corner)and recite:

Chitavas Devtabhyo Idm Asnm Nmh (चितावसा देवताभ्यो इदम आसनम नमः)

v) Avahan (see A19) Close with the word:

Chitavasa Devtabhyo Avahyami (चितावसा देवताभ्यो आवहयामिः)

vi) Padyo (see A23)

vii) Arghym (see A24)

viii) Gndo (see A37)

ix) Naivedem (see A41) Cooked rice carried from home is used as offering for Naived. Some cooked rice is taken out and kept in a taku separately for use later on. Rest of the cooked rice is placed at the base of 9 wooden pegs starting from NE Corner in clock wise direction along with the recitation:

Chitvas Devtabhyh Om Nmo Naivedym Nivedyami Nmh

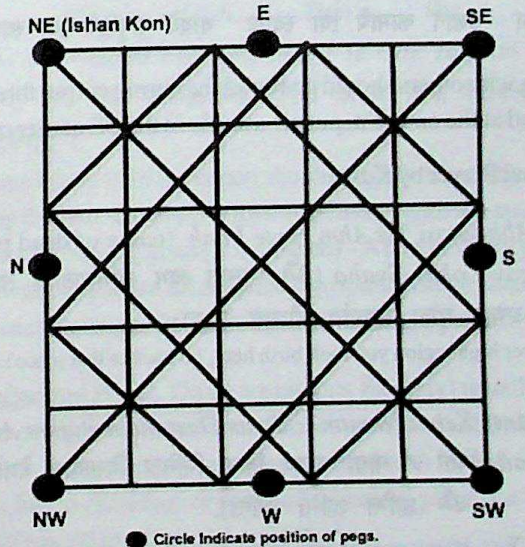
चितावास देवताभ्यो ॐ नमः नैवेदयम् नैवेदयामि नमः



Chitvas Kalash Diagram

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

x) Clothes – If any shawl is to be placed on the corpse, then sprinkle it with water and recite:

Chittavas Devtabhyo Vaso Nmh

चितावास देवताभ्यो वासो नमः

If no shawl is to be placed then use flowers in its place.

xi) Aposhnm (see A46).
xii) Achmaniym (see A25) xiii) Dakshina (see A47).

3.8) Putting Corpse on Chitta

i) Place dry wood logs over chitvas kalash figure in such a way that corpse can be placed over it. This is usually done by paid attendants at cremation ground in towns and cities.
ii) Remove corpse slowly from the bier on which it was carried from home and place it on wooden logs with head southwards.
iii) Put more dry wood logs over the corpse so that corpse can burn completely by it.
iv) Place cotton on few wooden sticks about 18" long.These are called ulmuks. Immerse them in ghee, ignite them and then place them under the wooden logs. Eldest son or who is performer of kriya should place this burning ulmuk below the head of corpse, while other persons may do around the body at other places.
v) Put the ghee pot along with walnut and wooden shruk and shruv (if used) on top of burning corpse while reciting:

Akutyai Tva Svaha, Ishane Kamayai Tva Svaha, Vayve Smrddhyai Tva Svaha, Iti Naitrte

आकूत्यै त्वा स्वाहा ईशाने कामायै त्वा स्वाहा वायवे समृद्धयै त्वा स्वाहा इति नैऋते

vi) Karta along with others should go round the burnig corpse three times in clockwise direction and at the end of it, put all ulmuks in the SE corner of burning chita.

3.9) Recitation of Final Prayer by Karta

a) Asmt Tvm Abhijatosi Tvt Ahm Jayte Punh (name of dead person) Asou Pita (or Mata) Svrgay Lokay Svaha (ॐ अस्मत त्वम अभिजातोसि त्वत-अह जायते पुनः---- आसौ पिता अथवा माता सवर्गाय लोकाय स्वाहा).
(From whatever high region you took birth here, go back to that place again. Let my father/mother go to heaven).

b) Pitu/Matu Anty Kriya Nimitm Chitvas Devtanam Pujnm Achidrm Astu Om Shanti Shanti Shanti (पिता / माता अन्त्य क्रिया निमित्त चितावास देवतानाम पूजनम अछिद्रम-अस्तु । ॐ शान्ति शान्ति शान्ति).
(O, deities of Chita, let my puja of anty kriya for my father (or mother) be free from any blemishes. Let there be peace, peace & peace).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

c) Om Yo Rudro Agnou Yo Apsu Yo Aoushindhi Shhu Yo Vnsptishhu Yo Rudr Vishva Bhuvna Vivesh Tsmai Rudrai Nmo Astudeva (ॐ यो रूद्रा अग्नौ य अप्सु य औषधीषु यो वरस्पतिषु यो रूद्रो विशवा भुवना विवेश तस्मै रूद्राय नमो अस्तुदेवाः). (Om, Rudra who is in Agni, Water, Planets, Herbs and in all the world, we bow to that Rudra).

3.10) Closing Acts

1) At cremation ground

a) Place Agnipot and burning lamp carried from home under the head of burning corpse.
b) When the corpse is almost half burnt, place an axe or stone towards the head of corpse. Fill Astr Kalash pot with water. Karta has to carry this pot in his right hand and pour a small but continuous stream of water around burning chita,in three rounds and at the end of third round he should break this earthen pot by striking it against the axe blade or stone (This act is done to keep evil spirits out of reach of the burning corpse).
c) Purn Ahuti – Karta holding 2 pieces of darbha in his right hand facing corpse and assemblage holding flowers in their hands recite - Purn Ahuti hymns (Gaya mantra or if time permits 16 hymns of Purushasuktam from Chapter 23 may be recited ).

2) After leaving cremation ground

i) All the people who were present during cremation, assemble again at some river or spring or some othr water body for a bath.
ii) Tarpan (see A16 Chapter 16). All persons perform tarpan. Om Tt Sat Brhm..... Month.... Pksh.....Tithi.....Var.....Gotra. Asmt Pitu/Matu Anty Kriya Nimittm Ett Tilodkm Elt Te Udk Tarpnm (ॐ तत सत ब्रहम मास पक्षे तिथी वारे गोत्रा अस्मत माता/पिता अन्त्य क्रिया निमित्त एतत तिलोदेकम-एतत ते उदक तर्पणम । Relations who join in the tarpan should modify tarpan by reciting their own gotra and skip the part which describes the relation with the ancestor.
iii) Going round burning grass (Tchay Zalen) – A bundle of dry grass is alighted at river bank. Before departure, all assembled go round it three times without looking back at it.
iv) After reaching home, the oil lamp kept burning is put off.

3.11) Collection of Ashes and Bones. On an auspicious Var (day) usually Monday, Wednesday or Friday, soon after cremation, the ashes and bones are collected from the cremation ground in wide mouth earthen pitchers, which are then covered with lid and tied by cloth. (If it is intended to carry ashes to Haridvar or some other sacred place at a later date a small quantity of ashes / bones is placed in a box and sealed).
The place where the cremation took place is cleaned of all unburned material, then smeared

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

with clay and water. Flowers, dry fruits are placed at the spot. A silent prayers is held for the peace of departed soul.

The ashes in the pitchers are carried to a place where there is swift water current. In Kashmir they were taken to Shadipur (16 miles from Srinagar) where there is a confluence of River Sind with River Jehlum. (see Chapter 14 - Pilgrimages). A homa as performed on the date of death at home is performed here.

The part of the ashes kept for immersion in the Ganges or some other sacred spot are kept in a sealed condition with cloth wrapped over the container at some safe place.[5]

B) Tenth day Kriya[6]

Fixing the venue

Tenth day kriya is performed at river bank or where there is a fresh water body e.g. lake, spring, pond etc. The choice of place is made before hand as relatives, friends etc. have to be informed so as to enable them to reach the place. It is performed in morning hours. It also symbolises end of mourning period.

Prepratory

i) Cooked rice 1 kg – This is prepared at kriya site.
ii) Earthen pitchers 2 Nos – one 6" x 8" and one 8" x 12" (aprox) with Taku as lids.
iii) One Thali for preparation and holding of Pindas.
iv) White and red cloth to cover above pitchers and one piece of printed cloth for use during head shaves (1 m x 1 m).
v) Mat for sitting while performing Kriya.
vi) Six earthen lamps, one wick for lamp, match box and 50 gms of oil.
vii) Small quantities of sesamum, ghee, honey, milk, shker (sugar), gur, laja (perched paddy), rice for arga, chandan tika, darbha, pavtri, raw wool (black in colour), dhup, loose flowers and four flower garlands -2 large, 2 small, barley flour (half kg) some vegetables and foot long twig of a tree.
viii) A barber is asked to come to site to shave the head of Karta and other sons if any.
ix) Aachor(who is to receive clothes of dead person) is informed to come to site.

Kriya

(Performance) (yagnopavit in upseven position). The priest (or who acts as priest) and Krta (performer) sit facing each other on the bank on river, while others watch from some distance. One or two close relatives act as helpers and stay near the place where kriya takes place.

1) Tarpan (see A16 chapter 16)

Tt St Brhm Adhy Tavt..... (month/paksh/date/day/gotra)..... (name of person who died).
Prthmehni Dvitiye'hni Triteye'hm Chturthe'hni Pnchme'hni, Shhshthe'hni, Stme'hni, Ashtme'hni, Nvme'hni, Dshme'hni Ett Te Tilodkm.

2) Dup Dip Puja Oil lamp has to be lighted and dup ignited. After this, performance of dup dip pooja as described earlier (see Chapter 15) is to be performed.
3) Pind dhan with cooked rice

3.1) Preparing place for Pinddan (Yagnopavit-Upseven)

A small place between the two persons (as stated above) is to be cleaned with water and smeared with loose earth. It is to be covered with darbha (or green turf grass) on it. While sprinkling water over ithe place kriya starts with the following recitation:

Pitrm Svamium Dshahsu Ett Te'Vnejnm (पितरं-स्वामिनं दशाहसु एतत तेऽवनेजनम).

(O the deity of 10 days kriya please take proper care of the Pitr).

Cooked rice is taken out of the utensil in which it was cooked and placed in a thali. This cooked rice is mixed with sesamum, ghee, honey, milk. It is used for making 10 Pindas (rice balls) each about 150 grams. Karta places his left knee touching ground and places these 10 Pindas one by one on the darbha in 2 lines from south to north, starting from south as per recitations and instruction given below:

3.2) Placing Pindas on ground

i) First Pinda – lift with right hand and cover it with left hand. Place it on ground with following recitations:
Snklpa ( SeeA2).

Tt St Brhm..... Month/Paksh/date/day/gotra..... Pitrm/Matrm (father or mother which ever is applicable) Dsahh Su "Prthme'hni" Eshh Te "Pindh" Aph Upsprshy (put little water over Pinda). (तत सत ब्रहम अद्य तावत .....मास/पक्ष/तिथि/वार/गोत्रा.....पितरं/मातरं दशाहः सु "प्रथमेऽहनि" एष ते पिन्डआपः उपस्पृष्ट).

(On this day of year fortnight date day I (name of performer) of ..... gotra am offering pinddhan along with water on the first lap of 10 laps journey).

ii) Similarly for nine other Pindas substitute the words "Prthme'hni" (प्रथमेऽहनि) with the words
iii) Dvitiye'hni (द्वितीयेऽहनि) for 2nd Pinda
iv) Tritiye'hni (तृतीयेऽहनि) for 3rd Pinda
v) Chturthe'hni (चतुर्थेऽहनि) for 4th Pinda
vi) Pnchme'hni (पंचमेऽहनि) for 5th Pinda

vii) Shhshthe'hni (षष्ठेऽहनि) for 6th Pinda viii) Sptme'hni (सप्तमेऽहनि) for 7th Pinda

ix) Ashtme'hni (अष्टमेऽहनि) for 8th Pinda

x) Nvme'hni (नवमेऽहनि) for 9th Pinda

xi) Dshme'hni (दशमेऽहनि) for 10th Pinda.

3.3) Pind Puja - Next Karta places wool, caps of cooked rice, tilak, arg and flowers on these pindas along recitations as given below: (After each action the karta has to wash hands with water).

i) Putting wool over Pindas recite: Ett Te Urn Vash (एतत ते ऊणवासः).

ii) Putting caps recite: Ett Te Virannm (एतत ते वीरान्नं).

iii) Applying chandan tika recite*: Ett Te Gndoo* (एतत ते गन्दे).

iv) Apply flowers, dhoop, arga – use words Pushpm (flowers) Dhoopm (Dhup) and Arghym (arga) in above.

v) Place vegetables by the side. Use words Baksh Bojy Bali (भक्ष भोज बलि).

vi) Putting water (Achman) use the words Achmaniym (आचमनीयं).

vii) Pouring water over Pindas through right hand (Pitr Tirth) recite:

Et Te Himpanm Ett Te Khirpanm Ett Te Mdhupanm Ett Te Tilodkm Udk Trpnm

एतत ते हिमपानं एतते खीरपानं एततते मद्युपानं एतत ते तिलोदकं उदक तर्पषमः viii) Place some more flowers on Pindas.

3.4) Immersion of pindas in River

i) Left 1st Pinda, place it in the thali and then throw it in the running water with the recitation:

Snklpa (A2) as above

Om Tt Adhy Tavt.... Rthme'hni Sushuddh Prkrti Shrir Sadnay Gnga Pravahe Aym Pindstu Purk (ॐ तत सत अद्यतावत.....पृथमेऽहनि सुशुद्ध प्रकृति-शरीरं - साधनाय गंगा प्रवाहे-अयं पिण्डस्तु पूरक). (I am placing this Pinda on.... Date in Ganga for obtaining pure body for the preta.)

Next place some sesamum and water in Thali and throw it in the river as an act of tarpan with the recitation Pitah/Matah Prthme'hni Titodkm Kumb (पिता/मात प्रथमेऽहनि तिलोदकं कुम्भंः).

Repeat above by holding water from river in cupped hands along with sesamum and drop it slowly back into river with the recitation Pitah or Matah Prthme'hni Tilodkanjlih (पिता/मातः प्रथमेऽहनि तिलोदकांजलिः).

ii) Repeat above for the next 9 pindas using the appropriate words as shown above for 2nd to 10th Pinda.

4) Pret Kumb - Joining of Preta with Yamadoot. It is carried out in the following manner:

1) Invoking Preta in pitcher and Yma in earthen plate.
Place some water, darbha, milk, Vishthur in earthen pitcher (which represent Preta) and also in an earthen plate (which represents Yama) and recite:
Shamshananl Dgdhosi Parityktosi Bandhvaih Idm Kshurm Idm Nirm Dshah Su Pret ! Atrsnahi Aph Piv (शमशानानल दग्धोसि परित्क्तोसि बान्धवै इदं क्षीरं इदं नीरं इशाहः सु प्रेत । अत्रस्नाहि-आपः पिव). (Oh Preta move out of Shamshan and accept this milk and water from your dear ones).

2) Place some honey in the pitcher and then in plate and recite:
For Pret (in pitcher ! Dshah Su Mdhtidh (प्रेत । दशाहः सु मधुलीढ).
Ymdut (in plate) Mdhutidh (यमदूत मधुलीढि).

3) Place some sesamum in pitcher and then in the plate with the recitation:
Ymdut Pret Tilan Bhunkshv Ymdut Tilan Bhukshv (प्रेत तिलान भुङ्क्व यमधूत भुङ्क्व) for Preta
Ymdut Tilan Bhunkshv Ymdut Tilan Bhukshv (यमदूत तिलान भुङ्क्व यमधूत भुङ्क्व) for Ymdut.

4) Put some rice in pitcher and then in plate. Recite:
Pret, Dshah Su Annm Addhi (प्रेत दशाहः सुअन्न आदि) for Preta
Ym Doot Dshah Su Annm Addhi (यमधूत दशाहः सुअन्न आदि) for Ymdoot

5) Put some ghee in pitcher only and recite: Pret, Dshah Su Srpi Bhunj (प्रेत दशाहः सुसर्पि भुंज).

6) Put gur, shker, fruits, vegetables (Phal Mul) in both pitchers and plate and recite.
Pret Ymdut Dshah Su Gur, Shrkr, Phlmulooli Bhunkshv (प्रेत यमधूत दशाहः सु गुड शर्कर फलमूलादि भुङ्क्व).

7) Place plate over pitcher and cover this plate with another plate upside down., so as to make the pitcher and plates as one object. Apply kesr, tilak and recite:

Preta Ymdutou Eshh Vam Gndh (प्रेतः यमदूत एष वां अर्घं).
Apply arga and recite:
Preta Ymdutou Eshh Vam Gndh Arga (प्रेतः यमदूत एष वां अर्घ).
Apply flowers and recite
Preta Ymdutou Eshh Vam Gndh Pushpm (प्रेतः यमदूत एष वां पुष्प).
While showing dhup symbolically and recite:
Preta Ymdutou Eshh Vam Gndh Duph (प्रेतः यमदूत एष वां धूप).
Show deep to the pot and recite:
Preta Ymdutou Eshh Vam Gndh Diph (प्रेतः यमदूत एष वां दीप).

vi) (Vas (cloths)) Pith/Mata Chturthe'hni Eshh TeVash (पितः/मात चतुर्थेऽहनि एष ते वासः).

vii) Put some barley flour in the thali along with milk, honey, ghee, and recite: Pite Et Te Annm (पिते एतत ते अन्नः).

viii) Put some flour in the plate kept inside the square. Recite: Adhy Dine Pith (अद्य दिने पितः) (Ett Tt Aposhmm) (एतते आपोशानमः).

6) Pind Dan with barley flour

1) Placing pindas on floor - The barley flour left after Brhmn Bhojn is used for making 4 Pindas. While placing them on darbha in the square or rectangle drawn on floor with lime or flour, recite: Jitm Te Pundrikash Nmste Vishvbhavn Nmste'stu Hrshikesh Mhapursha Prvuj (जितं ते पुण्डरीकाक्ष नमस्ते विशवभावन नस्तेऽसतु हृषीकेश महापुरूष पूर्वज)

2) Snklpa- (see A2) Adhy Tavt..... Close with the words : Pita Eshh Te Pindh (पितः एष ते पिण्डः).

3) Puja - Place water, wool, arga, dup dip, vegetables (Phlmul), til, honey etc. over these pindas as was done during cooked rice Pind dan and recite same words (See. 3.4.2 )

7) Vpn (Shaving of head) - Put water in the cupped hand and recite: Atmnh Shuddhi Kamste Pitu/Matu Vaikunbh Hetve Vpnm Karyishyami (आत्मन शुद्धिकामास्तु पितः/मातः वैकुण्ठ हेतवे वपनं कारयिष्यामि)

(For the sake of purification of myself and assuring place in heaven for my father/mother I am undertaking head shave).

Next the barber should shave the head of Krta and other sons.

8) Immersion of Kumb in the river water - Next the Krta should have a dip in the river water with yagnopavit in svena. After bath he should change Yagnopavit in upseva position, place a *yshthur (See Chapter 15)* on the top of his right shoulder over which he should then hold Pret Kumbe (see item 4 above) and recite:

If Preta is father:
Idm Purushh Shardul Vimlm Divym Ultmm Pret Lokeshhu Paniym Mdttmuptishthtu (इदं पुरूष शादूर्ल विमलं दिव्यं उत्तमम प्रेत लोकेषु पानीयं मुत्तम उपतिष्ठत).

Push back this pot into the water without looking at it.

If Preta is mother
Substitue the words "Idm Purushh Shardul" (इदं पुरूष शादूर्ल) with Idm Svditi Klyani (इदं स्वदिति कल्याणि).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

After this the Karta with put yagnopavit in Svena position and have another bath in river Next he will put on new clothes with cap or towel covering his head. The performing priest should a tilak on his forehead.

9) Invoking Preta in a human body - Achur - There is practice among Kashmiri Pandits to invoke Preta in a human body on this day. A human being, supposed to be a Brahman called Achur (or Panyuch) is invited to be present at river bank for this act. He is symbolically received by Karta.He washes his feet with water. He is smeared with tilak, offered a glass of milk with all dry fruits in it and then at the end presented with the clothes of the dead person to carry home for himself (or his wife if the dead person was a lady). Besides the clothes the package contains essentials of living such as some cash, chapels or shoes, mirror, knife, needle, thread, soap, comb, dry fruits, a walking stick, kangri and even cigarettes with matches or snuf Achur is then requested to leave. While he leaves some one from the audience throws a small stone at his back (this symbolises to keep him away from such happenings in the family in future) After this all leave the place and reassemble at home.
10) Assembly At Home - When karta reaches home, some one from family will perform his Aalat (see A28) An iron rod (salay) and stone pestle has already been placed at the door. He has to push the iron rod inside door with right foot and pestle out side door with left foot. After this he has to come out of home and move between the standing mourners on both sides and then come back. The mourners then disperse. This ends the mourming period by the family. (In the changed situations this part of the ritual is now performed at river bank itself to enable participants to leave for their homes).
While tenth day function symbolises the end of mourning the next two days are meant for performance of religious rites in the name of dead ancestor in which only the close relations participate.

C) Eleventh day Kriya/Shraddha

The first Gauna Shraddha is performed on the eleventh day.
It is an elaborate ritual involving day long activities. A number of Brahmins are invited to recite Bhagwad Gita and other ceremonial hymns. Brahmins from the families of married daughters are also requested to join. At the end of the ritual all Brahmins are offered a delicious food along with dakshina (cash).

Preparatory

1) The place where the ritual is going to be performed should be large enough to have sufficient place for establishing Kalash, Agnikund, sitting place for invited Brahmins and other family members.
2) The place should have a cover and good ventilation for smoke to escape.
3) A part of the place should be cleaned smeared with cow dung or earth for kriya ritual, other part should be laid with flooring for sitting during kriya. A mat should be placed for Karta and officiating priest near the cleaned up area.

c) Vaishvadeva Bali - For performance see B13 (Chapter 17).

d) Shraddha.

Preparatory

i) Cooked rice about 5 kgs in utensils.
ii) Two thalis.
iii) Kawli (small steel bowl) –1No.
iv) All the cooked vegetables in Kawlis that were deer to Preta.[7]
v) A photo of the dead ancestor which is decorated with a flower garland and saffron tilak, placed in the south side facing north.
vi) New utensils (mainly Thali, glass kawli) and cloths (Kurta Pyjama and turban for priest if he puts on a turban to cover his head) which are to be offered to Brahmin who conducts ritual. Other Brahmins are to receive cash only.

2) Kriya (Yagnopavit svena)

Clean a place in front of photo. Karta sits facing south near where there is already Agnikund and Kalash. A rectangular place is demarcated by drawing a line with white flour.

1) Offering food to Preta - Bring the cooking pot in which rice has already been cooked near and smear it with tilak and then place arga and pushp (flower) to it. Keep on reciting: Smalubnm Gndo Nmh, Argonmh Pushpm Nmh (समालभनं गन्धो नमः अर्घो नमः पुष्पं नमः).

Take out cooked rice from the pot (enough for one person) and place it in the Thali already kept in the demarcated place. Place all cooked vegetables in kawls in the thali. Take out three handful of cooked rice from the thali and put it on the right hand side outside the boundary drawn with flour. Recite :

Om Bhut Ptye Nmh, Om Bhuvn Ptye Nmh, Om Bhutanam Ptye Nmh

(ॐ भूत पतये नमः ॐ भुवन पतये नमः ॐ भूतानां नमः).

Lift this thali with your hands, stand up facing the photo of dead ancestor and recite 16 verses of Purushottam (see Chapter 23). Place thali back in the marked place. As an act of achman, place few drops of water near the photo and recite: Pitre or Matre Brhmarpmm Brhmhvi Brhmanye, Brhmahutm Brhmaiv Brhmgntvym Brhmkrm Smadhina (from Bhagwad Gita) (ॐ पित्रे/मात्रे ब्रहमापर्ण ब्रहमहवि ब्रहमाग्नौ ब्रहमना हुतम-ब्रहमैव ब्रहमगन्तव्यं ब्रहम कर्म समाधिना).

(The cooked food is being offered to Brahma as an act of karma. Brahma is Himself havi (ahuti) agni (who receive ahuti), hutm (one who consumes havi).

2) Pindadan (Yagnopavit Upsevena)

i) Outside the demarcated place, but near it, place another plate and empty all the cooked rice from the pot in it. Mix this cooked rice with ghee, milk, sesamum, honey and mesh the whole thing. Make 17 Pindas (balls) from the mixture and (18 in case the lunar year is of13 months). While making these pindas, recites Bhagwad Gita hymns (Chapter 10 is preferred). Place a few darbhas in the south part of Agnikund. Sprinkle a little water on this darbhas and recite: Pitre Ekoddishte Shraddhe Bhuprshthe Drbhastrne Tilodken Ett Te Avnejnm (पितरे एकोष्टि श्राद्धे भूपृष्टे दर्भास्तरणे तिलोदकेन ऐतत ते अवनेजनं).

(Pitra of Eleventh day shraddha please be seated on this darbha seat).

Next these Pinds have to be placed on darbha from North to South in four rows of four each.

ii) Lift one Pinda from the thali with your right hand, place it on the left hand palm, cover it with your right hand as an act of providing cover and then place it on the darbha. Recite:

Tt St Brhm Adhy Tavt Tithou (State/Month/Pksh/Date/Day/Gotra) As per A2 Pitah or Matah Ekoddishte Shraddhe Eshh Te Pindh (तत सत ब्रहम अद्यतावत तिथौ अद्य.....(मास/पक्ष /तिथि/वार/गोत्रा) पिताः अथवा माताः एकोष्टि श्राद्धे एष ते प्रथम पिण्डः).

(Today in this month, paksh, date, day, gotra for the same mother or father eleventh day shraddha this first Pinda is offered).

After placing the Pinda on darbha, place a little of water over it as an act of achman and recite: Âph Upsprshy (आपः उपस्पृशय).

iii) Proceed by placing all the sixteen Pindas in four rows from north to south. For first fifteen pindas, the recitation are same as shown in 1st Pinda except that the word Prthm (प्रथम) has to be replaced with the appropriate word for each pinda as shown below:

2nd Pinda Dvitiyh (द्वितीयः).

3rd Pinda Tritiyh (तृतीयः).

4th Pinda Chaturthe (चतुर्थः).

5th Pinda Pnchmh (पंचमः).

6th Pinda Shhshth (षष्ठः).

7th Pinda Sptmh (सप्तमः).

8th Pinda Ashtmh (अष्टमः).

9th Pinda Nvmh (नवमः).

10th Pinda Dshmh (दशमः).

11th Pinda Ekadsh (एकादशः).

12th Pinda Dvadshh (द्वादशः).

13th Pinda Tryodsh (त्रयोदशः).

14th Pinda Chturdash (चतुर्दशः).

15th Pinda Pnchdsh (पंचदशः).

For 16th Pinda, the recitation as follows:
Prthm Masat Un Samvtsrike Shhodshm Yavt Ekoddishte Shraddhe Eshh Te Pindh (प्रथम मासात ऊन सावंत्सरिके षोडषं यावत एकोद्दिष्टे श्राद्धे एष ते पिण्डः).

Place little water over Pinda and recite for this act as given above.

At the end of placing these 16 Pindas, place seventeenth pinda (which represent) Mulpurush – the first Purusha – see Chapter 23) in front of four rows already drawn. In case the number of pindaṣ is 18, then place this additional pinda also by the side of Mulpurusha.

iv) Next offer new clothes to Mulpurush by placing some new cloth near by with the recitation: Eshh Te Vash (एष ते वासः).

v) Next place cooked rice caps on all t he pindas with the recitation: Ett Te Virannm (एतत ते वीरान्नः).

vi) Next smeal all the Pindas with tilak (with thumb movement downwards( for Mulpurusha- upward). Recite: Esh Te Gndh (एष ते गन्धः)

vii) Next Dûp Dîp: Esh Te Dhupm/Diph (एष ते धुप दीपः) viii) Next place fresh fruits and vegetables (called Phlmûl) near Pindas and recite: Ett Te Bakshy Bhojy Phlmûladi Smrpiyami (एतत ते भक्षय-भोज्य फलमूलादि समर्पयामि).

ix) Next recite one or two hymns of Vishnu from Chapter 22.

x) Next offer Tarpan (see A16) close with words Pitr Ekddishhte Shraddhe Himpanm Svadha (पित्रे एकोष्टि श्राद्धे हिमपानं स्वधाः)

xi) Âpashn (आपोशनः) Place a little cooked rice with vegetables in a cup and recite: Pituh/Matu Ekoddishte Shraddhe Ett Te Nityanm (पितुः/मातु एकोद्धिष्टे श्राद्धे एतत ते नित्यानमः)

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

xii) Achman (yagnopavit svena) Place a little water in front of Pindas as an act of achman.

xiii) Standup and have a look at pindas by turning head backwards where the pindas are placed. Keep rest of the body in the opposite direction.

xiv) Utensils, cloths and cash which is to be given to brahman who is conducting shraddha has to be sprinkled with water as a snklpa. Recite:
Om Tt St ..... Pitr (or Matre).
Pralok Shanyrthe Dakshinam Sannm Subandm Suvstrum Snklpyami
(ॐ तत सतः.....पित्रे (या मात्रे) परलोक शान्त्यर्थ दक्षिणां सान्नं सभाण्डं सवस्त्रं संकल्पयामि).

xv) Place arga and flowers in front of Kalash. Recite: Klashyag Devtabhyo Dakshinayai Tilhirny Rjt Nishkrn Ddani Âkash Matrbhyh Smalubnm Argo Nmh Pushpm Nmh (कलशयाग देवताभ्यः दक्षिणायै तिलहिरण्य रजत निर्ष्कण ददानि आकाश मातृभ्यः समालभनं अर्घो नमः पुष्पं नमः).
(Kalash devatas, I am offering Dakshina in the form Gold along with Seasmum without any desire for reward O, divine mothers who live in heaven, please accept this offering of tika, arga and flowers).

xvi) Gogras - Place some cooked rice on the floor in front of Pindas and recite: Sorbheyah Svrghitah Pvitrâh Puny Rashyh Prtgrhntu Me Grasm Gavh Trailokmatrh Gobhyo'num Nmh (सौरभ्योः स्वर्गहिताः पवित्राः पुण्यं राशयः प्रतिगृहन्तु मे ग्रास गांवः त्रेलोक्यमातरः गोभ्योऽन्नः नमः).
(Dear cows you are residing in the three lokas, please accepts this food which is fragrant, pure and in abundance).

Rourvadhîn Stvanam Pretdvar Nivasinam Arthinam Yachmananam Akshymuptishthtu (रौरवाधीन सत्वानां प्रेतद्वार निवासनाम अथिनां याचमानानां अक्षयमुपतिष्ठतु).

xvii) Declaring closing of Kriya
Klash Pujne Kshtrshvr Pujnm Achidrm Smpurnm Astu Evm Astu
(कलश पूजने क्षेत्रेशवर पूजनं अहिद्रं सम्पर्ण अस्तु एवं अस्तु).
(May this puja of Kalsh and other deities end without any defect).

xviii) Kshma Yachna - read from A49.

xix) Cleaning the place (Yagnopavit Upsevan). Take out food that was used during kriya and throw it in the river or serve it to cows etc.

xx) Efficacy of Mntras in Kriya (yagnopavit svena). After performing achman (A1) sprinkle water on Kalash while reciting mantra as given in A14 (b).

xxi) Put off oil lamp which was placed in the SE corner and serve food to the Brahmins.

D) Twelfth day of Kriya

Twelfth day Kriya is an act of combining Preta with Pitras of three generations males with male's ancestors and females with female ancestors. The various angas of this kriya are as follows:

a) Kalash Puja as given in B1.
b) Gayatri-Vyahriti Homa – As per Eleventh day Kriya.(See 3.2)
c) Vaishvadeva Bali (see B13).
d) Sraddha – The shraddha is performed as given in the eleventh day kriya with some modification as given below:

i) Three plates (or thalis) are placed for food (boiled rice), one for Pitras, one for Preta who has died and one for Vaishvadevas.
ii) As against 17 Pindas in 11th day kriya, only five Pindas are prepared. Three pindas are small (about 125 grams) each which represent three pitras and are placed in one thali; one large pinda (about 500 grams) placed in 2nd thali and one medium size which represents Mulpurusha.
iii) The Preta pinda (large one) is cut into three pieces with a wire and then each of the cut pieces is mixed with the three pindas one by one.The three pindas after merger are placed on darbha to the south of Agni Kund. White placing first Pinda on darbha recite
Vasubhyo Svadh (वसुभ्यो स्वाधः)

For 2nd pinda recite
Rudrbhyo Svadh (रूद्रभ्यो स्वाधः)

Similarly for 3rd pinda recite
Adityboyh Svadha (आदित्यभ्यो स्वाधः)
Next proceed as shown in 11th day Kriya.

Round The Year Shraddha

A number of minor kriyas are also performed during the antyeshti or during the first year after death. Even when some of these kriyas do not have scriptural sanction, yet they have become a part of tradition. An interesting part of these kriyas is that besides the utensils and clothes, items of daily use such as umbrellas, electric heaters, kangris etc are offered to priest to meet requirement of dead ancestor. This appears to be later addition due to economic reasons rather then religious one. Some of these additional kriyas are as under:

1) Pkshvar (पक्षवार) – During the first three months after death, a mini shraddha is performed on every tithi of the death of ancestor in the fortnight.
2) Masvar (मासवार)– During the next three months mini shraddha is performed on tithi of the death date of Shukla Paksha.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

3) Shdmas (षडमास) – At the end of 6 months of death, a full-fledged shraddha is performed.
4) Nun Shraddh – Daughthers of the deceased person perform a brief shraddha on the 11th day in which salt is main offering to Brahmin priest along with rice, clothes etc. A simple recitation of Snklpa is done (see under Annual Shraddha Snklpa).
5) Teel Shraddh – This is performed on any day where under cooking oil is offered in Shraddha.
6) Shraddha Snklp – It involves Snklpa only without actually performing the Shraddha. There arises situation when performance of Shraddha is not possible. On such occasion one can donate rice, fruits, clothes, cash etc first by making a snklpa as given below:

   i) Tarpan (as given in A16).
   ii) Tarpan for the individual in whose remembrance donations are made.
   Sprinkle water along with sesamum (Yagnopavit upsevena) on the objects which are to be donated and recite: Om Tt St Brhm..... Smvt Sarike Shraddhe Annm Svastrum Phlmulm Dakshina Sahitm Snklpyami (ॐ तत सत ब्रहम ..... सावंत्ससरिके श्राद्धे अन्नं सवस्त्रं फल मूल-दक्षिणा सहितम संकल्पयामिः).
   For Kamber Pksh Shraddha use the words "Âpripake Knyarkgte आपरिपाके कन्यार्कगते in place of "Smvtsarike" in the above recitation.

7) Tirth Shraddha – Shraddha are also performed at any time after first year at sacred places such as at Haridwar, Triveni, Gaya, Mattan and Gangbal in Kashmir.

Annual *Shraddha

1st Annual Shraddha and subsequent Shraddhas are performed on the same tithi (as per lunar calendar) on which day the person died. The various angas of annual shraddha are:

a) Kalash Sthapna
b) Homa
c) Shraddha

Kriya

a) Kalash Sthapna – see B1 for performance.
b) Homa – see from 11th day Homa.
c) Shraddha

The Kriya is the same as given in the eleventh day shraddha with following modifications:

1) Four Pindas only are made from the cooked rice (each weight about 250 grams).
2) In the recitations instead of the word Ekoddishte Shraddhe एकोष्टि श्राद्धे (Eleventh day Shraddha) use the appropriate word Samvtsrke Shraddhe सावंत्सरके श्राद्धे – (Annual Shraddha).
3) The four pandas represent three generations of ancestors i.e. father, grand father and grand grand father (in case of women – mother, paternal grand mother and great grand mother). The

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

fourth pinda represents mulpurusha (the original person – see Chapter 25).

4) The recitation for placement of these from pindas is as follows:

   i) 1st Pinda - Tt St Brhma Addytavl..... month/Pksh/Date/day/Gotra..... Pitu/or Matu Sâmvtsrike Shraddhe Eshh Te Pindh (ॐ तत सत ब्रहम अद्य तावत.....मास/पक्ष/तिथि/वार/गोत्र ..... पितु/मातु सावंत्ससरिके श्राद्धे एष ते पिण्डः). After this place little water over Pinda as symbolic âchman while reciting Âph Upsprshy (आपः उपस्पृशय).

   ii) 2nd Pinda – same as above. In place Pita (पिता) use the word Pita Mhay (पिता महाय), Mata Mhay (माता महाय) for mother.

   iii) 3rd Pinda – same as above use the word "Prapita Mahay" (प्रपिता महाय) in place of Pita Mhay (पिता महाय) for Mother use word Prapita Mata Mahay (प्रपिता माता महाय).

   iv) 4th Pinda (Mul Purusha Pinda). This is to be kept in front of above three pindas with the recitations: Mul Purushhah Bhumiswaminh Pitreh Eshha Vh Svaddha (मूल पुरूषाः भूमिस्वामिनः पित्ररः एष वः स्वधा).

5) Place small caps (made from cooked rice) on top of these pindas (these caps are called Virann) Recite: Viranno Pitro Dtt Pindlepm Nivaryet (वीरान्नो पित्रो दत्त पिण्डलेयं निवारयेत).

6) For Tilak, Arga, Pushp, Phlmul etc. follow the procedure given in 11th day Shraddha – use words.Pita – Pita Mhay and Prapita Mhay for malel ancestors and Mata, Mata Mhay and Prapita Mata Mahay for female ancestors.

Explanations

1) As per Hindu tradition a day start from sunrise to sunrise. Thus if death takes place before sunrise, the date of death is taken as the previous day.e.g. a person dying at 6 am on dvadashi will be considered to have dyed on ekadashi if sun rise time was post 6 am.
2) Yama is the king and deity of Southern Quarters. From the time of death, the Preta is under his control. Hence all 'rituals connected with dead ancestors are to be performed facing South (see Chapter 1 also)
3) Weeping and crying near where the corpse should be avoided as it disturbs the dead person who is clinically still listening to the going on' but cannot speak. On such occasions one should remind the Preta that life in this samsara is transtory.
4) The community members used to have centres in various localities called "Mrtyo Samgri Bandar" where one could get all these items at one place with at deferred payment to avoid inconvenience.
5) What an irony ? The loved one for whom weeping and crying goes on is no longer welcome at home. Keeping ashes at home is considered inauspicious, hence they are kept either at cremation ground (where there is room for keeping it ) or at some other place, may be temple or at a safe place in the corner of the compound wall at home Yet the emancipated one's keep these ashes safe for generating in their own houses as a prized possession.
6) Tenth day Kriya in actual practice represents the Kriyas of each of the 10 days, which are performed in one go on 10th day by Kashmiri Pandits.
7) In earlier times this included non-veg food also if preta was a non-veg but now it has been substituted by complete veg food.

CHAPTER TWENTY ONE

MISCELLANEOUS PUJAS

Some of the Pujas which can be classified as miscellaneous pujas are as follows:

A) Shivratri Puja (or Vtk Puja)
B) Birthday Puja
C) Bhumi Puja
D) Greh Pravesh Puja
E) Stynarayan Puja (or Sankrati Puja)
F) Homas for Ganesh, Vishnu, Shiva, Rudra Durga and Surya

Preparatory for all Pujas

i) A new ygnopavit is worn.
ii) While putting on ygnopavit, it is customary to apply zung (जंग) (see Box).
iii) Sindur, Mauli along with arga and flowers should always be available during puja along with Ratandeep, Ganta etc.

Zung

Zung is a Kashmiri tradition of initiation at the start of a puja. A bowl or thali with rice on which is placed some salt and a coin is touched on the right shoulder of performer three times by a young girl of family or in her absence by some other persons. While applying it to performer, the applier offers prayers for long life, good health and prosperity of the performer of puja.

A) Shivratri Puja (शिवरात्री पूजा)

It is usually performed on Phalgun KrishnaPaksha Dvadashi (फालगु कृष्ण पक्ष द्वादश).

Preparatory

a) Pots

1) One pot (earthern or metallic) to symbolise Lord Shiv in the puja.
2) One pot smaller than above to symbolise Parvati.
3) One open mouth pot (called Dulu) to symbolise Bhairov.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

4) Four smaller pots to symbolise Shivganas.
5) Two still smaller pots (called Sanivaris) to represent Kshatrpals.
6) One pot (medium) to be used for establishing Kalash.
7) Two small pot or Kawlis to be used as pranit patr with Kalash and ygnya
8) One Shiv linga to be used as sonipatloo.
9) A few thalis of different sizes to be used for keeping various things during puja
10) One open mouth pot called Rshi Dulij for Reshis (this is optimal as per traditions of family).
11) A large bowl for storing nirmal (water after it has been used in the puja).

b) Puja Samgri

i) Darbha, sindur, camphor, dup/agarbati, knthgun (Bgol) ghee, oil for lamp,silver leaves, yagnopavit.
ii) Kands (sugar cones) one for each member of family for immersion in Shivpot.
iii) Flowers in sufficient quantity, loose and garlands for decorating all deities.
iv) Walnuts (sufficient to fill all pots).
v) Dry fruits for naveed in prepun It may have some nabad (sugar crystals), raisins (kishmish).
vi) Milk, curd, honey, laya (perched paddy) for offering in bathing of deity (abhshekh).
vii) Aaris (round rings made from dry paddy grass for use as base for keeping pots

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

etc.(about 13).

viii) Caps (made from freshly cut soft tree twigs which are moulded into a round shape and then fixed with grass) to be used for placing over Shiv and Parvati pots.

ix) Mauli (sufficient to be put on all pots and on family members as raksha sutra).

x) Earthen oil lamp with wick, Ratandeep and dup stand.

Puja

Preparatory

The placement of utensils representing various deities as shown in figure . The performer sits facing east with Vtk deities placed in front as shown in figure.

i) Fill up all pots (except Bhairav and Rshi Duluj) with fresh water and put walnuts in all of them. Put all pots on Aaris .

ii) Apply sindur on all pots and then put Mavli around their necks. Next put floral garlands on all of these pots. While doing above preparatory work keep on reciting:

Om Nmh Shmbhvay Ch Myobhvay Ch
Nmh Snkeray Ch Myskray Ch, Nmh Shivah Ch Shivtray Ch

ॐ नमः शम्भवाय च मयोभवाय च
नमः शंकराय च मयस्कराय च नमः शिवाय च शिवतराय च ।

Some one from the family applies zung to performer.

a) Kalash Sthapa (see B1, Chapter 19).

b) Vtk Puja

Dup Dip Puja

Put Shivalinga (Sanipatloo) in a thali in front of performer and carry out Dup Deep Puja (see Chapter 15.) In this puja a number of deities may be invoked individually or collectively as given below:

i) Individual invocation:

Maha Gnptye, Kumaray, Shriyai, Srsvtyai, Lkshmya, Klash Devtabyh, Brhm, Vishnu, Mheshvr, Devtabhyh, Durgayai, Trymbkayai, Varunayai, Bhagvate Bhavay Devay, Ugray Devay, Bhimay Devay, Ishnay Devay, Ishvaray Devay, Mha Devay, Parvati-Sahitay Permeshvray Deviputray Vlknathay, Kalratryai, Tal Ratryai, Rajnaratrai, Shivratrayai, Smst Shivratra Devtabhyo.

* Some times Shivratri may fall on triyodasha (as was the case in 2005) then recite the word Triyodasham in place of Dvadasham.

After recitation of snkalpa carry out invocation of deities through any of the above forms and end with the words:

Dup Dip Snklpat Siddhir Astu, Dip Nmh Dupo Nmh

दूप-धीप संकल्पात सिद्धिर-अस्तु दीपो नमः धूपो नमः

2) Tarpan As per A16.
3) Shodshopochara Puja. Carry out 16 steps puja as shown as Chapter 17. While performing this puja offerings should be made simultaneously to Sonipatloo as well as to Shiva Parvati and their Ganas in the pots knd, milk etc. should be offered to Vtuknath (Shiv pot) as Naived (A40) and Madurparka (A41).
Arti recitation may be carried out with Shiv stuties given in Chapter 25 (as per time available).
4) Vaishvadeva Bali perform as given in B13.
5) Uttarbhaga (closing recitation see from Chapter 17.)

B) Birthday Puja (जन्मदिन पूजा)

The birthday of an individual is celebrated on the lunar tithe of the day of birth. The solar date of birth is the day when family priest would come to home with a forecast for the comming year, called Vrshfal In

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

some families this day is also celebrated as an auspicious day for the individual.
This Puja is a typical Kashmiri Pandits tradition. It is not performed by non Kashmiris . It is one of the eagerly awaited pujas by every individual as a day of joy and celebrations. The performer wears new cloths and if married his wife also puts on a new saree and athor. It is a day of family get together especially if the birthday happens to be that of a senior male member of family.

Preparatory

1) Spread a woolen cloth usually a blanket on the floor where the puja is to be performed. The blanket should be placed in north south direction so that performer can sit on the western side facing east
2) Keep ready Zung. (See box in Shivratri puja).
3) All materials that are needed for deity's puja including mavli. (see Chapter 15) should be placed on the blanket
4) Put photo's of Ganesha and Vishnu on the blanket with faces towards the performer.
5) Light up Ratandeep and agarbati/ doop
6) Keep ready Te'hr (yellow cooked rice) which is offered as Naveed. Along with curd and some sugar.
7) Place one thali and two cups on the blanket for use during kriya

Kriya
The performer after taking a bath wears new cloths and sits facing east for performance of puja. The priest or a helper sits by the right side of performer.

1) A new Ygnopavit is worn (if the person is male and has been initiated) along with the recitation of gayatri mantra and yagnopavit dharn mantra as given in Sandya Upasna (Chapter 18).
2) Some one applies zung during change of yagnopavit.
3) Carry out Dup Dip Puja (see Chapter 15).
4) Perform puja as per Shodshopchara (16 steps) or Dashopchara (10 steps) see Chapter 15. In this puja seven Rishis are invoked. These may be addressed collectively as Spt Jnmotsv Devtabhyh (सप्त जन्मोत्सव देवताभ्यः) or individually as Asvathanane (अश्वत्थामने) Blye (बलये) Vyasay (वयासाय) Hanumte (हनुमते), Krpacharyay (कृपाचार्याय) Markndeyay (मार्कण्डेयाय) Prshuramay (परशुरामाय) Spt Chir-Jevebhyh (सप्तचिर-जीवेभ्यः).
   In the puja these are all represented by making seven knots in a length of mavli, long enough to tie on the wrist after performance of puja., ( right wrast for men and left for women) as Raksha Sutra ( See A51 Chapter 16). During the puja this mauli strand is kept on the top of inverted kawli in the thali so that it does not get submerged in the water with which it is propitiated. Seven tilaks are put on seven knots during gand, arga and pushp puja. At the end stuti of Vishnu (see Chapter 22) is carried out as Arti.
5) After Aarti, puja of naveed (which is tehri) is carried out. (see A17 in Chapter 16).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

C) Bhumi Pujan (भूमि पूजन) (also known as Shnku-Pratishtha) (शन्कु-प्रतिष्ठा)

It is carried out at the site where plot of land has been demarcated for some construction on an auspicious day as Punchang.

Preparatory

a) Consumable

1) Water from seven sacred places.
2) Seven metals (Spt Dhatu-see Chapter 15).
3) Seven types of grains (see from Chapter 15).
4) Spt Aoushadi (see from Chapter 15).
5) Seven types of clays (see Chapter 15).
6) Five types of flowers (Except black colour).
7) Five types of dry fruits.
8) Five types of edible fragrances (e.g. Alachi etc.).

b) Non Consumables

1) 5 wooden pegs of fruits bearing trees each 1 foot long.
2) 5 corner stones (square in shape 8"-10" long).
3) 4 figures one each of bull, horse, elephant and human being engraved on Copper plate of 4" x 4" and one snake made from silver wire (usually these are availble from silver smiths).
4) 5 earthen pitchers – each about 8" high.
5) 5 earthen lamps.
6) Some bricks to cover the pots after their placement in the pits.

c) Puja Items - Ghee, Cotton for wicks, matches, rice for arga, dup, agarbati, sesamum (til) sindur, mavli, laya, milk, curd, srshp, flowers, nabad (sugar crystals), walnuts (10), lime. Photo of Lord Ganesh.

d) Naveed Items

1) Tehri
2) Satydev Rot (wheat flour mixed with sugar and cakes fried in ghee).

e) Dig 5 pits (4 corners of proposed place of construction and one in the middle). These pits should be deep enough so that at the time of construction, the pots that have been placed at these corners do not get disturbed. The digging of these pits should start on an auspicious date (Tuesday, Pnchk etc should be avoided). In case trenches for foundation have already been dug, then pits should be deepened at four corners and central part and should be marked with

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

lime for quick location at the time of puja.

f) The materials as given in (a) above should be equally distributed and placed in the five earthen pitchers. These should be decorated by writing word (Shri) with sindur and placing garlands. The five figures of bull, horse, elephant, human being and snake should be placed one by one in above five pitchers. Alight all the five Ratandeep (earthen lamps), dup, agarbati etc.

g) Head mason should also be present to seal the pots properly by making boxes with bricks and cement around pots after they are placed there.

Puja

1) Performer should wear new Yagnopavit facing east.
2) Some one applies zund to performer.
3) Carryout Dup Dip puja as given in Chapter 15.
4) Dup Dip Snklp recitation (A15) will be as follows:

tion of some important even like marriage in the family or acquiring a new home etc.

The deities of homa are generally Ganesh, Vishnu, Shiva, Rudra, Durga and Surya. Homa is performed by offering ahuties with the recitation of one thousand names of deity. The offerings (which vary for each deity) are poured in the Agnikund which has to be large enough. Some times homa of more than one deity (even up to five) is carried out in one go which is spread over night and day.

Preparatory

1) The plece chosen for performance of homa is cleaned and smeared with clay or cowdung.
    1) Agni Kund is prepared and enough dry wood is stored nearby.
    2) Agni Samgri (offerings for Agni Kund):
        i) A mixture of barley, black sesamum (til) and rice called Yuv til.
        ii) One thousand ladoos for Ganesh homa (laddos are round small size fried balls made from wheat flour and ghee). Ten ladoos should be large for offering after the recitation of 100 offerings each time.
        iii) Lotus seeds (Pumboosh) for offering in Vishnu homa, of 1000 offerings
        iv) A mixture of sugar candy (nabad), gugol (kanthgun), pepper, clove (lovung), cinnamon and some fragrant items for 1000 offerings to Lord Shiv.
        v) Shakker (raw sugar), fruits, ksheer (sweet pudding) for offering in Devi homa. These offerings are made individually at the end of each of 100 offerings.
        vi) Sweets (barfi) and shakker (raw sugar) for offering individually in Surya homa
        vii) Ten kands (sugar cones) for offering as ahuties to Vishnu.
        viii) Walnuts in sufficient quantity for use in Kalash Puja and also offering as ahuties for Shiv homa.
        ix) Shriful for ahuties to deities.
        x) Flowers for decoration of deities and also for offering as ahuti to deities. If possible ten lotus flowers for offering as ahuti to Lord Vishnu.

Pre Homa Pujas
The various steps are:

1) The performer sits facing east.
2) A new yagnopavit is worn and zung applied.
3) Carry out Dup Dip Puja (as per Chapter 15).
4) Shodshopochara puja of deity or deities who are to be propitiated.
5) Carry out Kalash. and a brief Navgreh Puja (see B1 and B6).

Homa

a) Purva Bhaga (see B9).
b) Pradhan Bhaga.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

i) A minimum of three persons are required in the performance of a homa with some additional helpers to keep up the supply line of materials. Out of the three persons one person (Chander Taruk) acts as director. He directs the other two in the performance of homa and carries out recitation of names of the deity who is being propitiated. The other two form a team who seat themselves in front of Agnikund and keep on pouring ahuties in the Agnikund with the recitation of word "Svaha".

ii) While one person (usually assistant of the head priest) pours ahuties of ghee with the help Shrucha (see Chapter 15) with each recitation of deity's name, the other person(yajman) makes offerings of materials as given above with his/her hands to the accompaniment of offerings of ghee by the other person.

iii) The 1000 ahuties are made in ten parts of 100 each. At the end 99 ahuties in each part both the performers stand up. One part of Shruva (see Chapter 15) held by priest is filled with ghee and the other part with a large piece of the main offering for that deity (e.g. a large size ladoo for Lord Ganesh or a lotus for Lord Vishnu, a kand / walnut or Shrifal for Lord Shiv, a piece of barfi for Surya, or a fruit for Devi). The yajman holds a handful of materials dear to the deity, in both the hands for offering as ahuti. The head priest then makes following recitation: Tejo Asi, Shukrm Asi, Asi, Dama Asi _____@_____ Svaha (@ read the 100th name). ॐ तेजोऽसि शुक्रमस्य अमृतमसि धामनामसि_____स्वाहा ।

(Oh god, You are possessor of Tejsvi (illumination) Shuykrm (virile Seman) Amrit (immortality) Damana (permanent abode), loved by all gods, please guide me by casting right guidance.)

With the uttering of the word Svaha both the persons holding offerings, pour it in the Agnikund with the recitation of "Svaha."

iv) To break the monotony, after every 100 ahuties, recitation of few lines of any stuti of the particular deity is carried out.

v) All the persons participating in the homa keep on reciting Svaha along with the recitations of main performers and may make offerings of yuvtil in the Agnikund at the end of set of hundred recitations.

c) Uttara Bhaga (see B9 chapter 17).
The thousand names for Ahuties are called Namavalies. Thus we have :

i) Ganesh Shastranamavalli.
ii) Shiv Shastranamavalli. .
iii) Surya Shastranamavalli. .
iv) Bhawani Shastranamavalli. .

Rudra Homa is carried out with the recitation of Namh and Chame (see Chapter 24).

D) *Shanti Pâth

There are innumerable shanty prayers in Vedas. Kashmiri Pandits have a tradition of reciting these prayers which form a group of about 50 hymns known as "Shanti Path" on certain occasions such as arrival of a new child or bride in the family or to ward off bad influences of stars or bad characters. The hymns given bellow are the ones, which are commonly recited at the end of the performance of karma.

i) Om Pûrnmadh Pûrnmidm Pûrnat Pûrnmudchyte
Pûrnsy Pûrnmâdây Pûrnmevâvshshhyte
Om Shantih, Shantih, Shantih

(Brhd Upanishad 5.1.1.1)

ॐ पूर्णमदः पूर्णमिदम पूर्णात पूर्णमुदच्यते
पूर्णस्य पूर्णमादाये पूर्णमेवावश्ष्यते ।
ॐ शान्तिः शान्तिः शान्तिः ।।

{Om that (Supreme Brahman) is Infinite and this (immanent aspect of Brahman which is cause of manifestation) is also Infinite. The Infinite (immanent Brahman) proceeds from Supreme Brahman .Upon realization of the Infinitude of immanent aspect of Brahman (through knowledge), the Infinitude of Supreme Brahman is realized.)

ii) Om Dyauh Shantirantariksham ! Shantih Prthvî, Shantirâpa, Shantiroshadyah, Shantih Vanaspatayah, Shantir Vîshve devâh, Shanti Brahma, Shantih

E) Guru Stutih

This stutih (eulogy) by Shankeracharya has 30 verses, but generally 12 are commonly recited which are given below:-

i)

Brhmanandm Parmsukhdm Kevlm Jnanmûrtim
Dvndvâtîtm Ggnsdrshm Tattvmsyâdi Lkshym

ब्रह्मनन्दं परमसुखदं केवलं ज्ञानमूर्तिम् ।
द्वन्द्वातीतं गगनसदृशं तत्त्वमस्यादिलक्ष्यम् ।।

(You are supreme bliss, Supreme joy, the only one who is personification of knowledge, free from the pairs of opposite (e.g. pain and pleasure; joy and sorrow), vast like sky. These very things are your marks of identification.)

ii)

Ekm Nitym Vimlmchlm Srvdhîsaksh Bûtm
Bhavatîtm Trigunrhitm Sadguru Tvm Nmâmihm

एकं नित्यं विमलमचलं सर्वधीसाक्षि भूतम् ।
भावातीतं त्रिगुणरहितं सद्गुरू तं नमामि ।।

(You are the only one who is ever present, pure, permanent and wise person, who is free from the past and present actions and the three gunas (Satvic, Rajsic and Tamsic) which keep a man in bondage, I bow to such a guru.)

iii)

Chaitny Shashvtm Shantm Vyomâtîtm Nirnjnh

( Who removes ignorance and darkness by moving his Shalak (Needle used for applying surma in the eyes) of knowledge. Who opens the eyes to knowledge. I bow to that guru.)

vii) Nmami Sdgurum Shantm Prtykhm Shivrûpnm
Shirsâ Yogapîthsthm Dhrmkâmârthsiddhye

नमामि सदगुरू शान्तं प्रत्यक्षं शिवरूपिणम् ।
शिरसा योगापीठस्थं धर्मकामार्थसिद्धये ।।

( I bow to my guru who is bestower of peace, who is like Shiv in real form. By whose spiritual touch on my head all my dharmic activities come to success.)

viii) Shri Gurum Prmânandim Vnde Ânanddvigrhm
Ysy Sânindhymâtren Chidanandâyte Parm

श्री गुरूं परमानन्दं वन्दे आनन्दविग्रहम् ।
यस्य सान्निध्यमात्रेण चिदानन्दायते परम् ।।

(I pray to Gurudev who is all bliss, whose very presence is like the presence o Chidananda (Shiv).)

ix) Hrou Rûshte Gurushtrata Guruh Rushte Na Kshchnm
Srvdevsvrupây Tsmai Shri Guruve Nmh

हरौ रूष्टे गुरूस्त्राता गुरोः रूष्टे न कश्चन ।
सर्वदेवस्वरूपाय तस्मै श्री गुरवे नमः ।।

(If God gets angry with us for some of our mistakes, it is guru only who can save us from His wrath; but if Gurudeve gets angry with us, then no body can save us. I bow to that Guru.)

x) Dhyanmûlm Guru Mûrtih Pûjamûlam Guruh Padm
Mntrmûlm Guruvakym Moshmûlam Guruh Kripâ

ध्यानमूलं गुरो मूर्तिः पूजामूलं गुरोः पदम् ।
मंत्रमूलं गुरोर्वाक्यं मोक्षमूलं गुरोः कृपा ।।

(For meditation we focus on the picture of Gurudev, for worship we worship guru's feet; all mantras emanate from Guru, but for getting liberated from this Sansara, only Gurudev can guide us.)

f) Shiv Mahimna Stotr (Mahimnapar)

Introduction

Shivmahimna Stotr or Mahimnapar as Kashmiri Pandits call it, is one of the earliest and one of the most recited Shiv prayer. It is said to have been written by a Gandharva (a demigod or heavenly musician) known as Pushpadanta.It is said that he was a great devout of Lord Shiv. One day he could not get flowers to offer during prayers. He cut flowers from a neighbour's garden without permission ,which he realised later on was a sin; though a small one. To wash off that sin he decided to compose his own hymn to Lord Shiv for his forgiveness. Thus he composed thirty-two hymns and at the end of each hymn he offered his tooth as offering instead of flowers. In this way, he composed thirty-two hymns for his set of thirty-two teeth.

It is a practice in writing of a Stotr (an appreciation) to conclude with writing of a few stanzas stating the rewards for those who conduct that prayer (e.g. a student will succeed in exams, a poor man will be rewarded with prosperity and so on). Thus at the end of thirty-two hymns, there are eleven hymns offering rewards for those who recite the original thirtytwo hymns. However, it is not a common practice to recite hymns that are written for those seeking rewards.

In Kashmir there is a tradition for reciting three hymns at the start which may have been composed by some Kashmiri devout or adopted from some other version. Thus, there are 35 hymns instead of thirty-two. Only Kashmiri's recite hymn number 23 and 30. They may be from the original rendering but their recitation by Hindus outside Kashmir has been dropped. Instead they have different hymns for these two in their version, which have been given at the end of Kashmiri version.

CC-OAgamniga Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

It may be stated that the hymns of this stotr are unintelligible to a person who does not have the background knowledge about the contents described in the hymn. It is in this context that a commentary at the end of each hymn has been written.

Recitation of this stotr is rather difficult without some guidance. In the Sanskrit written language it is common to write several words together and while reading these words pronunciation changes depending at what place the combination of words is broken by the reader e.g. words ending with R or S change to H. Similarly when word is broken at M the next word starts with A. It is the grammar of the language and in no way changes the meaning of the word. In addition, there are various methods of reciting this stotrm. Therefore, it is suggested that one may seek guidance from some knowlegeable person or by reciting along with the recitation rendered by some person on a recorded audio. There are several recordings available in the market.Tthe hymns in this write up have been rendered as per the recitation of Pandit Jasraj award winner of Padma Vibhushan.

The first three hymns of Kashmiri Version are:

1) Âdhinâm Agdm Divym Vyâdinâm Mûlkrntnm, Updravânâm Dalnm Mhadevam Upasmhe

आधीनाम अगदं दिव्यं व्याधीनां मूलकृन्तनम् । उपद्रवानां दलनं महादेवमुपास्महे ।।

(I am worshiping Mahadev - which worship is medicine for mental agonies, destroyer of physical pain, and remover of obstacles.)

2) Ahm Pâpi Pap Khipn Nipunh Shnkr Bhvân
Ahm Bhito Bhita Bhy Vitrne Te Vysnita
Ahm Dino Dino Ddhrn Vîdhi Sjjs Tvm itrn

अहंदीनो दीनो द्धरण विधिसज्जस त्वमितरन ।
न जानेऽहं वक्तुं कुरू सकल शौचे मयि कृपाम् ।।

(I am a sinner. O Shanker you are quick in destroying sins. I am one who is afraid and you are always ready to help the helpless. I do not know anything more about You that I would like to describe. Please help me to be exact.)

3) Jnâs Tvt Pâdabj Shrvn Mnn Dhyân Nipunh
Svym Te Nistrirna N Khlu Krûna Treshu Krûna
Bhve Lîne Dîne Myi Mnn Hîne N Krûnh

(If You are graceful to those who are perfect in praying You at Your feet with their mind and speech, and get them cross over to bhavsagar (Immortal Bliss), that cannot be called as Your grace. If You cannot (will not) help me, who is poor and weak, and deprived of praying at your lotus feet, then how can You be known as Karunasagar (Ocean of Compassion).)

Explantions

1) This has reference to the revelation of god in the physical form when He appeared in His immanent aspect for the benefit of his devotes.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

2) This has reference to Mimasa system which is one of the six systems of Vedanta which does not recognize god in form and thus he is not the cause of creation, preservation and destruction of the world.
3) This has reference to a common belief among people that if they do something they have a definite purpose for doing so and that they need a physical body to do so. Not only this, for making any physical object one needs three things i.e. some instruments, some materials and a support. Ignorant people want to see these conditions fulfilled in gods act of creation as well. But such expectations are idle for the simple fact that god is God. He can not be judged by human standards.
4) This has again reference to Mimasa system They cannot perceive the fact that god is above human perception.
5) This has again reference to Mimasa System.
6) This has reference to six orthodox philosophical schools of thoughts that accepted authority of Vedas. These are regarded as complimentary views of the one truth seen from different angles.
7) Sadashiv is the master of all and giver of boons and all treasures and yet for Himself He enjoys a simple life. To save gods form asuras he paricipated in Sagar Manthn (churning of oceans). For Himself He kept poison which was one of the objects that came out of ocean to save His creation but gave away all the whealth that came out of it to devas. He held all the poison in His throat which made it throat blue, the colour of poison and hence He is refered to as Neelkanth (blue throat) as well.
8) This has reference to the destruction of Tripura sur a demon who was very powerfull and was destroyed by Lord Shiv Himself.
9) This refers to various schools of thoughts as stated above (See Hymn 7)
10) This has reference to a puranic story. Brahma and Lord Vishnu had an argument as to who among them is senior. Just then a huge column of fire appeared in the sky. They stopped their arguments and decided to find about this column of fire and the one who came back first to the spot after probing this column would be declared senior. Brahma want in the upper region while Vishnu went in the lower region. After travelling for thousands of years they returned back to original spot without finding the upper or lower end of this column. Right at that time Sadashiv appeared on the scene and told them that He has decided to manifest Himself for the benefit of His devotees and it is in this context that He manifested a part of Himself as Brahma (for creation of universe and as Vishnu (for its preservation) and as Mahesh (for its cyclic destruction). This is called as Trinity of Gods in Hindu belief.
11) This has reference to Ravana who was a great devout of Shiv. He fought a war with Lord Rama.
12) Ravana got drunk with power and decided to move the adobe of Lord Shiv to his own kingdom in Lanka so that he could worship Him there without taking the trouble of going to Kailash mountain. At this Shiv got very angry and by just moving little finger of his foot Ravana tumbled over and could not get resting place any where, not even in Patal (nether world). He got deluded by his affluence.
13) Banasur was an assur devotee of Shiv. He was son of Bali and grand son of Prahlada. Lord Shiv worship had made him very prosperous so much so that even the wealth of Indra, the Lord of heaven was no match to him.
14) Shiv is called Triyambkum i.e. three-eyed one. The third eye refers to his mental vision with which he reaches everywhere.
15) See footnote of Hymn 8. The blue colour of his throat does not make him look ugly. it rather enhances his looks.
16) This has reference to a puranic story. Lord Shiv was in deep meditation without any break. But gods wanted that a son should be born to Him to lead them in the battle agaist the demon Taraka, as it was professed that only Shiva's son could kill him. Gods sought the help of Kamadev the god of love. Kamadev threw an arrow of passion over Shiv. Shiv was distracted in His meditation and as a punishment burnt Kamdev to ahes with the fire of his third eye.
17) This has a puranic reference. Once a demon prayed for long to Brahma for a boon to destroy the world. Brahma promised to give the boon at a specific date. This alerted gods who approached Lord Shiv for protection. Shiv at this began to dance so that the time for graning of the boon might pass un noticed. It was such a mighty dance that the three worlds were terror stricken.
18) Shiv danced for the protection of the world but becuase of His mightiness unknowingly caused trouble to many.
19) This has reference to a puranic story. King Bhagirth prayed to Brahma for a long time to allow Ganges river flow on Earth to purify ashes of his ancestors. His wish was granted by Brahma and Lord Shiv held it in his matted hair to reduce its impact of falling from such height. The volume of water flowing from Ganges filled the oceans and created land masses of continents within it.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

20) See hymn 9. Tripurasur. He had three sons who had received three cities in boon from Brahma. To show their power they teased devas who prayed to Lord Shiv who decided to destroy all the three cities along with their masters.
21) Lord Shiv did not need the help of all these but he wanted to test the faithfulness of all of them towards Him.
22) The story goes that Vishnu would worship Shiv daily with a thousand lotuses. One day Shiva in order to test the devotion of Vishnu stole away one lotus from his offering of thousand lotuses. At this Vishnu plucked one of his eyes and offered that for the missing flower. Shiv was moved by this action and as a reward gave him the discus, Sudashana with which the latter protected the three worlds.
22) This has reference to Mimasa school which believe that the fruits of sacrifice are stored for some future date without any divine intervention. That is being refuted in this hymn.
23) This has reference to Mimasa school which believe that the fruits of sacrifice are sotred for some future date without any divine intervention. That is being refuted in this hymn.
24) There is a puranic story that Daksha Prjapati, Lord Shiv's father in law by first wife Uma, organised a big sacrificial Yagnya in which all gods participated except Lord Shiv as He was not invited, because he had insulted His father in law by not respecting him on some previous occasion. Lord Shiva destroyed this sacrificial fire through his ganas as a revenge for the insult.
25) Though Lord is giver of fruits of sacrifices but in the absence of devotion there is no fruit.
26) The puranic story goes like this that Brahma had a beautiful daughter (Sandya in human form). Brahma was overcome by lust and wanted to have sex with her. She escaped by taking the form of a deer. Brahma also adopted the same form to chase her into submission. Lord Shiv saved situation by firing an arrow at Brahma, which hurt Him and ever since He became a combination of deer shaped stars in the sky with an arrow of Shiv chasing him that is visible to naked eye even today.
27) As per puranic story Rishis wives were driven to have sex with Lord Shiv when they saw His naked body. This angered Rishis and they cursed Him that resulted in the detachment of Shiv's sex organ that later on became the object of His worship for the mortal as Shivlinga.
(This hymn is found in*Kashmiri* version) only)
28) See Hymn 11.
29) See Hymn 15.
30) Parvati performed much austerity to get love of Shiv. Taking pity on Her suffering, Shiv allowed Her to become part of His body. If Parvati or other young women think that Shiv accepted Her for Her beauty then they are wrong.
31) Rig, Yajur and Sam Ved
32) Namely waking dreaming and sleeping states.
33) Earth, Patal and Swarg Lok
34) Three Gods Namely – Brahma, Vishnu and Rudra
35) The mantra AUM when uttered as one word indicates the absolute Shiv.
36) Out of thousand names of Lord Shiv the following eights are very common.

1. Bhava – one who is creator.
2. Shrva – one who is destroyer
3. Rudra – one who is terrible
4. Pashupati – one who takes care of all beings.
5. Ugr – one who removes ignorance.
6. Maha – one who is above all.
7. Bhima – one who is very powerful.
8. Ishan – one who is a great governor.

37) "Even" here refers to the fact that these names are referred in Vedas which are the earliest reference books.
38) He is near because He is indwelling Spirit of all.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

39) He is far because He is beyond mind and speech.
40) He was existing even before creation of universe.
41) According to Patanjali there are five kinds of misery namely – Ignorance, Egoism, Attachment, Aversion and Clinging to Life.
42) Refers to mythological tree Parijata.

Note

Swami Pavitrananda of Advaita Ashram of Calcutta has made the above translation of hymns. The translation of hymns 23 , 30 and the three hymns recited by Kashmiris at the start is based on Hindi translation made by Pandit Prem Nath Sadoo in his book Mahimnastotrm (Hindi). The above commentary on hymns has been written from references in Shiv Puran and other sources.
This commentary along with stotr can be viewed on internet (www.koa.com.)

g) *Shrî Rudr Mntr (Shri Rudram)

Shri Rudram occurs in the fourth Kande of the Taittiriya Samhita in the Yajur Veda[1]. It is an eulogy of Lord Shiv in His one hundred forms (or powers) of Rudra representing life and nature in their more terrible phases hence it is also called "Shatrudreya" (i.e. one hundred Rudras). It has two parts:

First part has eleven chapters (anuvaks) consisting 66 hymns popularly known as "Namaka", because most of the verses carry the refrain 'Namaka' (or Namo Namah). The next eleven chapters (anuvakas) with 36 hymns are known as "Chamaka" because the refrain here is 'Cha-me' (meaning mine also) .

This Shatrudriya mantra is used both for carrying out recitation (pathe) as well as for performance of sacrifice (homa). Usually recitation of one anuvaka of 'Namaka' is followed by one anuvak of Chamaka. Thus one complete recitation of eleven anuvaks of Namaka followed by Chamaka is known as Rupan. The repetation of Rupan eleven times is known as Rudra Ekadashini. This repeated eleven times is known as Lagurudra or Raudra. Eleven times Raudra is known as Maharudra and yet eleven Maharudras are known as Atirudra.

Chanting of Sri Rudra is very efficacious. Kashmiri Pandits recite it very frequently. Since it takes considerable time in the recitation of this mantra daily, generally the following 11 verses from eleventh anuvaka of Namaka are recited or used in Abhishekh of Lord Shiva.

1) Asnkhyâta Shstrani Ye Rudra Adhibhûmyam Teshhâm Shstr Yojnev Dhnvani Tnmsi

Explanations

1) In the English Commentary of this book by Dr. Ravi Prakash Arya titled "Yajurveda Samhita" published by Parimal Publication – Delhi it forms Chapter 16.
2) Rudra is a terrible form of Lord Shiva (see Chapter 4) Who has a large army (ganas) to punish those who disturb cosmic order (rta). The army, weapons and arrow- are always tightened to punish miscreants.
3) Yojna is a measure of distance.
*) While reciting this line one is expected to bow in the directions as indicated with folded hands (nmaskar).

h) *Purusha Suktam (or Narayana Suktam)

Purusha Suktam is a group of mantra of the Vedas, which describes Para Brahman as a Purusha. The embodied person, embodied spirit or Man personified as having thousands of heads, feet, eyes etc which is offered as Sacrifice (Yagna) called Purushamedha for the creation of entire manifestation, symbolizing the process of creation as a divine act.

This mantra was revealed to Rshi Narayan who is known as the incarnation of Lord Narayan and hence these mantras are also known as Narayana Suktain as well, where under the recitation of

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation
Foundation , Chandigarh

those mantras is used as an act of Supreme Devotion (Bhakti).

These mantras also explain the process of creation by Lord Brahma and hence described as Jnana Yagna as well. These hymns are popular because they are considered one in three because it describes sacrifice (yagna), devotion (Bhakti) and knowledge (Brahma Jnane) in one act.

It has 22 mantras, which are divided into Purva Narayana and Uttare Narayan. Purva Narayana has 16 hymns dedicated to Purushe as Virat Purusha (see Chapter 1) and Uttara Narayana has 6 hymns dedicated to Purusha as Sun. It is generally, the Purva Narayan, which is used in Rituals (homa or puja).

1) Shstrshirsha Purushhh S'hstrakskh S'hstr Pât
S'bhumim Vishvto Vrtvatytishtht D'shangulm

सहस्त्रशीर्षा, पुरूषः सहस्त्राक्ष सहस्त्र पात् ।
सभूमिं विश्वतो वृत्वात्यतिष्ठत् दशान्गुलम । १ ।

Shstrashirsha is understood to indicate Virat Purusha (see Chapter 1) which is the first cause of manifestation holding all the beings in its womb (Hirangarbha) before any manifestation actually takes place. Thus all the heads, limbs, feet etc of beings all are in Parebrhm or Narayan in the initial stage. He is Purusha pervadas the entire cosmos and transcends it by ten angular (thickness of finger) which symbolizes this in and out of the cosmos.

2) Purshh Evedm Srvm Yt Bhutm Yt Ch Bhvym
Uttamrt Trsye Shano, Yt Annenati Rohti

पुरूष एवेदं सर्वं यत् भूतं यत् च भव्यम् ।
उत्तामृत त्वस्ये शानो, यत् अन्नेनाति रोहति । २ ।

Universe in the present from, in the past and in the future all originate form Him. He is the Lord of immortal gods. He is the Universe. He out grows His latent causal state by taking food (He is here symbolised as human being) to become the patent effect viz the Universe. He has assumed the form of universe to help the Jivas work out their karma.

3) Etavansy Mhimâto Jyayanshch Purushhh
Padosy Vishva Bhutani Tripâd Asyamrtmdivi

एतावानस्य महिमातो ज्यायांश्च, पुरूषः ।
पादोस्य, विश्वा भूतानि त्रिपाद् अस्यामृतंदिवि । ३ ।

The Universe in the three forms (past, present and future) indicate His glory, His power and not His real form. Whatever has been manifested represents only one fourth of His Self (indicating He is beyond comprehension).

4) Tripât Urdhvm Udaitpurushhh Pado'syeha Bhvtu Punh Tto
Vishvm Vikramt Sashna Nshne Abhi

त्रिपात् ऊर्ध्वं उदैत्पुरूषः पादोऽस्येहा भवत् पुनः ततो ।
विश्वं विक्रामत् साशना नशने अभि । ४ ।

Three fourths of His body in the form of immutable self-effulgence is in the solar region (this is interpreted to mean that one fourth of Purusha is maya, while three fourths is the real Brahman). It is the maya, which is responsible for the repeated creation and dissolutions.

5) Tsmât Virad Jayt Virajo Adhipurushhh
S Jato Atyrichyt Pshchat Bhumim Athopurh

तस्मात् विराडजायत विराजो अधिपूरूषः ।
स जातो अत्यरिच्यत, पश्चात् भूमिम्-अथोपुरः ।५।

From the primeaval being (आदिपुरूषष) came out Virat Purusha Who by His own maya effect entered the cosmic body as Jiva (the being associated with human body). Thus this Viratpurusha became the devas, men, animals etc. Then he created earth and filled it with seven dhatus (elements).

6) Yt Purushhen Hvishha Deva Yjnym Atnvt
Vsnto Asyasît Âjym Grishm Idhmh Shrt Hvih

यत् पुरूषेण हविषा देवा यज्ञम्-अतन्वत ।
वसन्तो अस्यासीत्-आज्यं ग्रीष्म इध्मः शरत् हविः ।६।

Devas after gaining form, thought of achieving subsequent creation by mentally performing a yagna. Since various substances for sacrifice (yagna) were not created yet, they thought of the purusha swarupa (The purushas form) as itself as the yagna dravya (thing to be offered in yagna). For his mental yagna, the spring season (vasant) became ghee, summer season (Grishm) became faggots, Autumn (Shrat) became the havis.

7) Tm Yjnm Brhishhi Proukshn Purushhm Jatm Agrth
Tîn Deva Ayjnt Sadhya Rshhyshch Ye

तं यज्ञं बर्हिषि प्रौक्षन् पुरूषं जातम्-अग्रता ।
तेन देवा अयजन्त साध्या ऋषयश्चये ।७।

The Purusha who became the sacrificial animal and was tied to the yupa (sacrificial post) was sprinkled with water (as an act of purification) in the mental sacrifice (It is the purusha who is going to become the created beings by sacrificing himself) Gods and Rishis performed the sacrifice (yagna).

8) Tsmat Yjnat Srvhuth Snbrtm Prshht Âjym
Pshum Tanshchkre Vayvyan Ârnyan Gramyanchye

तस्मात् यज्ञात् सर्वहुतः सम्भृतं पृषत् आज्यम् ।
पशूं तांश्चक्रे वायव्यान् आरण्यान् ग्राम्यांश्चये ।८।

From the mental sacrifice came out, food such as curd and ghee. Domestic animals (Gramyan e.g. cows and horses) and two hoofed animals (Aranyan-wild animal) also came out of this sacrifice.

9) Tsmât Yjnat Srvhuth Rchh Samani Jgnire
Chhndasi Jgnire Tsmat Yju Tsmat Ajayt
तस्मात् यज्ञात् सर्वहुतः ऋचः सामानि जज्ञिरे । छन्दासि जज्ञिरे तस्मात् यजु तस्मात् अजायत ।९।

From the sacrifice came out Vedas such as Rk, Yajur etc. Metre (chanda) of Gayatri also came out of above sacrifice.

10) Tsmat Ashva Ajaynt Yeke Chobhyadth
Gavo Ha Jgnire Tsmât Tsmât Jâte Ajavyh

तस्मात् अश्वा अजायन्त येके चोभयादतः ।
गावो ह जज्ञिरे तस्मात् तस्मात् जाता अजावयः ।१०।

Animals, which have two rows of teeth in the upper and lower jaws such as horses, donkeys etc. were born. Cows, goats, sheep were also born.

11) Yt Purushhm Vyddhu Ktidha Vyklpyn
Mukhm Kimsy Kau Bahu Ka Ûru Pada Uchyte

यत् पुरूषं व्यदधुः कतिधा व्यकल्पयन् ।
मुखं किमस्य कौ बाहु का ऊरू पादा उच्यते ।११।

A question is raised by Brahman Vedatins (those who are discussing regarding Brahman) as to in how many ways they (devas and rishis) imagined the purusha which they sacrified mentally. In particular, detail about his face, arms, thighs and feet are sought.

12) Brhmosy Mukhm Âsit Bahu Rajnyh Krth
Ûru Tdsy Yt Vaishyh Pdbhyane Shudro Ajayt

ब्रह्मणोस्य मुखं-आसीत्-बाहू राजन्यः कृतः ।
ऊरू तदस्त यत् वैश्यः पद्भ्यां शूद्रो अजायत ।१२।

The creation of Varunas is explained. From the face (or mouth) came out. Brahmans, from the arms came out Kshetriyas, from the things came out Vaishyas and from his feet came out Shudras.

13) Chndma Mnso Jkatshchkshoh Suryo Ajayt
Mukhat Indrshchagnshch Pranat Vayuh Ajayt

चन्द्रमा मनसो जातश्यक्षोः सूर्यो अजायत ।
मुखात् इन्द्रश्चाग्निश्च प्राणात् वायुः अजायत ।१३।

From his eyes sun was born and form his mind Moon was born, from his face Indra and Fire came out, from the vital airs, the wind were born.

14) Nabhya Âsît Antrikshm Shirshno Dyok Smvrtt
Pdbhyam Bhumirdishh Shrotrat Ttha Lokan Aklpyn

नाभ्या आसीत् अन्तरिक्षं शीषणो द्यौः समवर्तत ।
पद्भ्यां भुमिर्दिश श्रोत्रात तथा लोकान्-अकल्पयन ।१४।

Ether (Sky) came out from his navel, heaven from his head, earth came out from his feet and quarters came out from his ears.

15) Sptasyâ Sn Pridhyh Trih Spt Smidh Krtah
Deva Yt Yjnm Tnvâna Abdhnn Purushhm Pshum

सप्तास्या सन् परिधयः त्रिः सप्त समिधः कृताः ।
देवा यत् यज्ञं तन्वाना अबध्नन् पुरूषं पषुम् ।१५।

This mental sacrifice had seven Vedic metres like Gayatri as the paridhis (border line) (as trees etc had not yet been created from which sticks could be obtained to act as boundary). These seven paridhis represents external nature while twenty-one represent internal nature. Humans are bound by internal and external nature. The five external elements are five elements, days and night, external element are 5 Jnanendriyas, 5 Karmendriyas, 5 Pranas, four antahkaranas dharma and adharma.

16) Yjnen Yjnmyjnt Devastani Dhrmâni Prthma
Nyasn Te Ha Nakm Mhimanh Schnt Ytr Purve

यज्ञेन यज्ञमयजन्त देवास्तानि धर्माणि प्रथमा ।
न्यासन् तेह नाकं महिमानः सचन्त यत्र पूर्वेः ।१६।

In this concluding hymn it is stated that from this mental yagna devas worshipped yagna purusha. Prajapati. From this yagna came dharma, which is responsible for sustenance of the world. It also describes the fruit of the recitation of those hymns. The fruit is the nak (nose), which is of the nature of attaining the virat as the Self.

*) These hymns form Chapter 31 of Yajur Veda Samhita and have been translated by many learned scholars with different interpolations. The translation given here has been adapted from the translation by Sayana from the book 'Sri Rudram and Purusha Suktain' by Swami Amritanand published by Rama Krishna Math, Chennai.

C) Stuties

a) Gâurîstutih[1] (Hymn to Gauri)

This stutih is a reflection of Shiv philosophy and as such is very common among Kashmiri Pandits.[2] It is recited daily at Ârti time at Khirbhawani Tulamulla and also as a part of puja offered by devotees there throughout day. It is recited at other tirthas as well and on all important occasions.

1) Lîlârbdh Sthâpit Lupta Khillokan, Lokatitair Yogibhirntr Hrdi Mrigyam

(Parvati, the daughter of Himalaya, grants graceful speech, great prosperity and devotion of Supreme Lord Shiva to one of pure intellect Who recites this tenfold hymn of Gauri-Parvati in every puja with pure devotion.)

Explanations

1) Some sources claim it has been composed by Vîdya Dhar - the 18th Century AD Shaivite Saint from Kashmir. Janki Nath Kaul in his booklet "Indakshi Stotrum" says Adi Shankeracharya authored it, but this Stutih does not find any mention in the recitations of Stuties outside Kashmir.
2) An English translations of this Stutih has been written by Janki Nath Kaul as a part of Indrakshi Strotum, which has been published by Ramakrishna Ashram, Srinagar, Kashmir. The author has taken help in the translation from this booklet which is greatfully acknowledged
3) Alternative reading is as follows:
Dhyeyam Sukshmm Sukshmtnu Tam Tdit Âbhâ (ध्येयां सूक्ष्मां सूक्ष्मतनु तां तडित आभा) (who as subtle and subtler still is contemplated upon by yogis-who are endowed with intense devotions" and Who alone is worthy of worship.)
4) Alternate reading Abhiramam (Pretty).

b) *Durga Sptshti

These seven hymns have been taken from "Durga Sptshti" which is an eulogy of Durga in Her various forms and describes Her victory over various demons such as Mahishasur, Dhumralochana, Chanda, Munda, Raktbija, Nishumba and Sumbha (see Chapter 5). These seven constitute some of the hymns which describes Her glory and are recited by those who cannot recite the original eulogy which runs into more the hundred verses.

1) Jnâni Nâm Api Chetansi Devî Bhagvtî Hi Sa

(O, mother, Who provides shelter to all the three worlds; all the gods other than You, use both their hands to grant boons of fearlessness and prosperity, but You do not use Your hands while performing such actions. Touching your feet is sufficient enough to get the boon of fearlessness and grant wishes.)

f) *Indrâkshî Stotram

Indrakshi Stotram is very popular amongst Kashmiri Pandits. It is an eulogy of Durga mata in Her Sixty four forms. It is reported that it is popular among south Indian Hindus as well. Indrakshi is the spouse of Indra.[9] Thus like Indra She is the presiding deity of all gods.

Each word of the hymn is a mantra which grants desires to its recitants.

This Stotra has sixteen verses. Verse 1 introduces the deities of the triad Tripurasundari as Indrakshi , Supreme Goddess,Who is Mother of universe, creatrix of the Trinity in which She emanates as Gauri (Parvati) Shakambari (Lakshmi) and Durga (Sarasvati). Verses 2-9 describe sixty four names of the Supreme Indrakshi from Katyayani to Shankardharharini which may represent the knowledge of 64 famous tantras known as Bhairva Agamas or 64 special powers of the Supreme deity. (see Annexure A3 for detailed description of these 64 forms) Verses 10-16 lists the fruits of recitation of the stotra.

The main stotra begins with "Indra uvacha" (Indra said). This has been interpreted as the revelation of the powers of Indra through His Shakti (Indrakshi).

Recitation of Indrakshi stotra begins with "Indra Uvacha" and ends with the end of 9th verses. Verses 10-16 which describe benefits of such recitation are not generally recited.

*) An English Translation along with annotation has been written by Janki Nath Kaul (Kamal) published by Sri Ramekrishna Ashram, Srinagar, Kashmir in 1995. Translations used in this book are from this reference.

Before recitation begins one is supposed perform mantra kriya[2] (see Chapter 3).

Explanations

1) Indra is also known by the name of Sâhasrâksha (one with thousand eyes) and therefore His spouse is known as Sahasrakshi or Indrakshi.

CC-OAgamnigam Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

2) It is not common practice to perfrom mantra kriya.
3) State desire if any for which recitation being offered
4) Anushtp Chndh means metre with eight syllables in a quarter verse (see Chapter 3).
5) Alternate reading देवतासमुदाहृता (Devtasmudahrta)
6) Alternate reading चन्द्रघन्टा (Chndrgnta)
7) Alternate reading रोगहन्त्री (Roghntri)
8) Recitation of this line and subsequent lines (Phal Shrutih) is optional.

g) Bhavani Nama Sahasra Stutih

Introduction

Bhawaninamashasra Stutih is an eulogy of Durga in Her thousand forms (Sahasranama) which is an adaptation from Rudrayamala Tantra.[1] This stutih (prayer) is very popular among Kashmiri Pandits and is used both as Pathe (recitation) and 'homa' (offering of oblations in ygnya).

Another Sahasra nama known as 'Lalita Sahasranama' was composed by Adi Shankeracharya in 9th Century AD, which is popular in south India. It has about 110 names common with Bhavaninama Sahasra Stutih. Yet another Sahasranama known as Gayatri Sahasranama has about 125 names common with this Stutih.

Bhavaninama Sahasra Stutih is considered a mantra which is very efficacious. In its prologue it is stated that Nandikeshvr who was a close attendant of Lord Shiv saw Lord Shiv in meditation and in an act of curiosity asked Lord Shiv's object of His meditation as in his opinion there was no deity which is superior to Lord Shiv. Upon this Lord Shiva replied that it is Durga – the Primordial Power (Shakti) upon Whom He is meditating and recites thousand names (forms) of Durga to Nandikeshvar. Thus these thousand names (forms) of Durga constitute efficacious mantra.

This prologue to Bhawani comprises of 28 hymns. Some devotees prefer to recite these hymns before start of actual recitation and yet others do not consider it essential part of Stotra. For the benefit of devotes this prologue is given below:

Translation ( 1-5)

1) I offer my obeisance to the Durga Who has three eyes (third eye is the eye with which She pervadas whole consciousness), holds various objects in Her four hands such as conch (symbolising sound of word OM), trident (symbolising Her power of destruction), a bow and five arrows. Her diadem is shining with the rays of crescent moon on Her head. She is seated on a lion and is worshiped by all sages. She is pure and sharp like the blades of durva grass (used in rituals). She is remover of all pain.

2) She is charming and glorious busy in Her act of play (creation of universe), blooming through mysterious circles (Yantras) enjoying sweet honey and devouring spiky thorns (symbolising Her power to absorb all good and evil).

3-5)I bow to that Supreme Ruler Who is worshiped by devas, Brahma, Vishnu and Rudra etc. Who is the giver of stability to Her creation, and remover of obstacles of Her devotees. She is mighty adorned with snakes and controls time.)

Eulogy of Lord Shiva (6-7)

Translation 11-24)

Lord Shiva's clarification .(creation process explained through Shiva Philosophy.

11) Oh, best among my attendants. You have asked a relevent questions I shall tell this secret which I have not told even to my son, Skanda.

12-14) After earlier dissolution of universe, Mulprakriti (the seed form of Universe), the personified will of Supreme Spirit consisting of three qualities (three gunas i.e. Satvic, Rajsic and Tansic) desired to manifest (through 36 elements "Tattvas" as per Kashmir Shaivism, 23 elements as per Sankhya philosophy as explained in Bhagvadgita). This Supreme Spirit established itself as light/luster of my mind with all thought process.

15-16) Then the Supreme Para Shakti, expressed, Itself through spoken word (Vâk) came into existence as Mother of the world (Âdya Shakti), Mother of Vedas (Gâyatri), the seven little Mothers (Matrikas viz. Saraswati, Brahmi, Vaishnavi, Raudri, Kaumari, Parvati and Shiva). The goddess confers success, endows one with wisdom and shower peace and prosperity on all.

17) The Universe thus created by Mother Durga is infinite and is subjected to the periodic process of creation and dissolution.

18) When She is worshipped, saluted meditated upon, prayed and praised, She grants success in everything.

19) It is by Her grace that I am praising Her with the thousand Names. She is worshiped thus by all human beings.

20) Being pleased the recitation of these hymns She entered into my being. It is since then that I am enjoying this highest state of sovereignty.

21-22) Her creation, with My involvement as well, includes Devas (immortal) Asuras (demons) Ghandervas (celestial musicians) Yakshas (demigods-the attendants of Kubera), Rakshasas (evil spirits) and Manvaas (human beings) along with creeping animals, the oceans, the mountains and forests, the zodiac, the planets and the stars, all that is the characteristic of the five elements (Panch bûtas-ether, air, fire, water and earth).

23-24) O, Nandi, it is with these hymns I pray to Supreme Shakti Who is both transcendental (Nirakar) as well as immanent (Suguna). Having said this, Lord Shiva stopped. Upon which Nandkeshvr bowed before Him and said.)

One may perform pranayam with Mul mantra of (this Stutih (Om Shrim Shrim Om Om Hrim Shrim Shrim Bhvani Hum Pht. Svaha) (ॐ श्रीं श्रीं ॐ ॐ हीं श्रीं भवानी हुं फट स्वाहा) or with any other mantra e.g. Gayatri Mantra or just Om only.

4) Dyanm (Meditation)

Durga

Ardhendu Mauli Mmlâm Mrabhivndyam, Ambhoj Pash Srinirktt Kpâl Hstâm
Rkttang Rag Rshna Bhrnâm Trinetram, Dhyaye Shivsy Vnitam Mdhovih Vlangîm

अर्धेन्दु मौलि ममलाम मराभिवन्थाम । अम्भोज पाश सृणिरक्त कपाल हस्ताम् ।
रक्ताङ्ग राग रशना भरणां त्रिनेत्रां । ध्याये शिवस्य वनितां मधुविह्वलाङ्गिम् ।।

(We meditate on Durga, the three eyed spouce of Lord Shiva. Her crown is bedecked with crescent moon and Her girdle is decorated with an ornament scented with cosmitics. She holds a lotus, a snare, a goad and a skull filled with blood in Her four hands. She appears agitated over the atrocity done to Brahma by the demon Madhu[5].)

Shiv

Bala Krmndlabhâsam Chturbahum Trilochnam
Pasham Kushshram Chpm Dharyntim Shivam Bhje

बाला र्कमण्डलाभासां चतुर्बाहुं त्रिलोचनाम् ।
पाशां कुशशारां चापं धारयन्तीं शिवां भजे ।

(Shiv lustrous like the morning sun, the three eyed deity with four arms, holding a snare, a hook, a bow and arrows in hands, is adored.)

5) Bhij Mantra (to be recited 3 times)

Explanations

*) This Stutih has been translated into english along with commentary by Jankinath Kaul (Kamal) published by Ram Krishna Ashram, Srinagar, Kashmir in 1991. Guidance in translation has been taken from this book.

1) It is a famous Tantric book, parts of which are not available (see Appendix I).

2) Performance of this kriya is not a common practice .

3) One has to state the desire e.g. having a Son (Santan Praphtay) having wealth (Dhavm Praphtay)

4) State Pathe or Homey depoending upto whether one is performing oral recitation (Pathey) or offering oblations to fire (Homey).

5) Madhu and his brother Kaitabh are demons which were killed by Durga (see Chapter 5).

(He is worshiped by garlands, flowers and by offering fruits, laddus etc and Saints are at His service. Victory to Lord Ganesh, Victory to Lord Ganesh.)

C) Shivoham (शिवोंहम)

Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm

शिवोंह शिवोंह शिवोंह शिवोंह ।

1)

Srv Vishv Ka Jo Parmâtma Hai
Sabî Praniyon Ka Vhi Âtma Hai
Vhi Âtmâ Satchidanand Mai Hûn
Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm

सर्व विष्व का जो परमात्मा है ।
सभी प्राणियों का वही आत्मा है ।
वही आत्मा सच्चिदानन्द में हूँ ।
शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं ।।

(One Who is the Supreme Self of all manifestation, Who is the Self of all living beings as well. "I am the same atma of the Supreme Self Lord Shiv. I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv".)

2)

Jisey Shstr Katey Na Agni Jalavey
Na Panî Gulave Na Mrtiyu Mitave
Vhi Âtmâ Satchidanand Mai Hûn
Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm

जिसे शस्त्र काटे न अग्नि जलावे ।
न पानी गुलावे न मृत्यु मिटावे ।
वही आत्मा सच्चिदानन्द में हूँ ।
शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं ।।

(The Self cannot be cut with weapons nor destroyed by fire. It cannot be made wet by water, nor does it vanish with death. "I am the same atma of the Supreme Self Lord Shiv. I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv".)

3)

Ajâr Aur Amâr Jisko Vedon Ne Gâyâ
Yhi Jnan Arjun Ko Hari Ne Sunâyâ
Vhi Âtmâ Satchidanand Mai Hûn
Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm

अजर और अमर जिसको वेदों ने गाया ।
यही ज्ञान अजुर्न को हरि ने सुनाया ।

वही आत्मा सच्चिदानन्द में हूँ ।
शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं ।।

(This Âtma has been described as unborn and everlasting by Vedas. This very knowledge was given to Arjun by Lord Krishna. "I am the same atma of the Supreme self Lord Shiv. I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv".)

4) Amâr Âtmâ Hai Mrmshil Kaya
Sabî Praniyûn Ke Jo Gt Mai Samayâ
Vhi Âtmâ Satchidanand Mai Hûn
Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm

अमर आत्मा है मृण शील काया ।
सभी प्राणियों के जो घट में समाया ।
वही आत्मा सच्चिदानन्द में हूँ ।
शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं ।।

(Atma is permanent (amar) the body only dies. This atmâ lives in all beings. "I am the same atma of the supreme self. I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv".)

5) Hai Tarûn Sitarûn Mai Prakash Jis Kâ
Hai Chndr Va Surye Mai Vâs Jis Kâ
Vhi Atma Satchidanand Mai Hun
Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm Shivohm

हे तारों सितारों में प्रकाश जिसका ।
है चन्द्र व सूर्य में वास जिसका ।
वही आत्मा सच्चिदानन्द में हूँ ।
शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं शिवोहं ।।

(Supreme Self makes stars and other heavenly bodies look bright. It is present in Sun and Moon. "I am the same atma of the Supreme Self Lord Shiv. I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv, I am Shiv".)

Sacred Scriptures

The sacred literature of Sanatana Dharma is known as Veda, which stands for collective knowledge (Vid = knowledge) "The Vedas are considered to be the creation of neither human, not gods, but are regarded as Eternal Truth that was in the ancient times directly revealed to or 'heard' by gifted and inspired Seers (Rishis), who later on transcribed it into the most perfect human language, Sanskrit".[1]

Vedas represents the absolute authority regarding interpretation of Hindu religious traditions. Vedic scriptures are broadly classified into two groups :-

a) Sruti Scriptures
(4000/2000 BC – 1000/500 BC). "Sruti" in Sanskrit means "what has been heard". All the Vedas fall in this category. These prescribe rituals and meditation for attaining harmony in life.

b) Smriti Scriptures
(500 BC – 700 AD) "Smriti" means "that which was remembered". They were written later on to explain what is contained in the Vedas. They are thus of the nature of commentaries on Vedas.

A) Sruti Scriptures

The Vedic knowledge, which was revealed to Indian seers over a long period of time was carried on in oral tradition for centuries together. It was later on (around 2000 BC) recorded and grouped into 4 divisions by a Scholar Seer known as 'Ved-Vyasa' whose original name was Krishna Dvaipaayana (Black one, brought up in an Island). He is supposed to have authored Mahabharata (Ithasa) and other 18 Mahapuranas, Brahm Sutra etc. Some believe Vyasa was surname of writers who wrote these books and that Krishna Dvaipâyana was 28th Vyasa in the line.

Vedas have been described as the bedrock of Sanatana Dharama and other religions, which developed in India such as Buddhism, Jainism etc.

There are four Vedas:

a) Rigveda (Wisdom of Verses)
b) Yajurveda (Wisdom of Sacrificial formulas)
c) Samveda (Wisdom of chants)
d) Atharveda (Wisdom of Atharvan Priests)

Each of the Vedas has further four subdivisions:

1) Samhita
2) Brahmanas

CC-OAgamniga[illegible] Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

Gandhi Memorial College Of Education Bantalab Jammu

3) Aranyakas
4) Upanishads

1) Samhita – part describes Rikas (mantras) or incantations in praise of divinities associated with the sky and the atmosphere. These hymns constitute the main text of the particular Veda, which they belong. Thus, there are four Samhitas in four Vedas. The other three subdivision of each Veda are sometimes called as 'Shakhas' of that Veda and are supposed to have bean written later on.
2) Brahmanas – interpret the hymns of Samhita and prescribe the methodology for the performance of Ygnya (sacrifice oblation).

These are further divided into two parts:

i) Vîdhi Veda – They give directions for performance of rites in Rikcas form.
ii) Artha Veda – They give explanatory remarks for above in prose style. They act as guide books.

3) Aranyaka – means forest dweller. The hymns in these books are those, which contain knowledge obtained by rishis in the seclusion of forests and are more often of the nature of philosophical and metaphysical speculation, which gave rise to asceticism.
4) Upanishads (also called Vedanta). They are divine revelations which represent the main philosophy of Vedas regarding god, nature and man. The basic teaching of Upanishads is that in essence all things, from blade of grass to a human being, are an aspect Brahman (Supreme Being). These Upanishedic teaching also indicate a shift in the Vedic thought from sacrifice (ygnya) as a means for propitiating devas, as seen in earlier parts (Samhita) to knowledge (jnan) as the means of liberation.

a) *Rig Veda (Rig = Praise)

It is known as the mother of all Vedas in the sense that other Vedas utilize the mantras (called Rkâs) of this Veda for the purpose of their sacrificial formulas (agnya) and Chants (Samanas). The Rikâs (mantras) of this Veda are in fact eulogies through which Vedic gods have been invoked. It also contains deep thoughts of rishis (seers) in the form of incantations.

Rigveda contains 10552 Rikâs (mantras) arranged into 102 Suktas (a collection of a very beautifully composed incantations), which have further been divided into 10 Mandalas (Chapters). The compositions of these Rikâs is attributed to various rishis such as Bhrgu, Visvamitra, Gautama, Atri, Bharadvaja and Vasishta. The deities addressed in these hymns are Indra (250 Hymns). Agni (200 Hymns) Soma (100 Hymns) and Surya, Varuna, Ashrina, Rudra, Maruts, Usha etc. (see Chapter 1).

b) *Yajûr Veda (Yaj = Worship)

Yajûr Veda describes sacrificial formulas in detail (most of which are from Rigveda) both in the form of prose and verse (Rikâs). Most of the rituals, which are currently in use, have been derived from this Veda. The often recited Ved Mantra known as "Sri Rudra" forms chapter 16 of this Veda (see Chapter 25 for Sri Rudra mantra).

CC-OAgamnigam Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

The performance of sacrifices (Ygnya) as per this Veda has lead to two schools who interpret these formulas differently. These are known as Shukla Yajûr Veda. (SYV) also called (Vajasaneyâ Samhita) and Krishna Yajûr Veda (KYV) (also known as Taittiriya Samhita). Shukla Yajûr Veda school is followed in North India (north of River Narmada) and Krishna Yajûr Veda is followed in South India (South of River Narmada)[2].

Yajûr Veda has 3988 Rikas/Verses.

c) *Sama Veda (Sâman = melody set to a Rikâ)

Sama Veda is a collection of Rkcâs (mostly from Rig Veda), which has been set to a tune for recitation at the time of sacrifice (Ygnya). It has two parts:

1) Purvarchika – It has 585 disjointed hymns from Rigveda.
2) Uttararchika – which has 1225 Rigvedic. Verses, but less disjointed.

Karnatic music (one of the two major system of Indian music) owes its origin to this Veda.

d) *Athar Veda

This Veda has both prose and poetry and deals with sacrificial formulas to ward off diseases, calamities, and also to destroy enemies. Sorcery and magic are also attributed to it. This Veda has no hymns for performance of sacrifice. Some scholars are of the opinion that this Veda is a later addition to earlier mentioned three Vedas. It has 730 hymns divided into 20 Kandas.

b) Smriti Scriptures

Vedic knowledge which is of divine nature and was remembered by memorizing it, needed to be preserved and explained for the benefit of humanity at large. Hence, the Indian seers devised learning methods which ensured not only their preservation but their correct recitation and meanings. As a result of this experimentation, a number of traditions developed right from last stages of Vedic period (around 500 BC) to medieval period (around 1000 AD) and these have been grouped as Smriti. Scriptures.

This tradition resulted into the creation of numerous volumes of diverse subjects like etymology of mantras, grammar, meter, ceremonial guides, philosophy, code of conduct etc. The broad grouping of books of these subjects has been done as follows:

a) Vedangas (500-200 BC): These are considered links of Vedas. It is due to this knowledge that we have the right authority (pramanans) for performance of rites which helped in preserving Vedic knowledge in its original form. It has six parts. In addition these there are four smaller divisions known as Upa Vedas.
b) Smritis and Nibanda Granthas: These contain instruction for religious and moral behavior of human society, education, personal hygiene, happiness and other subjects.
c) Puranas: These form the largest body of smriti literature. They explain Vedic principles though stories and legends of the ancient kings, heroes, sages and divine personalities etc.
d) Epics (Ithasa): Ramayana and Mahabharata are two great epics of Hindu literature.
e) Brahm Sutras and Upanishads: These are commentaries on Vedas which form Jnan Kanda (Aranyakas and Upanishad) and deal mostly with principles of Vedic philosophy.

f) Dharshanas: These describe various branches of Vedic philosophy.

a) *Vedangas

(also known as Shastras). Vedanga means "limbs of the Veda". There are six Vedangas which are considered as auxiliary to and in a sense part of the Veda. The six vedangas have been compared to six limbs (nose, mouth, foot, ear, eye and hand) of cosmic human body. (Ved Purusha – see Chapter 1). These six limbs of Veda are:-

1) Shiksha – (nose) (pronunciation, syntax etc). It deal with phonetics and etymology of mantras which is achieved by correct pronunciation (uccârana), tone and accent of sound (svara), duration (matra), force of sound (bala) continuity, transition in recitation (sama and santana). The books dealing in this branch are known as Pratishakhyas. It is said in ancient period every rishi (who headed a gotra) produced his Pratishakhya, but some of these have been lost and the three Pratishakhyas which have been preserved are:

1.1) Rik Pradyashakhya written by Shaunak, of the Shukla branch of Yajurveda.
1.2) Vajasaneya Pratishkhya written by Katyayane of Vajaseneya (branch of Shukla Yajurveda).
1.3) Sama Pratishkhya written by Pushpamini of Samaveda.

2) Vyakrana (grammar) – (mouth): All that is spoken by mouth constitutes important part of a mantra, hence this vedanga is of considerable importance. Grammar is the most important part of languages. Five purposes for study of grammar are:

2.1) Raksha (Protection): Which mantras should be used in a particular sacrifice for having maximum benefit depends on in-depth meaning of every idiom, sentence and total meaning of the mantras.
2.2) Uha (Derivation): In Sanskrit language there are different words for gender. So derivation of the words of a mantra for a particular gender is essential.
2.3) Agam (Knowledge of Veda): It is essential to know the Vedic knowledge for proper utilization of grammar in a mantra.
2.4) Agam (Convenient method) Even for conciseness the study of grammar is inevitable.
2.5) Asandeha (Resolving doubts or ambiguity). Knowledge of grammar can resolve any ambiguity of the meaning of mantra. Patanjali, Katyayannan and Panini are writers of grammar.

3) Chandas (metre for poetry) – (foot): Chhanda has been used to regulate the succession of certain groups of syllables (long, short, stressed, and unstressed) in which poetry is usually written.

It corresponds to tala in music. Thus chandas ensure that mantra form (Rk) is not distorted. Katyayan has stated that one who studies or chants mantra, without having the appropriate knowledge of its 'chand', rishi (seer) and devta (deity, for whose honour, the mantra is recited), all his objectives remains unfulfilled.

Chand has been extensively described in Rik Pratishakya (see above Shiksha) and in

also in Chanda Sutra by Pingala.

4) Nirukta (Undeclared) – (Ear): It was composed by Saga Yask as a commentary on the book called 'Nighantu' written by Sage Kashyap explain the meanings of certain words of Vedic literature which had lead to different interpretations of Vedas. The importance of this work lies in the fact that it served as a guide for future commentators of Vedas to write commentaries in the accepted meanings of words as prescribed in Nirukta.

5) Kalpa Sutras (manuals) – (Hand): Kalpa means 'practical, feasible' and Sutra means "Short aphorisms". There are Kalpa Sutra in all the four Vedas. The four Kalpa Sutras are:

1) Shraut Sutra's
2) Grihya Sutra's
3) Dharma Sutra's
4) Shulva Sutras

5.1) Shraut Sutra's – The main subject of these sutras is the description of the various oblations (ygnyas) as propounded by Vedas. Great emphasis is laid on selection of sacrifical fire and its re-ignition in some special circumstances. As such these sutras are of general interest to people.

5.2) Grihya Sutras – It contains the detailed description about the various oblations performed in a household like sacred thread ceremony (Upayana), marriage (Vivah), death rituals (Shraddh) etc. The Grehya Sutra followed in North India is known as Grihya Sutra of Shukla Yajur Veda (SYV), which is also known as Paraskar Grihya Sutra. These Sutras describes 40 Sanskaras of a Hindu which include 16 Sanskars which are in vogue now in North India.

5.3) Dharma Sutras – These describe duties of all four castes (Varuns) and also duties of King).

5.4) Shulva Sutras – They give description for construction of sacrificial alters based on ancient geometrical science.

6) Jyotisha (Astronomy and Astrology) (eye) Astrology is divided into three parts:

1) Siddant (Theory)
2) Samhita
3) Jataka

6.1) Siddant - It helps one to understand good and evil results (effects) with the help of minute arithmetic calculations related to rising and setting of the planets and other heavenly bodies.

6.2) Samhita - It deals with good and evil effects which occur due to the combinations of the planets, day and night transitions and seasonal transition which effect the whole world.

6.3) Jataka - means the good and evil effects, which occur during the transmigration of soul though 84 lakh Yonis and the effects which heavenly bodies have on joy, sorrow, gain-loss, destiny etc.

Upa-Vedas

These, constitutes sub-division of Vedic knowledge which relate to matters other than sacrifice or philosophy. It has four divisions :

1) Ayur Veda
2) Dhanur Veda
3) Artha Veda

CC-OAgamniga Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

4) Ghander Veda

1) Ayur Veda – It deals with the science of ancient system of Indian medicine that uses natural herbs and plants to cure disease.

2) Dhanur Veda – It deals with science of archery and other weapons. It also specifies war strategies, rules of warfare and about prisoners of war.

3) Artha Shastra – It deals with ethics to be followed by kings for proper administration, and for fighting enemies. It is, written by Kautilya.

4) Ganderva Veda – It describes the science of music and dance. Natya Shastra written by Sage Bharata is the chief manual of this Veda.

b) Smriti and *Nibandha Grantha

(Smriti not to be confused with Smriti Scripture). After writing Vedangas, yet another form literature Smriti and Nibands came into vogue after Vedas, which simplified Vedic knowledge. It was presented in the form of manuals in simple prose language as against earlier knowledge, which was in the form of brief poetic expressions called manuals.

These scriptures have been categorized into three categories as under:

1) Codes of conduct (Aachâr Samhita)
2) Codes of behavior (Vyavahara Samhita)
3) Codes of Atonement (Prayaschita Samhita) or Codes of punishment (Danda Samhita).

All the three aspects are essential for worth while existence of a man.

1) Codes of conduct – For right code conduct, spiritual development is essential and spiritual development depends on implementation of 16 Sanskaras (for details see Chapter 21), which cover life from birth to death and even after. The performance of these Samskars also depends on the Varna (cast) of a person e.g., the two most important-duties of a Brahman are (a) penance and (b) learning and acquiring knowledge.

2 Codes of behavior – All categories of people have been advised to preserve right behavior, which is essential for smooth functioning of society. Laws have been prescribed for king for proper administration and for the punishment for those who violate social laws.

3) Codes of Atonement – It is natural for a man to commit mistakes. To undo the sins associated with a wrongful action done knowingly or unknowingly, there have been prescribed rules for atonement such as performing rituals and giving also in charity etc. including recitation of mantras etc.

There are 20 Smrities written by 20 different sages and all these have been named after the sage who wrote it. These are:-

1) Manu, 2) Atri, 3) Vishnu, 4) Hârit, 5) Yagya Valkya, 6) Ushanâ, 7) Angira, 8) Yama, 9) Aapasthamba, 10) Samvarta, 11) Kâtyâyens, 12) Vrihaspati, 13) Parâshar, 14) Vyâsa, 15) Shankh, 16) Liket, 17) Dakshâ, 18) Gautam, 19) Shâtâtap, 20) Vashishta.

In addition to above there are other Smrities (about 30 more) which are not considered important.

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

c) *Puranas (300 AD – 800 AD)
The word Purana means old or ancient. Thus Puranas are old and ancient texts. They record stories among famous people of time and describe religious beliefs of people and society as such.

They are supposed to have been written by rishis or sages. There are many Puranas, which have been classified into 18 Mahapurans and Purans. For a Purana to be recognized as Mahapurana it must cover five subjects (Lakshanas). These are:

1) Sarga – creation of universe.
2) Pratisarga – after 1st creation periodic destruction and recreation of world.
3) Vamsha – genealogies of gods and saints.
4) Manvantaras –the history of various eras of manifestation.
5) Vamshanucharita – the histories of solar and lunar dynasties.

Thus around this core of five subjects a mahapurana contains matters of religious concern, customs, ceremonies, sacrifices, festivals, duties of various casts, description of places and pilgrimages. In the Puranas, Vedic gods were upgraded and presented as living beings. Thus came into existence Trinity of Indian Gods: Brahma, Vishnu and Shiv. The 18 Mahapuranas, have each been grouped into 3 groups (6 each for 3 Gods of Trinity). Thus there are:

1) Vishnu Puranas
2) Brahma Puranas
3) Shiva Puranas

Bhagwat Purana dedicated to Lord Vishnu is one of the most important Purana.

d) *Epics (Ithasas) (200 – 500 BC)
Ramayana and Mahabharata are two great epics, which have influenced Indian society to a great extent and have influenced cultures of some neighboring countries as well.

Ramayana was originally written by Sage Valmiki around 500-200 BC. It has 24000 verses in Sanskrit. A popular version of this book was written by Tulsi Dass in Seventeenth Century, in the Hindi language which is very popular.

Mahabharata epics, describes the war between Kauravas and Pandavas. The epic is believed to have been composed by Sage Vyasa during the period 200 BC – 400 AD, but opinions about this date differ.

The details about these two epics are already known to most of the readers and hence, the need for description is not desired.

e) *Brahma Sutra and Upanishad

1) Brahma Sutra*: (also known as Vadanta) Upanishads constitute the last 4th part of all the Vedas and deal with philosophical aspects of the relationship between man world and god. The aphorism of these Upanishads in the Vedas remained hidden knowledge, as it was difficult to understand this knowledge.

It goes to the credit of Sage Badrayana who for the first time systemized the knowledge of Vedanta and interpreted it by writing Brahm Sutra around 500-200 BC. This Brahm Sutra became the original writing for subsequent commentators on the Vedanta, which came to be known as Vedanta philosophy.

2) Upanishads*: Upanishads is a combination of three words upa-ni-shad. The word 'upa' means near', 'n' means 'down' and 'shad' means sit. Thus Upanishad means 'sitting near the teachers and receiving Vedic teachings". The Upanishad is a form of literature, which represents commentaries on various jnan-kandas of Vedas by learned seers. These teaching focus on philosophical questions such as relationship between Atma (soul) and Brahman, creation of universe, causes of human suffering re in-carnation, Karma etc. The teachings of these Upanishads are not organized into a philosophical system, as they were written by sages who were not preachers of philosophy. They do not deal with theology either and are not dogmatic.

It is said originally many Upanishads were written but many have been lost. There are still 108 Upanishads available. Some of these are in prose and yet others in verse. However out of all these, only 11 or 12 are considered to be principal Upanishad. These are:

1) Kathar Upanishad
2) Isha Upanishad
3) Kena Upanishad
4) Prasne Upansihad
5) Mundaka Upanishad
6) Mundukya Upanishad
7) Taittiriya Upanishad
8) Aitareya Upanishad
9) Chandogya Upanishad
10) Brihadaranyaka Upanishad
11) Kaivalya Upanishad
12) Svetasvatara Upanishad

A brief discussion of these Upanishads follows:

1) Isha Upanishad (also known as shâvasyopanishada).

This Upanishad has 18 mantras (versus), which form the fourth chapter of the Kanva Shakha Samtuta of the Yajurveda. Scholars have ascribed this as the first Upanishad, which is also the shortest one. It discusses at length the benefits of god realization and the characteristics of ignorance.

2) Keno Upanishad: This Upanishad forms a 9th part of Brahmana of Samaveda. The main topic covered in this Upanishad is "the Supreme Devine Cosmic Energy which is very profound and difficult to follow". Therefore, it is explained in the form of a conversation between a teacher and his disciple.

3) Katha Upanishad:
Katha Upanishad is famous among Upanishads. It is an integral part of the Katha branch of the Krishna Yajurveda. The comprehensive description of the eternal divine elements of the Supreme God is expressed though the conversation between Nichikata a seers son and God of death (Yama). The dialogue between Nichikata and Yama is as revealing as the dialogue between Arjuna and Krishna in Bhagwat Gita. As a matter of fact some of the verses which are found in Bhagwat Gita, do exist in this Upanishad also.

4) Taittiriya Upanishad:
This is one of the most important Upanishads, which forms part of Taitteriya Aranyaka. Brahman is described as

"Satyam Jnanam, anatam brahma"

(Brahma is truth, knowledge, infinite).

It deals with creation of world and discusses moral issues for youth and others.

5) Chandogya Upanishad: It is an integral part of the Tvalkara Brahmana of the Samveda, just like Keno Upanisahd. Therefore peace invocation is same. This is the longest Upanishad. Through stories, parables and dialogues this Upanishad illustrate existence of Brahma, the value of truthfulness, usefulness of knowledge. It describes benefits of recitation of Aumkar and its relationship with prana (life breath).

CC-OAgamnigam Digital Preservation Foundation , Chandigarh

6) Mandukya Upanishad: It is the shortest of all Upanishads, but is considered important one. It discusses various states of consciousness and the Ultimate Consciousness. It also describes greatness of Aumkar.

7) Manduka Upanishad: It is taken from Atharveda. It discusses two ways of knowledge. The higher knowledge, (Apara Vidya) is that which helps in god realization and lower knowledge pertains to rituals. It describes process of the evolution of the universe.

8) Prasna Upanishad: This Upanishad is a part of Pippaladashakiya Brahmana of Atharveda. In this Upanishad Pippalada Rishi has answered six questions of six rishis Sukesha, Satya Kama, Gargya, Kausalya, Bhargava and Kabandhi. The questions asked are about birth of individuals, about body, life force (atma) its existence and exist etc.

9) Swetasharo Upanishad: It discusses realization of Brahman (cosmic element) by meditation. It also discusses other subject such as world (which is an endless cycle), the delusions created by god, individual soul (Jiva), method for liberation from the cycle of life and death through three paths Karam Yoga, Bakti yoja and Jnan yoga.

10) Brihadaranyaka Upanishad: The incantation of this Upanishad is the same as in Isha Upanishad Brihadaranyaka Upanishad is one of the longest Upanishad as is indicated by its name. Brhad = Long, Aranyeha-forest. Hence this long Upanishad is worth studying in the isolation of a forest. It forms a part of the Vajaseneya Brahmane of Kanvebranch of Yajurveda. The main theme of this Upanishad is self realization which is covered in six chapters. It carries an interesting conversation between Sage Yajnavalha and his students who ask questions as to how do we hear, see, think of etc. To all such questions, rishi replies "Brahma is the seer of sight, hearing".

11) Kaivalya Upanishad: This Upanishad is in the form of a dialogue between guru and his disciple regarding knowledge of Brahman. Teacher explains Brahman as one without beginning, middle and end. Brahman, dwells in the hearts of all.

12) Aitareya Upanishad: This Upanishad declares Brahman as the source, sustenance and the end of the universe. He is the waking man in waking state, dreamer in dreaming stage deep sleeper in dreamless stage.

13) Bhagwad Gita: Bhagwad Gita has also been classified as an Upanishad of a different kind. Instead of commenting on Vedic texts, it present a commentary on different Upanishad itself.

f) *Darshanas

There are six popular school of Vedanta philosophy commonly known as Darshanas (see Chapter 3 for details). These are:

1) Nyaya (theory of inference) written by Sage Gautama (not Buddaha).
2) Vaisheshke – study of ultimate particles written by Sage Kanda. This is also known as Atomic School of Hinduism.

CC-OAgamniga[illegible] Preservation Foundation, Chandigarh

3) Sankhya – Describes two ultimate realities Purusha and Prakriti. It is written by Sage Kapila.
4) Yoga – Advocates a system of mental and physical exercises as spiritual discipline. It is written by Sage Patanjali.
5) Purva Mimasa – It emphasis on the performance of Vedic rituals for liberation from material bondage. It is written by Sage Jaimini.
6) Vedanta (also known as Uttara Mimamsa) Its original author was Vyasa.

It is the philosophy of Vedanta, which describes Brahman as the sole authority for everything that one observes in this universe. There have been many commentators on Vedanta, among whom the best known is by Shankracharya.

Tantric Literature

Agamas

Three are three tantric traditions in Hinduism besides tantarism of Buddhism. These three tantric tradition are:

1) Shaivism
2) Shaktism
3) Vaishnavism.

The literature regarding these tantaras traditions is known by the name of Agamas, which were written from 1st to 6th Century AD.

Some of the prominent Agamas of Shaivism are as follows:

1) Malini Vijya
2) Svacchanda[5]
3) Vijayettara
4) Netra
5) Naishvasa
6) Svayambhuva
7) VijnanBhairva (English translation available)
8) Mrgendra
9) Rudryamiala
10) Shivstotra (Einglish translation available)

Spanda Shastras

1)* Spnda Karika by Kallata
2)* Virti by Ramakantha
3)* Pradipka by Utpala
4)* Spanda Samdoha by Kshemraja.
5) Spanda Nirnaya by Khermaja.
6) Spanda Karika (Translated into English).

Pratyabijna Shastras

1)* Shivdrashti by Somananda
2)* Ish-Pratyebjna Karika by Ulpaldeva
3)* Sidditrayan by Utpal deva.
4)* Pratyabijna Vimurshani (2 Vol.) by Abinavgupta.
5)* Pratyabijna Vivrti – Vimarshani (3 Vol.) by Abinava Gupta commentary in English under title Bhaskari (2 Vol.) written by Bhaskar Acharya published by Prince of Wales, Saraswati Bhavan, Allahabad, under Serial Nos. 82 & 83).
6)* Parmarthsara by Abinavgupta.
7)* Pratyabhijnam hydyam (Translated into English by Jaidev Singh).
8)* Shiv Shrotavali by Utpaldeva (translated into English by N K Kotru).

2) Paratrisika Vivarna by Abinav Gupta (Translated into English).
3) Kashmir Shaivism by Swami Laxmanji.

Panchastavi[6]

Panchastavi is an ancient work (around 1000 AD) of five laudations in praise of Divine mother Parvati (also known as Mahatripurasundari). It is devotional in nature and yogic in content. Each of the five laudation has a distinct theme:

1) Laghustava (21 verses) in praise of dynamic power of goddess.
2) Charchastva (31 verses) focused on search for Truth (Jnan Shakti) in its yogic content Panchastavc describes the path of Kundalini awakening.
3) Ghatastava (24 verses) in praise of creative energy (Shakti) of Goddess.
4) Ambastava (32 verses) praising goddess as benign mother.
5) Sakalajananistava (38 verses) praising glory of cosmic mother.

In its yogic content Panchestavi describes the path of Kundalini awakening.

Explanations

1) Encyclpedia Brittanica p 529.
2) In observing sacrifices as per Vedic codes, Hindus consider river Narmada (which flows EW, South of Vindyan mountains) as dividing line. Worshipers South of this river offer prayers northwards to this river and people living north of Narmada pray northwards to River Ganga.
3) Translation taken from 'Eight Upanishads' published by Advaita Ashram Calcutta written by Swami Gambhrânanda.
4) Translation taken from 'Eight Upanishads' published by Advaita Ashram Calcutta written by Swami Gambhrânanda.
5) Published in 6 volumes by Kashmir Research Dept. It gives clear exposition of Tantra Shastra it in all its aspects of 'deksha', 'asana', 'panchakuly', 'puncha-muktas' 'mandala', 'rudra', 'bhavana', 'nari', 'guru-desciple', 'sadhbhavana' of etc. It is like an encyclopedic 'Shiva Shastras'.
6) It authorship is unknown but is believed to be the work of Dharmâcharya (who lived in the latter half of 9th Century AD).
   A detailed commentary on this work has been written in English by Jankunath Kaul (Kamal) Published by Sri Ramakrishna Ashrama, Srinagar (Kashmir) in 1996.

About The Author

Shri Piyaray Lal Raina (Saddhak) was born to Yamberzali and Pt. Sham Lal Mujoo on 21st August 1936 at Srinagar, Kashmir. He is married to Krishna and has two childrens. Currently, he spends his time between Atlanta, USA and Gurgoan, India.

Due to family circumstances, he spent his childhood with the family of his maternal uncle Pandit Nila Kanth Bhat who worked in Lloyds Bank in Srinagar and was a strict disciplinarian and spiritual person. Under his charge he learnt the first lesson of spirituality and discipline at a young age. In his profession as a geologist, he travelled extensively in the Himalayas where he found himself one with nature. He remained in close contact with the spiritual personalities of Kashmir. After migration from Kashmir, he came in contact with his guru Karunamai Maa (of Kashmiri origin) at her Sohna Ashram in Gurgoan, Haryana. Under her tutelage and guidance, he started writing on various aspects of religious philosophy with emphasis on Kashmir Shaivism. He has developed a keen interest in Kashmiri religious traditions. He was the main speaker on Kashmir Shavism at the International Vedic Conference held at University in Massachusetts, USA in 2002. Mr. Raina is associated with many social activities.
